DON'T FRET.

Are your enemies at work?
Don't fret.
They can't injure you a whit;
If you heed them not a bit
They Will soon be glad to quit.
Don't fret.

Has a horrid lie been told?
Don't fret.
It will run itself to death,
As the ancient adage saith,
And will die for want of breath.
Don't fret.

Is adversity your lot?
Don't fret.
Fortune's wheel keeps turning 'round—
Every spoke shall touch the ground,
All in time shall upward bound.
Don't fret.

—Capt. Mason, in Ram's Horn.

FROM the St. Peter Herald we learn that Gustavus Adolphus College was remembered by an alumni, Albert H. Quist, in his will, and made richer by $1000. Also that an old St. Peter boy, Lt. John A. Lundeen, of the U. S. Army sent them a Christmas present of a $50. check. G. A. C. is appreciated.

WHEN Knute Nelson was running for Governor he was such a good man that leading republicans succeeded in coaxing a lot of week kneed democrats to help elect him just to keep the populists out. Now that he dare announce himself as a candidate for the U. S. Senate against W. D. Washburn, nothing seems to bad for these same leading republicans to say about him; anything to keep him at home. They think the Scandinavians are getting more than their share of the plums. But that would leave Clough, not Scandinavian, Governor. Some of them even say that Clough could never be elected Governor, himself. Anything and everything to save Washburn seems to be the motto.

AND now comes the news that Gov. Knute Nelson is in the race for U. S. Senator; and that all other anti-Washburn men will be dropped out at once. If Knute is as wily as the Washburn clans try to make out he is, it is but fair to suppose that a deal is on between the two forces to rid the field of other candidates and to force Washburn upon the people in spite of their protest. For no one doubts but the Governor is as honest in politics as are his apparent opponents in this matter. Comstock and McCleary are said to still have their lightning rods up. Now is the chance for our Wright county Senator to begin to loom up as a dark horse. Hurrah for

Wright county's Senator Eaton,
Who's never yet been beaten.

WE still insist that Wright county is entitled to recognition at the hands of the Republicans to assemble in the Legislative halls this week. Wright rolled up a big Republican majority and has done so before and it is about tired of doing so without recognition of some kind from the leaders. The Sixth district extends all the way from Delano to Duluth and our Congressman comes from Duluth, so it is but fair that the U. S. Senator come from the county containing Delano. Our Wright county republicans and our 38th district members of the G. O. P. are so jealous of each other and so anxious to gather up the small crumbs for their own especial benefits as to apparently be blind to the one great opportunity of a life time; that of securing for one of their own number a man eminently qualified and who would be one of the people and of whom Wright county would be proud, and of whom the Sixth District would have no cause to complain, and who would be an honor to the U. S. Senate, as one of its members; a man who has served our county in several capacities, who has been state Senator and assisted in making some of the best laws in our state. Of course we do not belong to the Republican party: but as it seems Mr. Washburn like his bitter enemy, Mr. Donnelly is destined for a season to withdraw from the cares of a political life and we are bound to have a successor from his party who have such a big majority in the Legislature, why not send a man from outside the cities; from the central part of the state; a man acquainted with the interests of all classes and who will fearlessly and impartially work for them? Why not send Senator A. Y. Eaton, of Wright?

SEVERAL good editorials are found in The Minneapolis Sunday Times, among them "What to do With the Boys" and "Civilization and Selfishness". These articles are calculated to set people thinking; but do not point out the remedies for many difficulties and evils of the present time. The first mentioned article alludes to the fact that boys are educated in books at the expense of a practical mode of making a living. A proper remedy for this would be to learn every boy a trade, of some kind, at which he could, in case of necessity, make a living. Men with trades learned are not necessarily debarred, if hard times and little work in their lines come on, from working at anything that comes in their way. Instead of being inferior laborers they are usually more intelligent for having acquired a knowledge of one thing than those who have not; and in case work at their trades is to be found they are in a position to obtain work at better wages when their more unfortunate fellow laborers cannot.

As for the second article named it deals more with the rights of all to what is God given. The rights of people to live at home without being disturbed by some neighbors making night hideous by keeping a howling dog; allowing the young lady to play at the piano, or the young man to toot on a horn; or the head of the house to come home in the wee sma hours drunk, as usual. It makes rather a specialty of tainting the air with tobacco smoke; claiming that a man has just as good a right to smoke in your face as to spit on you, and no better right. Smoking has, indeed, become a great nuisance; hotel and postoffice lobbies, street cars, depot waiting rooms and such places are used by some people who are so thoughtless of their neighbors' welfare as to fill the air with the fumes and smoke of tobacco and depriving their neighbors of what belongs to them, a right to breathe pure, free air. One sprig of a youth desiring to be seen and thinking, perhaps, that someone will think he is a man, will for hours, make life unpleasant for a room full of people, all wishing he was some other place, and glad when he is gone. People are learning these facts. Customers will shun places where they are used to finding things unpleasant. Merchants who continually harbor a lot of loafers who keep the room much in the condition of a smoke house, and the goods on the shelves filled with the fumes of tobacco, cannot expect the trade of ladies who do not use the noxious weed. The breath of a tobacco user is more disagreeable to many than is that of some fair damsel who has chanced to have made a meal mostly of raw onions. The danger of fire where matches and cigar or cigarette stubs are being constantly strewn about the floor is so great as to deter many employers from hiring men, though they know them as good workmen, simply because they smoke. It is a very bad habit.

Letter From McGary.

INDEPENDENCE, Jan. 2, 1895.

Happy New Year, Mr. Editor. May the incoming year be happiest one of your life; may you prosper in every avenue of life throughout the year. May you see the Jeffersonian democracy get to the front during the year, and may confidence and prosperity be restored to the people.

During the last few years we have been threatened with a financial crisis and it broke in upon us during the year 1894. We had had crop failures, storms and cyclones and the bearing down of prices and farm produce, stringency in the money market, until poverty stands in ghost like appearance before every threshold in the land. Both church and state is now being tested in regard to their strength financially, socially, politically and religiously, but may the kind hand of Providence stay any further calamity from breaking in upon us. Some think the head of the present administration must be a distant relation to Jonah, as he is so fond of going fishing, but we must have a more savory dish than fish, ducks, or government bonds in order to save this country. The bone, sinew, and muscle of this country demand wise and just legislation for the people and it must come soon or there will be a mighty falling away of something. It has been given out in cold type, that the democrat party is to blame for all this financial trouble that has come upon us, but I can't see how any true converted apostle to the faith of the republican party can blame it all to the democrats for the republicans put most all the laws on the statute books by which we are governed; the law that gives the Secretary of the Treasury power to issue government bonds was put there by the republican party and so we might go on till we had exhausted the alphabet in this way. This issuing of government bonds is like pouring water from one pail into another. We need a Jackson or a Lincoln to help us out of this dilemma. Some say times are improving but this is as much imagination as anything; the time has not yet come for times to improve much. Provided this country gets a good crop this coming season, by next fall we may expect times to improve.

The local news in these parts is not much, hardly anybody got any business of their own. Sometimes they attend to their neighbors' business gratis and often they will pay a commission besides for the privilege.

Maple Plain has got an agricultural house. Yes, she is getting to the front.

The town of Independence is fast coming to the front in the way of modern improvements and civilization. There are two railroads passing through the town, the G. N. and the "Soo". We have five or six church buildings, six or seven school houses, several ministers, two doctors, but no lawyer and no saloon. We have no debt nor bonds but will have to help pay for that big court house in Minneapolis. We have a good many miles of road and they are kept up in good shape.

Any one looking for a place to settle down we think it would pay them to take a look at Independence. I do not give it as a recommendation but your correspondent has lived here for nearly forty years. The camp fire of the Sioux had scarcely gone out or the smoke of theirs teepe cleared away when your correspondent (then only a kid) entered these primeval forests but time, hard work and poverty has brought about many changes. On a direct line Independence is about 23 miles from Minneapolis and almost comes up to the city limits of Delano, where they have electric lights and city water works. We have a lawabiding and church going people, both honest and industrious. The creamery that is located on the Minneapolis and Watertown road is in the town of Independence. They command the biggest price. We have no fine stock in this town to speak of except dogs. For a purse of $500 we will trot out our dog population against any other town in the county. They are graded mostly for speed and their bark. A good dog with a good pedigre will bring from 50 cents to ten dollars.

Since the repeal of the McKinley bill the flockmasters have gone out of the sheep business mostly. They think this is not an all wool administration; that unless we have high protection the wool will not grow.

J. H. McGARY.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C. Dec. 23, 1894.

Although there has not been at the outside more than seventy-five members of Congress in Washington at any one time during the present week, that has not prevented those industrious gentlemen who make a business of manufacturing Washington news for sensational papers sending out detailed programmes—each entirely different from the other—of what disposition Congress will make of the Carlisle Currency reform bill. As that distinguished philosopher, Josh Billings, used to say, "it is better to be ignorant than to know so darn much that ain't so." While President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle, as well as Chairman Springer, who is in charge of the currency bill, hope and believe that the bill will pass the House in some shape, neither of them would attempt to positively say that the House would or would not pass it, although these irresponsible scribblers do so daily.

As a matter of fact, no man living is in a position to state with a reasonable degree of certainty what will be the fate of the currency bill, and all attempts to do so are but guesses. It was well understood by the democrats of the House when the adjournment for the holidays took place that the recess would be devoted to a study of how the bill might be improved, and that no conclusion was to be reached until they came together again. It is believed, but even that has not been definitely determined upon, that the fate of the currency bill will be settled at a democratic caucus to be held as soon as Congres meets again. At any rate it can be set down as certain that the democrats, and not the sensation mongers, will decide the matter.

If Spain persists in making the duty upon Canadian flour shipped to Cuba 75 cents a barrel less than the amount charged upon flour shipped from the United States, she may wake up some fine morning and find herself reading a proclamation issued by President Cleveland that will shut Cuban sugar out of the United State markets. There is no doubt about the President having ample authority for this retaliation, and little that he will exercise it, if the Spanish government refuses to favorably respond to the representations which Minister Taylor has been directed by Secretary Gresham to make on the subject.

Secretary Carlisle made public this week the plan for the reorganization of the office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury, which is to take effect January 1, 1895. Under the new plan the Architect will have to deal only with matters which should properly come under him; all the rest will go where they properly belong. Everybody who knows anything about the business of the office admits the proposed change to be beneficial in every respect. The office of Architect is now vacant, but it is expected to be filled soon after the reorganization of the office. There are twenty-five written applications for the office on file.

They are making things lively for Representative Asher Caruth, of Kentucky, around his usual Washington haunts, because of his having told a guileless reporter for a local paper that he had no use for a present sent him from Philadelphia. The aforesaid present was in the shape of a book and had a title reading: "Chips that pass in the night; by Jack Pot." Inside, instead of reading matter, was a poker layout, including cards and ivory chips. The Col. is accused by his friends of trying to bunco that poor reporter and through him the public, and the reporter is said to have been discharged for accepting as true this statement that a Kentucky Congressman had no use for a poker layout.

Gov Oates, of Alabama, is spending the holidays in Washington, but his visit is one of business as well as pleasure. When asked what brought him to Washington at this time, he said: "My chief aim and ambition is to help contribute to the material development of Alabama, which is so rich in natural resources. National legislation is needed to help on the good work. The people of the South are short of the capital required in building up that section, and so I hope that at the present session Congress will do something to relieve the necessities of the country by some kind of financial legislation. The Carlisle bill may not be perfect, but it is a way of relief, and should be passed.,, Chairman Sayers, of the House committee on Appropriations, is, with a number of his colleagues, working right through the holidays on the appropriation bills.

BUFFALO NEWS.

Fine weather this! Who would go to Florida to spend the winter when they can enjoy a better winter climate at home.

M. Wooley, of Edgway, N. D., has been engaged by Mr. H. B. Cady as salesman in his market.

Alfred Blanchett, of Otsego, the man who went insane and destroyed one of his eyes a little more than a year ago and was committed to the St. Peter Hospital for insane, was recommitted last Saturday, he having escaped from the authorities and returned home.

Mrs. John Hatch, of Monticello Prairie, is sick with Pneumonia.

P. E. Atchison, of the Willmar district Minnesota Northern M. E. Conference stopped off the east bound morning train, last Monday and held Quarterly Conference at Buffalo.

BORN, to Mr. and Mrs. John W. Carlson, of Chatham, last Wednesday, a boy.

Of all the events of the present winter, the Masonic and Eastern Star installation exercises and supper was superior. Such beautiful tables with such a bountiful supply of tempting viands was never seen in Buffalo before and I doubt if there has been in the County. About one hundred and fifty partook of the supper and there was enough left for half that many more. About fifty or seventy-five visiting brothers and sisters were present from the lodges at Rockford, Monticello and Annandale.

Among Our Exchanges.

Mary Hager, who is taking in the Delano schools, is home for the holiday vacation.—Wright County Times.

J. Littlejohn, of Cleveland, purchased the last railroad land in Le Sueur county, consisting of 80 acres.—St. Peter Herald.

If you ever want to see a populist governor inaugurated, go to Lincoln next Thursday. This is the last chance. There will never be another pop. governor elected.—Weeping Water Republican, Neb.

Wonder what those fellows think now who said that the opposition to Washburn consisted of a few "leg pullers"? It looks as though the chances were against him, even at this early date.—Litchfield News-Ledger.

The Michigan Teachers' association adopted a resolution protesting against the use of tobacco by those engaged in teaching the young, as it sets a pernicious example. The gentle schoolma'ams will therefore be expected to restrict themselves to gum hereafter.—Morning Call.

The people believe that the U. S. senatorial fight will be on the plan of boodle; that the man with the largest purse will succeed. This bi-annual fight with its attending disgrace can but impress one with the faults of the present system and convince one that no harm could come from a change which would give to the people the right to make their own selection. May Mr. Turpie win his fight in behalf of purely popular government.—St. Peter Herald.

BUFFALO GAZETTE $1.00 per year.

"The Little Matter" Of politeness on the part of all trainmen with passengers is what has always impressed us most forcibly on the trains of the Northwestern Line. This popular Line does run the finest does run the fastest and most complete trains over the smoothest tracks we ever had the pleasure of riding on.—The Alliance, Valley City, N. D.

"From One End" To another, the North-Western Limited is vestibuled and lighted with gas. This train is nothing less than a continuous parlor, elegant enough in all its appointments but none too elegant for the good people of North Dakota. Recently, a number of Grand Fork's best citizens have ridden on this train from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago and have united in singing its praise without an exception.—The Herald, Grand Forks, N. D.

Polish Refugees Now In Conference in Chicago.

It is reported on the authority of a prominent Polish citizen of Minneapolis, that a few of the leading Polanders of the country are now meeting in Chicago with a countryman fresh from the Russian capital. Their conference is with regard to the recent amnesty proclamation of the Czar, and is expected to develop something important.

According to the result of this conference, will be determined to what extent it will be possible and advisable for Polish refugees now in the United States to return to their native land. The motive behind the Czar's proclamation is not yet fully sounded, and the probable policy of the officials is as yet a secret. It is said that the visitor from St. Petersburg will be able to enlighten his compatriots here somewhat, and enable them to see their course more clearly.—Minneapolis Times.

Some of the older cities of the country, Boston and Philadelphia, for example, once forbade smoking in the street. It was a good law and ought to be revived. If it restricted the freedom of the smokers, it also gave as much to the non-smokers—the privilege of being unmolested in public places. The street is not a private smoking-room. One man has no more right to void his tobacco smoke into the face of another than he has to void his saliva. If he has, why, in the name of common sense? Because the smoke is less disagreeable? That is a matter of individual preference, and, besides, a man has no right to wantonly do the least disagreeable thing. Why may not a man appear on Nicollet avenue with a long stick strapped horizontally across his back or with an open package of asafoetida in his pocket, or carrying a polecat in his arms, or with his clothes dripping with kerosene oil, or with a rattlesnake coiled around his neck, with as much right as he may smoke there? If a man treads upon another's foot he apologizes; but he will deliberately void offensive smoke into his very throat, and never think that he does anything reprehensible. If a man dislikes smoke he can keep out of the street. But the right of the tobacco hater in the street is equal to that of the tobacco lover: to refrain from smoking in public places is not granting a concession, but not to refrain is violating a right. Upon the ground of actual right, without reference to the sanction of custom, a man would be perfectly justifiable in resenting the smoking of tobacco near him as a personal affront.—Minneapolis Times.

Best Olive Oil.

Curiously enough the crudest and most barbarous process of all produces the very finest grade of oil, a grade so fine and so rare, indeed, that it is seldom used, in America, at any rate, except for the lubrication of watches and delicate machinery, and in surgery. A stone vat is built with a small internal depression. Over this is erected a heavy frame of untrimmed timber supporting at its center, which is also the center of the vat, a vertical spindle which supports a horizontal rod upon which is affixed a heavy roller of hard wood, in the Oran district of Algiers, or of porous stone in Northern Morocco and in the hill region of Tunis. In some of these regions the women are the oil makers, and may be seen tramping round and round the vat, tugging the pole in pairs, while another woman stirs the mass in the stone trough, the children, generally in a state of Adamic simplicity of attire, standing or squatting about watching the proceedings with infantine interest. When the pulp has been sufficiently mashed, the women scoop it up in small quantities into bags which are wrung into stone jars and pots. These latter are sealed with cloths coated with w x, and in this shape are shipped to Europe, where the contents are carefully decanted into flasks and vials containing a few ounces each, and bringing a high price in the large cities of the world, chiefly, as has been said, for extra fine mechanical purposes, though, like the "truffles of Avignon," it also reaches the table of the epicure.—From "The Olive and Olive Oil," in Demorest's Magazine for January.

Shall a Source of Corruption Be Licensed?

The active conscience of the nation is now asking with fearful foreboding, "When will the people arise in their moral strength and denounce these outrages; when shall we have relief from the terrible wretchedness and criminal debauchery caused by the wicked and foul conspiracy of a license which now justifies and encourages these dens of iniquity?

With zeal and moral power to work, and indomitable will and courage to meet the life-and-death struggle for Prohibition, this conflict for right and justice will culminate at the ballot box with the imperative edict of the people, "The saloon must go!"—From "Constitutional Governmental Protection," in Demorest's Magazine for January.

"The Rule" Is Safety—Absolute safety, on The Northwestern Line. In addition to this, there is no line in this Northwestern country on which the traveler is treated with more uniform courtesy nor is there a line on which the passenger equipment is maintained at a higher modern standard of comfort.—The Democrat, Hutchinson, Minn.

News Index.

Bishop Bessmer, of Green Bay, Wis., according to newspaper reports has announced to the public that the higher degrees of some of the secret societies are anti-Christian. Grand Chancellor Hilscher, of the K. P. order gets back at him in print and defies him to point out wherein, so far as concerns the K. P's.

There is some talk now in political circles of President Cleveland calling a short session of Congress, as soon as the present Democratic session is through to allow the new G. O. P. Congress to show to the nation what it can do toward pouring a healing balm upon the wonderful sores of the country.

Minneapolis wants everything. Now her papers are scheming for a 10 hour mail service from Chicago. Let her have it. It will only bring Delano that much nearer the hub.

Governor Nelson has announced himself a candidate for U. S. Senator and claims never to have said anything that would preclude his running.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

Square Type. Conical. Spatulate. Philosophic. Artistic. Feminine.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $3500.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe for Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

DELANO, Wright Co., - MINN.

BOB INGERSOLL once said that he wouldn't believe there was a hell until Missouri went republican, and now the Iola (Mo.) Register demands that he redeem his pledges.

DON'T eat two mince pies, a plum pudding, a duck, lobster salad and ice cream, and then attribute your sense of fullness to the presence of your mother-in-law in the house.

A GOOD many sins have been laid at the door of the deadly cigarette, and now a Brooklyn dentist avers that it kills the nerves of the teeth. Throw away the cigarette, and if you must smoke buy a pipe.

THERE may be as much in hypnotism scientifically as there is in chloroform, but it is as difficult to hypnotize persons, male or female, against their will as it is to chloroform them against their will. Let foolish young females remember that. Then let them beware of hypnotism and all other forms of foolishness.

THE city of Hartford, Conn., claims to have had closer connection with American literature than any other city of its size in the country. It bases its claim on the fact that it has been the home of Mrs. Sigourney, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Isabella Beecher Hooker, Mark Twain, William Gillette, the playwright; Noah Webster, the lexicographer, and a host of others of greater or less fame.

THE Portuguese are now setting up the claim that they discovered America forty-four years before Columbus did. It is alleged that their ships reached the coast of Brazil in 1445, while Columbus did not sight the West Indies until 1492. This view is sustained by Prof. H. Yule Oldham, lecturer on geography in the University of Cambridge, but the other geographers do not consider his points fully proven.

APROPOS of industrial schools, Denmark has maintained one for several years for instruction in butter making. And now that little kingdom of only about 2,000,000 inhabitants exports 100,000,000 pounds of butter per year, an average of fifty pounds per inhabitant. Dairy products are almost the only articles the supply of which has never yet run ahead of the demand. There is always a market for good butter, and Denmark has discovered the fact.

THE City of Mexico authorities who were looking after counterfeiters made some startling discoveries. It was evident there was an organized colony of several hundred people scattered about the city making and circulating the spurious coin. Thousands of dollars had been successfully 'shoved" within the last few weeks. Arrests of members of the band had been made almost daily until there were 280 of them in prison awaiting trial.

ROBERT BUCHANAN, who failed for $75,000 not long ago, has just been discharged by the bankruptcy court on condition that he pay half of all he earns above $4,500 a year toward satisfying his creditors, till they shall have recovered thirty-seven cents on the dollar. His lawyer tried to free him from the obligation, but the judge held that an author who had earned $7,500 a year by his writings might be expected to continue to do so, and should do something for his creditors.

IF the Atlantic were lowered 6,564 feet the distance from shore to shore would be only half as great, or 1,500 miles. If lowered a little more than 3 miles—say 19,680 feet—there would be a road of dry land from Newfoundland to Ireland. This is the ridge on which the great Atlantic cables are laid. The Mediterranean is comparatively shallow. A drying up of 666 feet would leave three different seas, and Africa would be joined with Italy. The British channel is more like a pond, which accounts for its choppy waves.

NEW ZEALAND presents a striking example of the dependence of public prosperity on agriculture. Not many years ago the country appeared to be crushed under a heavy debt incurred by the extravagant system of borrowing and the Maori war. Instead of issuing more bonds the people and statesmen set themselves to developing the agricultural resources of the colony. The dairy and frozen meat industries have reached great magnitude, and nowhere, says a recent report, is the farmer more prosperous.

IT is announced that horseflesh is soon to be placed on sale in New York as an article of food. It has been used as food in Paris for a good many years, and although it does not seem to be esteemed as a luxury, it doubtless serves a useful purpose in relieving the hunger of the impecunious, for it must be sold at a lower price than beef or mutton to secure customers. We believe the medical testimony is to the effect that horse flesh is not unhealthful if the animal is not diseased, and the health department will probably look after this, in case it comes into use as food.

INVESTIGATION goes to show, and experiments on cadavers prove, that a pistol or rifle ball deflected from its course immediately resumes its line of flight after "rimming" the object it is unable to pass directly through. In other words, a bullet turned from its course by a rib or other bone passes under the skin and flesh until it reaches a point mathematically directly opposite to the point where it entered the body and then passes out, resuming its direct line of flight. In case its initial velocity is far spent it remains imbedded in the flesh opposite the spot where it came in contact with the bone.

ASTOUNDING stories of the cheapness of horses come from various portions of the west. They are said to be cheaper than good dogs in the east. In many parts of the west two or three dollars is said to be accepted as a good price for a well-trained animal. A hundred head of unbroken ranch horses from Wyoming were sold in Denver recently for $90 and the freight, and in Idaho a big stock farm has turned 250 ponies adrift for the winter. A splendid opportunity for a big serum farm for the new diphtheria cure appears to be opening in those regions, unless prices should go up in the near future.

AFTER ANTHONY.

Witness Causes a Great Sensation in the Lexow Inquiry.

Louis S. Street's Startling Testimony—Says He Paid Comstock a Thousand Dollars to Have Indictments Dismissed—Green Goods Men Protected.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—On Thursday Louis S. Street was sworn before the Lexow committee. He said he was indicted on June 20, 1889, for a felony in connection with "green goods." There were two indictments against him. He declared he had never been in the "green goods" business.

The witness then explained that a man by the name of Edward Beckthold rented an office from him at No. 56 Beekman street. "Anthony Comstock," said he, "came to my office a month after and asked me to tell the name of the man who rented the office. I refused to tell; was brought to the Tombs and held in $5,000 bail for making 'green goods.'" The witness further said that Beckthold gave his wife $5,000 as bail for him. The bail was finally reduced to $2,000 and Street was released from the Tombs.

"Beckthold told me," said the witness, "he gave $1,500 to Anthony Comstock to square an indictment in the United States court."

The witness also said that he went to Europe, and when he returned the state court indictment was still hanging over him.

"I went to see Anthony Comstock," said he, "and he said he was the only man who could get the indictments dismissed. I called to see Mr. Comstock again in August, 1890, and I paid him $1,000 in cash to get the state court indictments dismissed. He said when he was taking the money: 'Remember, you are not giving me this $1,000 as a bribe, but as a donation to the society.'"

This testimony created a sensation in the court.

"Now, are you sure you paid this money to Anthony Comstock?"

"I swear before God and man I paid him $1,000 to have the indictments dismissed and to secure my liberty."

Mr. Goff offered in evidence the two original indictments which had been dismissed as the indorsement showed.

Robert Street, a hotelkeeper of Tuxedo and a brother of the last witness, was then called.

"Did you visit Anthony Comstock's office with your brother in August, 1893?" asked Mr. Goff.

"Yes, sir."

"What did you see?"

"I saw my brother pay $1,000 to Anthony Comstock. There was an agreement between them to get the indictments dismissed. I gave my brother $300."

Mr. Goff then said that they had evidence that the police had protected "green goods" men long ago. "We have now evidence," said he, "if the testimony is true, that Anthony Comstock, the president of a private society, has accepted money for substantially the same thing as the police officials."

"That's a pretty heavy indictment against Mr. Comstock, if it is true," said Chairman Lexow.

The last witness corroborated all his brother's story as to the interview with Mr. Comstock.

TRADE AND FINANCE.

Points of Interest in R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

"Commercial failures for 1894 already reported number 14,192, against 15,242 last year, with liabilities of $163,238,404, against $346,779,889 last year. Next week the final report for 1894 will probably include about 400 more failures, with liabilities of about $4,000,000. From these accounts, banks and bankers, financial and transporting companies are excluded. Manufacturing failures already number 2,756, against 3,422 last year, but liabilities are only $64,491,287 against $176,982,091 last year. The trading failures already number 11,310, against 11,512 last year, but liabilities are only $87,899,057, against $130,002,333 last year. The statement by sections shows a decrease of about two-thirds in defaulted liabilities in the middle and central northern states, one-half in the west and southwest and a third in other sections.

"Wages actually paid in November are compared to-day with working hours in establishments throughout the country, and in about fifty branches of industry, the average being 236.4 hours per hand this year, 218.4 last year, and 243.2 in 1892. The wages paid per hour were 1.2 per cent. less than last year, and 8.59 per cent. less than in 1892. As the hands employed in establishments reporting were 8.53 per cent. more than last year, but 12.02 per cent less than in 1892, the total wages paid in these establishments in November was 16.33 per cent. more than in November, 1893, but 21.77 per cent. less than in November, 1892. Thus the decrease in purchasing power of the working force is found to be due mainly to decrease in number of hands and hours of work, rather than to reduction of wages paid per hour.

"Holiday trade has scarcely met expectations. Purchases have been numerous, but smaller than usual in amount and more confined to needful articles, thus anticipating ordinary trade. The volume of business represented by clearing house exchanges is 7.7 per cent. larger than last year, but 21.8 per cent. less than the year before, and the daily average for December has been 7.1 per cent. more than last year, but 25.2 less than the year before. In spite of some sensational losses on western roads, the earnings of all railroads reporting for December are 2.9 per cent. greater than last year, and but 11.6 per cent. less than in 1892.

"Wheat has declined one-half cent during the week. Exports in December from both coasts have been a little larger than last year, but for the crop year about 2,000,000 bushels smaller. The western estimate, usually regarded with most confidence, is, that the crop will reach 515,000,000 bushels, which will leave for export, with stocks brought over, more than 200,000,000 bushels, of which only 75,000,000 bushels have gone abroad. Corn has declined three-fourths of a cent, with good receipts. The price of cotton has not changed, but the fact that receipts from plantations this month have been greater than in 1891, while stocks in sight here and abroad are larger than at the same date that year, is an obstacle to any rise.

"Money is still coming to this city in a steady stream, and exports of gold for the week are expected to be about $2,500,000. The dissolution of the bond syndicate, on the ground that the pending currency bill has destroyed the market for bonds, is the most important event in financial circles, and is liable to have results of some consequence. For commercial loans the demand has slightly increased, though only as might be expected at this season.

Hypnotist to Die.

WELLINGTON Kan., Dec. 31.—Anderson Gray has been given the death sentence by Judge Burnett, according to the verdict of the jury finding him guilty of murder in the first degree for the killing of Thomas Patton. Thomas McDonald, while under the hypnotic influence of Gray did the killing, but was discharged after trial. Gray is a well-to-do farmer. Patton had incurred his enmity and Gray hypnotized McDonald, a farm hand, and while the latter was in that condition compelled him to commit the murder.

THURSDAY'S BLIZZARD.

The Rigors of Winter Felt Throughout the Country.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 29.—Thursday was the coldest day of the winter in Minnesota. Out in the state the range was from 26 below at Grand Rapids, to 20 below at Stillwater. Not over 2 inches of snow has fallen at any point and loggers are having serious trouble in moving logs from the woods.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Dec. 29.—The cold snap has not moderated, and a cold, sharp wind has made traveling disagreeable. The thermometer stood at 22 degrees below zero at 9 o'clock p. m. Thursday.

MORENCI, Mich., Dec. 29.—The storm in this neighborhood was responsible for the death of one man. Albert Neehaus, who resided about 2 miles from Morenci, was found dead in a fence corner on the public highway about a quarter of a mile from his home early Thursday morning having evidently succumbed to the excessive cold.

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—The blizzard which raged all of Thursday badly affected transportation lines of all kinds. Horse cars, cable and electric lines were utterly unable to follow schedule time at any period of the day. Trains on all lines of railway were greatly delayed, and the passenger stations were filled with travelers who had missed connections.

MARTIN'S FERRY, O., Dec. 29.—John Moreland was found frozen Thursday morning at Gliem's Run, near his home. He was an old soldier, and worked in the Elson glass factory. He started to walk home from here Wednesday night, and was caught in the storm.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—Reports from all sections of this state and New Jersey tell of the severe northwest snowstorm of Wednesday night which was so general in its extent. From one to two feet fell. But few casualties are reported, and railroads as a rule, suffered only slight delays.

At Corning, N. Y., as Excise Commissioner Harrison Howe was shoveling snow Thursday morning he dropped dead of apoplexy. He was a leading citizen and was prominent in G. A. R. and masonic circles.

Clearfield, Lock Haven and Hazelton, Pa., report snow having fallen to a depth of from 20 to 30 inches. Railway traffic was badly hampered through the coal regions, and street car traffic was abandoned.

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 29.—A veritable blizzard came upon this state Wednesday night and Thursday. At various places in the state the temperature marked 12 to 16 degrees below zero. The mercury dropped 34 degrees in twenty-four hours.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 29.—The storm has caused great inconvenience to railway travelers. One train from the west pushed through the drifts at noon Thursday, but could only get as far as Skaneateles Junction.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 29.—The storm in this vicinity was the most severe since the cyclone of 1886. Electrical wires of all kinds were torn from their fastenings and poles were blown down by the high winds. Market street, one of the principal thoroughfares, was literally blocked with the debris until late in the day. At Seventh and Birch streets seven two-story houses were unroofed and several of the inmates injured by falling bricks and plaster. Trees by the score were uprooted in different sections of the city.

BOSTON, Dec. 29.—The worst storm in three years—a veritable blizzard—burst upon New England at 9:20 o'clock Wednesday night and it howled till daybreak, when the snow turned to rain, and all day there was a deluge. Many ships have been wrecked, causing great loss of life. The storm came from the gulf, and established a world's record for speed, traveling 500 miles in twelve hours.

The wind played a large part, unroofing the South Boston Baptist church, the Bigelow school and numerous dwellings at City Point. In the harbor hundreds of craft dragged anchor, and there were numerous collisions.

Reports from all along the coast bring tidings of wrecks, and so thick has been the weather that life-saving crews could not see more than 100 yards from shore. At least a dozen vessels were driven ashore and their crews rescued with difficulty.

SAFELY RETURNED.

ROME, Dec. 28.—The pope at noon Wednesday in the throne room of the vatican received the officers of the United States cruiser Detroit, which recently arrived at Naples with the vatican relics exhibited at the world's fair in Chicago. Among the officers present at the reception were Commander Newell, Lieuts. Rogers and Marshall and Ensigns Evans and Blakely. The American officers were presented by Mgr. O'Connell, who expressed in their name and in the name of President Cleveland thanks for the papal participation in the Chicago exposition. His holiness replied in terms of great affection, and praised the progress, activity and liberty of the United States. The audience lasted half an hour, and at its conclusion all the officers went to Cardinal Rampolla, the papal secretary of state, and presented their compliments to him. Later the officers dined at the American college. The facade of that building and its dining-hall were decorated with the Stars and Stripes. Among those present at the dinner were the United States ambassador, Hon. Wayne MacVeagh; H. R. Whitehouse, secretary of legation; the United States naval attache, Gen. Hardy, and Rev. Dr. Riordan.

FEARS FOR HER LIFE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—One of the most remarkable cases ever brought into the American courts promises to be that of Mrs. Hetty Green, one of the richest women in America, against the executors and trustees of her father's estate involving millions of dollars.

According to the story told by her lawyer, William H. Stayton, Mrs. Green is in fear of her life. A belief, firmly fixed, that a band of conspirators took the life of her father, Edward M. Robinson, and of her aunt, Sylvia J. Howland, of New Bedford years ago, and are now seeking her life and the life of her children continually haunts her. Glass, she declares, has been placed in her food not six months ago; blocks of wood and stones have been hurled at her from windows as she was passing on the sidewalks, and on numerous occasions her life has been threatened.

THE POPULIST CONFERENCE.

Outcome of the Meeting in St. Louis—Views Aired in an Address.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 1.—The work of the conference of the national committee of the people's party with the leading members of the rank and file came to a fruition Saturday night when that committee submitted to the conference as the result of its consideration of the discussions of the conference an address to the people. Its presentation was met by the gathering with a shout that rang through the hall, and the indorsement of the conference was given with vigorous viva voce vote. The address follows:

"The rapid increase of our vote in every part of the union and the startling events of the last two years vividly justify both the existence of and necessity for the people's party. The contention of the party that one of the great needs of this country has been and is an enlarged volume of circulating medium is now practically conceded by all parties and by the government. The gold power and banking interests are insisting through the president and his secretary that the enlarged issue of our money supply shall be given exclusively into the hands of the banks; that silver shall be excluded, all treasury notes retired and gold alone should be a legal tender, thus making the monetary question an issue which must be met at once.

"Within the present year the corporations, grown arrogant because of the vast possessions of wealth and the exercise of unconstitutional powers, have made war upon the people and induced the federal courts to exercise in their interest unusual and arbitrary powers; induced the invasion of the states by federal troops without the request of either the executives of said states or the legislatures thereof, and are at this time, through a recreant administration and a truculent congress, attempting to clothe the railroad corporations by means of a pooling bill with power to further and more systematically rob, oppress and plunder the people; and having already deprived the people of access to the silver mines of the country as an independent source of money supply are now, in the interest of a banking oligarchy, endeavoring to deprive them of the right to have their government, in the exercise of its constitutional power, issue the money of the nation and control its volume.

"In the opinion of your committee these events are startling, subversive of the liberties of the citizens and destructive of business and social security; and, adhering to the Omaha platform in all its integrity, your committee insists upon the restoration of the coinage of gold and silver as it existed prior to 1873—at the ratio of 16 to 1—without regard to the action of any other nation, and that all paper money shall be issued by the general government without the intervention of banks of issue, the same to be a full legal tender.

"We also declare our implacable hostility to the further issue of interest-bearing bonds.

"We denounce the pooling bill as a move toward completing the monopoly of transportation and demand that instead congress proceed to bring the railroads under government ownership.

"The power given to congress by the constitution 'to provide for the calling forth of the militia to execute the laws of the union to suppress insurrections, to repel invasions,' does not warrant the government in making use of a standing army in aiding monopolies in the oppression of the public and their employes. When free men unsheathe the sword it should be to strike for liberty, not for despotism nor to uphold privileged monopolies in the oppression of the poor.

"We ask the people to forget all past political differences and unite with us in the common purpose to rescue the government from the control of monopolists and concentrated wealth, to limit the powers of perpetuation by curtailing their privileges, and to secure the rights of free speech, a free press, and trial by jury—all rules, regulations, and judicial dicta in derogation of either of which are arbitrary, unconstitutional, and not to be tolerated by a free people.

"We recommend the immediate organization of an educational campaign by the national, state and local committees."

In addition to this address the national committee adopted the following resolution:

"In view of the fact that the state of Alabama and other southern states are without a republican form of government because of the rule of a political oligarchy which is perpetuated by monstrous frauds at the ballot-box, the imperative necessity of a free ballot and an honest count is a constitutional right, and we demand that it be given and move that the chairman of the national executive committee appoint a committee of three to submit evidence to the press of the country and to congress to substantiate this alarming and revolutionary condition that they may be awakened to the peril caused by this existing autocratic anarchy in the south."

CONVICTED AND SENTENCED.

The Lexow Committee Secures a Great and Substantial Victory.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The Lexow committee, scorned, laughed at and considered a huge joke when it first began its work, has secured its first great victory in the criminal courts. Ex-Police Capt. John L. Stephenson has been sentenced to three years and nine months in the penitentiary at Sing Sing and to pay a fine of $1,000.

The laughter that first greeted the Lexow committee ceased long ago, but Wednesday marked an epoch in the history of its labors, nevertheless. It was the consummation of its first great case, and now no one can doubt that an almost endless number of convictions, with their accompanying sentences, will follow.

The jury found Capt. Stephenson guilty after a trial ending December 12. The crime charged against him was accepting bribes from street merchants and peddlers, although the only case conclusively proved was that he had accepted four baskets of peaches from a fruit merchant named Martin U. Edwards. It was of this that he was convicted, but there were so many other matters that looked suspicious that the conviction was generally regarded as one for general "boodling" and bribe-taking.

MRS. BLOOMER IS DEAD.

A Famous Advocate of Dress Reform Passes Away.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 1.—Mrs. Amelia J. Bloomer, wife of D. C. Bloomer, died at Council Bluffs, Ia., at noon Sunday. She was one of the earliest advocates of national dress for women, and her public use of the new costume caused it to be called the Bloomer costume. She was 77 years old and a native of Homer, N. Y. She was married in 1840 and issued the The Lily, a woman's suffrage paper, from 1849 to 1853. She came to Council Bluffs about twenty-five years ago. She attained a national reputation as a lecturer and advocate of woman suffrage and temperance.

Noted Hotel Burned.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 1.—The Delavan house proper was gutted by fire Sunday night. There were 100 guests in the house. All escaped, although two women and two men were badly injured. They are: Mrs. H. F. Fookes, wife of the agent of the National Cash Register company, of this city, formerly of Dayton, O.; Benjamin Heilman, and his wife, of Brooklyn, who were on their wedding tour; Edmund Walsh, a porter, badly burned.

The loss on the building is estimated at $115,000; fully insured. Messrs. Herty & Moore, proprietors of the hotel, place their loss at $85,000; their insurance is $50,000.

A QUEER CITY.

Travelers in South America see many strange places, but the queerest of all is probably Quito, the capital of the Republic of Ecuador. The first thing which strikes a visitor to that city is that there are no chimneys to the houses.

Charcoal is all that is burned there, and consequently no smoke arises. Another peculiarity is that while the streets are well paved you may pass days in the city and never see a wheeled vehicle.

There are some carriages in Quito, but they are rarely used, and when one of them comes rattling along, everybody turns out to look at it as at some curiosity.

A third peculiarity is that while the bulk of the population dresses in ponchos (a kind of cloak or loose garment), and short linen trowsers, a considerable number of people—white men—are to be seen walking about and wearing frock coats and tall hats. These men, the visitor is generally told, are enlightened and cultivated men, natives of Spanish origin, who claim that they form the nation of Ecuadorians. Indians, of course, do not count.

Every white man in Quito who can possibly manage it wears this sort of coat and hat to emphasize his importance and highly civilized condition.

This dress justifies him in calling himself doctor, and others in so styling him; and he also thinks that it gives him a claim to come into your apartments without being invited and try to borrow five cents from you.

There is no hotel in Quito. There is, it is true, a restaurant which calls itself a hotel, and there are houses where rooms can be hired for lodgings, but hotel, properly speaking, there is none.

The means of access to Quito are also remarkable. In the midst of a wild upland moor, a hundred miles away to the south, a paved road suddenly starts, and extends, with more or less interruption, to Quito. Along this road, twice a week, a dilapidated omnibus, driven by six broken-down mules, which are urged on by the shouting and shrill whistling of three drivers, rolls slowly into Quito.

This is the only public conveyance in the interior. One or two bullock carts may be met upon the road, but all other communication with the outside world is on horse or mule back. Such are some of the peculiarities of a city of Indians, tall hats and self-styled doctors, who will borrow five cents from a stranger.—Golden Days.

Pains in the Back

"I had been afflicted for several years with what the doctors called Diabetes, and suffered terribly. The pain in my back was agonizing in the extreme. Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills cured me. Now I can go to church and attend other meetings with pleasure."

Mr. John Branston

I always keep Hood's Pills by me. In my whole life I never met anything that did me so much good as Hood's Sarsaparilla. 'Experience teaches a dear school, but fools will learn by no other.' I was once foolish enough to listen to a druggist who claimed to have something superior to Hood's, and took another medicine. If I had thrown my dollar in the street I would have been a gainer." ## TO A USURPER

Aha! traitor in the camp,
A rebel strangely bold—
A lisping, laughing, toddling scamp
Not more than four years old.

To think that I, who've ruled alone
So proudly in the past,
Should be ejected from my throne
By my own son at last!

He trots his treason to and fro,
As only babies can,
And says he'll be his mamma's beau
When he's a "gweat, big man!"

You stingy boy, you've always had
A share in mamma's heart:
Would you begrudge your poor old dad
The tiniest little part?

That mamma, I regret to see,
Inclines to take your part—
As if a dual monarchy
Should rule her gentle heart!

But when the years of youth have sped,
The bearded man, I trow,
Will quite forget he ever said
He'd be his mamma's beau.

Renounce your treason, little son,
Leave mamma's heart to me;
For there will come another one
To claim your loyalty.

And when that other comes to you,
God grant her love may shine
Through all your life as fair and true
As mamma's does through mine!

—Eugene Field.

A CASE OF PLAGIARISM.

The young couple stood on the bank opposite the Gadfly contemplating that small house boat with something less than a feeling of ownership than they had hitherto experienced. A fiery little steamer went up the river, and the waves, taking advantage of the confusion, ran and kissed the green bank and were off again before the green bank had time to protest. From the top deck of the Gadfly came a song to the ears of Mr. Stewart, of Throgmorton street, and of young Mrs. Stewart, that they were beginning to know quite well, albeit Miss Bagge, the singer, had only been there since the morning. Miss Bagge accompanied herself on the banjo, and accompanied herself all wrong:

"I'm a little Alabarmer coon, An't been born very long."

"I wonder," said little Mrs. Stewart—"I wonder, now, how many more times she's going to play that?"

"My dear love," said Mr. Stewart, sitting down on the bank.

"Don't call me your dear love, Henry, until that dreadful girl has gone."

"My dear Mrs. Stewart, what can I do? I can't treat her as we brokers treat a stranger who happens to stroll into the house, can I? You wouldn't care for me to catch hold of her and mash her hat in and hustle her out of the place."

"I shouldn't. All you have to do is to be distant with her."

"I believe you like Miss Bagge still," said Mrs. Stewart.

"I don't mind her when she's still," said Mr. Stewart. "It's when she bobs about and plays that banjo of hers that she makes me hot."

The shrill voice came across the stream:

Papa's gwine to smack you if you do."

"Boat ahoy," called Stewart.

The boy on the Gadfly came up from somewhere and pulled over to them, and conveyed them to the houseboat. Miss Bagge, looking down from between the Chinese lanterns, gave a little shriek of delight as their boat bumped at the side of the Gadfly.

"Oh, you newly-married people," she cried, archly, as she bunched up her skirts and came skittishly down the steps; "where have you been? Leaving poor little me alone with my music for such a time."

"Did you say music, Miss Bagge?"

"Yes, dear Mrs. Stewart. My banjo, you know."

"Oh!" said little Mrs. Stewart.

"I used to think I did, Miss Bagge."

Stewart had gone along to get something iced to drink and something in the shape of a cigar to smoke.

"How things change, Mrs. Stewart, don't they? I'm sure it doesn't seem six years ago—hem—Mr. Stewart and I and ma and two or three others came up to Marlow. I think that was long before your day, before you came over from Melbourne, and we did really have the most exquisite time."

"Have you looked through the evening paper, Miss Bagge?" interrupted little Mrs. Stewart, hurriedly.

"Oh, yes, dear, I've looked through it twice. One or two most interesting cases."

"Where did you put it? I want to see what O'Brien has done for Middlesex."

"I've dropped it somewhere," said Miss Bagge. "Could the boy go up for my trunk before it gets dark? I left it at the station, and I shall have some more things down next week."

"Next week!"

"If I stay longer I shall have to run up to town one day to do some shopping."

There was a pause. The rings of smoke from Stewart's cigar at the other end of the boat floated down by them. The boy below broke a few plates and danced a few steps of a breakdown to cover the noise.

"Dear Henry! How the scent of his cigar does remind me of old times! I remember so well that night at Marlow—"

"Miss Bagge, will you go and play something?"

Miss Bagge went obediently and strummed her banjo, and mentioned once more that she was a little Alabama coon, and young Mrs. Stewart ran hurriedly to her husband.

"I'm going to quarrel with her," she said, breathlessly.

"I'm going to ask her to go back to town to-night, Henry."

"But, my dear, isn't that rather rude?"

"Of course it is. That's why I am doing it. You'll have to see her to the station."

The private row was quickly and quietly over. When the last word had been spoken the self-invited guest begged ten minutes to write a letter, and then she pronounced herself ready for Stewart's escort to the station. "Sorry you are obliged to go, Miss Bagge," said Stewart politely.

"It's an important engagement," said Miss Bagge, trembling, "or I would have stayed. Good-by, dear Mrs. Stewart. I dare say we shall meet again soon."

Now an odd thing happened. As Stewart handed his charge into the boat a letter fell from her pocket on the deck of the Gadfly. Mrs. Stewart, in her usual good temper now that her husband's old admirer was departing, called to her as soon as she noticed the letter; but Miss Bagg paid no attention. It almost seemed that she did not want to hear. When Mrs. Stewart picked it up and saw that it was addressed to Henry Stewart, Esq., and marked "private and confidential," she opened it without a moment's hesitation.

"My Dearest Henry—It is so sweet to be near you again. Just as the wind sighs for the seashore, so do I sigh for you. Can you imagine what you are and ever have been to me? You are indeed my king, and you know that I am your willing slave. Yours faithfully,

"Constance Bagge"

Young Mrs. Stewart sank down on a low deck-chair and gasped and looked across at the two.

"Well," she said, "this now is fearful."

There would be a good half an hour before Henry returned, and in that good half hour it was necessary to decide what was to be done. What was quite clear was that the creature must have had some encouragement to induce her to write such a letter, and—

"Why, she is taking his arm!" she cried.

Indeed, Miss Constance Bagge was resting her hand upon the arm of Mrs. Stewart's husband. Henry was carrying her banjo, and, looking back, laughingly waved it at his wife.

"Does this mean," asked Mrs. Stewart, distractedly, "that they will never come back?"

The letter seemed to explain his slight diffidence in agreeing to the lady's dismissal; it explained also why when Miss Bagge had that morning made her unexpected appearance on the bank hailing the boy with a shrill "Hi!" Henry had only laughed very much.

Mrs. Stewart summoned the boy.

"Yes, mem, there is a trine up liter than this. It leaves Thames Ditton at eleven fifteen, and you get to good old Waterloo at about ten to twelve. And I wish to Gawd," added the boy, piously, "that I was there nah. This plice is a lump too quiet for me."

That would give half an hour to speak her mind to Henry (if he did come back), just half an hour to extract from him a confession, and then a rush for the last train up. At Waterloo she could take a cab to Uncle George's; and if Uncle George couldn't see her through, why, nobody could. Uncle George was an agent general. He was a stern man, and he treated everybody as severely as though they were his fellow-countrymen.

"He has managed to say good-by, then?" said Mrs. Stewart, fiercely. "I should like to have seen the parting."

Henry came on board and went straight to her, and, with the assurance of new husbands, kissed her neck.

"She's an impossible creature," said Stewart. He sat down beside his wife and took an evening paper from his pocket. "I believe she took the extra away with her. I've had to buy another."

There was something in little Mrs. Stewart's throat that prevented her for the moment from starting her lecture.

"She wasn't so bad, you know," he went on, "in the old days. Of course I was a mere youth then. But now she's too terrible for words. I suppose if girls don't get married they get warped and changed."

"I want to speak to you, Henry," she said, steadily.

"Oh, bother that boy," he exclaimed. "We must get rid of him, dear; he's a nuisance."

"It wasn't about the boy."

"Not the boy? Well, then—Hullo! Here's a funny case."

She went on very quietly:

"I want to speak to you seriously, Harry, about a matter that has, by accident, come to my notice. I don't want to seem to bother too much about it, and I suppose if I were as free as some women are I shouldn't mind it in the least. But my mind is quite made up."

He was not listening, but her head was averted, and she went on.

"I have left the keys in the bedroom, and my account book is totaled up to date, with the exception of the bill that came in to-day. There is no reason why we should have any high words."

"I beg your pardon, dear. I haven't heard a word that you were saying."

He had found the news page in the evening paper, and was reading with much interest a diverting breach of promise case.

"I was only saying"—she raised her voice to a pitch of distinctness—"that"—

"I don't want to hear it, thank you."

"Yes you do. Listen. This is how it goes: 'Just as the wind sighs for the seashore, so do I sigh for you.' Why, the wind doesn't sigh for the seashore, does it?"

"Go on, please," she said quickly; "read the rest of the letter. Is it really in the paper, Henry?"

"Look for yourself, dear. It's too funny for words. 'So do I sigh for you. Can you imagine what you are and ever have been to me? You are indeed my king, and you know that I am your willing slave.'"

"Why," cried Mrs. Stewart, "that's word for word the same."

"As what?"

"It doesn't matter, dear."

She took from her blouse the letter that the disappointed Miss Bagge, with deplorable lack of originality, had copied from the evening paper.

"Don't people do some silly things, Winifred, dear, when they are in love?"

She took a marguerite from the bowl on the table and stuck it in his hair. Then she tore up the letter and gave the pieces a little puff to send them out on the stream.

"I b'lieve you," said Mrs. Stewart.

"Shall you want to be rown across for that last trine, mem?" demanded the boy, putting his head out of a window, "or is the guv'nor going to do it?"

"That boy's quite mad," said Stewart, turning over a page of the paper to find the cricket; "we must get rid of him."—St. James Budget.

—"What would you say, Tommy, if I were to give you a half dollar?" "I'd say—well, I guess I'd say 'half a loaf's better than no bread at all,' Uncle Jack."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Gift to the Governor.

An interesting ceremony took place in the executive rooms at the state capitol when the state officials presented Gov. Nelson with a handsome silver fruit bowl. The members of the official family, including several officials from out of town, all of whom participated in the gifts, gathered in the large outer office, and Gov. Nelson was called from his private room. Supt. Pendergast acted as spokesman for the donors and made a graceful little speech, in which he expressed the admiration of the state officials for the patriotic and statesmanlike manner in which the governor had conducted the affairs of the state, reviewed the various forms in which the public appreciation had been manifested and, finally, thanking the governor in the name of those whom he represented for their uniform kindness and courtesy, presented him with the bowl.

Gov. Nelson expressed himself as deeply pleased with such a testimonial of the regard of his associates and assistants, and said that he believed no state had ever boasted a more honest and efficient service. He said he considered that they where all there, he among the rest, to do the work of the state as ably and conscientiously as was in their power, and that he was deeply grateful for the harmony and good feeling that existed among them.

Both Gov. Nelson's and Mr. Pendergast,s speeches elicited a round of applause. The fruit bowl is an elaborately designed article of hammered silver, lined with gold. Its surface is deeply wrought with a continuous pattern of fruit and flowers. On each side is a small shield-shaped piece, bearing the engraving, "Christmas, 1894" on one and "Hon. Knute Nelson" on the other.

Didn't Know the Value.

George Bentcliff came from Winnipeg to St. Paul and secured lodgings on Robert street. He had in the pocket of his overcoat about $1,800 in securities. He cultivated his neighbors' acquaintance and fell in with Mike Ryder, a hackman, and his wife Jennie.

Bentcliff called on the pair, and finding his overcoat superfluous, took it off and laid it on the bed in his own room. He was in Ryder's apartments and remained there after Mike went out. When he went back to his own room Bentcliff found that the overcoat was gone and the $1,800 with it. Then he made a row about it. The police arrested Mike Ryder and Jennie, and Lieut. Murphy went out to recover the overcoat. He found it in a saloon on Seventh street, where it had been left, and in the pocket was found the pocketbook with the $1,800 intact. The thieves had evidently overlooked the value of the plunder. The Ryders were locked up and the charge of larceny preferred against each of them.

Pounded by Toughs.

A gang of toughs attempted to tear down a high board fence belonging to Mat Newman, proprietor of the Commercial hotel, at Royalton. Mr. Newman, hearing the racket, went out on the sidewalk in his night clothes to ascertain what the trouble was. He was at once seized by two men and beaten in a shameful manner. His wife, who is an elderly lady, also came out in her night clothes to investigate, and was likewise seized and maltreated. Both the old people were brutally handled and were kept out in the cold nearly an hour. Mr. Newman was taken several blocks away by his tormentors and locked in a shed, from which he managed to escape and make his way home, more dead than alive. Mrs. Newman's face is black and blue and her body and limbs bear marks of the blows and kicks she received. She is under the doctor's care. The outrage is denounced by all good citizens.

Santa Claus on Fire.

F. J. Dratager, chief draftsman of the Northern Pacific railroad, residing at 1005 Burr street, St. Paul, was severely burned while posing as Santa Claus. His costume was constructed principally of cotton batting, which was ignited by one of the candles on the Christmas tree. It was at first thought that he had inhaled the flames, but Dr. Robillard, who was called in, stated that this was not the case, and also said that Dratager will recover shortly.

L. D. Dratager, residing in Minneapolis, a brother of the burned man, was also quite severely burned about the hands while assisting to extinguish the flames. Nearly every person present at the entertainment received slight burns in the attempt to assist in smothering the fire.

News in Brief.

Scholars in a school four miles northeast of Hills overpowered the teacher and pitched him out the window.

The planing mill of Geo. Lautenschlager at Duluth was damaged to the extent of $5,000 by fire.

Chris Berg, the burglar who was arrested at Hills, was given half an hour to leave town and he did so.

Martin Kujawa, 11 years old, was killed in the Omaha railway yards in St. Paul. He attempted to board a passing freight, missed his footing and fell on the rails. At least 10 cars passed over his chest.

The state canvassing board has finished its labors. Nelson's plurality over Owen is 60,053.

Adolph Meyer, started on foot to go to his home on the Island in Rush Lake about five miles from Rush City. On arriving at the lake, he would naturally cross on the ice to his home, and he undoubtedly set out to do this. Directly in his path is quite a long and narrow open place in the ice which he could not have been aware of, and into which he must have fallen and perished. He leaves a wife and two children.

The secretary of the interior has approved lists of land selected as indemnity by the Northern Pacific railroad, embracing about 200,000 acres in Minnesota and a grant of 302,000 acres in Montana to the same company.

While skating on Forest lake, Eugene Rahm and his sister, Ida, skated into an air hole. Three of Victor Berguren's boys came to their assistance and all broke through the ice, making five in the water at the same time. Others came to the rescue and by hard work saved the entire party.

In the breach of promise case at Mankato of Alice Stein vs. Clarence Saulspaugh for $50,000, the jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $1.

Burglars entered the residence of H. D. King in Minneapolis and took away about $900 worth of jewelry, clothing and silverware.

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—Snow Apple Pudding: Remove the inside from six large baked apples. Beat to a stiff froth the whites of three eggs, stir into the apple and serve with the following sauce: Beat the yolks of the eggs with one cup of sugar, adding one-half a cup of boiling milk, and flavor with lemon.—Ladies' Home Journal.

—Jelly a la Russe: Soak half of a package of gelatine in half a cup of cold water for half an hour, then dissolve over hot water. Take one cup of orange-juice, half of a cup of lemon-juice and half of a cup of water,. Mix the entire juices with threefourths of a pint of granulated sugar and stir until it is dissolved. Add the gelatine to this and color. Turn part of it into a boarder mold to harden. Put the remainder into a pan and beat when it begins to stiffen. Beat until light and frothy and put in the center of the mold and garnish with candied fruits. —Ohio Farmer.

—Jumbles: One pound of butter, one pound of sugar, granulated or powdered, the juice and grated rind of two lemons, six eggs and flour enough to make a soft dough. Cream the butter and sugar, add the eggs well beaten, the rind and juice of the lemons and flour enough to mold them into shape with your hands but not enough to roll. Dip each one in cracked loaf sugar, drop a blanched almond on each, and press in the center of the jumple. Great care must be taken to prevent burning while they are baking. The above quantity makes a large number of jumbles.—Christian Inquirer.

—Sheep's Head Pie: This is a good dish, and the bones over from it are a valuable addition to the stock-pot. The necessary ingredients are the sheep's head, piece of steak or bacon, three eggs, pepper, salt and a little mace. First wash the sheep's head, soak it well, and then parboil it. When cold take all the meat from the bones and arrange it on a pie dish. Add either a piece of steak cut small, or two or three slices of bacon, three hard-boiled eggs sliced, and the pepper, salt, etc. Add a little of the liquor the head was boiled in, and cover with a good pie crust, and bake slowly after the pastry is cooked for one and a half hours.—Leeds Mercury.

—Puff Chips: These are also very dainty and may be made from the same paste. Roll out into a layer about one-fourth of an inch in thickness, cut into strips about one inch wide and five long, making fancy ends. Lay two together, one on top of the other, until all have been used; then with a small cutter —a funnel may be used—cut three or four holes down through the two strips. Glaze to tops with the half-beaten egg, being very careful that it does not touch the sides, and bake to a delicate brown. Put a napkin or fancy doily on a pretty dish and pile the chips in log-cabin fashion and serve with lemon or other jelly.—Orange Judd Farmer.

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

Parents of School Children Should Read, Ponder and Act.

Are your children in school? Do you know what they are studying and how far along they are? Have you visited their school? Do you know how much light they have in the school-room or anything about its ventilation, or how many children are in the same room with them? Perhaps they do not get on well and their complaints against the teacher are loud and long. Have you investigated the matter or do you think the blame is all on one side? A visit to the school might reveal what sort of person the teacher is and why there is friction between her and your children. If the children have work to do at home do you know if and how they do it? Do you give your school boys and girls nourishing, carefully-prepared food, or do you let them have anything that is at hand? Do you see that they are early in bed, and that they have plenty of sleep? Are you watchful that some time every day is given to outdoor play? And have you searched and discovered the little ambition every boy and girl cherishes, and, if it is a reasonable one, are you pleasing them and gaining their confidence by fostering and encouraging it? What of these questions, mothers, some or all of them? —N. Y. Times.

THE LITTLE SPANISH KING.

Fond of Flirting With Girls and Equally Fond of Soldiering.

The Spanish royal family has been staying during the last three months at the royal villa at San Sebastian. They pass the morning on the beach, but do not bathe, and the afternoons in excursions to the little towns in the neighborhood, which, although mainly Carlist, receive the young king and his mother with great friendliness. The last great day at San Sebastian was the unveiling of the statue of Admiral Oguendo. When the queen laid the first stone of the pedestal of this statue some years ago, King Alfonso, (more popularly known as "Alfonsito") was a baby in arms, and his Austrian nurse had great difficulty in keeping him still. While his mother was addressing the aristocratic assemblage which had been invited for the occasion, in a patriotic speech, and the princesses were gravely listening, "Alfonsito" thought it more amusing to kiss his hand and smile to the handsome young ladies around him, and his mother at last put an end to his pranks by a smart tap from her fan. This time he was more conscious of his royal dignity, though in private he is still as boyish as ever.

He is a capital billiard player, but he occasionally leaves the game to have a flirtation with some pretty little girl whom he may see playing with her companions on the beach outside of the villa. He is very fond of soldiering, and has a little regiment of his own, composed of four hundred and fifty boys dressed in the picturesque uniform of the Basque mountain corps. The band is composed entirely of orphans, who sang patriotic hymns on the occasion of the unveiling of the statue.—London Times.

Awaiting an Answer.

"Your offer is a great honor, Mr. Fritters," said the fair young girl, at whose feet he had laid his wealth of love in well-chosen but demonstrative words, "but it is so utterly unexpected, that it takes me completely by surprise. I can't answer you now. You must give me time."

"Oh, I'll give you time," replied young Mr. Fritters, briskly, like the Chicago drummer that he was; "you can have sixty days, or the usual two per cent. discount for"—

"Sir!" interrupted the astonished girl.

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Nell! Indeed I do. My mind wandered a trifle when you asked for time. I was dreaming of the bliss that awaited me when the dearest and loveliest and sweetest girl in the whole wide world had become my wife. I'll give you time, darling! How much do you want? Won't two minutes be enough?"

They compromised on that basis.—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Cottolene as a Trade-Mark.

An important and interesting trade-mark suit, which has been before the courts for some time, has recently reached a decision in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. The suit was for an injunction against the infringement of complainant's (The N. K. Fairbank Company, Chicago) trade-mark "Cottolene" by the use of the word "Cottoleo." The validity of Cottolene as a trade-mark was made permanent by an injunction, the case being summarized by the court as follows:

"It seems to be the law that when manufacturers have educated the public to ask for a certain article by its trade-mark name, they have acquired the right to insist that products manufactured by others shall not be given to the public under that name. It is just that it should be so for the benefit derived from such name can only be obtained by faithful service in furnishing articles of recognized value. Moreover, if the trade-mark name might be adopted by others, inferior articles might then be produced and sold under it; and thereby the value to manufacturers of the reputation of the name used by them as a trade-mark would be destroyed."

United They Stand.—Mrs. Jones—"How does your husband get along with your mother?" Mrs. Smith—"Whenever there is the slightest sign of trouble I get them to talk about the baby."—Brooklyn Life.

Obstructions in a Great Harbor

Are less easily removed than obstructions of the bowels are by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, infinitely more effectual than violent purgatives, and which never gripes, convulses and weakens as they do. The Bitters also removes malarial and rheumatic complaints, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness and dyspepsia. Give this deserving remedy a fair trial and expect the best and most complete results.

It is the nudity of the live wire that makes it shocking.—Pittsburgh Post.

cheerful spirits and the ability to fully enjoy life, come only with a healthy body and mind. The young man who suffers from nervous debility, impaired memory, low spirits, irritable temper, and the thousand and one derangements of mind and body that result from, unnatural, pernicious habits usually contracted in youth, through ignorance, is thereby incapacitated to thoroughly enjoy life. He feels tired, spiritless, and drowsy; his sleep is disturbed and does not refresh him as it should; the will power is weakened, morbid fears haunt him and may result in confirmed hypochondria, or melancholia and, finally, in softing of the brain, epilepsy, ("fits"), paralysis, locomotor ataxia and even in dread insanity.

To reach, re-claim and restore such unfortunates to health and happiness, is the aim of the publishers of a book of 136 pages, written in plain but chaste language, on the nature, symptoms and curability, by home-treatment, of such diseases. This book will be sent sealed, in plain envelope, on receipt of this notice with ten cents in stamps, for postage. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

For more than a quarter of a century physicians connected with this widely celebrated Institution have made the treatment of the diseases above hinted at their specialty. Thousands have consulted them by letter and received advice and medicines which have resulted in permanent cures.

Sufferers from premature old age, or loss of power, will find much of interest in the book above mentioned.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

—A large audience is expected at the M. E. church tonight to hear presiding Elder Atchison preach. Subject, "Success in Life."

—Several of the village churches held services on New Year's day. The weather being fine good sized congregations were present.

—The big tamarack marsh on the Buffalo road near Eph Jacobs' place is being cut over this winter and soon will be a land mark no more.

—Members of the village council seem to favor revoking some of the saloon licenses unless things are carried on a little more in accordance with the contracts made.

—A party of young folks from town drove out to John Cunningham's Monday evening and helped watch the old year out and the new one in. They say they had a splendid time.

—The new school bell has been put in its place and will serve to call the children together in future. Many do not like it as well as the old one, but they will probably soon get used to it.

—Bondsmen are being secured for Berneck and Murphy, and it is expected that they will be home soon. Court Commissioner Putnam fixed the bonds at $3500 for Berneck and $1500, for Murphy.

—A number of children have been sick the past week with "bad colds," bronchitis, etc., etc. The mild weather throws people off their guard and exposures are more frequent than in severe weather.

—Edwin Dyer, of Rockford, killed a she wolf, some where in Franklin town the other day, and brought it to the chairman of Supervisors Wm. Ziebarth for a certificate to draw his $15. This beats the Minneapolis wolf hunters all "holler."

—New Year's day in Minnesota is not often observed on skates, unless the snow is swept off the ice, but this year was an exception. January 1 found no snow and the ice in prime condition, consequently lakes and rivers, far and near, were decked with jolly skaters.

—The Eagle is still neglecting the important duty of telling her readers that she was "mistaken," or something else when she said she was the only paper in the county to print the Presidents message the same week it was read to Congress. Come, Old Bird, clear your conscience, if you have any conscience.

—Primitive times seem to have come again; such as people saw in the '57 crisis when ginseng, butter, eggs and such was the money with which they did business; merchants have adopted the cash system, the best kind of a system when people get used to it, and others are gradually working into it, and, while in the chrysalis state are using wood, hay, corn, beans, etc., etc., as a means of exchange, as money.

—Some of Delano's reputed wealthiest citizens look considerably kind of sheepish as they come cautiously out of back alleys and side doors leading into saloons where they have spent a portion of the Lord's day and assisted in breaking contracts for the keeping of which themselves are bondsmen. It is an awful example to set for the rising generation and has more weight than all you can say and write against lawbreaking.

—The "Rekah's" New Year's dance at the City Hall and supper at the I. O. O. F.'s Hall on Monday evening were patronized by many, and festivities lasted from the end of one year well into the beginning of another. The electric lights burned all night.

—Fred Strauch now has his broom factory arranged to suit him pretty well. He is working up quite a trade. Delano and most of the neighboring towns have agreed to patronize "home industry" in his line; especially so long as he turns out a better broom for the same or less money than they can get elsewhere. A windmill and a horse-power constitute a part of his outfit.

—The Ladies Aid sociable held at Mrs. Jonas Johnson's last night was a grand success. Everybody enjoyed the evening. P. E. Atchison was present and gave a little talk on raising money to pay off the parsonage debt. Toere seemed to be a unanimity of feeling that he was on the right line. A committee of five, consisting of Mrs. Wilder, Dr. Catlin, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Strikland and Arthur Johnson was chosen to work the plan as soon as arrangements can be effected. Rev. Atchison will preach tonight at the M. E. church at 7:30.

Handed in.

On Monday evening while going home from town Bartek Pogrzeba had a break down near Andrew Matzko's, throwing his wife from the bugy to the ground fracturing her skull and injuring her severely. He also lost some groceries that he had purchased stringing them along the road.

Miss Minnie Willcutt spent Christmas at Buffalo, and claims to have had a good time.

Harvy Walter went to Rocksord on business yesterday.

Personals.

Hon. John Boylan, of Watertown, was a Delano visitor on Monday last.

Benjamin Parmeter and son, of Rockford, drove over on business on Saturday.

Frank Latham, of Howard Lake, made Delano a professional visit Monday morning

Prof. and Mrs. Leavens returned from their holiday vacation on Thursday. They brought along a fine "hund."

Hon. C. G. Holgren and son Archie passed through town on Wednesday evening on their way to the Twin Cities.

W. H. Cutting, of Buffalo, was over Wednesday evening to look after his client Charley Murphy's interest

Mrs. L. E. Young, of Ashland, Wis., arrive! Monday evening on a a short business visit. She brought along her knitting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham returned home to Minneapolis last week after a pleasant visit with relatives and friends.

Rev. J. W. Powell and daughter Mrs. Councilman visited Hamline friends Monday. Mrs. C. returned to Montevideo to teach.

Mrs. Anna Hitz, of St. Paul, came up Wednesday and made a brief visit. A report is current that she will keep house for I. Gutzwiller, Jr.

The following named young people of Delano attended the Watertown New Year's Ball: F. Q. Lindsley and wife, J. W. McDonald and wife, Allie Murphy, Millie Haefer, Mrs. C. F. Peters, R. M. Bohn and Charles Coolen.

Learned at the County Seat.

On Wednesday while spending a few hours at Buffalo we took the opportunity to look over the place a little; not much. But we found the old officers on deck at the Court House preparing to turn over their offices soon, to their successors. The republicans will then hold every office in the county but Clerk of Court and County Commissioner from the 3d district; but as republicans are usually more accommodating and obliging as a rule to democrats than are those of their own faith, democrats will be made to feel at home there as much as ever. As for the republican visitors they will probably have to shift for themselves even more than in days that are past. County Attorney Alley will have a chance to made his reputation as a criminal lawyer at once, two men being in jail to be prosecuted for manslaughter in the first degree.

At the Journal office it was publication day and everybody so busy that there was hardly a chance to interview anybody from the Senator-editor to the "devil". We had no opportunity to learn whether the Senator expects to wear Washburn's old shoes to our national capitol or not; we think he could steer them, however, so as to keep in the swim as well as the present occupant and with much more satisfaction to the rural communities.

We had heard from Olaf Peterson, our fellow townsman, who has been working for Mr. Friberg, that that gentleman was manufacturing wooden shoes, and shoes with wooden soles. We called at the shop but found it locked up but had the pleasure of gazing on several of the shoes in course of construction. Mr. Peterson informed us that a large trade is being worked up in this business.

Jacob Ruff, the butcher, was industriously scrubbing out his shop. He appears to be a business man from the ground up; kills, and ships, and renders into lard and supplies Buffaloites with beef steak. Jacob is a rustler.

As usual, dinner at the American House was well relished and a large number of Delanoites, who were present, ate as if they had nothing to eat at home; but then after riding 13 miles over the frozen roads had a tendency to create quite a void; however John Shatter was equal to the emergency and all were filled to satisfaction.

Observing a fine new residence in the western part of town, in the most modern style of architecture, we learned on inquiry that it was Mr. Carl Pidgeon's. Mr. P. informs us that he has completed the rear portion and moved in and can live comfortably; but that when completed the building will be a large 10 room house with all the modern conveniences.

Dr. Cady, one of the oldest landmarks in Buffalo, was in his office attending tn business. Dr. Ringdal is with him.

Dr. Shannon in his office appears to be prospering; and though he has been at his present location but a couple of years has a large practice.

August Berneck and Charles Murphy were brought before Justice William Cochrane, at Buffalo, on Wednesday and County Attorney Culkin asked to have them both examined on the same warrant. Defendant Murphy's counsel, W. H. Cutting, objected to this. M. A. O'Hair, attorney for Berneck, waived examination so far as his client was concerned. County Attorney objected. Do not think it is regular. Berneck remanded to the custody of the Sheriff.

County Attorney then stated his case against Murphy as follows: This man Davis is dead. Was assaulted Dec. 8. Put out of a saloon kept by Fautsch; pursued by both, at least Berneck. Statement of Murphy in a saloon before. His own statement that he helped put him out of a saloon. Davis' statement of enmity. After assault Davis said Berneck and Murphy. Murphy followed Berneck into saloon and said "he got a good one that time" Davis ran 200 feet, was knocked down and beaten by Berneck. (Exhibited a plan of the place where assaulted.) Some one assaulted him between saloon and Janikula's. Murphy said "he got enough that time."

R. M. Walter, sworn, said, Live in Delano. Am a Justice of the Peace. Knew Frank Davis in his life time. Saw him at home in Woodland. Talked with him the second time I was there. He was a very sick man. He thought he would die. Was conscious, clear minded. I talked with him some time to satisfy myself that he was. He died afterwards. This was on Monday, Dec. 17.

Word was brought in that Sam Murphy, Charley's father, desired that examination be waived. Attorney Cutting stopped. Justice Cochrane said the proceedings will stop right here.

Murphy was again placed in charge of the Sheriff.

It was reported about that Court Commissioner Putnam had fixed the bonds at $3000. for Berneck and $1500. for Murphy, and both parties expect to be out on bail in a few days. If not they will be taken to the Hennepin County jail to wait for the June term of Court. John H. Alley will be County Attorney then.

We understand that Murphy is to be defended by W. H. Cutting, and Berneck by J. H. Wendell and M. A. O'Hair.

ROCKFORD RECKONINGS.

On Monday we visited Rockford, and contrary to what one might expect from reading paragraphs derogatory to the village were agreeably surprised to learn that the old place is still alive and flourishing. That instead of the woolen mill, the principal industry, being closed for the want of water, dame nature had smiled and the millpond was full and running over and the wheels were humming and as wool is so cheap, only 10 cents per pound, Mr. Benner contemplates materially adding to his fortune, by furnishing a market for the fleeces while he makes good warm woolens to keep out the biting blasts of Minnesota weather.

Messrs Johnson Bros. were as busy as ever. It being the close of the year Frank was industriously poring over the ponderous ledger, anxiously wishing that this or that scaly customer would conclude to liquidate his indebtedness before the opening of another year, while Chet was blandly smiling on numerous customers while he weighed out the groceries or weighed in the produce in exchange. Everything seemed to move with clocklike precision; almost automatically.

J. W. Mounts and George Crandall found time to express their democratic feelings concerning the way Uncle Sam is performing at present and had done in the past. There are quite a number of other live people in the burg, but our time being limited we did not have a chance to meet them all.

Taking all in all Rockford with its picturesque location is one of the nicest little country towns in the State; and with its waterpower may some day grow into considerable prominence even though they claim that some of their jealous neighbors succeeded in running the "Soo" around them.

Hennepin Co. Bar Meeting.

The committee provided for by the meeting of the Hennepin county bar last Thursday have been announced by the chairman of the meeting, Judge J. M. Shaw. They are as follows:

District changes—Fred Boardman, Anoka county; J. Wendell, Wright county; H. F. Baxter, Isanti county; W. J. Hahn, John Long, Daniel Fish, C. H. Woods, Hennepin.

These committees will report at another meeting of the bar, to be called later, with the exception of the committee on district judges, which already has its instructions for work, and will confer with the Hennepin delegation on the subject.—Minneapolis Times.

For Skaters.

The following skating song was handed us by Mr. C. W. Ingerson, aged 66 years, who says he learned it over fifty years ago, but doesen't know the author, and thinks this being the skating season young people will enjoy reading it. Seeing fires along the river near his residence and hearing the merry laugh of the young people caused his mind to revert to the time when, half a century ago, he was one of the boys; and little by little this old song came to him until he recalled it as follows:

SKATER'S SONG.

Away! Away! Our fires stream bright
Along the frozen river,
And their arrowy sparklings of brilliant light
On the forest branches quiver.

Away, away, for the stars are forth
And on the pure snows of the valley.
In a giddy trance, the moonbeams dance.
Come, let us our comrades rally.

What though the sharp north winds are out
The skater heeds them not;
Gray winter is forgot.

What though the night air cutteth keen
And the white moon shineth coldly;
Their homes hath been on the hills I ween
For they breast the strong blast boldly.

Let others choose more gentle sports,
By the side of the winter hearth;
Or, at the ball or festival
Seek for their share of mirth.

But as for me away, away, where the merry skaters be,
Where the fresh wind blows
And the smooth ice glows
Oh, there is the place for me.

THREE FOOLS.

There was a business man who failed
To win the longed-for prize
Of riches and prosperity—
He did not advertise.

There was a lover once who died
Quite wretched, I suppose,
Because all through his life he was Too bashful to propose,

There was another man whose ways
His neighbors greatly pained,
Because he didn't know enough
To go in when it rained.

All three were fools, but worst of all
To everybody's eyes
Was he who was a business man
And didn't advertise.

A Piano at a Nominal Price.

Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, has moved into a magnificent new building. They have a number of slightly used and second hand pianos returned from World's Fair renting, etc., etc., which they have determined to sacrifice rather than to try to make room for. These instruments comprise Square pianos at $40, $65, $90, $100, and $125. Upright pianos at $125, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200, $226, $240 and upward. Grand pianos at $200, $250, $300 and upward. Nearly all originally sold for from two to four times their present price. Almost all prominent makes (in squares and uprights) are represented including among numerous others Chickering, Knabe, Steinway, Weber, Decker, Steck, Fisher, etc. This is an opportunity that will not occur again, as Lyon & Healy have not moved for twenty years. Immediate attention is therefore necessary. A good plan would be to order a piano, leaving the selection to Lyon & Healy. However, they will send a list and full particulars upon application. Any piano not proving satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address at their new salesrooms, corner Wabash Avenue and Adams Street, Chicago. Distance is no obstacle in taking advantage of this remarkable chance to obtain a piano, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. If you do not already know them by reputation any banker will assure you of Lyon and Healy's entire responsibility and record of over a third of a century for honorable dealing. Write to day so as to avoid disappointment.

THE trials of Harry Hayward and Claus Blixt are to begin on the 21st of this month; the great Senatorial contest in the legislature on the 22nd. Won't the dailies then have a rich harvest? Seldom two such great newspaper-seller incidents occur at once.

SAGE DONNELLY counsels the 14 populist members of the Legislature to stand in solid phalanx for a populist candidate for U. S. Senator; to advertise that the populist party is not dead; to not tie themselves up to either faction of the republican party. This course, under the circumstances, stands a good show of having a say in who shall represent us next term in that great body. Whatever in Mr. Donnelly's doings displeases us we admire his persistance in standing by his colors; but it seems to us he has but lately learned this great lesson.

HYPNOTISM is a great thing to loom up in this civilized country at this time. It seems to be akin to the witchcraftery of old colonial days. It is claimed a jury found a verdict of not guilty for a man who it was claimed was influenced by another to kill a third man. And now an expert witness claimed to be a cousin of the late eminent Dr. Flint, of New York City, is to appear on the defense of Claus Blixt. It is about time people had learned that where there is as eminent a man as Dr. Flint there is apt to be a relative who is as conspicuous for something else as was his cousin for science.

IT looks as if after the Senatorial squabble is over some of our legislators would have a fine time trying to make up friends with the Governor and the Lieutenant Governor. Both are in a position, if they are as mean, deceittul, and treacherous as the Honorables are just now trying to have us believe, to square up matters to their own satisfaction. Lt. Gov. Clough can refuse to recognize members of the Senate, over which he presides. He can give them a cold shoulder in many ways. Gov. Nelson, if he is what some of his late republican friends now say he is, can vent his spleen by refusing to sign bills in which those opposing him are interested. And a lively time may be looked for, in the coming session in case Knute fails to make connections for Washington.

THE time has surely arrived when the election of United States Senator by the Legislature should be abolished. Whatever advantage this method may have had in the past is now overshadowed by the disgraceful methods brought into requisition at each return of the Senatorial election. Whether or not it is a fact, people are made to believe that money is freely used in the purchase of votes; the corrupting of legislators to do the will of corportions and of monopolies by sending their chosen tools to the halls of the Senate of the United States. If the people had some primary election laws, so that the will of the parties might be expressed in nominating officers, and were allowed to vote directly for United States Senator that body would again assume some of its old time dignity and importance among the lawmaking bodies of the world.

THE Minneapolis Journal seems to have changed its views of several politicians lately. Last fall the republican ticket, with them, was about perfection. Anybody that didn't vote it was voting against the best interests of themselves and the country. Now it is different. Nelson is a terror to Swedes and Norwegians who do not support him. He is a different kind of man from what we should have in the U. S. Senate. Dave Clough is denounced as unfit for the office of Governor. What could the Journal have been thinking about not to have told her readers these facts last fall, instead of advising their election? Didn't the Journal know them then? Have they grown any worse in these few months? Are they any meaner than Washburn and the balance of the party that advocated their election to the offices they hold? Are those democrats that voted for them any less guilty of giving us such a terrible set of officials?

THE legislature will, this winter, most likely, make arrangements for the location of a new Hospital for the Insane; more convenient to the twin cities than any now in operation. Wright county should have a few rights in the state. An institution of this kind would furnish work for our citizens for a time at least. Delano is only an hour's ride from Minneapolis, on the G. N. R'y.; is beautifully located, in a healthy locality, and would be just the place. Let our legislators from thh 38th district not be sleeping. Let them not become hypnotized by the powerful and persistent efforts of one twin to secure the United States Senator and the other the new capitol by trading and trafficing with each other and with enough of the country members to serve their purposes. But boys in view of the fact that there is such a big Republican majority in the legislature and old Wright has been so faithful to the G. O. P., and our quintette is all of that persuasion we ought to have something of a public nature and you ought to get it if your influence amounts to anything. If you can't pull our candidate for Senator through, and your chance is just as good as anybody's, do try and get old Wright her share

A. Y. Eaton for U. S. Senator.

A. Y. Eaton, a native of Columbia county, Ohio, was born on the 3d of July, 1842. He first attended the common schools, then Beaver Academy, and graduated at Mount Union College in 1867, and was immediately elected Professor of Latin and Greek at Wyoming College, Delaware, where he studied law under Hon. C. P. Ramsey. After two years he returned to Ohio, and graduated at the Ohio Law School, in 1870. He then traveled for about two years, after which he located at San Saba, Texas, where he practiced law for three years; then spent some time traveling through the South, and part of South America. He then returned to Ohio, making it his home till 1878, when he came to St. Paul, Minnesota, extending his observations over the North, and located in Delano in 1880.—History of the Upper Mississippi Valley.

Mr. Eaton then moved to Buffalo where he served as County Attorney, then as State Senator, with satisfaction to the people generally of the county and of the Senatorial district. He is now editor of the Buffalo Journal, one of the leading papers of Wright county. That he would fill the position of U. S. Senator with credit to himself and honor to the State, those who know him do not doubt. Wright county is entitled to recognition. Our candidate is worthy of the office. He would be a man of the people, and the doorway is now open for him as well as for any man in the State.

Talk English.

Our county contains a variety of nationalities. We have a large number of Germans, Poles, Swedes, Norweglans, some Fins, Bohemians, Russians, French and others, who in their little communities and at home use their mother tongue. Those who emigrated, late in life from their native land, remember the things taught them in youth. They talk and read and write in their own language; some of them almost entirely. Not so with the younger people, those who came to America in their youth or childhood years; they have attended school in this country, where English alone is taught. They have been obliged in their daily walk to talk the language of the country. They have read the news of the day; the history of our country and other things in English until, like some would have Volapuk for all the world, English has become a universal language for the people of every nation living in this country. An English scholar in this country can do business in all lines. No matter how well one can read, write, or talk any language in this country he must learn English before he can get along away from home. If a man can speak German fluently or Swede correctly; and is well educated in either or both and several other languages he cannot get along here without English.

If a young man of foreign birth or one descended from foreign parentage; whose family speak the language learned across the water desires to become a professional man, a business man, or a public man of any kind he must learn to speak English. If he goes to school or to most any kind of a public meeting he hears all English. If he is drawn into court he must use the English language or have an interpreter to translate it for him. This is not always pleasant. If he is German or Polish and wishes to converse with his Swede or Norwegian neighbor he finds that it is hard work in either of their own languages but that in English they can get along well.

One of the best ways for the rising young men of our county or any other to become acquainted with English that will be useful to him is to read newspapers. There he will find the history of our country as it being made daily. Then he will keep pace with what is going on about him. Will keep posted in politics, in religeous changes and decisions, in science, in everything that goes to make up life. The home paper will most interest the beginner. The boys and girls read about their acquaintances, become interested and seek for knowledge of unknown things to them. These long winter evenings can be well spent by reading the Cosmopolitan and the GAZETTE, both for $2.50 per year.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 4, 1895.

President Cleveland has not fully decided to send a special message to Congress urging the necessity for financial legislation at this session, but he has had the subject under consideration and will gladly send in a special message if he thinks it will aid the cause of currency reform. As there are a considerable number of democratic members of the House who have not yet returned to Washington, it is probable that the decision as to the proposed democratic caucus on the Carlisle currency reform bill will go over to next week, general debate on the bill continuing meanwhile in the House.

The idea of the democratic leaders in the House is to try to meet all reasonable objections to the Carlisle bill by amendments and then put the bill through the House by a majority so large that the Senate will be compelled by public opinion to act upon the measure. They wish to get the fullest possible attendance at the caucus and to have every objection to the bill frankly stated. There is no desire to muzzle anybody or to ask anyone to vote for the bill who cannot be convinced that it is at least a step towards relief.

Notwithstanding all the wild talk about democratic opposition to the Carlisle bill, your correspondent unhesitatingly predicts that when the bill is put upon its final passage in the House there will not be 25 democratic votes recorded against it. But the bill may be considerably changed by amendments before it is voted upon. Whatever is done with it, it should in the end be passed (even if it did not deserve to be on its merits), as a vote of confidence by a democratic Congress in a democratic administration.

President Cleveland and Secretary Smith have a right to feel proud of a compliment paid them by Capt. P. H. Ray, U. S. A., who is at present in Washington. Capt. Ray has done duty among the Indians for thirty years and who is at present in charge of the Shoshone and Arrappahoe Indian agency in Wyoming, said during a conversation on it in which he expressed the unqualified belief that the Indian could be made a self-supporting and self-respecting citizen. "During all my experiences in the West I have never known an administration that has dealt with the Indians in as clear and conscientious a way as the present. The Secretary of the Interior has, without any partisan bias, done in every instance his best to promote the interest of the tribes and the government, and from my own observation I think that he has thus far been very successful."

Representative Brickner, of Wisconsin, is a never say die sort of a democrat. He says: "Wisconsin has two democratic Senators now, and it is by no means certain that she will have any less two years from now. It is true that about one half of the present Senate will hold over and that a majority of them are republicans, but if the democrats in Wisconsin pull themselves together and start out with a new organization, I see no reason why we should not elect a democratic legislature in 1896." Speaking of the outlook for legislation by this Congress, Mr. Brickner said: "The democrats can pass a financial bill unless the republicans in the Senate interpose dilatory tactics and prevent action. If nothing is done in the Senate the responsibility will rest with the republicans, and then if an extra session is the result the country will speedily understand who is to blame. The pathway ahead for the republicans is by no means free from thorns."

Secretary Carlisle very properly declines to discuss the absurd story that Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan had been sent to President Cleveland by a syndicate of bankers to ask that the Secretary of the Treasury be removed. A more preposterous story was never started upon its rounds. It is altogether probable that any man who presented a request of that sort to President Cleveland would be, as he would deserve to be, kicked out of the executive office. Such a request would be an assumption that the finances of the government must be administered to suit the bankers, regardless of everybody else, and such an assumption would be a personal insult to the president of the United States.

Treasury officials now only await the appropriation to start the machinery for the collection of the income tax, and there is no doubt of the final passage of the bill containing that appropriation by the Senate—it has already passed the House—but it will be delayed by some republican buncombe speeches against the tax.

"The Little Matter" Of politeness on the part of all employees with passengers is what has always impressed us most forcibly on the trains of the Northwestern Line. This popular Line does run the finest does run the fastest and most complete trains over the smoothest tracks we ever had the pleasure of riding on.—The Alliance, Valley City, N. D.

"The Rule" Is Safety—Absolute safety, on The Northwestern Line. In addition to this, there is no line in this Northwestern Country on which the traveler is treated with more uniform courtesy nor is there a line on which the passenger equipment is maintained at a higher modern standard of comfort.—The Democrat, Hutchinson, Minn.

CORRESPONENCE

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Today is the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. Eighty years of our nation's history have passed away since Jackson tested the grit and strength of American soldiers against Packenham and his forces at the battle of New Orleans. Today the fight is on at St. Paul, not between Jackson and Packenham but between the Washburnites and Nelsonites for a seat in the United States Senate. No doubt some of the members of the Legislature are looking for a little boodle in this matter. We are glad this is a republican fight; it will now be the democrats' turn to laugh.

Well, we have some of the beautiful snow but not enough for good sleighing. Some are going on wheels and some are using sleighs.

Another cold wave struck our town yesterday afternoon, which knocked the conceit out of all those who were beginning to believe that Minnesota was turning into a tropical climate. Still, our winter has been very fine so far.

B. R. Hoisington has returned from his western trip to Washington. Thinks it a fine country for some things and a portion of it very healthy.

Gordon Granger Post No. 120 will have installation of officers at School House Hall, Maple Plain, on next Saturday evening, 12th inst.

Mary and Robert Mills are still on the sick list; also E. K. Smith. With these exceptions the health of our town is quite good, only some are complaining of colds and rheumatism.

Covenant meeting at A. C. church Armstrong next Saturday afternoon

Some of the leading Republican papers try to make the people believe times are improving just because every thing went republican last fall. Am sorry to say I can't believe it.

It is reported J. C. Johnson will put in a store at Lyndale. It seems there are some enterprising men at Lyndale. Let the good work go on.

J. H. MCGARY.

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

The sociable given at the G. A. R. Hall for the benefit of Mrs. Avery netted $25.00.

D. R. Thompson transacted business in the city on Monday.

Petty theft was committed at the hotel a few days ago. The cigar case was pried open and $1.50 taken. Very poor way to get money.

Lewis Dorman cut his foot in the woods and is just able to be around. Lewis claims he saw no deer near Northrup's except those of a "tame" nature.

D. R. Farnham and G. W. Florida went to Buffalo on Wednesday as a committee to help make arrangements for the old settlers day to be held at Buffalo.

BUFFALO NEWS.

School commenced again last Monday with about 175 scholars in attendance.

The new county officers assumed the responsibility of their several offices last Monday.

The M. E. church society are observing the week of prayer.

A meeting of the business portion of our citizens was held in Dudley's hall last Friday evening to consider matters pertaining to the new mill which is to be built here in the spring.

The A. O. U. W. installed their new officers last Friday evening and the G. A. R. on Saturday afternoon.

The programme of the literary society was rather short last Saturday evening owing to the absence of several of the members whose names were on the programme.

Mr. John Copeland who has been janitor of the Court House for a number of years, was thrown out of his position by the new county board, his place being given to Mr. Enghouse, of Chatham, at $30 per month.

Dr. R. O. Cady did business in the city on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Mrs. John Hatch, of Monticello Prairie, died on Tuesday night.

A gentleman from Duluth, we did not learn his name, is opening up a store on Lake street. His family moved in on Wednesday.

Mr. Clinton Johnson, the artist in the portrait car at the depot, has been doing a rushing business in his line this week. His work is highly spoken of by those who visited him.

Among Our Exchanges.

After all, why so much criticism of the "Pioneer Press?" If it knew where it stood on the senatorial question don't you suppose it would say so. —Minneapolis Times.

Now they charge that the Globe brought out McCleary. Well, what of it? The Globe isn't ashamed of McCleary. It can't say so much for some of the other candidates.—Globe.

Washburn said he wanted to "raise politics to a higher standard."

Fletcher says: "If he had said to a HIGHER PRICE we should have comprehended his meaning."—Morning Call.

The reconciliation of Cleveland and Hill is a good thing, no doubt, but it has occurred rather late in the day. It reminds one of the habit some men have of locking the stable door after the horse has been stolen.—Morning Call.

It makes a vast difference whose ox is gored. Last fall and two years ago when Gov. Nelson was scored for assaulting a man at Elbow Lake during a speech, that partisan republican organ, the Minneapolis Journal, could not say enough in justification of the pugnacious Knute's action. It made him out a model of forbearance and gentlemanly behavior. But alas, things have changed. Knute has trod on Minneapolis' toes by coming out as candidate for Senator against her pet candidate Washburn. The Journal of Saturday evening sings a different tune about Gov. Nelson.—Litchfield Independent.

Silver and Gold.

Something everybody wants, something all can get by securing a copy of Virk's Floral Guide for 1895, a work of art, printed in 17 different tinted inks, with beautiful colored plates. Full list, with description and prices, of everything one could wish for vegetable, fruit, or flower garden. Many pages of new novelties, encased in a chaste coyer of siver and gold.

Unusual and astonishing offers, such as Sweet Peas for 40 cents a pound, $300.00 for a name for a New Double Sweet Pea, etc. If at all interested in seeds or plants send 10 cents at once for a copy of Vick's Floral Guide, which amount may be deducted from first order, to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., and learn the many bargains this firm is offering. 15-tf.

BUFFALO GAZETTE $1.00 per year.

This Is An age of constant improvement, the goal of today often being the starting point of tomorrow. In improved facilities for comfortable traveling there has been most marked advancement. We have passed through various stages of artistic and practical improvement until today the train service offered by the Northwestern Line between the Twin Cities and Chicago cannot be improved upon in comfort and luxury.—The Medical Argus, Minneapolis.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slender form, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the softer sex. every one of w om should subscribe for Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

THOUGH whale fishing has dwindled away greatly in recent years, the demand for whalebone is greatly in excess of the supply.

ALTHOUGH Switzerland is mostly up and down hill, it has 1,950 miles of railroad track, which cost over $100,000 per mile for construction.

MINISTER BAYARD has found it necessary to reiterate that 999 out of every 1,000 "English estate" inheritances for Americans are swindles. Funny that some persons never learn.

NO COLLEGE yell is big enough for the students of Stanford university, and they have subscribed $500 for a "noise-making machine" to use at athletic meets. It is a steam horn blower and would scare a saw-horse.

MESMERISM derives its name from Franz Anton Mesmer, who lived in Paris before the revolution and became famous as a hypnotizer. Hypnotism is simply a modern development of an old and well recognized force.

MRS. GRANNIS tells a story of a New York woman who won four husbands by displaying a pretty neck. Perfectly legitimate races have been won "by a neck" before. Mrs. Grannis won one husband and tired of him in a few years. Intellect is often at a disadvantage, compared with a neck.

THE business misfortunes which have attended Newfoundland have brought up the matter of the proper pronunciation of the name. It is not "Nu-fun-lan," with the accent on the first syllable. It is just plain English "New-found-land." It's queer how people want to twist plain English words.

THE number of cattle destroyed in India by wild beasts increased 9,000 last year, the total being 90,000. Of human beings the rattlesnakes killed 21,000, the tigers 1,000, leopards 291, wolves 175, bears 121, and elephants 91. It strikes some of us that India is a pretty dangerous country to live in with so many wild beasts and reptiles.

THE Delavan house, which was recently burned in Albany, N. Y., was for many years after its construction by Edward C. Delavan noted as a strictly temperance hotel. Delavan was one of the strongest temperance advocates in this country, and spent much money printing tracts for distribution and otherwise aiding the cause.

THE Pennsylvania farmers of the state alliance have indorsed electric railways for public highways through the state and demand that they shall be given the right of way by the township authorities and that the tracks be laid in the middle of the road and the roadbed be maintained by the companies for a few feet each side of the tracks.

THE centenary of trade journalism in this country was celebrated in New York, it being the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the New York Price Current and the Shipping and Commercial Lists. Since then trade journalism has developed wonderfully and notably in the last thirty years, during which there have been established journals devoted to every conceivable branch of trade and manufacture.

THE latest fad in New York and Boston is to go without one's breakfast. The breakfastless folk say they are immensely better in health and that breakfast is merely a matter of habit and is highly injurious. Perhaps these people may show the rest of the world how to do without dinner and supper also. It is awfully expensive to eat; the people of this country spend hundreds of millions on grub every year.

EVERY man has his price in England, as is shown by an advertisement that appeared recently in a newspaper which read: "A beautiful boy for adoption. Gentleman going abroad. Would give his boy to lady or gentleman for the sum of £800." The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children investigated the matter and found that a farmer who had lost his wife and intended to emigrate was actually trying to dispose of his child.

THE Railroad Gazette, having ascertained that Canada had never suffered from the tramp nuisance, went to work to ascertain the cause. It was found to be a very simple one. There the law is enforced against the vagrants, while in the United States it is not. Drunk and disorderly persons and all vagrants, including those who steal rides on trains, are brought before the nearest magistrate. If a tramp is found in a car or breaking a seal, he gets a year in state prison; if he steals anything he gets seven years. Hence the Canada tramps come to the United States and our own stay here.

GEN. NEAL DOW replies to a statement of Bishop Neeley, Episcopal, of Maine, that prohibition in Maine has proved a failure. The general says that before prohibition was adopted there were thirty-five distillers and seven breweries in Maine; now there is none. Large quantities of rum were imported; now none. The streets of Portland were lined with open rumshops. Now none is public, and the number of secret places is lessened. The custom of treating used to be common; now it is restricted. And, finally, the quantity of liquor consumed in Maine is vastly less than before.

SOME light has been thrown on the disputed question as to whether the clause will hold good in life insurance policies providing that the company shall not be liable to payment in case of the policy holder's suicide, by a decision in the United States court of appeals at St. Louis. Dr. L. H. Robbins had a $5,000 policy in a company which provided that in case of suicide they would not be liable. Dr. Robbins accidentally shot himself in the foot, the wound brought on lockjaw, and in a paroxysm of pain he cut his own throat and died. The company refused payment, but the court says it must pay.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

THURSDAY, Jan. 3.—In the senate notice was given of several proposed amendments to the tariff bill, one being for the payment of a bounty on the present year's sugar crop of one cent a pound, and another to strike out all provisions for an appropriation for the collection of the income tax. The Nicaraguan canal bill was discussed. In the house a bill was introduced for a tax of two dollars per barrell on malt, brewed or fermented liquors. The currency question was considered, Mr. McCreary (Ky.) advocating state banks.

FRIDAY, Jan. 4.—The military academy appropriation bill was passed in the senate and the Nicaragua canal bill was further discussed. Senator Lodge (Mass.) spoke on his resolution of inquiry as to why the United States warships had been withdrawn from Honolulu. Adjourned to the 7th. In the house a bill was passed granting an increase of pension to Hosea Brown, aged 103, survivor of the war of 1812. The currency question was further debated.

SATURDAY, Jan. 5.—The senate was not in session In the house the time was consumed by debate over the Carlisle currency plan, in which Mr. Cockran, of New York, was the most conspicuous figure. He opposed the bill throughout and declared himself in favor of the Baltimore plan.

MONDAY, Jan. 7.—A bill was introduced in the senate for the admission of Oklahoma as a state and one was reported favorably for the relief of homestead settlers on timber lands in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan who suffered loss by forest fires. Resolutions of respect to the memory of Gen. Post, of Illinois, were passed. In the house the death of Gen. Post, was announced, and after appropriate resolutions an adjournment was taken.

CLEVELAND LIKES IT.

Carlisle's Scheme Meets the Approval of the President.

But He Thinks the Pending Measure Only a Step in the Direction of Currency Reform and a Sound Financial Condition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The president has thrown off his usual reserve in discussing the pending currency bill with members of congress. Chairman Springer of the currency committee, Representative Culberson and several other house leaders have called at the white house of late and have talked at length with the president on the currency question. In these talks Mr. Cleveland has urged the great need of passing some form of currency legislation. He has pointed out that the Carlisle bill was not a reform of every existing evil of the financial system, any more than the tariff bill was a complete realization of the hopes of tariff reform. Yet, in the judgment of the president, the Carlisle bill was a step in the right direction, and with that accomplished there was hope of progressing until the financial system was perfected at every point. Mr. Cleveland expressed his approval of the Carlisle bill as a whole and in detail. He did not point out to his callers anything that he regarded as a flaw in it. He expressed the hope that it would receive favorable and speedy action.

HE EXPLAINS.

The President's Pointed Statement Regarding a Hawaiian Incident.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The senate debate on Senator Lodge's resolution in regard to Hawaiian matters has elicited a pointed statement from the president. The attention of the president having been called to a hint thrown out in the senate discussion on Friday that the visit of a certain "committee of royalists" from the Hawaiian islands was connected in some way with the departure of American ships from that locality, the president said:

"Of course such an insinuation is very absurd Its propriety and the motive behind it, I am sure, can safely be left to the judgment of fair and right thinking Americans. I am entirely willing that all our people should know everything I know concerning the visit of the so-called 'committee of royalists.' Last year in the latter part of July, or early in August, three gentlemen from Hawaii arrived here and asked through the secretary of state my designation of a time when they could have an interview with me and present a message from the deposed Hawaiian queen. Though I could not with propriety recognize them, I was not disposed to refuse them personally the courtesy of an audience. Therefore a future day and hour were fixed for the interview. In the meantime at my request, transmitted through the secretary of state, these gentlemen made known the precise purpose of their visit in a note signed by J. A. Cummuns, H. A Wildeman and Samuel Parker, in which they announced themselves as commissioners of Queen Liliuokalani and formally requested an audience with the president, saying that they 'desired to ask his excellency whether there is any hope of his doing anything for the restoration of the constitutional government of the Hawaiian islands.'

"After this note had been submitted to me I prepared in writing, with some care, a reply to the question it contained to be read by me to the commissioners at our meeting. I intended to avoid all misunderstanding and misconception by absolutely confining myself to such written reply, of which the following is a copy:

"'GENTLEMEN: You must permit me to remind you that this interview is not an official one, and instead of receiving you in any representative capacity, I meet you as individuals who have traveled a long distance for the purpose of laying a certain matter before me. You ask me if there is any hope of my 'doing anything for the restoration of the constitutional government of the Hawaiian islands.' I suppose that this question is largely prompted by the fact that soon after the overturning of the late government of the queen, I investigated that transaction and was satisfied that there had been such an unjustifiable interference in aid of that movement, on the part of the representatives of the government of the United States, in its diplomatic and naval service, as to call for correction, not only to rectify what seemed to be a wrong done to others, but also through that rectification to ward off what appeared to be a danger to American honor and probity. Fully appreciating the constitutional limits of my executive power and by no means unmindful of the hindrances that might arise, I undertook the task.

"'Having failed in my plans, I committed the entire subject to the congress of the United States which had abundant power and authority in the premises. The executive branch of the government was thereby discharged from further duty and responsibility in the matter unless moved thereto by congressional command. The congress has, both by its action, and refusing to act, signified that nothing need be done touching American interference with the overthrow of the government of the queen.

"'Quite lately a government has been established in Hawaii which is in full force and operation in parts of the islands. It is maintaining its authority and discharging all ordinary governmental functions. Upon general principles, and not losing sight of the special circumstances surrounding this case, the new government is clearly entitled to our recognition without regard to any of the incidents which accompanied or preceded its inauguration.

"'This recognition and the attitude of the congress concerning Hawaiian affairs, of course, led to an absolute denial of the least present or future aid or encouragement on my part to an effort to restore any government heretofore existing in the hawaiian islands.'

"'GROVER CLEVELAND.'

"When the day appointed for the meeting arrived I was confined to my bed by illness and unable to keep my engagement. I therefore signed the paper I had expected to read, and it was delivered to the commissioners, who, I believe, returned at once to Hawaii. I never saw any member of this commission or committee, and have never had any communication or transaction with any of them directly or indirectly, except as I have here stated."

A VACANT CHAIR.

Gen. Post, of the Illinois Delegation in Congress, Passes Away.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Representative Philip Sidney Post, of the Tenth Illinois district, died at 4:40 o'clock Sunday morning in his apartments at Hotel Hamilton in this city after a short illness. The immediate cause of his death was heart failure brought on by an acute attack of gastritis.

[Gen. Post was a member of the Fiftieth, Fifty-first, Fifty-second and Fifty-third congresses, and was reelected to the Fifty-fourth congress as a republican by about 13,000 majority. He was born in Orange county, N. Y., March 19, 1833. When the war broke out he entered the union army as a second lieutenant of the Fifth Illinois infantry and rose to the rank of brigadier general. In 1866 he was appointed consul to Vienna and was promoted to consul general of Austro-Hungary in 1874 and resigned in 1879. Gen. Post was prominent in Grand Army circles and was elected commander of the department of Illinois in 1886.]

STRIKE ENDED.

MASSILLON, O., Jan. 9.—The miners of this district, numbering 8,000 men, represented by delegates in convention, Monday night, decided to return to work at the 60-cent rate made by an arbitration board. The majority of the men in this district have been out since the inauguration of the national coal strike in April of last year. They wanted 70 cents a ton for mining, but will now work for 60 cents, but claim the arbitration board favored the operators in reaching a settlement on a 60-cent basis.

HOW WE STAND.

Dun and Bradstreet Feel the Pulse of Trade and Finance.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—R G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

"The complete review of different branches of business given Friday places in a clear light the fact that prices of commodities are at the lowest level ever known. Eight years ago, in July, prices averaged only 73.69 per cent. of the prices for the same articles and in the same markets January 1, 1860, and this remained the lowest point ever touched until August 10, 1893, when the average fell to 72.76, but early this year prices dropped below all previous records and have never recovered, the average December 26, being only 68.73 per cent. of the price in 1860. The range was very little higher at the end of the year and about as low October 25. The fall since a year ago has been 5½ per cent; but very unequal in different branches. In iron and steel products 14 per cent., in wool 13.4 per cent, in woolens and cottons about 15 per cent. These changes contrast sharply with the decline of wages paid per hour's work, which as was shown last week average only one-half per cent. less than a year ago.

"The volume of business represented by exchanges at the principal clearing houses was $156,450,000 daily in December, against $141,604,000 in January, but 8.1 per cent. larger at the end than last year, while 35 per cent. less than last year in January. Comparing with 1892, a year of general prosperity, the decrease for December was 23.1 and ranged from 21.7 to 29.2 below that year since June, but at the beginning of the year was 32.3 per cent. below 1892, and ranged from 23 to 37 per cent. below that year, for the first five months.

"During the greater part of the year business has been disturbed by monetary apprehensions, the gold reserve in the treasury having fallen dangerously low. Two sales of $50,000,000 5 per cent. bonds gave only temporary relief, and at the end of the year the free gold had again dropped to about $83,334,032. The exports of $4,550,000 gold this week are not because of merchandise movement, for the excess of exports over the imports of merchandise has been from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 per month. Unquestionably large withdrawals of foreign capital, through sales of securities and otherwise have caused the outgo, the duration and extent of which therefore depends upon other than commercial elements. Extraordinary abundance of money has resulted from the general dullness of trade, and the movement to this center has been unprecedented in volume.

"The condition of industries has been largely governed by the fall in prices, and while production is much greater than a year ago, the aggregate increase being fairly measured by the increase of 8.24 per cent. in hours of work done in November, compared with the previous year, it has been the controlling feature in almost every important industry that consumption has not kept pace with the output, and has not sustained prices. In iron and steel, the lowest prices of the year are at the close. The woolen industry records a production for the year of about a quarter less than normal and for the last four months, 28.47 per cent. less than in 1892 in quantity of wool consumed, but in value of product the decrease was of course greater. The cotton industry, while materially close to the cheapest point ever known, keeps most of the mills at work, but by selling goods at prices quite unprecedented. The output of boots and shoes has been the largest known in number of pairs, but besides a fall in price below all records, there has been a general preference for the lower priced goods.

"The year has been especially noteworthy for the lowest prices of wheat and cotton on record. Both suffer from wholly unprecedented accumulation of stocks, crops being larger. Outside this country wheat production has not increased enough to justify a price of sixty cents at New York, and the accumulation is largely due to false reports of the yield intended to frighten buyers and raise prices. The same influence has been felt in cotton, which is also affected by word-wide depression in business and decrease in consumption of goods. In other produce markets the year has been relatively less important.

"Failures for 1894 are fully reported this week, being 13,882 in the United States, and 1,856 in Dominion of Canada. Liabilities in the United States were $172,992,856, and in Canada $27,616,215. Neither the decrease of over half in this country, nor the increase of over 40 per cent. in Canada, is surprising, but the statement shows that most of the decrease in the United States is in manufacturing liabilities, while the entire increase in Canada is liabilities of trading concerns. A few states, including New York and Pennsylvania, show more failures than in 1893, and in a few southern states, the amount of liabilities is larger, but in central and western states very much smaller. In eleven of the last thirty-eight years, reported liabilities have been larger than in 1894, though for this year and 1893, the statement is confined to commercial failures, as it was not in former years. The failures have been 12.5 in every thousand firms doing business; the liabilities have averaged $132.77 to each firm in trade, and in proportion to the volume of solvent business represented by all clearing house exchanges, $2.63 for every $1,000.

Bradstreet's says:

"There has been no material improvement in general trade within a week. A tabulation of Bradstreet's telegraphed reports from the more important trade centers does not reveal specially hopeful views as to an improvement in business in the near future. In many instances trade revival is declared to depend on a settlement of the currency question. The most encouraging expressions of opinion are that merchants are hopeful."

DISASTER IN OHIO.

Trains Collide and Two Men Are Killed—Several Injured.

MASSILLON, O., Jan. 9.—A collision of trains occurred Monday morning on the Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad east of Smithville. Fireman W. J. Ryan was pinned in his cab and was slowly roasted to death. Edwin Longsdorf, of Smithville, had his neck broken. Conductor Joseph Remus, of Norwalk, jumped from the train when he saw the collision was inevitable, breaking an arm and fracturing three ribs. He walked to Massillon, where a physician found that he had sustained internal injuries that will probably cause his death. George Parcish, of Orrville, and John Berkhart, of Massillon, were seriously hurt.

BLIXT IS ARRAIGNED.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 9.—Claus A. Blixt, the self-confessed murderer of Catherine Ging, the pretty milliner who was murderously shot several weeks ago and left dying on the roadside near this city, was arraigned for trial in the district court Monday. The attorneys for the defense set up the plea of temporary insanity brought on by the excessive use of alcoholic stimulants, which, they claim, was given Blixt by Hayward for the purpose of provoking the murderer to the deed. The case will be heard January 27.

CHINA'S DECISION.

She Refuses to Give Up Any Territory to Insure Peace.

PARIS, Jan. 9.—The Paris edition of the Herald prints a dispatch from Shanghai saying that China's peace envoys to Japan have been instructed not to surrender any territory. China is merely willing to concede the independence of Corea and to pay an indemnity. The failure of the negotiations is regarded at Shanghai as a foregone conclusion.

Sentenced to Hang.

FREEPORT, Ill., Jan. 8.—Three months ago August Altemeier was stoned to death by a gang of local toughs, seven of whom were arrested on a charge of murder. The trial ended in the circuit court Monday morning. The jury acquitted five and found Tom Beverly and Otto Herbig guilty of murder. Beverly was sentenced to hang and Herbig gets eighteen years in the penitentiary. Beverly is 24 years old; Herbig 20.

MISTAKES OF HISTORY.

Errors That Creep Into the Popular Mind and Are Hard to Eradicate.

"What is history but universally accepted fable?" said a learned Smithsonian professor. "I quote the great Napoleon. For example, consider Plymouth rock. In the town of Plymouth is a rock with a fence around it. It is a sort of local fetish. On Forefather's day every year exercises are held there commemorating the alleged fact that on this rock the pilgrims landed. As a matter of fact, there is no evidence that such was the fact. Prof. Channing, the historical expert of Harvard, has traced the story back, and believes it to have been started by an old man named Faunce, who many years ago pointed out the rock to some children, saying: "Here they landed."

"History states that the pilgrims arrived on Sunday, but refrained from landing until Monday lest they should break the Sabbath. That is pure nonsense. As a matter of fact, the women and children stayed on the ship all winter because it was more comfortable.

"The gorgeousness and high civilization of the ancient Mexicans at the time of the Spanish conquest have been permanently embalmed in history. The whole story is a misrepresentation. Cortez naturally wished to give the impression at home that he had conquered a great and rich nation. In reality it was only a half-civilized and untutored people. The mode of living was patriarchal, whole families of one hundred or more persons living in one house. The communal dwelling was of one story and necessarily of large size. These structures were described by the Spaniards as 'palaces.' The people ate only one cooked meal each day, for the rest of their food depending on a 'grub diet' picked up anyhow. The dinners partaken of by so many individuals are reported in history as 'banquets.'

"The schoolboy learns that Columbus was the man who first conceived the idea that the world was round. Nothing could be more nonsensical. The truth is, that he merely accepted a notion on this subject which had been handed down from classic times by scholarly men. Strabo, the Latin author, was one of these. The conception was for many centuries as a faint light glimering in darkness.

"Let me call your attention to an instance of the making of fictitious history. There are excellent reasons for believing that the Norsemen reached the shores of North America before Columbus. The records of their sagas, however, give no notion of the locality where they landed. Only a few such non-descriptive facts are stated as that they found grapes growing. Yet an enthusiast named Horsford, a trustee of Harvard, a few years ago built on the Charles river a tower between Waltham and Newton to commemorate the landing of the Norse voyagers at that point. The sagas tell of going up a river and Horsford chose to assume that the Charles river was the river referred to. Very likely the notion thus recorded by a monument will gain a general credit some day, though there is no more reason to suppose that the river was the Charles than that it was the Delaware or Hudson, or any one of dozens of other rivers.

"I quoted Napoleon a moment ago. You probably know that no battle was ever fought at Waterloo. Waterloo was a post dispatch station some miles distant. Dispatches were sent thence I to England, and hence the name given to the battle.

"Sheridan's ride to Winchester was not twenty miles—not over ten miles, think. There never was any foundation in fact for the story of Barbara Frietchie. The same is true of the yarns about Pocahontas and John Smith."—Washington Star.

Conflicting Views of Eloquence.

In the recently published life of George William Curtis there is an account of a conversation between Mr. Curtis and Roscoe Conkling on the subject of eloquence at the time when the relations of the two men with each other had been undisturbed. Mr. Conkling asked Mr. Curtis what was the most eloquent passage of an author he could remember. Mr. Curtis immediately recited a passage from one of Emerson's essays. Mr. Conkling failed to approve it as the best specimen within his knowledge, and gave as his ideal an extract from Charles Sprague's Fourth of July oration in Boston descriptive of the American Indian as our forefathers found him. Mr. Curtis found this extract only ridiculous in the comparison, and confesses to have been so impolite as to laugh after it was recited. The effect upon the mighty Roscoe can well be imagined.—Boston Herald.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

WOMEN OF TO-DAY.

Brain Cultivation Has Pushed Charm of Manner Into the Background.

Has the woman of to-day the charm of the woman of a century ago? Has her boasted education lessened or increased that charm?

We all agree that at the present period woman is more companionable to man, taking her in the sense of a comrade, than her ancestress of one hundred years back; that, intellectually, a man acknowledges her his equal, and last of all treats her as such, yielding her ungrudgingly place in business and professions, all of which tends to make her self-confident and self-reliant, but does it increase her charm?

There is danger ahead for the American woman. In her eager desire to stand side by side with man she is becoming aggressively self-confident, and unless she watches herself there is risk of becoming too clever, of becoming stilted, dogmatic in the expression of her opinion—in a word, unnatural, and that way ruin lies.

A clever man of the world not long ago was heard to say apropos of this subject: "The most charming and delightful thing in the world, but I regret to say the rarest, is a thoroughly natural woman." A shrewd comment.

The woman of to-day cultivates her mind to such an extent that she is self-conscious; she loses the charm of simplicity of speech and manner. The former is stilted, the latter aggressive. She has won a reputation for cleverness, and she strives to maintain it at all hazards.

In a word, in season and out of season, at home and abroad, she never ceases to remember that she is a bright woman.

It has been happily said of a French woman whose gracious charm is proverbial that she is clever enough to conceal her cleverness from man. Not so the American woman, who parades the fact untiringly in the face of the world.

A woman of this character is never charming, and we all know that one who possesses that gift sways more hearts, and, better still, retains them longer than a woman of twice her wit and of even greater beauty. We hear much of beautiful women and we have all experienced that sense of disappointment upon seeing for the first time some world famous beauty.

We fail to see that marvelous perfection; we look in vain for flawless face and form and coloring, we shrug our shoulders and go away wondering at the short-sightedness of man. We forget that beauty is in the eye of the beholder, and that a charming woman is in the opinion of a man a beautiful one.

She may be as fair in face as Titian's "La Bella" and as perfect in form as the Venus of Milo, yet if she lack the subtle something called charm, better for the peace of mind of that woman were she hopelessly plain, for without it she delights not man nor woman either.

If you ask me how to acquire this charm I should say, "Be natural, again be natural and always be natural."—N. Y. Advertiser.

MY CASTLE IN THE AIR.

If I could go ballooning,
And had the time to spare,
I'd journey to discover
My castle in the air.
It stands, that stately building,
Beyond the yellow moon,
Where tradesmen's bills can never come,
Not even by balloon.

The water-rate collector
He eyes its door in vain,
Because its cistern runs with
No water, but champagne.
Its roof has been constructed
So very high and steep,
No love-lorn cats can clamber there
To frighten gentle sleep.

My neighbor's hens can never
Defy the garden wall,
Because there are no neighbors
Or hen coops near at all.
So in the garden nodding,
In rich profusion grow
Tobacco trees and cauliflowers,
And roses all a-row.

O! could I reach my castle,
I'd never need to think,
I'd never need to scribble,
And clothe my dreams in ink.
So when I'm not so busy,
I'll hire a big balloon,
And sail away with—I know whom—
Beyond the yellow moon.

A WELL-MATCHED PAIR.

How Prince Demtoff and Lady Constance Were Robbed.

The platform was crowded this sunny morning with excursionists and swell yachtsmen and ladies with golf sticks.

Two people attracted a lot of attention by their palpable efforts at concealment. He, although the day was so hot, was enveloped in a long cloak with a collar reaching past his ears, and his cotton-white hair and mustache showed up occasionally in strong contrast to the deep brown of his face as he turned to watch the porters attacking a huge mound of his belongings.

Each box and bag was emblazoned with an imperial coronet over a monogram, and they told one another guardedly and under promises of profound secrecy, "that was Prince Paul Demtoff, the owner of the new one-hundred rater now lying off Southampton."

She, the lady, was tall and gracefully girl like. A neat hat, blue serge Redfern frock; a sunburnt straw hat, with a dark blue ribbon; tiny tanned boots, a white shirt with a turn-down collar, and a flowing white tie completed her costume, saving a thick gossamer veil that completely hid her face, and but for the whiteness and purity of her neck it would have seemed she suffered from some facial disfigurement. It was evidently a desire not to be recognized that led to the adoption of the yashmak.

She was evidently expecting or avoiding some friends. Her head moved with a bird-like quickness as she scanned each new arrival on the platform, and her slender hand, white and jewelless, twitched nervously round the handle of the morocco monogramed case she carried. Catching her eye from a distance, he walked toward her with the easy, firm assurance that women like. She saw he was coming to her and waited calmly—perhaps she breathed more quickly.

He raised his soft hat, and with a courtly bow said in perfect English, with the mere scent of accent: "Pardon me, you are distressed. Have you missed your maid? Can I be of any service to you?"

Now that his hat was off he appeared a prematurely white-haired man of forty-five or fifty, with a firm face and voice—a man evidently used to command.

"Thank you, very much," came in a soft, sibilant voice from beneath the thick gossamer. "I have not quite lost my maid, but my portmanteau. I am afraid it is under that pile of luggage, and"—with a little shrug—"I'm afraid that pile of luggage is yours."

"That is mine, madame. I will get your bag at once. May I ask where you are going? To Southampton, and it is of the highest importance that you should not miss this train? Pardon, do not trouble. I will see that all is arranged."

A few words to the guard, a rapid passage of backsheesh and the missing bag, with a dainty monogram and small crest, was placed carefully on the rack of the first-class carriage by which the veiled lady was standing. With the coolness that seemed part of his nature, the Russian indicated to a porter a small hamper, and had it placed in the same compartment. There must have been some collusion and a lavish tip, for though the train was crowded, the guard, after the imperceptible manner of his kind, kept that carriage empty until the train started and they found themselves alone, securely locked in.

A sudden start ran through her slender frame. She paused and asked quickly: "Do you know when the next train leaves Waterloo for Southampton?"

He was desolated. Of course she missed her maid, but he was afraid not for some hours.

"Madame is glad? Madame is afraid of being followed?"

"Yes, madame is glad. She does not wish to be taken back and forced into a hateful marriage," blushing prettily.

The old, old story—stern father, elderly lover, titled, rich, but horrid. No mother, sister, no brother. She was flying from bondage to her aunt, Lady Azuregore, in Guernsey.

Yes, she was Lady Constance Azuregore. Had he really met her at the duchess of Arlington's dance? She thought she knew his face. That was why she trusted him so implicitly on the platform, of course. But if she was veiled. Why was he so shrouded in a big cloak? "Come, now," anxiously, "a lady? An elopement?"

No, no, and again no! Nothing so joyous. He was Prince Paul Demtoff, and had fallen between two stools—had incurred the enmity of the imperial court through coquetting with the nihilists. That meant the Alexiefsky Ravelin or the fortress of Peter and Paul in St. Petersburg, and, on the other hand, finding the "party of progress" going too far, he was threatened with death for deserting the red flag.

"You must pardon me, prince, but we seem in trouble together," and she laughed merrily. "Do you know I half thought you were a detective?"

By this time he had returned to his hamper and produced deftly a tablecloth, plates, knives, forks and serviettes, a small bottle of Chateau Mouton Rothschild and a dainty cold chicken. Their mutual confessions had lessened embarrassment, and the lady, after making a little moue, said she was so hungry and so glad to eat, etc.

They chatted and laughed as the train sped through the beautiful country, and by the time Southampton was thought of she had smoked a mild cigarette and he had kissed her hand.

She had readjusted her veil and he assumed his big cloak with a sigh as the whistle of the train signaled the station.

"The Guernsey boat does not leave till midnight. What are you going to do? Where will you put up?"

"I don't know. I never will be taken back alive. And you? You are hunted. What will you do?"

"Go on board my yacht. She is lying off here, and the gig waits for this train at the landing steps. I must hail them, as none of them know me. My agent has engaged an entirely new crew, skipper included, all English. I want no nihilists on board." And he looked moodily out of the window.

She made a sudden movement as if about to speak, but drew back. Again she leaned forward, and repetition roused him from his thoughts. He looked up and saw her eyes glistening even through the thick veil. She was crying!

"What is the matter? You are frightened. Can I help you?"

"I hardly dare ask you. You may think badly of me, but I will not be forced into this detestable marriage. Can you—may I—"

He divined her thoughts. "Stay on board my yacht and board the boat at midnight? Yes, your ladyship, yes, in all honor, yes," and he held out both his hands, and with a sob almost hysterical, she placed her tiny gloves in them as the train stopped.

They left the station by a side door unnoticed, and, walking down the broad graveled road with the soft sward and the oldtime cannon, passed the crumbling walls and found the boat manned by six bronzed, typical yachtsmen, the skipper, a fine looking old man, sitting motionless in the stern sheets holding the yoke lines.

The boat soon shot alongside a beautiful schooner yacht. The crew manned the gangway as the prince and Lady Constance came on board, and a motherly, sunburned woman courtesied her through an exquisitely furnished saloon cabin into a bijou boudoir with a lace curtained bunk and a host of feminine fripperies.

"I may sail to-night. Is all ready? Right. Take the boat and go ashore, bring off my luggage and anything we may want from the ship's stores. And, Johnson, keep the men afloat, but you just find out if there is any hue and cry about a lady eloping."

In about an hour he returned, and doffing his peaked cap said mysteriously: "I spoke to my cousin, the pleeceman, an' he says there's a lot o' cockney detectives down a-watchin' the station an' the Guernsey packet for some young ooman."

Her ladyship had washed all travel stains away and changed her frocks. She looked like a fresh rosebud, but her face grew deathly pale, her eyes dilated, and the nerve lines deepened into marks of agony when he told her the captain's story. He thought she was going to faint and made as though to catch her. With a supreme effort she regained her self-possession and said in a hoarse whisper:

"Oh, save me! Take me to Guerney in your yacht, or I will jump overboard!"

He turned on his heel without repiying and went up the companionway on deck.

"Johnson, your wife doesn't mind a trip to sea?"

"Get under weigh at once!"

"Aye, aye sir! All hands on deck! Tumble up, my hearties!"

Under a good southwesterly breeze the yacht spun almost merrily, throwing the foam in long, beautiful, feather-like curves from her clipper stern.

The lady stood leaning dreamily against the side ropes, and the prince, an experienced sailor, evidently, took the tiller and threaded the way carefully through the crowd of craft. For a time neither spoke; then, abruptly giving the management to the appreciatively critical skipper, he beckoned her into the cabin.

"I will land you at Guernsey to-morrow morning," he said, "but I have been deceiving you. I am not Prince Paul Demtoff. I am his valet. I have robbed him of one million roubles and am now going to the Argentine in his yacht," and he stood up rigidly and faced her.

She smiled and said calmly: "Very good! Take me with you. I am not Lady Constance Azuregore. I am her maid, but I've got her jewel case."—London Million.

Literary Sincerity.

The poet Bryant had keen vision and a loving reverence for what he saw about him. He was, in his art, a true American; not because other lands were not also rich and beautiful, but because he preferred to describe the blossoms growing at his own door. In a letter to his brother, written in 1838, he says: "I saw some lines by you to the skylark. Did you ever see such a bird? Let me counsel you to draw your images, in describing nature, from what you observe around you, unless you are professedly composing a description of some foreign country, when, of course, you will learn what you can from books. The skylark is an English bird, and an American who has never visited Europe has no right to be in raptures with it." He had true reverence for the past, and what is to be learned from it; for the accepted traditions of literature he had the veneration of all scholars. Yet he would not have permitted himself to harp away upon themes fresh in other lands and times, but quite foreign to his own thought and feeling. To be sincere—that was the best thing; better even than resembling some man whose fame was writ in "enduring brass."—Youth's Companion.

Not That Kind.

Three different waiters at a southern hotel asked a little, prim, precise Harvard professor at dinner, in quick succession, if he would have soup.

A little annoyed, he said to the last waiter who asked: "Is it compulsory?"

"No, sah," answered our friend and brother; "no, sah. I think it am mock turtle."—Progressive Age.

CURRENCY DISCUSSED.

Carlisle's Bill Under Debate in the National House of Representatives.

On January 3 Mr. Black (dem., Ga.) resumed the debate on the currency question which had been interrupted by the holiday recess. He denied that the banking and currency committee had heard only national bankers while considering the pending measure and had turned a deaf ear to all others. Legislation had not caused all the misfortunes under which the people were suffering, he said. It might have contributed to their misfortune, and he believed the passage of the present bill would contribute to their relief, but he deprecated the feeling abroad in the land that for all the ills and misfortunes of the people they should turn to congress. Mr. Black's advocacy of state banks of issue was ardent, but he concluded by expressing the opinion that the only real function of the goverment was the coinage of gold and silver.

Mr. Haughen (rep., Wis.) described the currency bill, as a crude, ill-considered measure, fraught with dangers to the country, and created considerable amusement by his reference to Mr. Springer's position last summer, when he (Springer) antagonized the repeal of the otate bank tax. He referred to Mr. Springer as the most "agile" member on the floor, one whose voice had been on every side of every question, and said the administration had made no mistake when it had selected him to press the proposition for a "flexible and elastic" currency.

Mr. McCreary (dem., Ky.) said he had examined all the plans suggested for a reform of the currency, and he regarded the Carlisle bill, as amended by this Springer modification as the best solution of the problem offered. He was opposed, he said, to funding the greenbacks with interest-bearing bonds. He believed the banking business should be divorced from the government; that the greenbacks should be retired by the surplus revenue as rapidly as possible, and that a safe and elastic currency should be provided. These objects, he thought, would be attained by the passage of the pending bill. Mr. McCreary expressed the opinion that in the event of the failure of some currency legislation at this session, $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 of bonds would have to be issued.

On the 4th Mr. Hendrix (dem. N. Y.), a banker, continued the debate. Mr. Hendrix described at length the process by which the gold was withdrawn by speculators for shipment abroad, and then proceeded to contrast this with the situation in France, where the bank of France refused to pay, except where actually necessary, more than 5 per cent. of gold on its demand obligations. These aggressions on our gold reserve must be stopped, and if the pending bill would stop them, afford relief, take the government out of the banking business as it had been taken out of the silver business, he would vote for it.

Mr. Hendrix said that the pending bill was open to the vital objection that it would not do what it set out to do. It would not relieve the treasury of the aggressions on its gold: it would be a failure as a bank measure, because it would superimpose upon an uncertain body of public credit currency a much longer and more uncertain body of private credit currency without sufficient foundation under the former.

Mr. Sperry (dem., Conn.) presented his substitute to fund the greenbacks with 3 per cent. gold bonds for the information of the house.

Mr. Caruth (dem., Ky.) eulogized Secretary Carlisle and commended the efforts of the administration to solve the currency problem and relieve the treasury and indorsed the pending measure.

Mr. Hepburn declared that Mr. Hendrix had unwittingly pointed out the remedy for the present evil when he told the house that the great banking houses of Europe exercised their discretion about depleting their gold vaults. "Why will not the secretary of the treasury exercise the same discretion?" he asked, amid a round of applause. "The exercise of this discretion did not impair the European banks. Who dared to say that the credit of this country with 68,000,000 of people behind it and an unlimited taxing power would be impaired because it refused to kneel at the demands of the Shylocks?"

"Why have not the republican secretaries of the treasury exercised that discretion?" asked Mr. Pence (pop., Col.).

"I have not been secretary of the treasury," replied Mr. Hepburn, hotly. "When I am I will answer. I am as fully convinced, however, as I am that I am alive that if the secretary of the treasury were now to exercise his discretion and pay gold when legitimate redemptions were asked and refuse it to sharks and speculators the evils from which we suffer would cease to be."

Mr. Dingley (rep., Me). placed the necessity for remedying the defects in the currency system above the necessity of relieving the treasury. The treasury had been living on hope for the last eighteen months and there could be no confidence until the revenues equaled the expenditures. Mr. Dingley asserted that the pending bill would not relieve the treasury. Mr. Gresham (dem., Tex.) supported the bill.

Mr. Boatner (dem., La.) expressed surprise at the opposition to the measure which had developed on the democratic side of the house. He paid a tribute to the abilities of Secretary Carlisle, and dwelt upon the duty of supporting him, which, he said, rested upon democrats.

Mr. Pence (pop., Col.) brought up Secretary Carlisle's advocacy of silver while a member of the house in supporting the Matthews resolution, and asked if soon after accepting the treasury portfolio he had not announced his intention of paying some of the government's obligations in silver and had been called down.

Mr. Boatner replied that it was useless to revive free silver as a factor of the currency question.

Mr. Bland retorted: "You can't run the democratic party on republican lines, and no mugwump can change its policy."

Mr. Boatner continued that it was the mistake of the century when the administration refused to pay obligations in silver as well as gold. "We should no longer keep ourselves on exhibition." Mr. Boatner concluded, "as unable to agree on a single measure that promises relief to the people."

Mr. Lacey (rep., Ia.) followed in opposition to the bill.

Mr. Cockran (dem., N. Y.) deplored the tendency to treat the measure as a party one as likely to wreck it on the rocks of political expediency. "An agitation without result, which would ruffle restored business tranquillity, had better be dropped. If this house succeeds in establishing a monetary system based on human reason and experience of experts, its last days will not be without profit or devoid of honor," he declared. There were, in his opinion, questions on which legislatures could divide along party lines with advantage, but this was not one of them.

He said there were many questions on which mankind had differed from the beginning of civilization and the questions connected with the finances and political economy were among those over which there had been most disputation. Nevertheless, he contended that immutable laws controlled these questions. To obey them was to bring blessings; to ignore them the reverse. We can, he declared, no more affect the economic laws by our legislation than we can by the same means affect the laws governing the seasons. He asked that the question now at issue be considered on the basis of these economic laws.

He thought he saw evidences that the judgment of the generation had been warped by the superabundance of talk of the "crime of 1873," when silver was demonetized, which had involved the use of a host of empty phrases and much mystery, but had brought but very little practical good to the people generally. The tendency to treat political economy as a mysterious science had enabled men to pose as statesmen, who, if they talked common sense, would have been discovered, but were able to confuse the people by shouting platitudinous nonsense.

"I am not one," said Mr. Cockran, "who pretends that prosperity can be forced in this chamber or by the law of the land. I believe all the law and gospel on the subject of political economy was revealed to the first man when a just God told him that 'By the sweat of his brow he must earn his bread.' Prosperity was in the earth, and charlatans who said they had it in their clothes or their brains, and who had cursed the country for twenty-five years, it was the chief object of his speech to oppose."

Taking up the banking and currency bill he spoke briefly of the claims of the committee that it would promote the ends of trade. He claimed that instead of promoting it would prevent, forbid and obstruct the very thing it was hoped it would accomplish. For local and domestic purposes, Mr Cockran said he would not be afraid of silver as a standard of value, but his objection to it was based on the fact that throughout the world everything is measured by gold, and even if we had a local or national silver standard the products of the farmer and of other producers must ultimately after all be measured by the universal standard.

"I am opposed to any tax on currency," he replied to a question concerning the 10 per cent. tax on state bank issues. "It is like taxing blood, like taxing the speed of a locomotive; it would be to tax everything valuable, to retard progress."

As to the pending bill, so far as it provided that money should be based on property it was sound, but its provisions would nullify its object. If it became law it would fall stillborn; not one note would be issued under it in twenty years. It would be a monument to the folly of the congress which followed the Sherman act by another makeshift. While the greeneack had its uses, and the greenbacker was unjustly characterized as a crank, these bills had served their proper functions and should be taken out of our currency.

In reply to a question, Mr. Cockran said he favored the Baltimore plan in its entirety.

Mr. Henderson (rep., Ill.) asked if the pressing question was not how to pay the running expenses of the government.

"That is the question, but not all the question. But it is a very serious position which makes any trade dependent on the solvency of the treasury, and what I am seeking is a system that will divorce commerce from the government."

Mr. Catchings (dem., Miss.) said the upshot of Mr Cockran's speech was to adopt the Baltimore plan, and thus turn his back on the treasury, leaving it to take care of itself. The purposes of the bill were to provide the people with a more abundant and elastic currency, and to relieve the treasury by retiring the large proportion of outstanding greenbacks. In discussing the probable effect of the Carlisle bill Mr. Catchings said that the outstanding certificates would be changed for those of smaller denominations to satisfy the needs for small money. It would follow that the bullion in the treasury would be coined and a small percentage of customs dues paid in silver.

The key to the opposition was that under the Baltimore plan the government would be made to stand sponsor for the notes of the banks, while it would not be under the pending bill. If the bill was so amended as to make the government guarantee the notes the opposition of bankers would be instantly withdrawn. The superiority of the Carlisle plan over the Baltimore plan was that it contemplated ultimate retirement of government notes, while the latter had no object but the profit of its framers.

Mr. Hendrix, of New York, declared that there was not a banker or anybody else who ever has commended that plan who has not proceeded upon the theory that the government would pay its floating debt and cease to use it as a currency. They were not formulating legislation foreign to them. They were settling a banking theory. They expected the retirement of the greenbacks and legal tenders.

Mr. Catchings spoke in support of the soundness of state banks. The assertion that state bank supporters of the south and west, those who demanded more money, represented people who had nothing to exchange for money was erroneous. There was not enough money for the banks to supply the needs of his section.

DEMOCRATS IN CAUCUS.

They Decide by a Vote of 81 to 59 to Support the Carlisle Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Three hours were spent in caucus Monday afternoon by the democrats of the house. The purpose of the caucus was to secure an exchange of views regarding the Carlisle banking bill which was taken up for debate a week before the holiday recess, and which is still before the house. A number of speeches were made in favor of the bill, while the opposition was also well represented. The principal vote of the day hinged on a resolution introduced by Speaker Crisp "that it is the sense of the house that the Carlisle currency bill should be passed by the house of representatives substantially as presented." This resolution was finally adopted by a vote of 81 to 59.

Mr. Livingston (Ga.) made a motion that all those present should be bound by the action of the caucus. There was an instant chorus of "nos" and a point of order was made against the motion. The chair (Mr. Holman) sustained the point of order, stating in effect that the uniform practice of thirty years was that caucuses are advisory and not binding in their character.

DISASTROUS FLOODS.

Pennsylvania Towns Under Water—Southern Indiana Suffers.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—With the exception of the flood of August, 1889, the present surpasses all the floods since 1860. The situation is alarming. Fowlerville, a suburb of New Haven, is submerged; two-thirds of the citizens have already moved out, and if the water rises much higher their homes will be swept away. Reports from Dawson, Dickerson's Run, Bannings and other towns down the river say that they are now at the mercy of the waters, and great damage is being done.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 9.—Advices from southern Indiana tell of disastrous floods resulting from the heavy rains of the last forty-eight hours. At Bedford, on the Monon road the bridge across the river has been washed away and the trains are running via North Vernon. At Vienna, on the main line of the Jefferson, Madison & Indianapolis road, 300 feet of track has been washed away and traffic is seriously delayed from both north and south.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES.

Judge Ricks, of Ohio, to Be a Subject of Congressional Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In the house Monday Mr. Johnson (O.) presented a memorial from Samuel J. Ritchie, of Ohio, asking for the impeachment of Judge Augustus J. Ricks, of Ohio, and the committee on judiciary was instructed to investigate the charges contained therein.

The charges against Judge Ricks are made under oath by S. J. Ritchie, of Akron, O., a wealthy capitalist of that section. While directed mainly at Judge Ricks, they indirectly affect Judge Burke and ex-United States Senator Payne, of Cleveland. The charges involve losses reaching $6,000,000. Mr. Ritchie claims to have suffered in decisions made by Judge Ricks affecting Canadian copper and nickel mines.

WISCONSIN OFFICIALS SWORN IN

Candidates Elected Last November Sworn in by Chief Justice Orton.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 9.—At noon Monday the republican state officials elected last November were sworn in by Chief Justice Orton in the assembly chamber. The special train bearing Gov. Upham and party arrived at 11:30 o'clock. They were met by the citizens' committee and conducted to the capitol. The exercises at the chamber were very simple. Each officer in turn was escorted by his predecessor to the chief justice, who administered the oath of office. The new official then returned to the executive chamber, and after a short informal reception were escorted with their ladies to their homes. A grand reception was given in the evening to the newly installed officials.

HARRIS TO BE RETURNED.

Nominated by Tennessee Democrats to Succeed Himself.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 9.—A joint caucus of the democrats of the senate and house met Monday morning and nominated Isham G. Harris for United States senator, E. S. Craig for state treasurer, and James Harris for state comptroller. The caucus then adjourned subject to the call of the chairman. The nominations are equivalent to an election in each instance.

TOOK HIM FOR A BURGLAR.

Nice Fix of a Young Man Who Used His Old Latch Key to Look Up a Friend.

The bestowal of a latchkey is a sacred trust not always appreciated by tenants. It is the commonest thing in the world for a boarder to walk off with his door key, thus retaining to himself the power to enter a former dwelling at any hour of the day or night as he pleases. Of course, very few tenants hold on to their keys with any such possibility in view, but for the safety of herself and future tenants the landlady should be more particular than she averages at present in redeeming the means of entry to her household.

A few nights ago a young man arrived from the west about eleven p.m., and promptly betook himself to look up an old friend, whose room his own had adjoined in a house on Forty-eighth street. The house was closed up for the night, so the young man took out his erstwhile latchkey, and letting himself in, mounted to his chum's room. He was out, the gas was lowered, and without waiting to turn it up the traveler stretched himself on the sofa to wait, and in doing so fell asleep.

When he awoke it was to find himself face to face with the basilisk stare of a strange man, and with a revolver.

The room had changed tenants, that was pretty plain, but it wasn't equally plain how he was to make clear that he was neither a burglar nor an assassin.

"If you'll lay down that thing," he said, after a hurried explanation to the man with the revolver, "I'll call up the landlady and prove my case."

With man and revolver in pursuit he did find the landlady's door, only to be confronted by a strange woman, who immediately went into hysterics.

Then every other woman in the house raised her voice in hysterics, and more men with revolvers gathered in the passageways, until things began to look pretty blue for the young man.

At last the final man, armed to the teeth, joined the boarders, and as he did so the poor excited traveler gave a cry of relief.

"Put down your firearms," called the last comer, "and stop your shrieks. You were looking for Dick, weren't you? He's gone to Europe. The whole house here has changed hands. I'm the only one of the old crowd left. Good Lord, it's well I'm here! You'd have spent one night in jail, at least, if I'd not been."

"There," shouted the besieged man, flinging the key at the scantily robed landlady, "there is the key of this blank, blank, blankety, blanked shanty, and may I never again see the key of this or any other boarding place shanty as long as I live."

Dr. PIERCE'S
Golden Medical DISCOVERY

Cures Ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of Consumption, in all its Earlier Stages.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps.

DEMOREST'S ... FAMILY MAGAZINE

We wish to show the great value that will be given for the money expended. In the first place, the Magazine itself cannot be matched anywhere in the world for two dollars. If you wish to prove this, compare it with any other as to matter, illustrations, quality of paper, printing, etc. Then, too, it is so designed as to interest every member of the family, which makes it really a dozen magazines in one. Here, then, is the first $2.00 of the $48.00 mentioned above. The next $5.00 is represented by the exquisite premium for the coming year, De Longpre's "Roses," which is the most exquisite oil-picture that has ever been published, and worth nearer $10.00 than $5.00. Then comes a value of $3.00, represented by giving every lady reader all the patterns she wishes to use during the year, and in sizes to suit. A novel and important feature, introduced into DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE last April, is a Portrait Album giving eight cabinet-size portraits each month of the world's celebrities, with a biographical sketch of each person. Each year's collection of ninety-six portraits of distinguished men and women, when inserted in the Portrait Album which we can furnish, forms a handsome ornament for the home, as well as a valuable source of information and reference, interesting all members of the family and their friends. The collection would cost over a hundred dollars if made in any other way, as many of these photographs are very expensive, neither time nor money being spared in making the collection. If we count each portrait at the low valuation of only 25 cents it would make $24.00 worth with your coming year's magazines; and if you are a new subscriber and wish to commence your collection from the first we published, we will send you the fifty-six already issued, and these fifty-six at 25 cents each would make another $14.00. Summing up all the above, you have a value of $48.00 for only $2.00. The following fifty-six Portraits were published in the last volume, which new subscribers will be entitled to free. The ninety-six for the coming year will include names as well known as those already given.

DELANO DIARY

—The Great Northern has made another cut in wages. The section men now get $1. per day.

—Hood's Sarsaparilla Co. have gotten out a very neat calendar for 1885. Thanks for a couple of them.

—Saloonkeepers and others are now having ice stored up for next summer's use. The crop is up to standard in quantity and quality.

—Quite a gathering of young people occurred at L. M. Maxfield's on Tuesday evening. A surprise party on Miss Anna who is now her own woman.

—An Epworth League Sociable will be held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Johnson on Friday evening. Everybody invited. Bring along 10 cents.

—Monday night the thermometer registered 30 deg. below zero; the coldest of the season, so far; this seems like getting down to old time Minnesota weather.

—Street Commissioner Steward and crew had a few hours' work shoveling snow off the crossings last Sunday; the first of the season. He don't appear to have forgotten how it is done.

—Rev. Atchison's sermon at the M. E. church last Friday evening was listened to by an appreciative audience, with few exceptions. The Elder is a good speaker and an able sermonizer.

—Quite a little excitement was caused at Young's Hotel on Monday evening by a burning chimney. It looked for a time as though we should have a chance to test our waterworks system in dead earnest.

—The new school bell rang out on the frosty air Monday morning and every day since calling the children to school. The bell is quite a nice sounder one since it is in place, and being rung. It seems to improve with use.

—It is about time for the officers and committees of the Delano Washington's Birthday Society to begin to arrange for the annual celebration of the birth of the "Father of our Country". We have had two splendid meetings and should look out in time to have the coming one, the third, the best so far.

—Tim Gleason was industriously gathering together the hosecarts and hose, and other property of the G. N., that appeared to be no longer of particular use here, on Wednesday, and shipping them to headquarters for safe keeping, and to have them handy in case of need along the line.

—About four inches of snow covered the ground on Sunday morning, having fallen during the night. Most travelers got out their old sleds and cutters and Minnesota winter was once more enjoyed. This, the first sleighing of the season, was unusually late in making its appearance; and was rather light for heavy hauling.

--The naughty Old Bird that roosts on the other corner, says some very unkind things about the GAZETTE this week. You can't clear your conscience (if you have any conscience) that way. Just come right out and say that you published an UNTRUTH when you said that you were the only paper to publish the President's message the same week it was given to Congress.

—The old town pump that has for so many years stood the test of time, and in winter's cold and summer's heat supplied weary travelers and numerous animals with water, has at last succumbed to the hard usage to which it was submitted at the hands of a Minneapolis man out for a time and Delano tanglefoot, and the last cold snap finished the job. Now the thirsty must seek another drinking place or go dry.

--We are of the opinion that an editor (with a conscience), when he has "lied" on his neighbor ought to be man enough to say so when he finds it out.

—Delano now glories in three barber shops, a new one having been started by a gentleman by the name of McCormack, in the room one door east of Czock's saloon.

—Rev. R.R. Atchison, P. E. preached at the M. E. church Friday evening. The audience was not very large, but they enjoyed hearing an able sermon on "Success in Life".

—Bail having been furnished in the cases of August Berneck and Charley Murphy, charged with manslaughter, they have been released from custody and are now at home.

—The M. E. church committee will give you a chance to contribute your mite towards raising their indebtedness, in a few days. This is a worthy cause and your assistance will be appreciated.

—Who says advertising don't pay? Last Friday just as we were going to press a gentleman came in and inserted a notice "Dog Lost", and when he got home the dog was there. Bring on your ads.

--We understand that the St. Anthony Benevolent Society have given some of their members the option of resigning from the society or from the K. P. Lodge, of which they recently became members.

—Some of our secret society members are getting rather too communicative to outsiders to satisfy others. People that can't keep their family matters to themselves are not calculated to keep secret society secrets any better.

--While returning from church on Sunday, Miss Mary, daughter of Wm. Corey, of Corchorantown, was thrown from the cutter and dislocated her elbow. A surgeon was summoned from Delano and the bones replaced in their normal positions.

—It takes too long for the mail to get thirteen miles to and from the county seat to suit the average patron of Uncle Sam's mail service. From Wednesday until Saturday is taking too long to bring the Journal from Buffalo to Delano.

—Claus, the 14 year old son of Mrs. Albert Johnson, while skating last Saturday, fell on the ice, striking his head in such a manner as to make him unconscious for a time. For several days he was in a dazed condition. We understand he is now improving.

—The Eagle, as is usual with her just about election time, hops onto Dr. Catlin and abuses him all she knows how. If she don't quit she may make the people mad enough to elect him Constable, Mayor, or successor to W. D. Washburn. Better let up, Eagle. Better let up.

—Lyndale, Hennepin county, is seeking to become a rival with her sister city, Minneapolis. We understand Mr. J. C. Johnson will establish himself in the mercantile business; he already has the Post Office. Frank Coffin runs the creamery; the school house is near; and the woods is full of citizens. Minneapolis and Armstrong must needs look to their laurels.

—We are in receipt of the final report of the Minnesota Board of World Fair Managers, containing a complete review of the works of the board; together with tabulated statement of receipts and disbursements. The accounts figures out as sollows:

|---|---|
| Total receipts | $110,567.26 |
| Total disbursements | $109,798.03 |
| Balance Cash on hand | 769.23 |
| | $110,567.26 |

It is a fact:--That the importance of men in s community is too often measured by what has been done for them instead of what they have done for the community.--St. Peter Herald.

—The Eagle claims to favor putting only the best citizens in village offices. That is good. She wants a nonpartisan ticket; so long as the Eagle can control that nonpartisan council she will be willing to keep kind of quiet. But it is absurd for a Democratic town to be run by a Republican newspaper; and have to give her control of the offices and everything she asks, to keep her mouth shut. Let a caucus pick out a mayor and councilmen and other officers that would not knuckle to the dictates of the Eagle and see how she would, like she always does, work for anybody that can be got to "bust the combination" or in other words to secure a Republican council. It has been all along just the same way with the schooboard, until in order to save the chief at the last election it became necessary to make a combine with a Democrat, a Catholic, and to bring politics into the election and the A. P. A. men, were wheedled into electing two Catholics on the board. Not but Catholics have a right on the board. So have Democrats. But the joke of it was to see a lot of anti-Catholics and a lot of Republicans and some disgusted Democrats join hands and elect two monied men, with no one to send to school and no apparent interest superior to a financial interest, on the schoolboard; when the Democrats had it in their own hands, if they saw fit to do so, to elect two Democrats with children in school; who would look after the educational matters rather than how much they could make out of the district. The Eagle now takes every opportunity to abuse every man they think might be the choice of the people and who is a Democrat; then try to make a Democratic town believe there are no men in their own party fit for village officers and if people are foolish enough to allow themselves to be led or drove in this way and remain away from village caucuses of their own faith and allow men nominated that their own party will not support they can expect the Republicans to ride in the saddle again next year.

—A young lady from Minneapolis was heard to remark, the other day, that, "If the jury lets Harry Heyward go without hanging the women of the city should each one stick a pin in him." He would then be brassy, sure.

--Again we call the attention of our village authorities to the shameful condition of Watertown street where it goes under the R. R. At least two rows of piling should be removed, so that people could drive though without so much danger of a smashup.

—Rumor says that on Tuesday last, our neighboring village of Waverly had a saloon row of its own; several arrests are said to have been made while a couple of the chief participators footed it to Montrose and boarded the sleeper for some place where they would not be molested.

—The Cosmopolitan Magazine for January contains some fine reading. The "Story of a Thousand" is a war story that is interesting and instructive. This is one of the best magazines for the money to be found, $1.50 per year. To new subscribers or old ones paying a year in advance, we will furnish this finely illustrated book, monthly, for one year, with the GAZETTE for $2.25.

—Last year's High School scholars found time to write half a column of school notes, to let people know there was a school in Delano, and at the same time improve their opportunities to see how their communications looked in print. This yerar's class, for some reason, seems to shun notoriety of this kind. If they don't come to time forthwith we will be under the necessity of sending a special reporter to procure some school notes. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

—We are glad to see that the last Eagle grasps the idea, and endorses our suggestion, several times made, for a city fountain. She wants two, however. If the village owned the triangular piece of ground between lower River and Third Streets they could, with very little expense, make the finest park in the country with an artificial lake fed from the tank. This would make a splendid skating park in winter. Or the picnic grounds would make a good park, and could have a deep well and windmill to furnish the West Side with water.

—The question of who shall be village officers next year should be carefully weighed. Already our village has a name abroad for too much laxness of laws. Some one should be selected on account of particular fitness for each office. Men only who are willing and who will perform their duties fearlessly and without favor or partiality. No man who can be seen coming out the back way from a saloon on Sunday; or stands by and sees minors, old drunkards and others buy beer in saloons where they have made contracts not to sell to such, should be elected to administer the laws of our village. And a man who, when running for village trustee had the audacity to draw himself up to full height and remark on election day, "I wish there was a saloon open and I would get me a drink of beer, law or no law," is clearly unfit for any trust.

County Cullings.

A child in the neighborhood of Waverly is said to have fallen into a swill barrel and drowned on Wednesday.

J. F. Lewis, of Monticello, ex-County Superintendent of Schools, of Wright county died at his home, Monticello, on Friday, Jan. 4, of Pneumonia.

Among the newly appointed officers of the Senate and House we failed to find the cognomen of the Monticello "French Hog". Wright county as usual don't appear to amount to a great sight when it comes to dividing up the spoils. She is so solidly republican that it is unnecessary to coax them any.

The dwelling at Montrose, occupied by the section foreman, Mr. Straka, burned to the ground last Friday night. Mr. S. lost five children by diphtheria since he moved into the house. The Montrose people were glad to have the village rid of what they had come to dread. Mr. Straka moved into a neighboring building.

Richard Bennett, of Woodland, after walking two miles, with the air down to 28 below zero, took the train at Montrose for the Twin Cities to attend the populist meeting. Freezing weather don't appear to dampen the ardor of Mr. Bennett as much as the late political snow storm did some of his associates in this county.

If you want cheap printing consult the bids put in for county printing this week and demand that yours be done as cheaply as that. We bid legal rates; that is what ought to be paid. It is a shame for a rich county to have a poor printer working his finger ends off for less than board and clothes. The Waverly Tribune scooped in the entire lot.

The new officers were duly installed at the county seat on Monday. The Auditor and Sheriff succeed themselves in office. Frank McKnight is missed, so is Isaac Podas; both have assumed the title "ex". Ole Mattson and Ed. Nagel have dropped into their places and now smile as blandly on their customers as did their predecessors. County Attorney Alley has vacated his office for Mr. Wooley, the new judge, who was considerably under the weather Monday; still was able to "strike an attitude" in the new office. He informed us, however, that he contemplated revising that part of the office later on. John O'Leary and his assistant "Billy" Cochrane consoled a good many democrats with hopes for the future; though the Col. admitted that it was rather lonesome.

Literary Note.

An old fashioned sea story full of interest and adventure, with a strong love motive, is begun by W. Clark Russell in the January Cosmopolitan. "Ouida" succeeds Froude, Gosse, Lang, and other noted writers with an installment of the "Great Passions of History" series, which has been appear in the Cosmopolitan. A discussion is aroused by Mr. Edward Bok's article on "The Young Man and the Church," which will consume tons of ink before it is settled. Just preceding the famous Charcot's death he prepared an article for the Cosmopolitan on Pasteur, to be published after Pasteur's death. But Charcot has died first, and so with the consent of Charcot's executors, the article is given now. The present "Theatrical season in New York" is critically considered by Mr. James S. Metcalfe, editor of Life, and there are stories by Tourgee, Howells, and the famous French writer Francois Coppee.

SENATORIAL SITUATION.

Minnesota's Senatorial fight
Has put our Legislature into a plight
With Washburn and Nelson ridden to death;
With McCleary and Comstock short of breath.

Is our own ex-Senator from Wright.
The quarreling quartette can be beaten.
By a man of the people, A. Y. Eaton.

REPORT says that "Bill" Erwin is to have $8000. and John Day Smith $5000. for defending Harry hayward. If their services are that valuable Harry must consider that his case is pretty desperate.

FRANCE'S President, Casimer-Perier resigned this week and M. Felix Faure was elected his successor. This is considered an endorsement of the retiring President's policy; and a defeat for Socialists.

IT just beats all what a mean set the republican leaders in Minnesota have been for years and now are according to their own newspapers. We would not be surprised to see a democratic victory at the next opportunity in Minnesota.

A BILL has been introduced into the House by Representative Johnson providing for an increase in the size of the 4th Judicial Bench by adding two more judges. The Gover is to appoint them to hold until the next election. The House also passed a resolution appropriating $20,000 for the relief of fire sufferers.

ONE of the Pine Land Investigating Committee cases, that of the State of Minnesota vs. The Shevlin-Carpenter Lumber Company, of Minneapolis, was terminated Tuesday by an order to the jury by Judge Russell, to bring in a verdict for defendant. If the cases are going against the State what is the use of an investigation?

FROM the Pope county Journal we learn that the Glenwood Academy, a Norwegian institution to "properly prepare the people of this section, not only for the pursuits of this temporal life but also to prepare their moral characters that they may partake of that priceless reward in the life eternal," was duly on the 8th inst. This shows a spirit of enterprise.

THE state printing commission consisting of the Secretary of State, Treasurer and Auditor appointed a new expert state printer, a Mr. Stevens, of St. Paul, releasing David Ramalley, who has so long and faithfully held the position, and for whom the newspapers of the state were nearly unanimous. Auditor Dunn kept himself solid with the fraternity by voting for Ramalley, but Berg and Koerner did the business.

VOLUME 1, Number 1, of the High School Chronicle, published by the Morris High School on January 15th, was received by us on the morning of the 16th marked "xx". Of course we will exchange. The Chronicle is a three column, 8 page pamphlet, with cover, neatly gotten up and filled with the spiciest kind of reading. Price, single copy 10 cts., 6 mo. 35 cts. We would advise our larger scholars to subscribe at once and secure the first number.

IT is reported that Frank N. Stacy, now editor of the Spectator, Minneapolis, and his partner, while on a newsgathering tour a few days since in search of evidence in the Senatorial election of six years ago, when it was claimed that money was freely spent, ran into a crowd of Washburn defenders who undertook to thrash the editors but failed. Men with brains don't always sit quietly down and submit to a pummeling. Frank is not built that way.

THE Farm Journal of Philadelphia is the leading monthly farm paper of the United States. It is boiled down, and hits the nail on the head every time. It has over 200,000 subscribers scattered from Maine to Washington and from Michigan to Texas. It is adapted to farmers' needs in all parts of the United States, and is devoted to stock raising, the orchard, the dairy, the garden, poultry, the household, the boys and girls, etc., etc. Its breezy, crisp pages contain as much information in the course of one year as many of the high priced weeklies; while its earnest, manly tone and bright common sense way of treating farm matters leave a good and lasting taste in one's mouth. The subscription price is 50 cents a year.

ONE of the most fearful explosions ever occuring in the West was that of three carloads of giant powder at Butte, Montana, Wednesday. From 50 to 75 people are thought to have perished. The powder is said to have been stored in the Montana Central depot, contrary to law. A hole 70 feet deep was excavated by the explosion and a million dollars damage was done. The explosion was occasioned from a fire in the vicinity spreading to the place where the powder was. Too much care cannot be taken of explosives.

THE Minneapolis Times comes out with a full page of quotations from country papers, carefully selected as against Nelson, but not in all cases are they for Washburn, though most of the lines showing that fact don't appear. The whole seems to be copied from the Tribune. This may look some like local pride on the part of Minneapolis papers; but when the St. Paul Dispatch joins them, after being against Washburn so long, it makes a fellow think maybe they are trying to save that new capitol bill. And when Duluth is to have a normal school and the Duluth News Tribune howls for Washburn it looks as if maybe another trade had been made; that is if the practice said to be in vogue six years ago really does not exist now. If the people elected U. S. Senators by popular vote it would have a tendency to free the Legislature from charges of this kind Legislatures should be free to transact the business of the state with an eye to the interests of the State rather thon to the political interests of individuals.

As it becomes more plain to all that neither Washburn nor Nelson will go to Washington as the next U. S. Senator, local candidates become more numerous. Neither McCleary nor Comstock seem to have gained any particular advantage from being in the race from the first. Other names are ex-Lieutenant Governor Ives, ex-Attorney General Clapp, and our own local candidate ex-Senator A. Y. Eaton, who has never yet been beaten. Either of these men could as creditably represent us as could those who have quarreled and abused each other so severely and either would go untrammeled by such records as has been given to Nelson and Washburn by their own party associates. We are not a member of the G. O. P. but our local pride is just as big as anybody else's and if we must have a republican we want a good one, and one as near home as possible; one that common people can at least reach with an ordinary fish pole, and for a local man, a good republican from home, A. Y. is head and shoulders above the rest for the position.

FRIEND McGary handed us a copy of the Madison Courier, (Indiana) a few days since from which we clip the following:

THE OLDEST PEAR TREE

On the farm of John Lamson, on the banks of the Ohio river, in Switzerland county, 16 miles above Madison, stands a pear tree more than 100 years old. Mr. Lamson told me that from certain dates, which he had in his possession, he knew it to be not less than the above age. At the height of six feet from the ground it is between nine and ten feet in circumference, and since the recollection of anyone living in the neighborhood it has never failed to bear something of a crop, and generally very full. It is a medium sized, very early pear, and quite good in quality; name not known. It stands on the farm made famous by being the early home of Edward Eggleston, (whose grandparents lie buried on the farm.) Among the romatic hills and glens of this locality he laid the scenes and found the characters of his noted work, "The Hoosier School Master," also "The Hoosier School Boy." The tree is within a few feet of the river, and can be plainly seen from passing steamers.—[Frank Milhouse, in Indiana Farmer.

Popular Election of Senators.

A St. Paul paper states that "all the four candidates for United States Senator have declared that they favor a constitutional amendment to that end"—the election of Senators by the popular vote. The sentiment in favor of the proposed change in the method of choosing senators has grown rapidly during the last few years. Nevertheless, it is a matter in regard to which the people themselves are conservative. In the first place, it will require a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress to submit the amendment, and then it will have to be ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states. It will be difficult to induce two-thirds of the Senate whose members have been elected by legislatures, and many of whom could not have been otherwise elected, to favor such a proposition. Then it is not likely that three-fourths of the state legislatures would readily consent to a change that would deprive them of one of their chief prerogatives. The only way in which the change can be brought about is through a popular agitation of unusual strength concentrated upon this object, but of that there are very encouraging signs. Such demoralizing contests as the one now going on in St. Paul furnish irresistible arguments in favor of the popular election of Senators.—Minneapolis Times.

The Times suggests that the plan used in Illinois in 1890 when Senator Palmer was nominated, by a democratic state convention, for tho office of U. S. Senator, and all the legislators were obliged to support him, might do. We would not approve of this style, at all. If it is actually necessary that a Senatorial Electoral Commission be had, it were much better to elect one exclusively for that purpose in the same manner as the Presidential Electoral College is chosen. The Legislature of a state clearly has enough business of the State without being in any way mixed up with choosing its Senators; or even, as a body, voting for them.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 11, 1895.

President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle were far from being pleased at the success of the combination of republicans, populists and anti-administration democrats, which resulted in the House refusing by a vote of 129 to 124 to adopt the order reported from the Committee on Rules, fixing a day to vote upon the currency reform bill; but they still believe that a bill can be passed. The direct result of that vote is the temporary laying aside of the currency bill, but steps are being taken which it is hoped will result in getting the support of enough of the democrats who voted against the rule to make the ultimate passage of a currency bill by the House a certainty. Representative Bland, of Missouri, who was one of those democrats, says it will be an easy matter to get the support of nearly all of them by amending the bill so as to recognize silver. One thing now seems certain. If no financial bill is passed at this session an extra session of Congress will have to be called.

Senator Lodge having announced his intention to offer an amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, when it comes up in the Senate, providing that the consular service shall pass under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission, Senator Cockrell, chairman of the Appropriation committee, who will have charge of the bill, was asked if he thought the amendment would be adopted. "No," was his positive reply. Continuing he said: "I am not in favor of extending the Civil Service law over any more offices. I believe that the intention of Congress and the spirit of the law have already been exceeded. It was never contemplated that so many branches of the government as are now included in the classified service should be so. I believe that both President Cleveland and President Harrison have exceeded their duty and authority in this respect and if they are going any further and take any more officials under this humbug system, I propose they go the whole hog and include the heads of bureaux, members of the Cabinet, and the President himself. I do not see why we should except the President from a civil cervice examination, if we are going to include all the rest of the officers of the government."

It will be interesting to note how many republican newspapers will be honest enough to give the administration proper cridit for having compelled the government of Spain to remove the discrimination of 75 cents a barrel against flour shipped from the United States to Cuba. This diplomatic victory was not easily won, but President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham decided that won it must be, and Minister Taylor was instructed to inform the Spanish government that it must choose between removing the discrimination against our flour and having Cuban sugar shut out of the United States and that the choice be made quick. The Spanish government is notoriously slow in reaching a conclusion upon anything, but in this case it "got a move on" and quickly chose to abolish that discrimination.

Senator Voorhees, chairman of the Senate Finance committee, refused to grant a hearing to Coxey on his good roads and non interest bearing bond scheme, on the ground that it would be an absolute waste of time as the committee would not attempt to consider the matter. Coxey was granted a hearing before a subcommittee of the House committee on Ways and Means, consisting of Bryan, of Nebraska; Dalzel, of Pennsylvania; Whiting, of Michigan, and McMillin, of Tennessee, but there is no probability that any recommendation will be made by the committee.

Secretary Carlisle's interpretation of that clause of the new tariff law which repealed the McKinley sugar bounty—that it put an immediate stop to the payment of bounties—has been unanimously sustained by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, in a test case. And the court also decides that the sugar bounty was unconstitutional, two out of its three judges assenting and the third neither assenting nor dissenting, because of his belief that it was unnecessary to pass on the constitutionality of the bounty at this time.

Representative Sibley, of Pennsylvania, who was elected to the House by democratic votes, but who long ago proclaimed himself to be a republican on the tariff and a populist on the finance question, disgraced himself and his constituents by making a personal attack upon President Cleveland, in a speech in the House, which was one of the coarsest, most vulgar, and most ungentlemanly ever made in Congress. Opinion is divided as to whether he is half way crazy or merely seeking notoriety, and pity and disgust are the sentiments respectively held concerning him.

ARCHBISHOP OPPOSED

To Any Attempt to Reduce High License—He Would Rather Increase the Fee—A Notable Anniversary.

Cretin hall was packed last evening, the occasion being the 26th anniversary of the Father Mathew society. The feature of the evening was an address by Archbishop Ireland. The archbishop said:

"Total abstinence is as dear to me today as it was twenty-six years ago, and dearer, for, as years went by, new arguments were given me, proving that in no way could I serve the church and the country better than in advocating total abstinence. Twenty six years ago we met in a little building on corner of Sixth and Wabasha streets and organized. I had the honor to be the first member and the first to sign the pledge. But the inspiration to form the society did not come from me. Seven good-hearted men, too good-hearted in fact, were together in a popular saloon on Minnesota street the Friday before, and when somewhat hilarious concluded that their course meant rum and concluded to draw up a petition for a temperance organization and send it to me. The saloonkeeper's name was one of the seven. The writing was irregular and the limbs of the man who brought the petition te me were a little unsteady. At high mass the following Sunday I announced that, with God's help, the society would be organized in the afternoon. Fifty names were enrolled and the society was born. God blessed it then and he has blessed it in maturer years. We can measure its field when we know that other societies have been organized from it throughout the length and breadth of Minnesota and far beyond her boundaries.

"Let us use the strength of the law when expedient. I do not believe in invoking the state at every turn, but I believe that there are some vices so ruinous- and drink is one of them-that we are justified in calling upon the state to assist us and protect us. A few years ago an excellent law was passed by the legislature, called the "high license law" in which this society was greatly interested. Then let us increase the license to $1,000 for the country and $2,000 for the city. At any rate, let us keep the law we have.

There is some whispering about reducing it te $500 since times are hard. Yes, times are hard, and this is the reason why I want to see fewer men in saloons, If any such movement is made let this society "be up and at them'. Pile as many barriers as possible in front of the saloons. We know for certain that the fewer the saloons the fewer the drinkers. Every saloonkeeper is an agent of intemperance. If we could have in all our cities a saloon district it would be an excellent thing. It is the saloon next door that does the mischief. There's no use talking. When we have a law on the statute we should enforce it. Saloons should be closed as the law says and saloonkeepers should be punished when they do wrong as the law provides. You be the first to act in this matter. This question is too important for party politics to be considered in connection with it. Arrange it so that the party that caters to the saloon element will have already dug its unworthy grave in doing so."

The other speakers were James Dillon, Rev. J. T. McCleary, of Minneapolis; Edward A. O'Brien, of Stillwater; J. J. Regan, There were also selections by Miss Catherine Collins, James Hylent, Miss Margaret Lennon, Miss Julia Griffen and Prof. C. H. Congdon. —Dispatch.

CORRESPONENCE

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

We are having good winter weather for Minnesota; hope it will last. Some people would like a little more snow so they could have a good sleighride. February and March may give us enough.

The installation of officers of Gordon Granger Post and also Relief Corps at School House Hall last Saturday evening was quite well attended. Rev. Capt. Copp was speaker of the evening.

Some of the sick in our town are not any better; others are improving.

F. Lucas and wife, of Rockford, spent Sunday in Independence.

H. L. Bowen went to Buffalo today.

Rev. Copp expects to give a course of lectures at Armstrong on army life and the mule.

A good many of the republicans are kicking against Knute, but its a republican fight and democrats look on this time.

Rev. Copp is holding a series of meetings at the M. E. church at Armstrong. Come out everybody and hear him.

If this United States will only hang together a little longer we may hope for better times as the republicans will soon be in and then Cleveland can go fishing. Our President might go on a fishing excursion up North, say in Minnesota; could angle for fish through the ice on some of our beautiful lakes these cool and pleasant days.

"From One End" To another, the North-Western Limited is vestibuled and lighted with gas. This train is nothing less than a continuous parlor, elegant enough in all its appointments but none too elegant for the good people of North Dakota. Recently, a number of Grand Fork's best citizens have ridden on this train from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago and have united in singing its praise without an exception.—The Herald Grand Forks N. D.

"The Little Matter" Of politeness on the part of all trainmen with passengers is what has always impressed us most forcibly on the trains of the Northwestern Line. This popular Line does run the finest does run the fastest and most complete trains over the smoothest tracks we ever had the pleasure of riding on.—The Alliance, Valley City, N. D.

"The Rule" Is Safety.—Absolute safety, on The North western Line. In addition to this, there is no line in this Northwestern country on which the traveler is treated with more uniform courtesy nor is there a line on which the passenger equipment is maintained at a higher modern standard of comfort.—The Democrat, Hutchinson, Minn.

This Is An age of constant improvement, the goal of today often being the starting point of tomorrow. In improved facilities for comfortable traveling there has been most marked advancement. We have passed through various stages of artistic and practical improvement until today the train service offered by the Northwestern Line between the Twin Cities and Chicago cannot be improved upon in comfort and luxury.—The Medical Argus, Minneapolis.

NEW YEAR'S day is a legal holiday in all the states but Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

THE longest distance a letter can be carried within the limits of the United States is from Key West, Fla., to Ounalaska, 6,271 miles.

DOWN in Maine they have started in to protect the fish. Three fishermen captured at Winnegance with 365 bass have to pay a modest fine of $1,825.

THE hygienic congress at Budapest brought out the fact that there are four times as many men who stammer as there are women who are so afflicted.

LIEUT. NICHOLAS SAVIN died at Saratov, in Russia, at the age, it is asserted, of 125. He must have been considerably above 100, for he entered the French army in 1798, ninety-six years ago.

"THE Princess Paulina," now in New York, is probably the smallest dwarf living. She is 10 inches tall and weighs only nine pounds. She was born in Holland, is 19 years old and speaks four languages fluently.

FROM New York city alone 131,960 money orders were forwarded to Europe during the three weeks preceding Christmas. Some of the old folks at home must have had a merry Christmas. Three quarters of a million went to Great Britain.

CREELMAN and the New York World have a mighty poor opinion of the Japanese, says the World: "Creelman is of opinion that the Japanese are as barbarous to-day as they were some hundreds of years ago when they piled up a mountain of human ears."

AMERICANS sometimes do not tackle kindly to their mothers-in-law, but what would they say to a Chinese mother-in-law? It is stated that the mother of the emperor of China recently had two of his secondary wives whipped for presuming to offer her advice. What was the emperor doing all this time?

FEW persons know that Huntingdon, Pa., was named in honor of the countess of Huntingdon, an eighteenth century great lady, who did much for the university of Pennsylvania. Provost William Smith of the university founded the little city in 1777, and gratefully honored the university's patron in naming the new settlement.

THE Baltimore & Ohio railroad is going to try the experiment of substituting electricity for steam on that portion of its line known as the Baltimore & Lehigh, or the old Maryland Central. The water power of the Susquehanna river at Conawingo Falls will be utilized to generate the electricity. When all the roads get to using electric power, as they probably will some day, what will become of the locomotives?

IN Europe during the past year, out of 98,000 cases of cholera, about 44,000 were fatal. That would appear to be a rather bad cholera year, but not much was said about it. There were nearly 30,000 deaths in Russia reported and the mortality in Europe was no doubt greater than reported. Turkey and Russia are the most persistent violators of sanitary laws, and through these countries the cholera most frequently gets into western Europe.

THE destruction of forests goes steadily on, the world over, and at a rapidly increasing pace. The people had scarcely recovered from the shock over the announcement of wooden socks before they were informed that sawdust bread is proving a success at Berlin! The present prospect is that old contemptuous phrase, "a wooden man," may yet become a verity if we are to be clothed and fed with products of wood and the forests prove to be ample for the steadily increasing demands upon them.

SPAIN is mourning the death of the famous "Blind Woman of Manzanares," who was known from one end of the country to the other. She was a poetess and had a remarkable talent for writing begging verses describing her misery. Many of the poems are beautiful and the writer enjoyed a large income. She was said to be one of the best reciters in Spain, and numbers of famous men made pilgrimages to her home to hear her. Queen Isabella gave the blind woman a pension some years ago and she left $60,000.

THE state of Georgia had 20 lynching during the past year: Alabama and Kentucky, 19 each; Mississippi, 16; Louisiana, 15; Tennessee, 13, and Texas, 12. In the south altogether there were 166, while in the north there were 24. The whole record is a frightful one, and should call the attention of the people of the United States to the necessity of awakening a public sentiment that will demand the substitution of lawful processes for the violence of the mob. Our protest to Turkey against the Armenian massacres is less effective with the shadow of this ghastly record behind it.

DR. HALBROOK CURTIS enjoys the most unique privilege of any man in New York. He spends life peering down the throats which make fortunes for their owners and incidentally for their doctors. He has seen just where Melba's pearly notes spring from, where Tamagno's high C first begins its eccentric capers, and he stands as much in awe of the vocal cords of a throat which demands $1,000 a night as of a miserable hoarseness which will ruin a season if left to itself. In Dr. Curtis' office one meets the people who move kings and queens by the charm of an art which is surely God-given.

NEW YORK has now a compulsory school law in force. It is a very sweeping, almost drastic law. Parents or guardians who neglect to send their children to school may be fined five cents for each offense. Habitual truants may be arrested and confined in asylums, to be cured, we suppose, and school districts, which fail to provide proper school facilities may be deprived of one-half of the state apportionment money. The law may result in good and it may not. One thing is pretty certain, and that is that it will not be enforced in either spirit or letter. The aim and tendency of the law is good.

LED TO TROUBLE.

Brooklyn Corporations Said to Have Ignored the Law.

Five Thousand Employes Quit Work—Entire Trolley System of the City at a Standstill—Strikers Grow Riotous.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 16.—At 5 o'clock Friday morning all the trolley cars in Brooklyn were tied up, the employes refusing to take out the cars. Over 5,000 men quit work This includes motormen, conductors, electricians, switchmen and others employed at the various power-houses. All but one of the surface roads, and that a comparatively minor concern, are affected. It is claimed that the strike will extend to the line of the Brooklyn Elevated Railway company. The contract between the Kings County Elevated Railway company and its employes is such that it is believed there can be no strike on that line.

All Refused to Work.

The companies refused to grant the request of the men, and expected that the men would go out Monday morning and determined to anticipate them. They asked the electricians, about 1,000 in number, if they would take out the cars Monday morning. Everyone of them refused to do so. They were then told that there was no work for them. One foreman was asked if he was willing to take out a car. He refused to do it. He was the only foreman to go out. Monday morning the people had to use the elevated roads. The trains were made up with extra cars to accommodate the rush. The public was greatly inconvenienced.

Cars Manned by Policemen.

The Court street line of the Brooklyn City company ran out seven cars beginning at 8 o'clock. The cars were manned, front and rear, by two policemen. There was no trouble.

Grievances of the Men.

The men's grievances and demands are thus stated: The state law provides that a day's work of street railway employes shall be ten hours, within twelve consecutive hours. It is alleged that the corporations have required the men to work eleven hours, and even, latterly, tweve hours, with no interval longer than ten minutes for lunch, and even depriving them of that brief time in most instances. The wage rate agreed upon a year ago was two dollars for the statutory day's work; the companies, it is alleged, have made no allowance for overtime. The men demand adherence to the law regulating hours in a day's work, or $2.25 for a day of twelve hours.

Hours Were Too Long.

An address issued by the executive committee of District Assembly No. 75, alleges that the trouble was precipitated by the Brooklyn Heights company in excluding their electric workers from work. The statement goes on to say that the flagrant violation of the ten-hour law has mentally and physically incapacited the men for their work. All the companies run their trippers so that the men can make only from forty to sixty cents a day.

Run Faster Than Law Allows.

While the corporations are not allowed by law to run at a rate of speed of more than 10 miles an hour, through schedules are arranged so that cars have to be run at a rate of speed of from 15 to 20 miles an hour. In consequence, nearly 100 fatal accidents have occurred since the trolley was introduced, and countless injuries to passengers, all caused by the greed of the corporations.

A Riotous Demonstration.

A clash occurred at Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street in this city at 3:30 p. m. At that point is the car-house of the Atlantic avenue line. President Norton ordered that a car bearing the sign "United States Mail" be taken out and run over the line. Surrounding the car-house was a crowd of about 500 strikers. When the car appeared they began hooting and making threats. The car had proceeded about 20 yards when the strikers closed in on it. The three policemen on the car were reinforced by twenty-five policemen who surrounded the car, and tried to keep back the strikers. With drawn clubs they strove to fight them off. When the men saw that they could not get to the car, those on the outskirts threw stones and clubs. A large stone struck Conductor Jackson on the head, causing blood to flow freely.

Drew Their Revolvers.

Sergeant Powers then ordered that the car be taken back. By this time a small body of strikers had crowded between it and the car-house. They were armed with clubs, and a shower of stones still continued. The police ordered them back, but they refused to obey. Some of the policemen drew their pistols, and Conductor Jackson drew his. The strikers who saw that move then retreated, clearing the way through which the car could be backed into the house. After the car was safely housed, the crowd closed in on the entrance. No arrests were made.

FROZEN TO DEATH.

Jack Frost Finds His Victims in Various Places.

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 15.—Mary Geesey, a demented woman, who was formerly an inmate of the Blair county alms house, but who had lately made her home with Seth Campbell, a farmer at the foot of Brush mountain, about 4 miles from this city, wandered away from her home during the storm, and when found on the mountains Sunday evening was frozen to death.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 15.—Guy Harden, formerly station agent at Sawdust, on the Georgia railroad, was found Sunday morning frozen to death. He left Augusta Saturday night, driving home in a wagon. The team went direct to his house and he was found in the wagon dead.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Anna Bucekorski, 60 years old, who lived at 312 Belmont avenue, was found frozen to death at Anna avenue and Cornelia street Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. She had wandered from home Saturday afternoon while demented.

JEFFERSON, Ia., Jan. 15.—The house of J. H. Baldridge, near this city, and part of its contents were burned Saturday night. It was very cold at the time and nine children, from 3 to 16 years old, froze their feet and hands. There was no insurance. The family is destitute and the children are in a critical condition.

STATE TREASURER DEFAULTS.

South Dakota Has No Funds with Which to Meet Expenses.

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 11.—State Treasurer Taylor, who should have turned over his cash to his successor Tuesday, failed to appear and his bank, the Redfield national bank, has closed its doors. The last heard of Taylor he was in New York. On Saturday he should have had $350,000, and should have paid $190,000 Saturday to take up funding warrants in New York. His bonds are $350,000, but will stand 50 per cent. shrinkage.

It has been known for some time that Treasurer Taylor was hard pressed. He was caught in the Chemical national bank failure at Chicago for a large amount, and he lost $20,000 in the bank at Milbank and $10,000 in that at Geldisburg, which failed during the panic. Altogether he lost $100,000.

If the defalcation is as large as the bondsmen believe it will place the state in a very embarrassing position. The limit of indebtedness has been passed largely. No warrants or bonds can be sold and there is a considerable deficiency in revenue. Without this trouble it would have been a difficult problem to make both ends meet, now it is impossible.

Advices from Aberdeen are to the effect that Taylor took little money with him but lost it all through his friends whom he helped during the financial panic. When he wanted the money returned his friends were not able to accommodate him. Among the persons to whom he loaned money are said to be several state officials and if criminal prosecutions are instituted there will be some sensational developments before the case is ended. Some time ago Taylor went to New York to raise funds for the purpose of closing up his account with the state, but recent advices are to the effect that he said he was unable to negotiate a loan, and, he announced his intention of never returning again to Dakota. His friends he bitterly reproached for not coming to his aid in time of need.

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 12.—Facts have come into possession of the state officials which make them reasonably certain that Treasurer Taylor and certain confederates deliberately went to work, after it became evident that he could not square his accounts, to "hold the state up" and compel a compromise by which he should escape from the penalty and his bondsmen should be protected from loss.

The state was in a hard place financially. If not a cent had been lost, there would have been a deficit on the first day of next July of fully $100,000 due to overappropriations by the last legislature and to the slow payment of taxes on account of the short crops. How to extricate the commonwealth has been the subject commanding the most earnest thought and anxiety of the state officials for several months past. The permanent appropriations are so high that the legislature, no matter what economy may animate it, could hardly bring the expenditures within the revenue.

There was due on the 5th of January $220,000 worth of funding warrants held by eastern parties. There was due a considerable sum on the coupon bonds, while the sinking fund was preparing to take up the semi-annual interest to the amount of $20,000. The legislature was in session and immediate calls would be made on the treasury for at least $300,000. Of course the treasurer knew all this.

It is believed by the authorities on substantial evidence that, realizing that he would be short $100,000 when the transfer was to be made on the 8th, he consulted with some of his friends and backers, and they decided that the best thing to do was to seize all the money in the treasury and put it in a place of hiding where it could be gotten at when desired. Then when the default was discovered the state would be found bankrupt. Were it to sue on the bonds of the treasurer two years or more would elapse before any money could be recovered and during that time the credit of South Dakota would sink very low.

The parties to the plan concluded that rather than let this come to pass the state officers would do almost anything within reason. Then the plan was to come forward, through an agent, and propose to pay back to the state the $250,000 which the treasurer had carried off on condition that the bondsmen should be released, and that Taylor should be relieved from further prosecution.

It is impossible to give the details of the evidence on which this supposition is based, but it is regarded as conclusive. It is now known that several persons were aware of the condition some time before the defalcation took place, and it is understood that Taylor has an agent in this city watching the progress of the inquiry.

DEFALCATION AND SUICIDE.

DOVER, N. H., Jan. 16.—Cashier Isaac F. Abbott, whose shortage caused the suspension of the Dover national bank, shot and killed himself in his house Monday afternoon. When National Bank Examiner Dorr came here to examine Cashier Abbott's accounts he said they were badly mixed and that there was a shortage which might amount to between $60,000 to $90,000. Mr. Abbott, who had been under surveillance for some time, admitted that his accounts were short, but refused to say how much. He would not say where the money had gone or how long the shortage had existed.

"The Dover national bank, to the best of my knowledge and belief, is short $85,000 through me. I have nothing but my memory to rely upon. I have not even a memorandum."

Rumors of a shortage in Abbott's accounts gained circulation Friday, when Bank Examiner Door first came here to examine the books of the bank. Saturday the bank vault could not be opened, but Monday morning it was opened soon after the notice was posted that the bank had suspended. Bank Examiner Door immediately telegraphed for a United States marshal to come here and take care of Abbott.

Mr. Abbott was treasurer of the city of Dover and was also connected with the Dover five-cent savings bank, which has offices in the same building with the national bank. It is said, however, that neither the city nor the savings bank will suffer by Mr. Abbott's defalcation and suicide.

COLD BED ROOMS.

They Are Said to Be Conducive to Pulmonary Troubles.

When doctors disagree, it is time for the intelligent laymen to give a little thought to their own conditions and ascertain if possible by careful and prudent experiments just what is best for them. One class of physicians will advocate cold rooms, abundance of out-of-door air and what would seem to be almost fatal exposure, and will insist that this is conducive to health and that the patient will thrive under such heroic treatment. A medical man claims to be able to cure consumption and all pulmonary troubles by keeping the patient for a goodly portion of the day in an atmosphere of intense cold. In mid-winter the sufferer is put by an open window and inhales the sharp outside air for hours at a time. This is all very well and no doubt a good thing, but from this state of affairs people who have neither the experience nor the facilities take their cue imagine that extreme cold, if applicable in this way, must necessarily be so in others. They seem to lose sight of the fact that these invalids are put upon wheel carriages, tucked up as snugly as a baby in a cradle and wheeled in by these open windows. They may sleep there or sit there as long as they are comfortable, sometimes perhaps longer than the sick one desires, but, under no circumstances, are these people even for an instant, exposed to the atmosphere in any dangerous way.

But, on the theory, somebody thinks that sleeping in a cold room, or sitting in one, has its point of grace, consequently we find extremely delicate people going into cold rooms and getting into beds that are just about as comfortable and safe as an ice house. To inhale prodigious quantities of cold air is one thing, and may be beneficial, but to retire in a room with a temperature at zero, in a cold bed with the blankets and wraps in an absolutely congealing condition, is quite another. With an abundance of hot-water bags and warm blankets, it is possible to get into a cold bed and finally become comfortable; but when, after a night's rest, one rises in the morning and comes suddenly in contact with the freezing air of such an apartment, even though one goes immediately into a warm room, it is little short of suicide. Under ordinary circumstances, it is better to sleep in a room as nearly as possible of the temperature of the one occupied during the day. Children should not be permitted to sleep in very cold rooms. They are restless, and almost always get more or less uncovered, and get colds that start a long train of ills. All things being equal, the use of a moderately warm room with fresh air brought in by a tube from out of doors is much the safer and wiser method of procedure. —N. Y. Ledger.

A HAPPY FELLOW.

From the meadow where I sit,
See a sky o' blue,
God was six days paintin' it
Jest fer me an' you.

Every time it strikes my eye
I keep sayin': "There's your sky!
Blue an' bendin'
An' unendin'!"
So I sing, an' never sigh!

Sunshine over hill an' glen—
Birds in every tree;
When God made the country, ten
Acres came to me!

Every time it blossoms fair,
I keep sayin': "That's your share!
Roses growin'—
Rivers flowin'!"
So I'm happy everywhere!

Spring or winter—rain or shine,
Don't care where I'm at,
So much of the country's mine—
Praise the Lord fer that!

Sky an' meadow, high or low,
I keep sayin' as I go:
"There's your birthright;"
Got the earth right—
That's why I'm a-singin' so!

A FURIOUS FIGHT.

A Night Battle with Wolves in a Norway Hamlet.

My father was a minister in the small parish of Upper Rendale, in Norway. When we first settled in Upper Rendale parsonage the parish had been for years unmolested by wolves. The old fence that had once protected the dog kennel had fallen to decay, and it had not been thought worth while to have it replaced.

We had two dogs at the parsonage, Ajax and Hector. Ajax was a common hare hound, white and black saddled. He was medium-sized and the most spirited animal I have ever known.

We small boys had many a merry frolic with him. Often when we had bounded far beyond us to fetch a ball or a stick one of us had cast he would lie down, his head between his paws, his eyes beaming with roguishness, to wait till we caught up to him. As soon as we were near enough to touch him he would dart nimbly away, and so he would keep it up until we dropped down, unable to take another step. Then he would roll on the ground with us, bubbling over with mirth. He was never known to snarl or snap at us, no matter how rough we might be.

He flew at every dog, large or small, that appeared on the road. Swift as lightning, with jaws that gripped like a vise, and with an indomitable will, he usually came off victorious. When he did get into a pinch, Hector came growling to his rescue, and that settled the matter.

Hector was a large yellow St. Bernard of the long-haired kind. We children rode him, drove him, and did pretty much as we pleased with him. He followed us like a shadow. The approach of strangers was usually announced by him with a few gruff barks, and then he permitted Ajax to furnish the rest of the music. Smaller dogs than himself Hector never harmed, and larger ones there were not for miles around. For Ajax he cherished a faithful, patient friendship. At night Ajax slept in the dog kennel, while Hector kept guard outside.

One cold, star-lit evening in February, 1858, my brother and I, two small boys, were coasting on the hill north of the parsonage, our pointed caps drawn down over our ears, our fingers protected by coarse woolen mittens. The crisp snow creaked and groaned under our heels as we went up the hill, and shrieked beneath the steel runners of our sleds as we made our daring flights downward. Sharply defined shadows were cast on the snow by the moon, and Hector and Ajax, our constant companions, looked with intelligent eyes at the fairyland scene about us.

From the parsonage woodshed stole the lurid glow of the pine torch. The steady sound of chopping there gave us that comfortable sense of security the nearness of people always brings. Otherwise the surrounding stillness was undisturbed, save by the occasional groaning of some heavily-laden vehicle on the road or the slamming of a door in the distance.

Suddenly my brother seized my arm.

"Hark!" whispered he.

From the thicket above us a long, hungry howl was ringing through the night air. It was promptly answered from a point still farther up the slope, and presently from the opposite side of the valley. Throwing back his head, Hector listened intently; Ajax bristled and growled. We boys knew the sound and shuddered.

"Let's go home," said my brother, lashing our sleds together.

We were on our way down the hill when some one called us from the parsonage.

At the door father was waiting for us. He patted Hector's head, helped us boys put up our sleds and brushed off the snow, and then hurried us into the house.

"The wolves are about," he said quietly to mother, as he took up his paper.

She seemed uneasy and questioned us children pretty closely. A series of wolf stories followed, one of them about a man who had a narrow escape from a wolf which had sprung at him one dark night on the public highway.

"You see, children, you cannot be too careful," said mother, as she rang the bell for the maid to bring in supper.

While we were still at the table, Ole Johnson, one of the farmhands, came in from the woodshed and stood in the doorway, shivering.

"It might be well to keep the dogs indoors to-night," said he.

"Have you seen any wolves?" asked father.

"No; but I heard them awhile ago," replied Ole.

"Take Ajax into the servants' hall," said mother, "and Hector may sleep in the nursery."

To have Hector in our room seemed to us boys the safest, most delightful thing imaginable. We were quite sure he was the strongest dog in the world, and could dispose of twenty, aye, a hundred wolves.

As we went up to bed, however, our courage was somewhat shaken by the distant howling we heard, and when Hector came upstairs with Marit, the nursemaid, we screamed aloud with fright. We actually thought the wolf had broken in.

Long after we crept into bed we lay shivering with cold and dread, until finally the warmth of the fire Marit had kindled pervaded the room, and the crackling flames mingled with Hector's heavy breathing lulled us to rest.

How late it was when I started up in a panic of terror I cannot say. A confused blending of snarling and howling filled the air, and on the window was plainly outlined the huge, dark head of some animal, with wide-open jaws.

Clapping my hands over my eyes I shrieked out. Marit was aroused by my cry, and coming to my bedside asked drowsily what was the matter.

'Look!" I cried, pointing.

At this moment Hecter, for it was his head I had seen, barked loudly, and standing on his hind legs, with his fore paws on the window sill, made a desperate effort to see through the frost-painted glass.

Moving toward the window Marit cleared a space and stood peering out into night. In an instant I was at her side, barefoot and trembling. To my dying day I shall never forget the sight we saw.

In an open space on the hillside, north of the parsonage, a dark mass was writhing and tossing on the snow amid snarls and howls that rent the air like the roar of a distant waterfall.

"Wolves!" murmured Marit, grasping my arm.

Just then mother opened the door leading into the hall, and Hector, darting past her, sprang down the steps and was only stopped by the front door.

Mother gave orders to put the children's clothes on, and it was not long before everyone in the house was dressed and at the window commanding a view of the struggle.

Famous for all time in the parish will be that battle fought between six or seven wolves and the fiercest dogs in the vicinity. Long-drawn howls, shrill, excited yelps and smothered groans woke the echoes of the night. I quivered in every limb as I watched the thrilling spectacle presented by the strong gaunt wolves contending with the small dogs that sprang into the air, came floundering down, rolled over and over and darted forward again.

Suddenly a man was seen running from the direction of the servants' hall. It was Ole Johnson.

Father threw open the window and peremptorily ordered him to go back into the house.

"Ajax is with me," cried Ole, halting.

"Let Hector loose," he cried, presently.

Then, hastening to the woodshed, he seized an ax and was about starting for the scene of the combat.

"Stay where you are! Have you gone stark mad?" shouted father.

Ole stood for a moment, irresolute.

Above the din there now arose a high-pitched shriek from a voice we would all have known among hundreds. It gradually became more and more smothered, and finally resolved itself into a gurgling moan.

"They are killing him!" screamed Marit, sobbing aloud.

At this Ole started off as fast as he could go.

Hector, too, had recognized his comrade's call. With a hoarse bark he flung himself against the hall door, tearing and scratching with teeth and claws, determined to get out.

"Then, in heaven's name, let him go," cried father, and Marit flew downstairs to open the door.

The huge animal bounded northward with vigorous leaps, past Ole, and not resting until he had found him whom he was seeking. Then followed a matchless display of indomitable strength and ferocity.

Four dogs were engaged in mortal combat with one tall, powerful wolf, who was just about to get the better of Ajax. With head proudly erect, Hector sprang to the group, seized the savage brute and flung it high into the air. As it came sprawling down, he throttled it and slapped the ground with it like one gone mad, making the snow fly in all directions.

Suddenly he relaxed his hold—the wolf was dead.

At the door of the servants' hall stood Ole, with Ajax in his arms. Hector bounded toward them, sniffed at the trembling, bleeding Ajax, and then darted back into the thickest of the fray. Laying the wounded hound on a cushion, Ole hurried northward again, taking with him two other lads, each armed with an ax.

When they reached the battlefield the result of the combat was decided. Four wolves lay dead or dying among a heap of mangled dogs. The others had skulked away, but their hideous howling was still making the night dismal. Hector moved from group to group, sniffing at the dead and fawning over the injured dogs that lay in the snow, licking their wounds.

For more than half an hour he paced to and fro, laid down, got up again and showed every sign of intense excitement. Not until all the living dogs had gone home did he relinquish his post and present himself at the house door. As soon as he was admitted he found his way to Ajax, and with much demonstration of affection fell to licking the little fellow's wounds. This task accomplished, he dropped down with a long and weary sigh, and began to attend to his own.

Ajax crapt quivering between his big comrade's legs, turned uneasily a few times and finally curled himself up comfortably. He was pretty badly hurt, having a deep gash in the back, and a long, gaping rent in the throat.

The next morning traces of the conflict were widespread. Blood dyed the snow, mangled, lifeless wrecks were strewn around, and tufts of hair drifted about in the wind.

People gathered from all parts of the parish. Some lingered about the woodshed where Ole narrated the blood-curdling events of the night, while he dressed the wolf skins.

All this happened some years ago, but even to-day in that far-away little parish in Norway the people speak of that night; and if you should go to the parsonage you will see close to the gate of the little garden to your right, two low mounds where lie the faithful dogs, Hector and Ajax, who fought the famous battle with the wolves.—From the Norwegian, in Providence Journal.

To Escape Contamination.

Gloomily the parrot watched the sweet, womanly woman while she sharpened her pencil with her husband's razor.

"That," he soliloquized, with bitterness, "means the clothespress for me until the old man gets away from the house to-morrow morning."

Communing thus with himself, unconscious of the purpose of preserving him from the touch of the world, the bird rued the day he was hatched.—Detroit Tribune.

A PECULIAR CASE.

Physicians Puzzled by the Experience of Mrs. Bowen.

The Episcopal Hospital Said She Had Consumption.

(From the Record, Philadelphia, Pa.)

Last July the Episcopal hospital admitted a woman whose pale and emaciated face and racking cough proclaimed her the victim of consumption. She gave her name as Mrs. Sallie G. Bowen, wife of Wm. G. Bowen, residence, 1849 Meighan St., Philadelphia. The case was diagnosed and she was told plainly that she was in an advanced stage of consumption. The examining physician even showed her the sunken place in her breast where the cavity in her lung was supposed to exist. She went home to her family a broken, disheartened woman with death staring her in the face. That was the beginning of the story, the end was told by Mrs. Bowen, who no longer expects to die, to a reporter who visited her home.

"The first symptoms of consumption came in the form of terrible sweats, both night and day. From April until September I was constantly cold and kept wrapped up in blankets through the hottest weather. A terrible cough took possession of me, my breast was sore to the slightest touch, and my limbs were like cold clay. The hardest rubbing with the coarsest towel would not create the slightest flush, and the least exertion would so exhaust me that I could barely gasp for water.

"I went to the hospital in July and they diagnosed my case as above stated. It was when the clouds were the darkest that the first glint of sunshine came. Mr. Shelmerdine a friend, who lives around at 1844 Clementine St., said to me one day: Mrs. Bowen, did you ever try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People? I had never heard of the medicine, but in my condition could not turn a deaf ear to anything that offered relief. It was after considerable thought and investigation that I concluded to discontinue all the medicine I was taking, including cod liver oil, and depend entirely upon Pink Pills. I began to take the Pills, at first with but little encouragement. The first sign of improvement was a warmth and a tingling sensation in my limbs. Finally the cough disappeared, my chest lost its soreness and I began to gain flesh until I was fifteen pounds heavier. All this I owe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I cannot praise them too highly."

Mrs. Bowen is a kindly faced lady of middle age, a church member well-known and highly esteemed. She looks to-day well and strong, and it seems almost impossible that she was ever given up by eminent physicians as an incurable consumptive. Yet such is the case beyond all dispute.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

AT THE FOOTBALL GAME.

The Scene as Witnessed by a Sensitive and Tender-Hearted Man.

I was a little late arriving at the abattoir, for rioting had hardly begun. A brindle-legged student whose cerebellum had been driven into his medulla oblongata was being carried into an ambulance, a friend of the sufferer bringing up the rear of the procession with a few folds of the sufferer's left ear, which had been scrunched off on the ground. I observed another young man delving in the earth, which he was plowing up with his nose, the motive power being supplied by three or four other young men whose stockings did not correspond in color with those of the first-mentioned victim, who was being propelled over the surface of the planet a la wheelbarrow.

But the principal fracas was where the students seemed to have run together in one spot and coagulated, as it were, their limbs blending into one homogeneous whole. They were festooned and entwined around each other as sociable as a lot of angleworms in a bait box, but they made more noise. They were much mixed up.

Several students had evidently dived into the squirming mass head first, and stuck there, for their limbs were waving about in the upper air like those of a tree or a ballet dancer. After waiting some time in vain for the arrival of the troops to quell the riot I retired from the scene of the conflict because I did not care to be summoned as a witness at the inquests.

If a man relishes going to the hospital or the morgue in two separate ambulances he should give football a trial before applying elsewhere. Football can break up an able-bodied man so completely in a single round that the average railroad collision or boiler explosion feels like making an assignment of the business for good.

A young man who has had no experience whatever in the game can go in and in ten minutes acquire a compound fracture of the bones of both legs, which afterward may refuse to become reconciled and keep him on crutches for the rest of his life; or he may get a handful of ribs loosened from his spinal column, and at the same time acquire a luxation of the mucus membrane or some of the other Latin parts of his body. If a man fairly aches to go through life with his Adam's apple nestling cozily under his left ear, while his battered nose looks as if it was anxious to turn the next corner to the right before it gets there, he may find what he needs in a game of football, which unites the most exciting features of riding a bucking broncho with those of a slugging match, for often the dull thuds of the slugger can be heard above the wails of the wounded and dying.—Texas Siftings.

A Candid Confession.

Father of the Bridegroom—Before cementing this close relationship I think it but right to tell you that I once had a little unpleasantness which involved the loss of my liberty for a considerable period. Both my daughters are, I am sorry to say, rather flighty; my dear wife is suffering from kleptomania and my son was mixed up in a little forgery affair. Won't that make any difference?

Father of the Bride—Not the slightest! From the fact that I am quite in favor of our alliance you may judge how matters stand in my family.—Der Schalk.

THE famous Russian entomologist, Hugo Christoph, died the other day in St. Petersburg. He was born in Germany in 1831, but went to Russia in 1858, becoming a professor in Sarepta. He traveled over half the known world and discovered a large number of new insects.

NO MATTER how great he may have been, no man ever yet looked impressive when he was attempting to inflate a tire he knew was punctured.

ABOUT THE SAME.

No Change Appears in the Trade Situation—The Outlook.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—R. G. Dun's weekly review of trade says:

"Neither the beginning of the new year, nor the failure of the currency bill, has brought any material change to business as yet. The idea that business would suddenly take a new start after the holidays had rather less foundation even than usual, but the hope of strong revival a little later is still cherished by many. The currency bill, with its possibilities of vicious amendments, was a source of apprehension to some, but with that out of the way, the deficiency of treasury receipts remains, and exports of gold do not cease. There has not been much time for change in the industries, but differences observed since the new year began are not in the direct on of higher prices or larger demand. There are more indications than of late that stocks of different kinds of goods have been accumulating in consequence of past increase in production.

"In the boot and shoe manufacture increasing disposition to restrict orders, where any advance in price is asked, unsettles the business, for while some manufacturers have orders for six weeks or more, most of them require further orders to run more than about two weeks. The question whether prices now demanded for leather are too high for healthy trade may be determined only after some embarrassment.

"The cotton manufacture reports decreased demand. Many quotations of cotton goods are the lowest on record, the week's trade being quite unsatisfactory. Trade in woolens hesitates because of large distribution from warehouses under new duties; but little change appears in prices, and heavy woolens are expected to open at about last years's quotations. The demand for dress goods has been remarkably satisfactory until within two weeks, but has fallen off.

"The customs receipts for six days, including the two days in which heavy withdrawals of woolens from warehouse were the feature, amounted to $5,760,976, but the total receipts for the month have been only $8,773,375, against expenditures of $14,054,607. About $575,000 worth of sugar came in last week, and when stocks on hand are distributed a larger revenue from that source may be expected, but while the general consumption of the people is still restricted, revenue must prove deficient.

"Speculation in products has been more active. Corn has risen 1¾c, and though receipts are but little over half last year's, the practical disappearance of the port demand, then large, counts for about as much. As receipts of wheat have fallen to 1,305,701 bushels against 1,818,582 last year, and Atlantic exports have become larger than a year ago, the advance of 1¼ cents in price is not surprising. Cotton is so low that scarcely any reason is needed for a fractional recovery, but with 7,000,000 bales already in sight, and the stocks abroad for months, there is little to cause much recovery.

"The extraordinary economies to which railroads have been pushed are shown by the building of only 695 locomotives and 17,029 freight cars in 1894, against 2,011 locomotives and 51,236 freight cars in 1893.

"There is more money coming in from the interior, and the business of the country does not yet afford larger use for it, so that no gain appears in commercial loans. It is a most significant fact that money still comes to this center largely during the first two weeks of January.

"Failures for the first three days of the year were rather large, as is natural, with liabilities of $1,622,203, of which $766,331 were of manufacturing and $1,347,272 of trading concerns. Failures this week are 420 in the United States, against 474 last year, and 54 in Canada, against 57 last year.

HELD UP NEAR OTTUMWA.

A Daring Robbery Committed on a C. B. & Q. Train in Iowa.

OTTUMWA, Ia., Jan. 15.—Probably the most daring train robbery ever committed in Iowa was perpetrated early Saturday evening, almost under the very eyes of the authorities here. It was one of the most consummate in boldness and successful execution in the annals of train robbery. No. 4 mail express train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road, was the train selected, and the Adams Express company is the loser of a good sum of money, the exact amoun of which cannot be definitely ascertained. It is thought, however, to be more than $8,000. No. 4 is the Burlington through train from Denver to Chicago. Its express business is largely local, but many times it carries large sums of money. If this train was rich in big amounts no one knew it, but the daring highwaymen evidently suspected so and almost in broad daylight relieved the messenger of all the packages in the safe that looked like money.

When the train left Chillicothe Messenger John S. Page was sitting near the safe and his assistant was chatting carelessly with Baggageman Ed Wright. Suddenly the front door of the express car, which is usually locked, was thrown open and two masked men, each with two revolvers, called on the men to throw up their hands. While one man covered the trainmen the other quickly bound and gagged them and threw them in one corner. Then they coolly rifled the safe, placed the contents in a big sack and waited ten minutes for the train to whistle for the stop at the junction.

While waiting Postal Clerk John Umphreys came in from the mail car and was treated like the rest of his fellows. When the train slackened its speed at the junction the robbers jumped off with their booty, crossing the Des Moines river on the ice to the island, which has been the rendezvous of highwaymen and tough characters from time immemorial.

The mail clerk released the express messenger from his thongs, and when the train pulled into the station at Ottumwa he had unloosed all his comrades and the word was given quickly to the sheriff and police. Sheriff Stodgbill, Chief of Police Vanderveer and one posse started out on an engine for Chillicothe. Detective Jim Harrison, who shot the bandit at Batavia two weeks ago, headed another posse to trail the robbers if possible to their hiding place. The robbers wore no hats, but hoods with masks seemingly attached. Both had brown overcoats and one wore gray jeans trousers, while the other had encased his legs in overalls.

IN DEBS' DEFENSE.

Ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull to Be One of His Counsel.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Mr. C. S. Darrow, of Chicago, counsel for Eugene V. Debs, arrived in Washington on Friday for the purpose of appearing before the United States supreme court in the interest of his client. The case was intended to come up in the supreme court by an application from Debs' counsel for a writ of habeas corpus directed to the Illinois court, but Mr. Darrow said that pending the argument on that question he will ask the supreme court as soon as he can be heard, to allow bail to be given for Mr. Debs. When the argument comes up on the habeas corpus proceedings Mr. Darrow said he would have associated with him Messrs. Lyman Trumbull and S. S. Gregory, of Chicago, as counsel to defend Mr. Debs.

The Rise of the Buckwheat Cake

Grandma used to raise to-day's buckwheats with the souring left over of yesterday! Dear old lady, she was up to the good old times. But these are days of Royal Baking Powder—freshness into freshness raises freshness.

And this is the way the buckwheat cake of to-day is made: Two cups of Buckwheat, one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder, one half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle.

—The officers and committees of the Delano Washington's Birthday Association are requested to meet at the Postoffice on Wednesday, Jan'y 23 at 2 P. M. to arrange for celebrating the 22nd. JOHN MCGARY, Pres.

—In a recent list of Pensions Granted we notice the name of B. F. Kephart, of Long Prairie. Rev. Kephart used to be the M. E. pastor at this place, and his many friends are pleased to hear of his good fortune in this line.

—Delano doctors have been kept pretty busy since the beginning of the New Year. Colds, bronichal and lung troubles and other ailments are after those who carelessly expose themselves to the superabundance of Minnesota ozone.

—The publisher of the GAZETTE will send the Farm Journal, FREE, for one year to all old subscribers paying up their arrearages and one year in advance, before Feb. 22, Washington's birthday; also to new subscribers paying one year in advance before that time. Write to the Farm Journal, Philadelphia, Pa., for sample copies.

—Benjamin Franklin is accused of having said that "always taking out of the meal tub and never putting in soon comes to the bottom." It seems to us as if the contrary is true concerning the stuffing of book learning into the heads of children without their acquiring at the same time the ability to explain what they know. Their minds like so many rubber bags distended almost to bursting, with air or with water, become unable to contract upon their contents; and the world never has a chance to find out how much they know.

—Our graduating class in the High School seems even more bashful than the "gallant" quartette that preceded them last year. All the knowledge acquired by them they hang onto like "grim death to a nigger"; they are "mum as oysters." Last year's class did write a few essays and school notes and assisted in advertising the school some; and their followers ought at least to keep up the pace set by them. '96 though, proposes to be in the front of the battle and one of its members has in this issue of the GAZETTE announced a determination to see that our High School has justice. Good for the Junior.

—Farmers, you should have a good Farm Journal in your house. Your boys will learn many things about farming from them. Your girls will get many useful hints. Your wife and yourselves will enjoy reading how other people do things on the farm. How to have good gardens; how to attend to stock, including chickens; how to raise some fruit and many other things worth knowing. Now is your time to get a Journal that is not devoted to politics, but that tells you how to make the most of the business you are making your living at. Send to the FARM JOURNAL, Philadelphia, Pa., for sample copies. Or come in and pay up and one year in advance for the GAZETTE before Feb. 22, and we will send you the Farm Journal one year FREE.

—The School Board held a regular meeting on Saturday night.

—Episcopal sociable at the residence of Mrs. Alice Davis this evening. Money to apply on assessment to missions.

—All about the Hayward murder trial in the Minneapolis Evening Journal delivered any place in the village at 10 cts a week. The Sunday Times is delivered Sunday evening.

ALVA G. CATLIN.

—Paul E. Datko celebrated his birth day on the 12th inst. He now claims to be a man, and says he will take out his naturalization papers and become a full fledged citizen of the United States. That is what every young man of foreign birth living here should do, and not wait until election time and have some wily politician get them out for them. Get your own papers boys, learn English and be prepared to hold your own with the native born boys.

—We understand that the Delano Cornet Band undertook to reorganize lately, and after holding several meetings, and learning that one or two of the old members refused to join, gave up in despair. Boys, you should not do so. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try, again." "There are as good fish in the sea as ever was caught." If one or more of your members has become tired and wish to rest, you can find someone to succeed them who will soon be able to "toot" with any or all of you. A good band in a town certainly adds much to the attractions of the place. Some young blood could be infused into the band with an invigorating effect.

—On Monday we visited the higher departments of the Delano High School for a short time. On entering the room we asked if visitors were allowed Prof. Leavens informed us that they were, but were somewhat of a rarity. A class in Latin was reciting when we arrived. Some of the pupils appeared to give too little attention to their lesson, evidently thinking dead language called for little effort. Here they were mistaken. Others answered questions readily, and some of them conjugated "amo" quite lively. When Mr. L had finished with the Latin class he retired to the recitation room to meet a class in Cæsar, and Miss Steele took charge and had the History class came forward and recite. This class did very well, with some exceptions, which may have been due to the fact that a visitor, a GAZETTE reporter, was in the room. We give a few of the questions and answers as follows:

Q. What states were the last to come back into the Union after the Rebellion?

A. Conneticut and Rhode Island!

Q Why was the Centennial Celebration held?

A. To celebrate Chicago!

Some of the scholars immediately recognized their blunders and corrected them. Some seemed only a "lapsus linguae". The school seemed well behaved and interested in the work. We are in hopes that visitors will become more familiar objects with the children and that they will not have to again pass through the ordeal of being scared into answering wrong. It is not a hard matter to pick out the studious and careful scholars.

A Junior Aroused.

DELANO, Minn., Jan. 14, 1895.

EDITOR GAZETTE,

Dear Sir:—I am a Junior of the High School, and when I read the article about the school notes, in last week's GAZETTE, I decided that if the Seniors would not act I would. I am writing unbeknown to anyone, but if this is published I will write again. I thought a history of our club would do this time but next time there will be more about school in general. I am,

Yours truly,

A JUNIOR, '96.

THE HIGH SCHOOL CLUB.

A meeting was held, some time ago, at the home of Mr. Leavens, to see if a High School club could not be started.

We organized for the purpose of benefiting ourselves in a literary way. Mr. Kurtz (one of our Seniors) was elected president, and he appointed committees on entertainments, program, etc. After a little discussion we decided to read Ivanhoe at the meetings. We meet every fortnight at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leavens, and so far it has been a very successful undertaking.

At the first meeting, Miss Steele read a story written by Kate Douglas Wiggin, which was very interesting.

At the next meeting Miss Johns gave a sketch of Scott's life and Miss Steele read two chapters of Ivanhoe. During the remainder of the evening we amused ourselves by playing various games.

When we next assembled we were first entertained by several songs and then Miss O'Hair read one chapter of Ivanhoe and Miss Steele another. After playing several games and being amused by a barnyard medley, which was very successful, owing to Mr. Sutton's wonderful powers of imitation, we adjourned.

We were next the guests of Miss Hager. The program commenced by the High School singing the "Whistling Song."

Since the evening with Miss Hager we have been entertained twice by Mr. and Mrs. Leavens. At the last meeting we had the usual reading, and were then amused by seeing one of the teachers, a graduate, and a Senior "ride a broom-stick." After "gossiping" to the best of our ability we bid our host and hostess a good-night.

Among Our Exchanges.

An esteemed contemporary mentions it as an evidence of marvelous progress that the small cities are nearly all now borrowing money to put up waterworks and electric light plants. Is going into debt an evidence of progress in civilization?--Monticello Times.

There was one thing Col. Ingersoll with all the marvels of his word paintings did not say. The Bible and christianianity have been tremendous factors for civilization. No keenness of satire or skill in ridicule can obscure the truth.—The Duluth News Tribune.

Bob Ingersoll says that "populism is insanity." The last time he was in Minneapolis he said that "if the country went republican on Saturday good times would return on Monday." Some people now think Ingersollism is insanity. This idea has been intensified by Ingersoll's recent indorsement of suicide.—The Representative.

A great amount of credit is due Professor Dewey for the interest taken in school work this year. His suggestions and advice have been of such a nature as cannot help being a great help to our school system. There should be more interest taken by the student body than has been shown heretofore, as no undertaking can be carried through by the enthusiasm of the few out of the many.--High School Chronicle.

It is estimated that the world's crop of potatoes for 1894 was grown on 25,368,823 acres, divided as follows: Germany, 7,527,000; France, 3,935,000; Russia, 3,716,000; United States, 2,914,000; Austria, 2,716,000; United Kingdom, 1,201,194; Hungary, 1,130,000; Belgium, 510,000; Canada, 477,629; Italy, 450,000; Sweden, 387,000; Holland; 180,000; Denmark, 139,000, and Norway, 89,000 acres. The largest yield per acre was 250 bushels in Norway and 62 bushels in Italy, the yield in the United States being 62 bushels.—Farm Journal.

The present Senatorial contest has unquestionably converted many Minnesotians who needed converting upon that point, in favor of the election of United States Senators by the people. The exhibition of human selfishness and greed presented in the spectacle of men who have just been elected to offices of high honor and emolument grabbing for still higher office before they have served out the terms for which they sought the suffrages of the people is not an edifying one. The question arises if a man is under no obligations to the voters whose support he has asked? When he offers himself as a candidate for an office does he not in effect agree to serve in that office if the voters comply with his request? Are not our standards of political honor too low? It is unpleasant to be obliged to compare men with the animal whose name is the synonym for greediness, but when that animal places both feet in the trough to prevent too many of his companions from sharing his repast, he does not furnish a more animated picture of selfishness than does the man who has one good office in hand reaching out for another which is in prospect.--Evening Tribune.

THUMPS.

BY OUR BOY POET.

It takes some thumps to make a man;
When everything is noted,
Were round and sugar coated.

It takes to make a Lincoln, boys,
A youth of rough and tumble;
So if you have to stand some knocks,
Don't think it hard and grumble.

But place your standard high, boys,
And try to climb above it;
And then you will not hate your work.
You'll find instead you'll love it.

Push on and never fear, boys,
Don't worry 'bout what's coming.
For if you strive to do your best.
You're getting on a humming.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the nobler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to gratify the literary wants of a whole family.

A CONQUEROR.

Noble is he whose moral strength
Beats down the walls of wrong,
Whose honest manhood uplifts man,
Whose life is like a song.
The brave and steadfast conqueror
Of appetite and sin,
He flings hope's stately portals wide,
And bids the lost come in.

ROSE HARTWICK THORPE.

—From Demorest's Magazine for February.

IT will soon be Senator Nelson and Governor Clough.

THE country must now be contented They have won the race for United States Senator.

SOME of the republicans are wondering why the democrats preferred to support Knute Nelson for U. S. Senator. Didn,t he support the Mills bill?

THE Evening Tribune depricates the means for electing our new U. S. Senator and threatens to continue to castigate him if he dares to vary from its ideal of a leader of the G. O. P.

SAGE DONNELLY must now be supremely happy, having retired from an active political life; and had the people retire from the arena of public affairs, his old enemy, Senator Washburn.

THE late election of U. S. Senator has satisfied those in doubt as to the advisability of removing this duty from the Legislature. With correct primary election laws the people could suit themselves more easily and at the same time get a legislature for work and not for trading off U. S. Senators.

FRANK STACY, the Minneapolis reformer, had in his last Spectator, some illustrations not calculated to elevate the mind of the modest country youth. They may be above criticism for his city readers, or he may give us the moral lecture on the impropriety of publishing such things, in his next number.

THE Toledo Blade has a cnt of a new dice containing a coil of wire and is made to turn up five aces if necessary by applying an electric current through the counter by a small machine placed under the counter for the purpose. The machine is said to be manufactured and for sale by Minneapolis firm. Don't get roped in and lose all your money on such an invention or you will prove yourself simpler than the machine.

AN extra session of Congress seems now to be a sure thing. This Congress don't appear to be entirely compatible but precipitates a dreadful sediment upon every question they come to. Consequently as the republicans have boasted so much; as old "Bob" Ingersol told the editorial association "If the republicans were to come into power tonight there would be good times tomorrow morning." Let them try it and see what they can do for the country.

THE Farm Journal of Philadelphia is the leading monthly farm paper of the United States. It is boiled down, and hits the nail on the head every time. It has over 200,000 subscribers scattered from Maine to Washington and from Michigan to Texas. It is adapted to farmers' needs in all parts of the United States, and is devoted to stock raising, the orchard, the dairy, the garden, poultry, the household, the boys and girls, etc., etc. Its breezy, crisp pages contain as much information in the course of one year as many of the high priced weeklies; while its earnest, manly tone and bright common sense way of treating farm matters leave a good and lasting taste in one's mouth. The subscription price is 50 cents a year.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

While in Congress Hon. Knute Nelson satisfied a great many of his constituents by openly and honestly supporting the Mills bill, which he felt was a move in the right direction.

In a speech in the U. S. Senate Senator Davis advocated placing binding twine on the free list, in the interest of his constituents; but was voted down by his colleagues, who were bound not to yield up the "principle" of protection.

Harry Hayward's Trial.

On Monday, in Minneapolis, before Judge Seagrave Smith, was begun what will probably be one of the most hotly contested trials ever held in the state. Harry Hayward, a young man; a graduate of the State University; who has been quite a society man; and has a wealthy father to back him, is on trial for murder; charged with instigating the death of Miss Catherine Ging, a Minneapolis dressmaker, for the purpose of obtaining $10,000. insurance on her life, the policies for which he held. Hayward is said to appear the coolest man in the court room. He is defended by three attorneys, "Bill" Erwin, John Day Smith and F. A. Sweetzer, who receive large fees for their services and are expected to do their best to save the neck of their client from what looks like a sure case for hanging.

Frank M. Nye and Assistant A. H. Hall will prosecute.

A large crowd of people flocked to the court room. Many women and children were in the audience, and an intense interest in all that goes on seems to permeate everybody.

A. P. Loomis, L. R. Lawson and J. B. Phelps were appointed by Judge Smith to pass upon jurors.

Out of a large number of jurors examined but two were chosen on Monday.

Deer Hunting in Wyoming.

Thinking it might be of interest to the readers of the GAZETTE to hear how we hunt deer here in Wyoming, I give you a bit of my experience.

When the first light snow came last fall my brother and I began to examine our guns, etc., preparatory to a day's hunt. I had a Winchester and he a double barreled shot gun. As he was the best shot, I let him take the rifle and I took the shot gun and a number of shells loaded with buck shot.

We started about daylight one morning after a light snow and intended to hunt a canon about a half mile from the house. He was to go to the head of the canon and I was to "drive" it, and then if I did not get a shot he would probably get one as the deer ran out. I waited a while at the mouth of the canon to give him time to get into position and then started up the canon.

After going about a quarter of a mile I came to a place where several deer had been feeding in the night. I took the trail and after going about a mile and a half I came upon the deer. They were out on an open hillside and saw me before I saw them, as I could not see very well for the bushes. When I did see them they were about seventy-five yards off and all standing in a bunch.

I fired both barrels at them and wounded a couple of fawns, (although I did not know it then). In all there were six in the bunch. They, of course, ran off when I took the trail again.

Presently I found the trail of a wounded deer which left the others and went in an entirely different direction I followed him and presently saw him. I crept up as close as possible and fired at him again. He ran off again and I did not think I had hit him. However I kept on his trail and every few minutes would get a shot at him. I kept on shooting at him until I had used up all my shells except one. Then I lost his trail as he went down to the river and ran on the ice for a ways. At last I found where he had left the ice on the same side he started from and took his trail again. Presently I started him again and he ran across the river again. When half way across he broke through the ice and fell flat on his back with "every leg up". I brought my gun around to shoot him but it caught on the brush and went off in the air. Imagine how I felt; my deer lying on his back in the water, not ten yards from me and my last shell gone!

I shouldered my gun and went home and when my brother came in with the rifle he went out and found my deer hid in the brush almost dead. On killing and examining him he found nine buckshot in him. So I am ready to declare and take oath that hunting deer in this country with a shot gun is not what it is cracked up to be.

"From One End To another, the North-Western Limited is ventilated and lighted with gas. This train is nothing less than a continuous parlor, elegant enough in all its appointments but none too elegant for the good people of North Dakota. ## WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 18, 1895.

While there is life in the Fifty-third Congress democrats will not cease to hope for legislation in the line of currency reform. But, candor compels the confession that there is nothing tangible in sight in either House or Senate at this writing upon which to build hope. The situation is similar to a serious case of sickness in one's family. No matter how serious the doctor may look nor how low the patient may appear to be, we hope for a change for the better, and sometimes our hopes are realized, and sometimes, alas! they are not. Only time can tell how it will end with currency reform.

Senator Vest, when taunted by republican Senators because of the failure of the democrats to agree upon a financial bill voiced the opinion of many democrats when he said: "I have no authority to speak for the President but I most earnestly hope that if some definite action is not taken by this Congress, the President will call an extra session as soon as the gavel falls at the close of this session." The republicans make a pretense of being indifferent about an extra session, but in reality it is the thing they most dread; they know the differences which exist in their own party on the financial question and wish to put off the time for action as long as possible.

Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, gave out a statement this week which should put an end to all the absurd talk about enmity between himself and Secretary Carlisle. He said: "My relations with the Secretary of the Treasury, both personal and official, are of the most cordial kind. Instead of there being any purpose of mine to declare war against Mr. Carlisle or the administration, the contrary is true. My views of the silver question are well understood, but there has never been any idea on my part of carrying those views to the extreme of making war upon Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Carlisle, or any one else. Much less would I be willing to be put in that attitude with respect to Secretary Carlisle. Our relations are pleasant and cordial, and will remain so. So far as I am concerned, I am ready and willing to do anything I can, honorably and consistently to uphold the Treasury and the administration. Any statement attributing other motives to me, or placing a different light upon the situation is absolutely untrue and unauthorized by me. My personal attachment to Secretary Carlisle should have been sufficient to have discounted all these silly rumors."

Senator Gorman gave some interesting figures in that portion of his speech which referred to Senator Hill's plea for a change of the Senate rules. Senator Gorman said no change in the rules was needed, and to prove that the Senate passes more bills than the House which has rules which shut off debate, he cited the number of bills passed by each of the following Congresses: Forty-ninth, House 1,820, Senate 1,997; Fiftieth, House 2,284, Senate 2,818; Fifty-second, House 882, Senate 1,242; Fifty-third up to the beginning of the present session, House 624, Senate 724. These figures are interesting, and will doubtless be surprising to many.

During a little controversy between Senator Allen, of Nebraska, and Senator George, of Mississippi, the latter gentleman said he had long believed in one plank of the populist platform—that for the election of Senators by direct vote of the people; whereupon Mr. Allen shouted triumphantly: "There is another accession to the populist party." "No," retorted Mr. George amidst the laughter of the Senate and the people in the galleries; "it is an accession of the populist party to me."

As was expected, the House Ways and Means committee has made a favorable report on Chairman Wilson's bill for the repeal of the differential duty imposed on sugar imported from countries which pay an export bounty. There will probably be no difficulty in getting the bill through the House, but the prospect in the Senate is not very hopeful, although everybody admits that it ought to be repealed.

The House committee on the Judiciary has decided by a vote of 7 to 6 that Judge Ricks, of Ohio, ought to be impeached, and will report a resolution providing therefor to the House, but there is not much probability that anything will come of it, owing to the lack of time for the trial by the Senate at this session. Representative Bailey, of Texas, who was chairman of the subcommittee that went to Ohio to investigate the charges against Judge Ricks, says he thinks the matter can be disposed of at this session, but that if it isn't he intends to bring it up again in the next Congress. He fully believes that Ricks deserves impeachment and proposes to do all he knows how to see that he gets it, if not in this Congress, then in the next.

This Is An age of constant improvement, the goal of today often being the starting point of tomorrow. In improved facilities for comfortable traveling there has been most marked advancement. We have passed through various stages of archaic and practical improvement until today the train service offered by the Northwestern Line between the Twin Cities and Chicago cannot be improved upon in comfort and luxury.—The Medical Argus, Minneapolis.

Woman's Column.

EDITED BY MRS. E. A. STACY.

In the January number of the Ladies Home Journal, Mr. Bok, the editor, answers several young men who wrote him about abstaining from wine at public dinners and receptions. One of these asked "Is not a young man placed at a disadvantage when he refuses wine at a public dinner?" Mr. Bok answers, "I can only speak from experience. I have attended a great many public dinners. I have never touched a drop of wine upon these occasions, and yet I have never been made to feel that I was placed at a disadvantage. Indeed, I am under the impression that a young man who refuses wine is always at a distinct advantage. A strong adherance to any good principle is always a recommendation of a young man's character in the eyes of his elders. Another asks, "Can you honestly say to me that total abstinence from liquors is not a barrier to social success?" Mr. Bok replies, "I can, and with all my heart. I can honestly say that a young man's best and highest social success is assured just in proportion as he abstains from wine or liquors. An indulgence in intoxicants of any sort has never helped a man to any social position worth the having; on the contrary it has kept many from attaining a position to which by birth and good breeding they are entitled. No young man will ever find that the principle of total abstinence from liquor is a barrier to any success, social, commercial or otherwise. On the other hand, it is the one principle in his life which will in the long run, help him more than any other."

These are brave words and as true as they are brave. Too many in such positions of influence as that occupied by Mr. Bok refuse to give good counsel to young men on so important a subject. They prefer, through motives of policy, to remain silent, fearing inquiry into their profession should they speak out as they felt. There is great need for such counsel, for many of our young men are overcome every year by the social drinking customs and led downward to the drunkards doom, through a belief that to refuse the glass brings odium upon them and ostracises them from good society. Let the Ladies' Journal and all other papers that enter thousands of our homes, use their utmost power to influence multitudes of young men and others in the direction of total abstinence and the danger that lurks in the social glass.

"No man becomes a drunkard from choice. He first acquires the appetite for intoxicants, then becomes a slave to his appetite, and drunkenness comes, not of choice, but of necessity. Men imagine that so long as they do not positively choose evil, they are safe. To be safe we must be positively good, and with strength of purpose and heart choose the good and reject the evil." —Lerer.

As you pass along the streets of a great city you often see buildings in process of erection and a sign over the entrance, "Keep out! Danger." If such a sign could be placed over the door of each grimmill there would be more real good accomplished. Of course there is some danger of injury to those who enter an unfinished building while the workmen are busy above and around you. But where one man is killed or hurt in Chicago in such a way there are hundreds killed or ruined for time and eternity by the licensed saloons.

Statistics of the Eau Claire Rescue Home managed by the Wisconsin W. C. T. U. show that 95 per cent. of the inmates leave the home reformed. During the last two years seventy three inmates have been cared for, fifty of whom were of the unfortunate class, fifteen were wayward girls, some of them under 15 years of age. In these two years fifty babies were born in the institution, fifteen of whom have died. There are now in the home thirty one adults and fourteen children It has been decided to make it one condition of entrance into the home that each union in the state that sends an inmate shall hold itself in readiness to find a good home for some other who has served her year at the institution.

Men talk of vested interests—yes, vested interests in Men's ruinous temptations, vested interests in the destruction of flesh and blood and souls and bodies. They use the proud name of liberty and declare that she demands the liberty of every human being to destroy himself and to be a curse to his neighbor and his land, deriding all legislation which aims at the restriction of the evil weakness.—Archdeacon F. W. Farmer.

Because a man is in a business that people patronize or tolerate, it does not follow that the man ought to be in that business. In a temperance meeting in a New England village a plain-spoken man said earnestly: "They say it takes all sorts of men to make a world, but it isn't so. There are all sorts of men in the world, but it doesn't take them all to make a world. The world would be better off without a good many of 'em, especially the rumsellers."—International Good Templar.

A determined temperance organization means agitation, and agitation is education, and education is even now bearing the fruits everywhere. Those fruits we rightly claim as part of our great harvest. The abolition party vote never reached three hundred thousand, but the harvest was the enlightenment of reason, the awakening of the public conscience, the organization of the republication party, the election of Abraham Lincoln to the presidency of the United States, and the emancipation and enfranchisement of 4,000,000 slaves.—I. K. Funk, D. D.

CORRESPONENCE

BUFFALO NEWS.

Mr. F. L. Shummin was a city visitor on Thursday of last week.

Mr. E. E. Williams, our genial blacksmite, did business in the city on Saturdry returning by the way of Montrose.

Mr. John Noel has been nursing a sore shoulder, this week, the result of a sudden fall.

Mrs. Hannah Ward, living in the country north of St. Cloud, is visiting with her brother, Mr. Frank Whan, and family for a week or two.

Mrs. Covart, of North Dakota, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Leeson, came down on Thursday last and expects to spend two or three weeks with her parents and other friends in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whan are rejoicing over a little son, who arrived on Saturday last.

Mrs. Wendling, of Eden Valley, came down on the Sunday evening's train and visited a day or two with her daughter, Mabel, and other relatives.

Married: Mr. Henry Varner, Jr., to Miss Minnie Moos, on Wednesday at the residence of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Varner, in Buffalo. We wish the new couple a long, prosperous and happy life.

Rev. Mr. Isaacson, of the Swedish Mission church, assisted by Rev. John Johnson, of Duluth, and two or three other ministers conducted a mission service in their church from Saturday until Monday evening.

On account of the revival meetings in progress at the M. E. church, the temperance programme, which was to have been given last Sunday evening, was postponed one week and will take place on next Sunday evening, the 27th. We hope every body will attend this as an excellent programme has been arranged for.

Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Shimmin are thinking strongly of spending the rest of the winter in California.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Yesterday we were in receipt of quite a blizzard coming under good headway from the northwest and going in the direction of the capital city (St. Paul) no doubt to be present with the Legislature on voting for Senator. In the afternoon the storm increased and the snow drifted considerably.

No doubt W. D. Washburn put on his left shoe first this morning for good luck, as the Legislature votes today at high noon for U. S. Senator and if they do not elect, must vote once every day until they have elected a Senator.

The old lady DeCamp, of Maple Plain died on last Monday morning

Quite a good many of our townspeople are on the sick list.

C. Wason has sold his 40 acre farm in the south part of town. Consideration, $1,350.

It ir reported someone caught a wolf in our town one day last week.

Rev. Copp has closed his revival meetings at Armstrong.

The Lewis Cemetery Association has a meeting at the Town Hall next Saturday afternoon at 2 P. M.

Well, Mr. Editor, there is not much news any more. Everybody is so poor they can't even raise a row. The only persons that can get any boodle now are the members of the Legislature.

L. Conklin and his brother from Mich. attended church at Armstrong on Sunday.

NEWFOUNDLAND seems to be inclined to regard with favor annexation to the United States. They all want to be gathered under the eagle's wings. It's a mighty comfortable place.

EASTERN people seem to believe in anti-toxine for the cure of diphtheria. New York has appropriated $30,000, Pittsburgh $18,500 and Newark $5,000 for the manufacture of the remedy.

FRANCE is not ashamed of her emigrants, it seems, for she has conceded to the United States officials at her ports the right to examine the sanitary conditions of all intending emigrants.

THE American Philological association has voted that three years' preparation in Greek instead of two should be made the requirement for entrance to college. But it will probably not be heeded, for colleges have yielded to the spirit of the times and have become "fact-factories."

THE Sault Ste. Marie canal is one of the great waterways of the world. According to the official figures submitted by Secretary of War Lamont the total tonnage passing through it in 1894 was valued at $143,000,000. As it is closed by ice on an average of at least five months in a year, its traffic compares favorably with that of the Suez canal.

IN perforating postage stamps a die-plate is placed before the needles of a machine carrying 300 needles. As about 180,000,000 holes are punched per day, the wear on the die-plate is excessive; brass plates wear out in a day, and even steel plates are rapidly destroyed. The use of aluminum bronze has caused the die-plates to last for months without renewal.

IN London Oscar Wilde's new play "A Model Husband," has gone to pieces. The critics say it was much worse than either of the plays by him which have been successful from a "talky-talky" standpoint. At the same time a play by Henry James scored a failure even more brilliant. Writing plays seems to be as precarious a way of making a living as praying for rain.

THE submarine indicator used in searching for wrecks on the sea bottom has a metallic sinker which is trailed along near the bottom. When it approaches a mass of metal, such as that of the Russian monitor recently lost in the Gulf of Finland, the indicator on the searching ship is electrically disarranged and a bell is rung. The Hughes induction balance suggested the plan of the apparatus.

NORTH CAROLINA'S strange people of the swamps have counterparts in the mysterious race of so-called Indians in southern Delaware. They are a swarthy people, with some strong traits of the redmen, though there are contradictory stories as to their origin. They are fully civilized, however, and follow the ordinary occupations of the region to which they are native, though they mingle little with the whites and refuse to associate with negroes.

IN certain Boston and Philadelphia schools are served what are called authorized hot lunches. These cost from five to ten cents. In Boston the five-cent luncheon may include hot milk and a bun, chocolate and chowder or soup. The theory on which these are authorized is that much of the ill health of children results from non-nutritious food, bought during the school day. The movement is very popular and seems to be spreading in all of the large cities.

RECENTLY a New York hat factory found it necessary to decrease its force. Nine bachelors were chosen as the first victims and the circumstances of their discharge were published in the press reports. As a result of this the young men have been flooded with offers of marriage from women who believe that their sex has the right to propose. Most of the offers come from the free and easy west. Among the number are a few widows with property who tenderly condescend to take in the discharged employes.

IN Chicago last year twelve divorced couples took out new licenses and were remarried. This is one of the hopeful signs of the times. In the same city the hard times seems to have no effect upon the matrimonial market, the record of licenses taken out being fully up to that of 1893, which was a favorable year on account of the world's fair. The Chicago record of 15,500 licenses shows June to have been the banner month, although October had held the supremacy for twelve years previous. The tendency of the younger couples is toward June and the older couples toward October.

IT is not clear that letter carriers were regularly employed before 1753, when tradition tells us that Benjamin Franklin, the new postmaster general, employed them in Philadelphia. The earliest evidence is of 1762, when the Philadelphia postmaster advertised that his "boy" had run away, and that patrons must call for their letters at the post office. The Postal Journal of Hugh Finlay, a storehouse of sound information, tells us that Boston had no letter carrier in 1773. Of New York, he says that "soon after the arrival of a mail the letters are quickly delivered by a runner," viz., letter carrier.

FREDERIC VILLERS, the war artist, who has left the frozen fields of Corea and Manchooria for a winter tour of lectures in the United States, says he thinks the war has but begun, and that they feel in the east when war is resumed in the spring that Russia will have a hand in the muss. In the controversy between the correspondents of the New York World and New York Herald over the barbarity practiced by the Japanese at Port Arthur, Villers sides with Creelman, of the World, denouncing the latter's rival in terms that in earlier years would have precipitated a duel in about three minutes.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 16. — By an almost unanimous vote the senate passed the urgent deficiency bill, including the income-tax provisions. During the debate in the house on the Indian appropriation bill Messrs. Walker, Warner and Reed engaged in a discussion of the currency question. The sundry civil appropriation bill $38,540,021) was reported.

THURSDAY, Jan. 17.—In the senate Senator Sherman presented an emergency currency bill and Senator Pugh offered a measure in the same line. The pension bill, appropriating $141,000,000, was passed with two amendments, one making $6 the lowest rate for pension disability and another repealing the present law cutting off the pensions of non-residents. The army bill, appropriating $23,350,000, was discussed. In the house the senate amendments to the urgent deficiency bill were disagreed to and the bill was sent to conference. A bill devised by Attorney General Olney was introduced by Mr. McGann for arbitrating labor troubles. It makes the interstate commerce commission and the commissioner of labor the permanent body to hear disputes, one member of the deciding body to be named by each side.

FRIDAY, Jan. 18.—The senate passed the army appropriation bill, carrying $23,000,000, and the bill which in effect advances Gen. Schofield, in command of the army, to the rank of lieutenant general. Aside from this the day was given to debate on the Nicaraguan canal bill. In the house the Indian appropriation bill occupied the time during the day. At the evening session private pension bills were considered and hot speeches were made because two bills were blocked by the obstruction of Mr. Jones, of Virginia.

SATURDAY, Jan. 19.—In the senate the trouble in Hawaii was discussed and Senator Frye (Me.) offered a resolution bristling with indignation at the attitude of the United States government in such an emergency. This precipitated an animated debate, during which Senator Frye arraigned the executive branch of the government. Senator George defended the administration. In the house the senate amendments to the pension bill were not agreed to and the bill was sent to the conference. A resolution was introduced that a vessel of the United States navy should be sent to and stationed at the harbor of Honolulu for the protection of American interests. Mr. Boutelle in a speech said the uprising in Honolulu was caused by the policy of the administration at Washington.

MONDAY, Jan. 21. — Senator Frye's Hawaiian resolution was again debated in the senate Mr. Gray defending the administration. The fortifications appropriation bill was passed and the conference report on the deficiency bill was agreed to. In the house a bill was introduced authorizing the issue of 3 per cent. bonds and repealing the legal tender act of 1878. A bill appropriating $4,000,000 for a new post office building in Chicago was passed. Mr. Breckinridge offered a resolution favoring the annexation of Hawaii. A favorable report was ordered on the bill passed by the senate to provide for gold and silver coinage at the branch mint at Denver, Col.

At the caucus Washburn had on the last ballot 56 votes and Nelson 60. On the ballot Washburn had 54 votes and Nelson 62. Comstock had 14 votes last Friday night and 13 on formal ballot. McCleary had 8 votes. The Democrats and Populists voted, as per agreement, for McHale and Donnelly.

THE TROLLEY-STRIKE.

Brooklyn Rioters Keep New York's Militia Busy.

Troops Use Both Their Bayonets and Bullets—Police and Nearly 8,000 Soldiers Unable to Suppress Lawless Acts.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The assiduous attempts of Mayor Schieren to have the troubles on the trolley lines in Brooklyn adjusted have all ended in failure. Violence has been resorted to by some of the more virulent of the strikers, and militiamen and the police have their hands full.

Three men were bayoneted at the junction of Broadway, Alabama and Fulton avenues in the Twenty-sixth ward Saturday night by members of the Thirteenth regiment, on guard there. One of the injured is in a serious condition in St. Mary's hospital. The other two were not badly wounded. They were taken away by friends. Several other men were slightly injured by the troops. Many militiamen were hurt by flying missiles and one is reported as having had his skull fractured.

More Violence.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 23.—Violence and bloodshed marked the eighth day of the electric street railway operatives' strike. Three militiamen are in hospitals with broken heads, two having suffered at the hands of riotous men or women, while the other was the victim of his own carelessness, having fallen from a roof. A score or more of policemen are suffering from bullet wounds or contusions of the head and body, disabling them for the time being.

To what extent the strikers have suffered cannot be conjectured. If they escaped punishment it was not the fault of the militiamen, who, in accordance with orders, fired as directly at their assailants as a dense fog, which completely hid objects at 30 yards' distance, would permit. The strike is not ended and order is not restored.

Troops Cannot Cope with the Strikers.

Seven thousand national guardsmen and 1,500 or 1,600 policemen have not been strong enough to make the resumption of the street-railway traffic in Brooklyn practicable. In fact, the gain over last Saturday is scarcely perceptible. The calling out of the First brigade, composed of New York city regiments, has seemed rather to add to the tension than to bring a solution of the difficulties. The task of restoring peace and order along nearly 200 miles of street car line is a vast one. The new levy numbered not far from 4,000 men. They were moved across the great bridge early in the day. The various companies went by elevated trains whenever it was possible to the points to which they had been ordered. Generally speaking, the greetings they met with on the streets were far from friendly. Boys guyed and men jeered them as they passed through the tions inhabited by laboring people.

Increased Their Anger.

The refusal of the companies to promise a reinstatement of strikers when the latter had indicated a willingness to call the fight off upon that one condition has had the effect of making many of them hitherto peaceably disposed desperate and ready to participate in acts of violence directed against the property of the corporations.

After Their Charters.

The common council took a hand in the trouble Monday afternoon. A petition was presented, signed by sixty property owners, charging the Brooklyn Heights Railroad company, the Atlantic avenue system and the Brooklyn, Queens County & Suburban company with a failure to operate their lines for seven days, and reciting the fact of the strike, the employment of a large portion of the police force in the interest of the companies, leaving parts of the city without adequate protection, the employment of the militia and the heavy expense the city must bear therefor, and claiming that the existing issue between the companies and their employes does not absolve the companies from their obligations to the public. The petitioners pray that the council take such measures as shall immediately compel said companies to operate the usual number of cars on all the lines, or else request the attorney general to commence proceedings for the annulment of their charters. A resolution approving the petition and instructing the city clerk to transmit a copy of the same to the attorney general of the state, with a request from the board that immediate action be therefor taken, was adopted.

HAWAIIAN REBELS.

They Have Made an Unsuccessful Attempt to Capture Honolulu.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—The steamer Alameda arrived from Auckland and Sydney via Honolulu Friday afternoon and brings news of revolution and bloodshed at Honolulu. Charles L. Carter, who was one of the annexation commissioners, was killed and other government supporters were wounded. There has been much fighting and at least twelve natives have been killed. Nearly 200 revolutionists are under arrest. Robert Wilcox is the leader of the rebels. The fighting was still in progress when the Alameda left Honolulu on January 11, but the government forces had practically overcome the revolutionists.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—The president upon hearing of the internal troubles of the Hawaiian islands, ordered the United States cruiser Philadelphia to go at once to Honolulu. President Cleveland states that his motive for sending the vessel is that there is a possibility that disturbances may be renewed which might result in danger to the persons or property of American citizens entitled to the protection of the United States.

CAUGHT THE WRONG MAN.

A Merchant Fixes a Burglar Trap Which Kills His Nephew.

YANKTON, S. D., Jan. 22.—H. C. Taylor, a storekeeper in Meckling, a small town some miles east of this city, placed shotgun at the front door of his place of business as a protection against burglars. He attached strings to the triggers and fastened the other end to the door latch so that both barrels of the gun would be discharged with the slightest movement of the latch. Frank Elliott, nephew to Taylor, went to the store door and lifted the latch. The gun was discharged and Elliott received the contents of both barrels in his abdomen. He lived twelve hours.

THE NEW FRENCH PRESIDENT.

M. Francois Felix Faure Chosen, Vice Casimir-Perier Resigned — The Republic's Crisis.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 19.—M. Francois Felix Faure was chosen president of France by the national assembly on the second ballot.

| | |
|---|---|
| M. Felix Faure | 435 |
| M. Henri Brisson | 363 |

Socialist deputies made violent protests when the result was announced.

There were only three candidates for the presidency whose chances of election were seriously discussed, namely: M. Waldeck-Rousseau, M. Henri Brisson and M. Felix Faure.

There was no choice on the first ballot for president taken in the national assembly, and before the second ballot was ordered M. Waldeck-Rousseau withdrew in favor of M. Felix Faure.

There have been five presidents of the third French republic: M. Thiers, elected August 13, 1871; resigned May 24, 1873; died September 3, 1877. Marshal MacMahon, elected May 24, 1873; resigned January 30, 1879; died October 17, 1893. Jules Grevy, elected January 30, 1879; reelected December 28, 1885; resigned December 2, 1887; died September 9, 1890. M. Carnot, elected December 3, 1887; assassinated at Lyons June 24, 1894. M. Casimir-Perier, elected June 27, 1894; resigned Junuary 15, 1895.

[M. Francois Felix Faure, member of the chamber of deputies for Seine-Inferieurs, who has been elected president of the republic of France, to succeed M. Casimir-Perier, was born in Paris January 30, 1841. He was under secretary of state for the colonies in the ministries of Gambetta, Ferry, Brisson and Tirard, and was one of the vice presidents of the chamber of deputies preceding the present one. He has been a republican deputy for about fourteen years and has served on several of the most important committees of the chamber. M. Faure has made a legislative specialty of business questions, particularly those concerning the French merchant marine and foreign commerce. He served in the Franco-Prussian war as chief of a battalion of the Garde Mobile, and was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor on May 31, 1871.]

BIG STEAMER SINKS.

Passengers and Crew Cast Into the Icy Ohio—Five Missing.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 22.—The Cincinnati & New Orleans packet steamer State of Missouri was sunk in the Ohio river just below Alton, Ind., Saturday evening at 5:10 o'clock and it is believed at least ten lives were lost. The vessel struck a sharp rock and ripped the starboard side open from one end to the other. In less than five minutes she was a complete wreck.

The crew and passengers, nearly 100 in all, were paralyzed at the shock, and before anything could be done the vessel was almost completely under water. The upper deck broke away and floated off. Nearly everybody jumped into the river and made for shore, some hundred yards away.

The State of Missouri left Cincinnati for New Orleans Friday afternoon. She had on board twenty passengers and a crew of between seventy-five and eighty. Many of the crew were not lucky enough to get to the upper deck, and they went down with the boat.

Mr. McCabe says the wreck was something awful. The officers kept as cool as possible under the circumstances, but there was little time to think and none in which to act.

At the present time the missing, as known to survivors, numbered five, one of whom was white, all the others being colored men. All the passengers were saved, as also were all the officers.

FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR.

The Kansas Republican Nomination Goes to Lucien Baker.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 23.—After one of the most bitter fights ever waged for the United States senate in Kansas, Lucien Baker, state senator for Leavenworth county, Monday night received the caucus nomination on the tenth ballot. Baker was the choice of the anti-Burton caucus, but several refused to vote for him, and for three hours these half-dozen men who scattered their votes for J. W. Ady, Gov. Morrill, John G. Ingalls, A. W. Smith and Congressman Broderick, held the balance of power and prevented a nomination. Fifty-four votes were necessary to a choice. On the first ballot Baker received 51 and Burton 49 votes. The vote for Baker and Burton did not materially change until the tenth ballot when it stood Baker, 56; Burton, 46; Ady, 3, and Ingalls, 1. A great demonstration followed the nomination and Baker and Burton addressed the caucus. Baker was not mentioned in connection with the senatorship until Monday afternoon, when the anti-Burton forces concentrated upon him.

TO ANNEX HAWAII.

Senator Lodge Introduces an Important Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Senator Lodge on Monday morning offered the following resolution and asked for its immediate consideration:

Resolved, That the senate cordially approves the dispatching of a ship of war to the Sandwich islands on Saturday last and is of opinion that an American ship of war should be, for the present, kept at Honolulu.

Resolved, That prompt measures should be taken to construct, or promote the construction of, a submarine cable from San Francisco to Honolulu and that no part of the rights and privileges secured to the United States by Article 4 of the existing treaty between the United States and the Hawaiian government should be abandoned or waived in order to enable any other government to secure a foothold or lease upon any part of the Hawaiian islands.

Resolved, That in the judgment of the senate immediate steps should be taken to secure possession of the Sandwich islands by their annexation to the United States.

Senator Blackburn (dem., Ky.) and Senator Vest (dem., Mo.) objected simultaneously and the resolution went over until Tuesday.

A WAYWARD SON.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Benjamin F. Hageman, son of the retired millionaire Hageman, of 1329 Marshall street, Philadelphia, was arrested here Monday night on a charge of forgery. Hageman is charged with buying a diamond ring worth $150 with a bogus check and securing money by the same means. This is the third time the millionaire's son has been in the clutches of the Chicago police. The last time he was arrested it was for stealing diamonds and money to the value of $800. This time, as on a prior occasion, the father sent some one from Philadelphia to get him out of the scrape. He says he does not hope for aid this time. He is very despondent and tried to shoot himself when caught in the room of a disreputable woman on the south side.

OLNEY'S PLAN.

The Attorney General Offers a Bill Looking to Compulsory Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A labor arbitration plan has been devised by Attorney General Olney and was introduced Thursday by Chairman McGann, of the house committee on labor.

In case of wage controversies the chairman of the interstate commerce commission and the commissioner of labor are to communicate with the parties endeavoring to effect an amicable settlement, and if this mediation fails the controversy may be submitted to a board of arbitration, of which the chairman of the interstate commerce commission shall be chairman, and which shall consist also of one commissioner chosen by the employer and one by the labor organization to which the employes directly interested belong, or if they belong to more than one, by that one which specially represents employes of the same grade and class and engaged in service of the same nature as the employes in the controversy.

Where two or more classes of employes are interested their organizations shall agree upon their representative. Other features are:

1. The parties shall stipulate in writing that pending arbitration the existing status shall not be changed.

2. That the award shall be final, unless set aside for error of law apparent on the record.

3. That the parties shall faithfully execute it, and it may be enforced in equity so far as the powers of a court of equity permit.

4. Employes dissatisfied with the award shall not quit work without three months' notice in writing.

5. The award shall be continued in force for two years, and during that period no new arbitration between the same parties on the same subject shall be had. After filing the award with the clerk of the United States circuit court of the district in which the difficulty occurs thirty days shall be allowed for filing exceptions in matters of law, after which it shall go into effect if no exceptions are taken. If they are taken it goes into force ten days after their decision. If an agreement of arbitration shall be entered into by employes individually instead of by organizations the board shall not be created, unless the chairman is satisfied that they represent their associates.

During that time it would be unlawful for organizations or employes to order, aid or abet a strike or boycott, or to leave their employment without giving thirty days' notice in writing, nor can they be discharged without thirty days' notice except for causes mentioned. Violations of this provision are made a misdemeanor punishable by $1,000 fine or one year's imprisonment.

Membership in incorporated labor organizations, it is provided, shall be terminated by indulgence in lawlessness, violence, destruction of property, intimidation or threats by members during strikes, but they are not to be held individually liable for debts of the organization.

The employes of roads managed by receivers appointed by the federal courts shall have the right to be heard through the officers of their organizations or their representatives in the federal courts on questions affecting the terms of their employment.

Employers who make it a condition of employment that men shall not be members of any labor organization, or discharge or threaten to discharge men for such membership or discriminate against them because of it, or enter into contracts compelling the men to contribute to any fund for charitable, social or beneficial objects, or, after discharging men, conspire to prevent them from obtaining employment, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of from $100 to $1,000.

If disputes threatening to injuriously affect the interests of the people of any section are not submitted to arbitration the attorney general, the bill provides, shall be authorized to apply to the district court for receivers for the railroad to take possession of the property and run it in the interests of the public, and may make the employers and employes, and any persons or organizations aiding or abetting them, parties to the suit.

FOUND HIS BODY.

Corpse of Defaulting Treasurer Scott, of Holt County, Recovered.

O'NEILL, Neb., Jan. 21.—The body of Barrett Scott, the defaulting treasurer of Holt county, and who, while out riding with his family New Year's day, was fired upon by a party of vigilantes and after being wounded was dragged from his carriage, blindfolded and then placed into another vehicle and taken in a northerly direction, was found about 10 o'clock Saturday night in the Niobrara river about 300 feet below the bridge on the Boyd county side, close up to the bank and in about 7 feet of water. He was in his shirt sleeves, but had his watch and chain and other personal effects on just as he wore them in life.

After the finding of the body an inquest was held before Coroner Hoover, of Boyd county, and a jury. A number of witnesses were examined, and a verdict rendered that Scott came to his death at the hands of George Mullihan, Mose Elliot, Mert Roy, James Pinkerman and others whose names have not yet been disclosed.

The crime for which Barrett Scott paid with his life on New Year's day of this year was the embezzlement of $70,000 of the funds of Holt county and the subsequent wrecking of the Holt county bank, practically impoverishing nearly all of the farmers and business men in Holt. The amounts stolen from these people are variously estimated, but aggregate about $160,000.

REMEDIES SUGGESTED.

Senators Pugh and Sherman Each Introduce a Currency Measure.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Senator Pugh (dem., Ala.) introduced a bill Thursday to meet deficiencies in the revenue in the treasury of the United States, by an immediate issue of $100,000,000 of legal tender notes; to regulate the redemption of treasury and coin notes of the United States; to restore silver to coinage; to amend the national banking and currency laws, and for other purposes.

The bill was read and referred to the finance committee. Soon afterwards Senator Sherman (rep., O.) introduced another bill "To provide for a temporary deficiency of revenue." It authorizes the issue from time to time of 3 per cent. bonds to provide for the redemption of United States treasury notes and to pay current expenditures; also to issue 3 per cent. certificates to be sold at public depositories and post offices; and also allowing the national bank circulation to the par value of the bonds deposited therefor. This bill was also read and referred to the finance committee.

HIGH AND MIGHTY WIND.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—A large section of inclosed scaffolding surrounding the top stories of the Fort Dearborn building, a twelve-story structure in course of erection at the corner of Monroe and Clark streets, was blown across the street by a violent gust of wind Monday morning, smashing the plate glass windows of a number of stores, and injuring eight pedestrians, one of them H. H. Erwin, agent for the Bundby automatic time recorder, fatally. Mr. Erwin's skull was fractured and he was also internally injured. He was taken to the county hospital. The injuries of the other seven men are not serious.

A WORD TO PARENTS.

Regarding Treatment of Children During Courtship.

If the parent has been the companion and friend, the comrade and confidante of the child all the way along from infancy to maturity, there will exist between the two a mode of communication which without words will keep up a perfect mutual understanding, so that both will feel just what is proper in every delicate exigency. But unfortunately this ideal equilibrium of sympathy is very rare and the cold, hard facts of life must be anticipated by the parent long precedent to the days of courtship, and set before the child without shrinking or prejudice. And here is where the most difficult part of duty lies.

The nearer we can come to regarding our children with the absolute vision of love the nearer we shall approach the ideal of understanding with regard to their natures, dispositions, tempers, needs. Here is the secret. What one young person would accept as proper and final would but arouse anger and obstinacy in another. In the sacred affair that we call courtship, and too often treat with light indifference or sentimental evasion, there should always be present the profoundest regard for character, and to this every appeal should be made. Lovers and sweethearts are, by what love implies, mature men and women; for marriage is not now-a-days contemplated as possible between stripplings and school girls; and as men and women our sons and daughters must be regarded during courtship. We can not say yes and no to them with a czar's or empress' air of supremacy: our influence must reach them through the fine, pure medium of that love which has, since infancy, been growing between us and them.

If we see with the practiced and practical vision of experience and act upon the unselfish principle of parental affection our children will be very apt to meet us half way in our efforts to direct them, even in their wrestlings with the blind god. Half the battle is fought, nay the victory is already won, if from their birth onward our children have been shown that we never take advantage of them because we are their parents.—Lucy Barnard Cope, in Chautauquan.

$300 FOR A NAME.

This is the sum we hear the Salzer Seed Co. offer for a suitable name for their wonderful new oats. The United States department of agriculture says Salzer's oats is the best of 300 varieties tested. A great many farmers report a test yield of 200 bushels per acre last year, and are sure this can be grown and even more during 1895. Another farmer writes us he cropped 112 bushels of Salzer's Marvel Spring wheat on two and one-half acres. At such yield wheat pays at 30c per bu. One thing we know and that is that Salzer is the largest Farm Seed grower in the world and sells potatoes at $2.50 per barrel. IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 10c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., LaCrosse, Wis., you get free his mammoth catalogue and a package of above $300 PRIZE OATS. [K]

The Nicaragua Canal.

The project of the Nicaragua Canal has been debated in the U. S. Senate very vigorously. One thing should be remembered about that climate, it is death to almost every foreigner who goes there, and laborers especially succumb. It is said that the Panama Railroad cost a life for every tie. What an idea of pains and aches is in this sentence. It is mostly due to carelessness. Every laborer provided with St. Jacobs Oil would be armed against these troubles. Men's muscles there are cramped with rheumatic pain and they ache all over. That's just the condition where this sovereign remedy can do its best work. The fearful malady is very much like the break-bone fever in certain parts of America.

TICK-TOCK LULLABY.

Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock,
And there on the floor lies a little limp sock,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock;
They are glad, I am sure, after going all day,
To rest from the labor and pleasure of play,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock.

How quietly sleep comes—count the clock!
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock,
Comes in at the door with never a knock,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock,
With no one to greet him, welcomest guest!
He enters and giveth his dear ones rest,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock.

Perhaps he is near us while we rock,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock,
And soon will disclose his wonderful stock,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock;
In exchange for thy store of weariness,
His bag of dreams he will leave, I guess,
Tick-tock, tick-tock, tick-tock.

MYSTERY OF POST No 3.

By Chas B Lewis

THE moon was shining brightly, illuminating the sandy plain around the fort as only the moon in Arizona can illuminate. The officers, soldiers and their families were peacefully sleeping. Not a sound was heard except the occasional cry of a coyote.

Three o'clock struck and the sentinel on post No. 1 started the call:

"No. 1, three o'clock, and all's well."

A slight pause and No. 2 responded: "No. 2, three o'clock, and all's well."

Then came a long pause.

The sergeant of the guard stepped out of the guardroom and listened.

"The sentinel on No. 3 must be asleep," he remarked. "Bad business for a sentinel guarding the corral."

Turning to No. 1 he commanded:

"Start the call again."

No. 1 obeyed. No. 2 took it up. But there again it ended. The sergeant turned out a patrol and marched to the corral.

As he approached the sentinel's post in the moonlight he saw the figure of No. 3 stretched out on the ground. The position did not look like that of a sleeping man.

"Double time!" commanded the sergeant.

And the patrol came down the post at a run. As the men came closer to the figure a sight met their eyes that froze the blood in their veins. Lying face down on the sand, his hand still grasping his rifle, was their comrade, stiff and cold in death, an Apache arrow buried deep in his body.

Three sharp cracks of the rifle, the rattle of the long roll of the drum soon brought the startled garrison.

Scouts were instantly sent out and the plain thoroughly scoured, but no Indian signs could be found.

The next day, with muffled drums, the members of the garrison followed the body of their comrade to its last resting place. With uncovered heads, sorrowfully and reverently, they listened while the post chaplain read the burial service. The military escort fired three rounds over the grave, and the bugler played the sweetest of all calls, "Taps—lights out—sleep." Naturally a gloom was thrown over the whole post.

The soldiers gathered in small groups and discussed the perplexed question: "How could it have been done?" The moon had been shining brightly, and there was no cover behind which an Indian could hide.

The searching parties came in after fruitless hunts. Night came. There would be no lack of vigilance on the part of the sentinel on post No. 3. The moon was even brighter than on the preceding night, and the objects on the plain could be seen almost as distinctly as in the daytime.

Each half hour the call of No. 1 was promptly answered by the other sentinels.

Few expected a repetition of the preceding night's attack. Gradually the garrison became silent and one by one the lights went out. Morning came and nothing had happened to disturb the peace of the fort.

Several days passed and the post settled down into its old ways, and the memory of the dreadful event was beginning to fade.

The officer of the day was making the inspection of sentinels after midnight, and was approaching post No. 3, when the moon, which had been hidden behind a cloud, suddenly burst forth, revealing at the very feet of the officer the body of the sentinel as before, completely pierced by an Indian arrow.

The alarm was quickly given, but in spite of the most careful search no trace of the assassin could be found. A horror settled over the post. No one dreaded an enemy they knew and could fight openly, but against such ghostly attacks no one could defend himself.

At officers' call the next morning the affair was earnestly discussed. It was evidently wrong to require a sentinel to walk post in such an exposed and dangerous place, and yet, with the corral where it was, no one could see how it could be avoided.

While discussing the problem an orderly appeared and reported:

"Private Rogers would like to speak to the commanding officer."

The commanding officer went into his private office, and after the interview returned to the room where the officers were assembled.

"Young Rogers has asked permission to take charge of post No. 3 at night until he solves the mystery, and I have granted his request."

The faces of the officers showed plainly the anxiety they felt. Young Rogers was the son of a brother captain in their regiment, who at that time was stationed in an eastern city on recruiting service.

The young man had enlisted six months previously with the object of obtaining an officer's commission, which may be won by a worthy and capable man.

The young fellow had gained the esteem and respect of everyone by his manly qualities and strict obedience to orders. Many of the officers had known him from his childhood. He had been the playmate of their children and a great favorite with all. Later on many tried to persuade him to withdraw his request.

"Take the post if it falls to your lot, but don't volunteer," they pleaded.

It was no use. The young man had a theory, and if he proved it and discovered the assassin he knew that he would get his coveted commission.

He was excused from all duties during the day, and after nightfall assumed charge of the dreaded post No. 3. Three nights passed without any event. The moon, though on the wane, was still bright enough to allow Rogers to see any moving object on the plain.

Seated on the ground, his back against the corral, his rifle on his knees, he was apparently asleep. Apparently only, for his sharp eyes keenly watched every point of the plain. He knew that he had a tricky, shrewd, but at the same time bold, enemy in that wily Apache. He felt sure that the Indian, especially in the second case, had not crept upon his victim unobserved. He must have employed some disguise which had completely deceived the sentinel. What was this disguise?

"That Apache would be more apt to betray himself if he thought me asleep than he would if he saw I was watching him," was his sound argument.

Through the long hours of the night he sat motionless. It was two o'clock when suddenly he caught sight of a moving object on the plain some distance away. Noiselessly he cocked his rifle. He was a dead shot, and woe be to that object when he fired. Nearer and nearer it came while he sat as if asleep.

"Why, it is Corporal!" he suddenly exclaimed.

Corporal was a fine, large Newfoundland dog, a pet of the garrison, which had mysteriously disappeared from the post two weeks before and which everyone supposed to have been stolen.

Rogers' first impulse was to call the dog, when he remembered his resolution—"shoot any moving object that comes within range." He therefore restrained his impulse, and no one would have guessed that the apparently sleeping sentinel was closely watching every movement as the dog approached.

It was a lucky idea of Rogers' to feign sleep, for as the dog came nearer he thought he noticed something peculiar in its appearance, and its actions did not seem quite natural.

"Possibly Corporal may be exhausted from hunger, or it may be the deceptive light of the moon," thought Rogers. The dog was now within range, and he could hesitate no longer.

"It's a matter of life and death," he reflected, "and if I make a mistake everyone, even Corporal himself, will forgive me."

Slowly and imperceptibly he brought his rifle to his shoulder, a short but true aim, a crack and a yell—such as only an Apache who has received his death wound can give—startled the whole garrison.

As if by magic everyone collected on the spot, each as he approached evidently expecting to see a repetition of the tragedies.

The story was soon told. The skin of poor Corporal had been used as a disguise by the Apache, who, with a bow in hand, had been creeping up on his third intended victim. Deceived by the apparently sleeping sentinel he had been led to betray himself and had met a most merited death. Undoubtedly he had by the same device deceived the other sentinels and had very nearly succeeded in adding another scalp.

Young Rogers was overwhelmed with congratulations, a special report was at once made to the war department, and before long he received as a reward his much-coveted commission. —Chicago Times.

BOUND TO SAVE HIM.

A Dog That Was Fully Up to the Requirements of His Business.

Exceptions prove the rule, and the wrong conclusion which a dog may reach from wrong premises may be the best proof that he possesses reasoning power. The following story, says the Youth's Companion, shows plainly that the dog in the case lacked information, but not the faculty of reasoning:

When the Gloucester lifeboat was launched in 1867 it was deemed necessary for two men to throw themselves into the sea in order to show the great utility of cork jackets in keeping the upper part of their bodies above water.

Among the thousands of spectators who were watching the men floating about was a Newfoundland dog, who became much excited at what he, no doubt, considered the serious condition of the men.

The dog ran hither and thither, barking furiously, and in his best and most emphatic language trying his very best to prevail upon some one in that large multitude of human beings to go to the men's assistance.

Finding no one to go, splash into the water went the dog and swam directly to the men, one of whom he caught by the sleeve, with the intention of helping him out of danger.

A struggle ensued; the man tried to shake the dog off, but it was of no avail. The dog would not give up his hold, and finally two men in a small boat were obliged to go to the rescue.

On Even Terms.

A self-important little country gentleman entered Baron Haussmann's office in Paris one day, having some complaint to make, and proceeded to state his errand in a pretty lofty tone, and without taking off his hat. The officer was equal to the occasion. "Wait a moment," he said, and he rang a bell. A servant answered the summons. "Bring me my hat," said the prefect. The hat was brought, the officer put it on, and turned to his caller. "Now," said he, "I will hear you."

THE LEGISLATURE.

A Resume of the Legislative Proceedings at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 15.—In the senate Ringdahl introduced bills for the enforcement of the gross earnings tax against railroads. Senator Keller sent up a bill providing that the compensation of the president of the senate and speaker of the house be $600 each and members of the legislature $300 each. Other bills were introduced, providing for the preservation of birds not generally regarded as game; to establish a normal school at Duluth; to prevent corrupt practice in elections; to govern expense in surveying property lines in townships; to punish officers of banks receiving funds after banks are insolvent.

In the house Mr. Foss, presented a bill for a graduated tax on inheritances, legacies etc, and also to tax the transfer of property of the value of $500 or over. Other bills were introduced; to allow cities and villages to amend their charters to conform to state laws; to regulate passenger service by compelling branch lines to run a train each way at least once every week day; to license poddlers; to prohibit the aiming of fire arms at a human being; to appropriate money for the closing of water courses leading into the Red River.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 16.—Both branches held short sessions. In the senate, Wyman's bill appropriating $10,000 for fire sufferers in Pine and other counties was passed. The following bill's were introduced: For the forfeiture of charters of corporate franchises of certain railways; Reducing the number of voters of each precinct to 300; to limit the time which debts may become a lien on estates of deceased persons.

Senator Yale's resolution to adjourn March 8, was voted down.

In the house the feature was the resolution of Henry Feig, reciting that public funds have been placed in banks and other financial institutions at a loss to the state, and to the benefit of public officials, and calling for a committee of five to investigate all such deposits and ascertain the rights of the state in the matter. The preamble alleges a misappropriation of $150,000 at least. The resolution went over under a notice of debate.

The following bills were introduced: To define the duties of trust companies; to require railways to give notice whether passenger trains are on time; to provide for unclaimed deposits in banks; to provide for state and municipal bonds of arbitration; for the preservation of game.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 17.—The senate held a morning session only. The following bills were introduced: Relating to the compilation of the laws: to establish the office of forest fires commissioner and the prevention of forest fires; to amend article 8 of the constitution; to vacate certain state and territorial roads through platted portions of incorporated towns and cities; to amend the laws relating to weights and measures.

Gov. Nelson gave notice that he had approved the bill for legislative expenses.

In the house bill were introduced as follows: To place business enterprises not under control of the insuraance and railroad commissioners under the control of the public examiners; to authorize county commissioners to issue bonds to build court houses; to establish the office of forest fire commissioner; to encourage the manufacture of sugar dy paying a bounty; for the better protection of laboring and material men; to amend the usury laws.

The house adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 18—The senate was in session about one hour. The time was chiefly devoted to the introduction of bills, the most important of which was introduced by Senator Masterman, of Washington, amending the law providing for the designation of the state depositories. The amendment provides that the designation of state depositories shall be made by a board of audit, consisting of the governor of the state, state auditor, secretary of the state and attorney general. When the state funds are thus deposited the state treasurer is relieved from liability on his bond so far as the depository of funds is concerned.

In the house the Feig resolution providing for a committee to investigate the state treasury was adopted after a spicy debate. Bills were introduced: to organize a medical corps of the national guard; relating to the sale of liquor and the exercise of local option; amending the law relating to county roads; to encourage the breeding of trotting horses; repealing a portion of the grain inspection laws.

The election of United States senator was made a special order for Tuesday the 22d, at 12 m.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 19.—The house had a novelty today in the shape of a Saturday session this early in the legislative year. It was brief and had no important features.

After the exciting scenes of the caucus held last night the chamber presented a peaceful appearance. Many members failed to put in an appearance, but considerably more than a quorum answered to their names at roll call.

Bills were introduced: to amend statutes relating to organization of townships; providing for adjustment of municipal debts; to amend the act regulating the sale of cigarettes.

Adjourned until Tuesday.

The Senate held no session.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 21.—The senate only was in session today, and for a short time only in the afternoon. Senator Hinemann introduced a resolution directing the railway committee to investigate railway freight charges. Other bills introduced: Repealing the bounty for the arrest of horse thieves; to authorize township officers to restrain and license foot and wagon pedlers; limiting the operation of the boiler inspection law; authorizing village councils to appropriate liquor license fees for school or library purposes; giving additional powers to the insurance commissioner. The election of U. S. senator was made special order for tomorrow at 12 m.

RISE OF THE FLUFFY GIRL.

The Tailor Maid Has a Dangerous Rival in the Latest Invention.

It is thought that the great French dress-makers originated the fluffy girl for purely commercial purposes. She is the tailor maid's most dangerous rival; in fact, feminine types of the end of this nineteenth century have narrowed down to just these two. There are few people so old-fashioned nowadays as to describe a young woman as tall or short, plump or thin; there are simply two kinds, the fluffies and the tailor maids.

The French modistes are responsible for the tailor-maid girl also. They put her upon the earth trim, trig, and swagger, but she proved far too popular. Every woman wanted to wear a tailor gown, and she wore it everywhere. It was suitable for shopping, for a luncheon, and when of fine cloth and silk-lined it did duty as a theater frock, or with a bunch of violets it could be worn to a church wedding. The demand for trimmings and furbelows had died a short and complete death. Women no longer ordered spangled bands and embroidered laces at many dollars a yard. They demanded plain welted seams and a perfect cut. In vain did the Paris modistes bring out their most exquisite creations. The tailor-made epidemic was raging and trimmings were bad form.

The great dressmakers were in despair. They racked their brains for some plan by which they might reintroduce the old frivolous style that used to bring so many dollars to their coffers, but it seemed an impossible task. The women who set the fashions refused to be dictated to, and the orders for tailor-made dresses came in faster than they could be filled.

It was about this time that the fluffy girl appeared upon the scene. There was no reason for her coming; she was unheralded and unwanted. She was dressed in a manner in direct contradiction to the prevailing mode. She was "artistic," and the antipodes of the stiff, correct, tailor-frocked girl. She was not at all aggressive. She simply staid. By and by people began to ask who that very pretty feminine-looking young woman was, and then a few daring ones imitated her. She had come to remain.

The fluffy girl did not brush and band her hair in the sleek English fashion that the tailor maid affected. She waved it and fluffed it out over her ears and let a stray curl escape upon her temples. Perhaps she tied it with a velvet knot at the back of her neck, but, at all events, she obtained the effect she was striving for. Her dresses did not cling to her form with the ungiving exactness of the close-cut cloth frock, but draped her body in graceful lines. She wore a dainty little baby waist and frills and frivols of all sorts. Sometimes she tied her waist about with a sash or wore a ridiculous little white apron with impossible pockets. She did not go in for politics or athletics, but waxed enthusiastic over babies and violets and new novels. Her feet one might notice without much trouble were clad in silk stockings and high heeled slippers, and there was quite a quantity of white lace frilling displayed when she took her mandolin across her knee or stepped into a cab, for the fluffy girl dislikes walking.

In a short while she became the rage and had hosts of imitators. But you can always tell the original fluffy girl from the converted tailor maid. Of course, she is a desperate flirt. At parties you may detect her spooning on the stairs with the most desirable man there, or lingering in the conservatory with the football hero of the hour. She likes to talk about affinities and things, and while her tailor-maid sister in the next room is astounding everyone by her knowledge of the game she carries the champion off a captive by her sublime ignorance of creation's entire scheme.

The fluffy girl has been a great success. The object of the Paris modistes has been attained. The trim tailor maid is giving way to the Gibson girl, with her shoulder frills and her big sleeves. The bottle has been almost unnoticed, but the defeat has been sweeping. Over the past world of fashion the fluffy girl at present reigns supreme by the divine right of her womanly charm and her old-fashioned horror of a mouse. Her love for bonbons is almost criminal, but she can give the woman politician, the suffragist, and the female athlete cards and spades and beat them in the contest for success and popularity.—N. Y. Sun.

A Gentle Corrective

is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. It's what you get when you take Dr Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; they're free from the violence and the griping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, these tiny, sugar coated pills are most effective. They go about their work in an easy and natural way, and their good lasts. Once used, they are always in favor. Being composed of the choicest, concentrated vegetable extracts, they cost much more than other pills found in the market, yet from forty to forty-four are put up in each sealed glass vial, as sold through druggists, at the price of the cheaper made pills.

"Pleasant Pellets" cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in sealed glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. Whether as a laxative, or in larger doses, as a gently acting but searching cathartic, these little "Pellets" are unequaled.

As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They are tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules. Any child readily takes them.

Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

—See new advestisement of Wm. Leiter for Blacksmithing.

—Follicular Pharyngitis, Bronchitis, and similar diseases have been bothering some of our citizens the past week.

—A party of young folks drove over to Rockford last Saturday evening and surprised Mr. and Miss Florida. They all report a splendid time.

—Rev. Davies has recovered from his slight attack of the grip and expects (D V) to fulfill his usual appointments both here and at Maple Plain next Sunday.

—The Lineau Combination Company is billed for Delano, City Hall, on Wednesday night, Jan. 30, 1895. The company is highly spoken of by those who have heard them.

—"School notes", "the school report", and "Deer Hunting in Wyoming" are some of our articles this week of especial interest to the young folks who read the GAZETTE.

—The M. E. people are sending their cards broadcast over the United States appealing to personal friends to assist in raising their debt. They now confidently expect to be out of debt by next April.

—At a business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E on Wednesday evening, Mr. Edward Freeman was elected President: Miss Mamie VanEman, Vice President, and Miss Olive Johns, Secretary and Treasurer.

—We are in receipt of a couple of numbers of the Minneapolis Spectator. Mr. Stacy and his partner are getting out a live sheet. They doubtless take considerable credit to themselves for the "doing up" of Senator Washburn in St. Paul this week.

—In another place in this paper see if you are on a committee for celebrating the 22nd; if you are don't fail to be on hand on Wednesday, Jan. 30, at 2 P. M., to assist in completeing arrangements. Let everybody do their share, whether or not on committees and we will have a good time on Washington's birthday.

—Poor old Mother Grundy ventured out in great shape this week. Taking advantage of circumstances she seems to have manufactured a story, cut of whole cloth, and to have industriously circulated from one end of the town to the other, as a fact that a young husband had deserted his young wife, and that the wife had attempted suicide by taking poison and that through the energetic efforts of two physicians her life had been saved. So far as the M. D's. go, there are three in town each and all of them have positively denied any knowledge of such an occurence. The young man's mother personally and indignantly denounced the whole story as "a lie"; said she heard the story and went on purpose, to the residence of the couple, to find out for herself. On her arrival she found the woman as well as could be expected; and that the husband was stopping at home as usual, and nothing of the fearful story circulated by Mother Grundy could be learned there. Without mentioning the fact that she had heard of the separation, and attempted suicide she returned home fully satisfied that nothing of the kind had occurred.

Anyone so low down in the scale of human depravity as to originate, and set afloat, a story like that, calculated to mar the good name, and injure the reputation of a young couple just starting in life, is to say the least away below the average American citizen; and deserves the severest censure of all intelligent people.

—The jury in Justice Walters' court this week, awarded Ed. Ziebarth a verdict for $13 80 in his suit against C. W. Kerrick, for brick.

—People desiring to sell wood should call on our School Board; or at the Court House in Buffalo at once. This notice is for the public good: gratis.

—The Eagle says the Delano Cornet band is dead. Too bad. But Commissary Shaw still survives, and last evening gave an oyster supper at Mrs. Roehl's Restaurant, to the Farmer's Band, which, under the effecient tutelage of Prof. Bohn promises to fill the vacancy caused by the demise.

—A meeting of the Delano Washington's Birthday Association was held Wednesday afternoon at the Post Office. It was decided to have a celebration similar to those of two years past. A programme was partially arranged. Dinner to be one of the prin features: followed by speaking, music, and other entertainments. M. A. O'Hair was appointed a committee of one to see if he can secure a speaker from abroad' while short speeches from our local talent are expected. A committee on music was chosen, as follows: Messrs. Buckley, John Coolen, Jenner Chance, Mesdames Jonas Johnson. Wm. Hawker, M. A. O'Hair.

On coffee: Mesdames G. P. Schaffer. Jonas Johnson, C. H. Green, Messrs. A. L. Mealey. and Geo. W. Bolton.

On decoration: Mrs. M. J. Mulford, Arthur Johnson, Mrs. F. H. Lindsley, Mrs. Cora Peters and Miss Julia Steffes.

All committees are to meet at the Post Office next Wednesday at 2 P. M. A full attendance is expected.

—At the regular meeting of the Village Council on Monday evening Councilmen Horsch, Coffin, Dyer and Mealey were present. The following bills were allowed:

A motion was made and carried that an order be drawn in favor A. L. Mealey for two cords of wood for O. Wicklund, pauper.

The water rate for F. Kelsey was fixed at $5.00 per year.

A committee of one was appointed to make arrangements with Milton Muckey for running extra time.

A motion was made and carried that Recorder Mealey be paid $8 00 per month for keeping the books and collecting for the waterworks and electric lights.

Personals.

Mr. Frazier, of Minneapolis, has moved into the Franzen house, in north Delano.

Mrs. Clifford, of Minneapolis, visited with her sister, Mrs. Geo. W. Bolton, of this place, last week.

Mrs. McNoughton returned yesterday, from Davenport, Iowa, when she had been attending the funeral of her daughter, Lena.

School Notes.

Some of the High School students visited the Lyceum south of town Saturday evening. Also, a number of the pupils, accompanied by Miss Hager and others, took a sleighride to Rockford the same evening. Both parties report a pleasant time.

State examinations are coming next week, and the usual "studying up" has preceded them.

We will graduate but two pupils this year. In '96 we hope to have a class of four or five.

The electrical machine has arrived and now when any of the scholars feel tired, they repair to the labratory where their nerves receive an electric shock.

Miss Steele spent Saturday and Sunday in Minneapolis.

We now have forty six pupils in the High School department. It looks as though we will need another teacher next year.

This is club week and a full attendance is expected.

We are not allowed to snowball in the school room but a very large "Snowball" is sometimes imprisoned in the laboratory.

The physical apparatus has arrived.

Public School Report.

The following is the report of the average standings of the pupils of the public school, from Nov. 5 to Dec. 21, 1894. A correct idea of the class average of the High School cannot be given as some pupils are carrying more subjects than others.

A star (*) before the name indicates that the pupil has been neither absent nor tardy.

County Cullings.

Now editors Topping and Eaton are scrapping. It is to bad that so much editorial ability is allowed to run to waste. This kind of stuff is not of the educational and elelating kind.

The Wright county legislators, including Senator Culkin, voted with their Minneapolis friends for W. D. Washburn and are now, in their usual luck; outside the band wagon.

The 38th Legislative district members don't seem to have voted on the unit rule for United States Senator. All went for Washburn but Representative Craig; he was a Nelson man from start to finish.

The 38th Legislative District is represented in the Senate by W. E. Culkin on the Judiciary committee, Library, Roads and Bridges, State Prison, State Soldiers' Home and as chairman of the Geological and Natural History Survey.

In the House on committees as follows:

Appropriations, Dare.
Railroads, Swanson.
Public Accounts and Expenditures, Dare.
Education, Craig, Chairman; Dare.
Agriculture, Swanson.
Incorporations other than Municipal, Craig, Dare.
State Prison and Reformatory, Craig.
Immigration, Craig.
Hospitals for Insane, Rice.
Temperance Legislation, Swanson.
Roads and Bridges, Rice.
Banks, Swanson.
Printing, Dare, chairman.
Prison Labor, Rice.
Public Parks, Craig.
Drainage, Rice.

Among Our Exchanges.

Should Nelson be elected senator and Clough installed as Governor, what do you suppose would be the result as to the length of term served by Scheig and the Floyds?—Howard Lake Herald.

It is costing the State of Minnesota at $1,000 a day to enjoy the uncertainty of a Senatorial deadlock. And this doesn't include the expenses of the candidates. Let it be terminated at once. —Globe.

The legislrture has now been in session over two weeks, and about all that has been accomplished is to get fairly organized. The committees are now all at work, and from this time out it ought to, and probably will, get right down to business. The senatorial question has much to do with the apparent dilatoriness in getting to work, which is another argument in favor of the election of senators by a popular vote.—Sherburne County Star-News.

Training of the Boy.

The boy whom you wish to see a courteous man must be taught to be considerate and courteous to his mother and sisters, and to the maid who waits upon him. He should learn that every service worth receiving merits a "Thank you," and never to be in too great a hurry when he enters the breakfast room to say "Good morning" to everyone. He should take off his hat or cap when he greets a lady in the street, and never forget to do it when he enters a house, or an elevator in which there are also ladies. A boy trained to courtesy on these points will naturally develop thoughtfulness in many little way manifested in the pleasant attentions so grateful to every woman and girl. While refining the boy you need not fear, in the least, its making a "girl boy" of him; it has quite the opposite effect, developing all the manliness and chivalry in him.

The atmosphere of a home where this pleasant interchange of little courtesies and attentions is habitual is congenial for the growth of strong attachment and life-enduring friendships, and to the development of boys and girls into noble men and women who will go out from it to extend its influence. Indeed, every such home exercises a silent but irresistible influence in its immediate neighborhood, and upon all the friends who enjoy its hospitality.—From "Etiquette of Everyday Life," in Demorest's Magazine for February.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

Square Type.

Spatulated. Conical. Artistic. Philosophic. Feminine.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription. It will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which is leaner in its small size, slenderness, soft tail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the nobler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put a in the way of saving money by finding in one Magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of e whole family.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

List of Patents.

Granted to inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, Opp. U. S Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

DAVE CLOUGH has been installed as Minnesotas Governor.

JUROR Dyer sick and the, court adjourned, was this mornings news of the famous Hayward trial.

THE German Lloyd steamer Elba sank with 314 people in the Morth sea; only 19 survivors lived to tell the tale. The cause has not yet been satisfactorily stated, supposed to have been a collision.

THE Elk River representative has a bill before the House obliging the Pullman Car Co. to furnish safes for the protection of passenger's valuables. And he's a newsbaper man too! How Dare you do that?

CONSIDERABLE prominence has been given to the views of the noted "Bob" Ingersoll concerning the propriety and advisability of certain people committing suicide. These views don't suit Christian people at all. But possibly from Mr. Ingersoll's agnostic standpoint it would do. "As a man thinketh so is he."

SOME of our Republican friends are making a terrible fuss because Knute Nelson was elected from the Governor's chair to the U. S. Senatorship Did not the first Republican Governor our state ever had, Hon. Alexander Ramsey set him the example, by turning the Governor's office over to Lieutenant Governor Henry A. Swift and taking a seat in the U. S. Senate in 1863.

MANY are worrying because Dave Clough has succeeded in becoming Governor of our state. They declare that he could hever have done so in the regular way, by a vote of the people. Another proof that care should be taken in selecting a man for Lieutenant Governor who would be equally as acceptable as the Governor, should he chance to be called upon to act in the higher capacity.

THE sorest man in the state appears to be Mr. Washburn. He has been so completely knocked out in the race for Senator as to be unable to recuperate. It is hardly probable that he will ever again come up for office. I. Donnelly now stands a far better chance of becoming President of the United States than does his old enemy of ever again returning to the U. S. capitol in any public capacity. after this term expires.

GROVER CLEAELAND has written another message to Congress, on the financial situation. He thinks bonds of small denomination drawing 3 per cent interest should be made and sold th the people; the bonds to run for fifty years. It may be good policy; but our country must be in a pickle when we are obliged to shift our debts to the "foreigners" or to "posterity." Better reduce expenses; take in a little sail; and pay as you go.

THE Nicollet County Independent, published by H. C. Miller. at St. Peter, is at hand. It is a seven column, eight page paper; got up in good style, and will help to make business lively in that place. It completes the full quartette and good music will be looked for in future. The motto "Equal rights to all; special privileges to none" is a good one; and if lived up to ought to insure the new venture a succeseful career from the first.

WHEN Mr. Washburn said: "I believe up to last Friday night I might have brought about an entirely different result had I allowed the use of money," he cast some fearful reflections on the honesty of the present Minnesota Legislators. But when one reflects that a large number of the members are sent to the legislature expressly to elect some fellow to the U. S. enate; that voters are almost driven by party leaders to vote the straight legislative ticket to save the G. O. P. knowing many of the candidates are far from acceptable, is there much wonder that the charge was made?

Washburn's Interview.

Friday evening's Minneapolis Journal contained an interview with Senator Washburn which places our State Legislature and some of the leading Republicans in an unenviable situation beore the public; and which may lead to an investigation. The Senator is reported among other things to have said: "To begin with my candidacy for re-election to the senate was not a personal matter. I believed it was the desire of the people of Minnesota that I should serve for another term." He then said he was assured by politicians and others that his return was desired that Governor Nelson repeatadly assured him that he would not be a candidate, and then publicly committed himself in his Albert Lea speech: Mr Merriam made equally positive statements; Governor Clough told him again and again his election was desired and that he should do everything in his power to assist in it: other men have been fully as earnest in their expressions. "With the belief that these men meant what they said, I made no attempt to influence nominations or elections of members of the legislature or to commit any candidate to my support."

The Senator is still further quoted as having said "The methods of the opposition have been most disgraceful There was no shameless use of money I believe that up to last Friday night I might have brought about an entirely different result had I allowed the use of money.

"I think that most of the members of the legislature were nominated and elected squarely. The people expected them to vote for me and they themselves expected to do so. I do not think the ring influenced nominations to any great extent. The men were elected squarely; they have been debauched since.

Governor Nelson comes in for a charge of having dispensed the patronage of the state when it would help him most. And the remarkable interview winds up saying "Well Governor Nelson goes to the senate disgraced and dishonored. It remains to be seen what he will accomplish. And after thanking his loyal friends "I am still a Republican and no personal disappointment or grievance can drive me from the ranks of the grand old party, under the folds of whose flag I have fought since its organization."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]
WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 25, 1895.

Secretary Gresham will submit some very interesting documents to Congress in response to the resolution adopted by the House, calling for information concerning the expenses of the Behring Sea commission' appointed by President Harrison, and the cost to the United states of carrying out the joint treaty between the United States, Great Britain and Germany to maintain the government of Samoa. These documents will show that members and supporters of the Harrison administration are in no position to criticize the foreign policy of this or any other administration.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, introduced his financial bill in the Senate this week just as an ordinary bill is introduced, although he hoped it might have had the endorsement of the finance committee before it was formally brought to the attention of the Senate The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue in his discretion bonds at 3 per cent up to $500,000,000; provides that the tax on national bank currency shall be one fourth of one per cent, and that they may issue currency up to the par value of the bonds deposited by them; also, for the unlimited coinage of silver, the government to retain as a seigniorage the difference between the market value of the bullion and the face value of the money coined. Senator Smith, of New Jersey, also introduced a financial bill, which merely provides for the issue of bonds and the establishment of a non-partisan monetary commission, to investigate and report to Congress next December. There is no apparent change in the financial situation in the House, which has lately been looking to the Senate, if not for guidance, at least for a pointer.

Mr. W. S. Broderick, president of the St. Louis Live Stock Exchange, is in Washington helping others interested in our foreign meat and cattle trade to get that obnoxious differential sugar tariff repealed. Mr. Broderick says not a word about diseased American cattle would have been heard from Europe, if that differential duty had not been imposed, and he added: "If it is not repealed, we shall lose the whole trade of continental Europe, and the producers of beef will have to rely solely on the home market, That market is already suffering with a ruinous over-supply. It is a fine object lesson of what protection will do and shows up the beauties of a home market perfectly. In the cattle growers of the west are wondering if this Congress has any intention of legislating in the interest of the people." The obstacle to the repeal of the differential duty is the Senate. A bill for its repeal has been favorably reported to the House, and will be passed, but it will require strong pressure from the public to get it through the Senate.

By a vote of 9 to 7 the Judiciary committee of the House adopted a resolution censuring Judge Ricks, of Ohio, for his methods of making up his official accounts when he became judge, instead of the impeachment resolution which the committee had first authorized. There will be a minority report, standing out for impeachment, presented to the House by Representative Bailey, of Texas.

Senator Butler, of South Carolina, is credited with the intention of trying to keep Senator-elect Tillman, who is to be his successor, out of his seat in the Senate, and his presentation of a petition from Dr. Sampson Pope, late Democratic candidate for governor of South Carolina, asking that the Senate investigate charges of fraud which he makes against Tillman and his associates, makes it look as though he were properly credited. Senator Butler has always been popular with his Democratic colleagues; but most of them think he is making a serious mistake in supporting a request for a Congressional investgation of a State Election.

Senators Gorman, Smith and Lindsay gave notice to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, after tie votes had prevented the adoption of several amendments they favored, that they would consent to have the railroad pooling bill favorably reported to the Senate, and take their chance of getting their amendments adopted by vote of the Senate. Accordingly the bill has been favorably reported to the Senate just as it was passed by the House.

Senator Sherman's anti-trust law is no better than some of the other laws with which his name has been connected. The Supreme Court decided this week that it did not touch the sugar trust.

The income tax won easily in its first legal contest. Judge Hagner, sitting in the equity branch of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, refused to grant an injunction asked for to prevent the collection of the income tax and decided the tax to be valid. An appeal was noted.

A Terrible Record.

The record for 1894 for murders, suicides, and lynchings is an appalling one. There were 9 838 murders committed last year, an increase of fifty per cent over the year 1883. The record for the past few years is a terrible one. It jumped from 6,615 in 1893 to 9,868 in 1894, an increase of 3,253 in one year. As every case of murder is not reported it is safe to say that 10,000 persons were murdered in the United States last year. Think of a city of 10,000 population all of whom are killed in one short year. If an army of invasion were to cut off such a city, or if brigands or other villainous people were to attack it, capture it and put the inhabitants to the sword what an uprising of the people there would be Yet 10,000 people have been murdered and we are [illegible] indifferent! That liquor has very much to do with this terrible record no well-informed person doubts. But for the legalized liquor traffic the number of murders would be decrased three-fourths. In a large majority of these cases the murderers were insane through liquor taken in some instances as a preparation for the crime but generally as a beverage without a thought of murder until the demon of drink had entered and taken possession of the person. And yet people go on year after year talking about the tariff and other questions, refusing to consider the great issue of the liquor traffic. They see the list of murders and other crimes increasing at an appalling rate but refuse to do anything to prevent it. Are we our brother's keeper? If so we are responsible for much of this shameful record if we have failed by voice and vote to outlaw the traffic which is responsible for so much of it.

Already severals bills have been introduced in the Nebraska legislature providing for the destruction of the Russian thistle. Brave boys! We are glad to notice such an eagerness on the part of our law-makers to protect our people. The Russian thistle has undoubtedly destroyed millions of dollars worth of crops the past season and in consequence thousands of people are now going hungry and half naked. It has been conclusively proven that the Russian thistle has been stalking through this state leaving nothing but death and devastation in its track. It has consumed our resources, emptied our public coffers, corrupted our politics, promoted poverty, degradation and crime; it has degraded the home life and thwarted the very will of the people. It is an evil without a single redeeming feature and should be forever keep-er-destroyed. Regulate—we mean destroy the Russian thistle, and all the suffering and distress of the drouth stricken districts will vanish as a vapor before a hot Nebraska wind. By all means let the state make an appropriation for the destruction of the Russian thistle. Delay is dangerous Hurrah for our lawmakers! Brave boys!—The New Republic.

Our faces are witnessing, not merely for or against ourselves, but for or against Christ as well. How many are there of professedly Christian people whose looks tell us that religion has not become to them a joy, a peace, a life in Christ and for Christ! What opportunities for Christ are thus forfeited! Said Dr. Bushnell: "The thing we most want is a divine light in souls, the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in such power to light up faces. Come what will of preaching, or come not what will not, the grand law of Christian power goes with faces. Is this a reason why Christianity has not made greater advances than it has in that we have failed in our mission to be lights of the world? If so, is it not time that we should begin in this way to adorn the doctrine of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.—Selected.

A Dear Bargain.

"It is a jolly knife," said Ted admiringly.

"There are three blades besides the corkscrew," said Tom. "It could not cost less than half a dollar."

"What made him give it to you?" asked Ted, curiously and suspiciously. "I wish he had taken it into his head to give it to me."

"Why, I'll tell you," said Tom, laughing. I gave him my red alley for it, and an old medal. I told him the medal was silver and the alley was real marble, and he thinks he got a bargain He's awful green."

"Oh!" said Ted, "that alters the case, I would not have it at that price if you gave me a hundred dollars as well."

"Why not," said Tom, "if he is such a dunce as to believe everything you tell him?"

"He's welcome to sell his knife how he likes," said Ted, turning on his heels; "but I would not sell my character for all the knives in the world."—Christian Standard.

BUFFALO NEWS.

Charles Waldron will act as clerk in the drug Store during the absence of G. S Shimmin, who leaves for California, accompanied by his wife, next Saturday.

Miss Druclla Cruikshank left for Rockford last Thursday, where she will remain for some time, she having obtained employment there.

Mr. W. J. Ellis was on the sick list last Tuesday; likewise A. E. Sturges.

G. W. Burrows left Wednesday evening for Minneapolis to attend the annual meeting of the N. W. Lumbermen's Association, which convenes there this week.

Mr. A. E. Walker disposed of a two year old colt last Wednesday by raffling it off.

Wheat has again dropped to 48 cts. This will be a small blow on the Farmer's Elevator Co. here, as we understand they had purchased a few hundred bushels at 55 cts. but a short time previous to the drop.

Some of our citizens, we are told, have the Arkansas fever. We hope that the approach of spring will remove such ideas from their minds and that they will remain with us.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fogarty are rejoicing over the arrival of another little son who came to remain with them on Thursday last.

An epidemic of Roetheln, or German Measles, have been making the rounds of our village during the past week or ten days.

Mr. E. S. Oakley visited with relatives (?) at Howard Lake over Sunday. Miss Eva Cutts accompanied him home and will remain the guest of her uncle and family, Mr and Mrs. C. E. Oakley, the rest of the week.

Mrs. John White, of Maple Lake town, died on Monday night of this week of asthenia and bronchitis.

Under the auspices of the Buffalo Lodge, No. 184 A. O. U. W., about 14 persons took the Oriental degree in Dudley Hall on Tuesday evening. Plenty of fun and an oyster stew was the order of the evening.

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

On a wager Delly Gent cut one cord of dry maple wood twice in two in four hours and 30 minutes. Delly thinks he can do as well as John Elliot at it.

D. R. Thompson and his body guard J. S. Gurney visited the city on Tuesday.

Mrs. C. C. Tallman and her aunt Mrs. H. Eatin and two boys left Tuesday for California to join her husband in their future home. We wish them success.

The prize fight which is to take place in the near future can only be witnessed by those who are now member or who will join the Lodge of Orientals at Rockford. The Lodge takes this means to increase its membership. At the last meeting they took in 12 members for blank application. Apply to D. R. Thompson or Geo. Irving. The members of the Orientals went to Buffalo last Wednesday evening and instituted a new lodge, taking in 22 members. Wonder if Dave Cochrane was in it.

We understand a home troupe is being started in Rockford and will soon present to Rockford and maybe a few neighboring towns the play entitled "Uncle Josh". They have some very good timber in the troupe and they are all doing very nicely, most of them having their parts learned.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Another cold wave has come upon us, and the thermometer went down to twenty or thirty below zero. Cold enough for these hard times. But He that ever-ruleth all things, tempers the wind to the shorn lamb. The roads are fine and sleighing is at high water mark.

Cap. Copp is now delivering his course of lectures in the Presbyterian church at Maple Plain.

A good many of our people are on the sick list. Some of them are quite sick.

DIED on 24th present month of quick consumption, Mrs. Mary Tompkins, aged 24 years. Funeral at Advent church, Armstrong, on the 26th at 2 P. M. conducted by Rev. C. R. Jenks, of Minneapolis, assisted by Elder Fassett of Rockford, and Rev. J. F. Potter, of Independence. Mrs. Tompkins was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mills, old settlers of the place, and the funeral was largely attended.

Frank Lucas and wife, of Rockford town, attended church in Independence last Sunday.

Our Maple Plain merchants say trade is reasonrbly good considering these Knute Nelson times.

I have before me a book entitled "If Christ came to Chicago" and I am thinking how it would be if the devil came to St. Paul; yet I think he may have been there already, if not in person, he was represented by sub-agents.

Some of the Israelites have just found out that Knute Nelson voted for the Mills bill when he was a Representative, in Congress, from this state. As little as the Democrats know they found that out years ago. Why did you fellows not tell of that lyst fall before election? If Knute will do this in the green tree what will he do in the dry; but then he is no exception to the rule in politics. All or nearly all our political leaders, no matter of what party are after honor and the almighty dollar. Money seems to be the foundation stone for almost every thing. But so long as we have Cleveland for President, Knute Nelson for Senator and Dave Clough for Governor, we will have an empty pocket and a clear conscience.

The question is being asked every little while through the day, "How goes the Hayward murder trial?" Another prodigal waste brought about by sin and iniquity; by one who knew not the value of a dollar

J. H. MCGARY.

"The Other Night I made a trip from Chicago to St. Paul and Minneapolis with my wife on the famous Northwestern Limited. For the price of a section in an old-style sleeping car, I secured in the private Compartment Sleepers, as cosy a little room as was ever built into a railroad car—not so very little either; it took up the whole width of the car excepting a narrow aisle at the side and had two large berths. I said it was cosy—it was more; it was magnificent, and we spent the evening as comfortable, and with as much privacy, as if we had been in our own home. I do not put it too strongly when I say that this train is the personification of Rolling luxury, and that the Northwestern Line runs the finest trains for all discriminating Montana travelers to patronize going east via St. Paul and Minneapolis.—The Standard Anaconda, Mont.

THE corn crop last year was one of the smallest on record in recent times, yet its value in dollars and cents is nearly as large as that of the unprecedented crop of 1889. The values are as follows: 1894, $554,719,000; 1889, $597,918,000.

A NEW YORK paper assures us that Miss Virginia Fair, daughter of the deceased millionaire, has "a tip-tilted nose." This is important, if true. That it is important is shown by the fact that a great journal of alleged civilization takes time and space to say it.

THE oldest bell in America is claimed to be that of the African Methodist church at Haleyville, N. J. It is said to have been once the property of Christopher Columbus and was purchased by Capt. Newell on the Bahama islands and presented to the present owners.

WOMEN who pose as professors of palmistry in this country will be glad that they are not residents of England, where a woman has recently been convicted for such a performance. QUININE, which used to sell for five dollars an ounce, now sells for twenty-five cents and has sold as low as sixteen cents an ounce. The amount of this drug used is enormous. Wholesale druggists buy it in bulk. In places where a few years ago few ounces were sold now as much as five hundred thousand ounces are sold. A medical journal cites the instance of a family which buys quinine pills for home consumption regularly in five hundred lots.

MRS. HENRY MEYER, who was discharged from the Tombs in New York the other day, is a living contradiction of the theory that "women will talk." She would not talk. Her husband is in Sing Sing on a life sentence for poisoning Ludwig Brandt, and she has spent eighteen months in jail in the hope that evidence could be procured to prove her an accessory, but through it all has been as stolid as if she had never heard of the case.

SHIP designers are a class of architects who are little known to the world at large. Their services deserve greater fame. One of these clever craftsmen is the man who has planned the Northwest and the Northland for James J. Hill's great lake line. This architect is Mr. Adolph U. Sheldon, of the Globe iron works of Cleveland. He is a Swede, and was educated at the Royal Naval academy at Stockholm. He began his work in English shipyards, and then went to Stettin, where he designed the Fuerst Bismarck, Augusta Victoria and Kaiser Wilhelm. WHEN Washington was inaugurated, Philadelphia, then the metropolis of the country, had only 42,000 people, New York 33,000, Boston 18,000, Baltimore 13,000, and no other city anywhere near 10,000. After the lapse of half a century New York passed Philadelphia, having 312,000 inhabitants in 1840 to the latter city's 258,000. Baltimore and New Orleans were the only other places with more than 100,000 people, and, except Boston, with 93,000, the remaining cities fell short of 50,000. During period of the new nation, therefore, all but the merest faction of its citizens lived in places of small population.

General Business Not Aided by the Events of Last Week.

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co's. weekly review of trade says:

"Events have not helped business this week. About $10,880,000 gold has been withdrawn from the treasury, mainly for export, and the gold reserve has been reduced to about $56,000,000. Since December 8 the treasury has lost, in thirty-nine working days, about $53,000,000 gold, and daily increasing distrust is liable to affect markets unfavorably.

"Industries have not yet found sufficient demand for their products to prevent further decline in prices, and this week the average for all commodities has again touched the lowest point ever known. The number of hands employed does not increase, and a strike has cut off for more than a week about half the business of Brooklyn to some extent affecting trade here. Congress has done nothing to replenish the treasury, and a great variety of financial doctors, each offering his remedy, does not promise health for the patient. Another offer of bonds, under the old law and existing circumstances, might result unsatisfactorily. At bottom, business hesitates because the future is clouded and the consuming demand has not increased in January as was expected. In belief that it would, industries had enlarged production, and until it does the excess of producing capacity constantly tends to depress prices.

"Wheat has sold at the lowest point ever known for May option and spot has declined four cents for the week, liquidation of the immense holdings of the Fair estate being rumored. For most people, the great visible supply and the pressure of the quantities carried for speculation in elevators, justify extreme lower prices, as there is nothing as yet to indicate material decrease in the crop. Corn has declined 2¼c. though receipts are shrinking. Liquidation in pork has brought a sharp decline. Cotton barely escapes the lowest point on record.

"Exports of $7,450,000 gold this week, making about $20,000,000 in January, have been partly for Illinois Central settlements, but mainly due to withdrawals of foreign capital. Considerable sales of stocks, and of high-priced railway currency bonds, seller fifteen days, show doubt about the monetary future. Of the same significance are purchases of bills for future remittance by importers, as a change in the currency would subject them to loss. Many bankers talk seriously of the danger that a silver basis may suddenly come, unless congressional inactivity ceases.

"Liabilities of failures for seventeen days of January were $7,501,299, against $13,668,990 in eighteen days last year; manufacturing liabilities were $1,572,043, against $6,072,837 last year, and trading $5,894,166, against $6,800,353 last year. Failures this week have been 368 in the United States, against 433 last year, and 59 in Canada against 55 last year.

Bradstreet's says:

"Special telegraphic and mail advices from the more important distributing centers fail to reveal any marked improvement in the movement of merchandise and products and the conclusion is forced that the general trade situation remains as previously characterized—by small volume, low prices, hand-to-mouth sales, and the outlook favoring a very conservative trade for some time to come ever, there has been frequent disagreements and delays in the works. Concessions have been made by both governments for the cutting of mahogany, and Guatemala at last boldly entered upon the area in dispute, destroyed Mexican camps, and has occupied it with an armed force. Mexico now demands the area, and furthermore insists that Guatemala shall withdraw its troops and pay an indemnity for injuries alleged to have been inflicted upon Mexican citizens.

HAS PASSED THE SENATE.

The Nicaragua Canal Bill Receives a Majority of the Votes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—In the senate Friday the long parliamentary struggle over the Nicaragua canal bill came to a close and the bill was passed by a vote of 31 yeas to 21 nays. From 2 o'clock in the afternoon until 6, the time was consumed in a discussion in which the speeches were limited to five minutes. It was sometimes carried on in a pretty angry fashion, but nothing very important or interesting was said on either side of the question.

[The Nicaragua canal bill as passed provides that the capital stock of the Maritime Canal company of Nicaragua shall consist of 1,000,000 shares of $100 each; it authorizes the company to issue 3 per cent. bonds to the amount of $70,000,000, which shall be endorsed and guaranteed by the treasury of the United States, and shall be secured by a first mortgage on all the property of the company. The interest on these bonds is to be paid by the company as it falls due, and on failure to do so is to be held to pay 4 per cent. interest to the United States. And such default shall also bring with it the right of foreclosure and sale. In consideration of the guarantee the United States is to receive $70,000,000 in stock of the company: $6,000,000 of stock is to go to the government of Nicaragua; $1,500,000 to the government of Costa Rica, and the remaining $22,500,000 is to go to extinguish former issues of stock, and to the construction of the canal. Ten of the fifteen directors of the company are to be appointed by the president of the United Stated, with the advice and consent of the senate.]

CLEVELAND INDORSED.

Senate Approves His Hawaiian Policy—Carried by One Republican Vote.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — President Cleveland's policy toward Hawaii was sustained in the senate Saturday by a vote of 24 to 22. The resolution was offered by Senator Vest (dem., Mo.) as an amendment to a previous resolution on the subject by Senator Allen (pop., Neb.) and is as follows:

"Resolved, That, while the people of the United States earnestly sympathize with the effort to establish republican institutions wherever that effort is made, they reaffirm the policy of noninterference, unless by agreement, with the officers of other nations, and recognize to the fullest extent the right of every people to adopt and maintain their own form of government, unawed and uninfluenced by foreign dictation.

"That the administration of President Cleveland in maintaining this policy as to our foreign relations deserves the approval and support of the American people."

The vote was on party lines, with the exception of Senator Pettigrew, who voted with the democrats. By a singular coincidence this one vote carried the resolution, as it would have failed on a tie had the vote been on strict party lines.

GAUTEMALA AND MEXICO.

They Are Likely Soon to Be Involved in the Toils of War.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—War between Guatemala and Mexico seems inevitable. Guatemala can only prevent it by complying with the demands of Mexico, and this it is apparently unwilling to do. Mexico will not arbitrate. The efforts at mediation by the United States have failed. From absolutely reliable authority it is said Mexico has politely but most positively declined to entertain the suggestion of the United States state department that the difficulty be submitted to arbitration.

The question at issue between the two countries is one which easily admits of arbitration. Briefly stated it is as follows:

A treaty signed at the City of Mexico September 27, 1882, defined the boundary between Mexico and Guatemala from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which had been in dispute for more than half a century, and provided that a mixed commission should mark the line with suitable monuments. When this commission reached the Usumacinta, one of the boundary rivers, it was found that the data furnished by Senor Irungaray, an engineer sent by Guatemala to survey the line before the treaty was made, were not accurate, because, according to his maps and the treaty based upon them, the Usumacinta river was placed considerably above its actual course. This left in Mexico a very important part of what had been considered Guatemalan territory. The government of Guatemala held that the Usumacinta river began at a point many miles below that designated in the treaty, and that the actual boundary line ought to be the Chixoy river, situated several miles west of the Usumacinta. The government of Mexico accepted this proposition as a matter of equity on condition that no further objections should be raised by Guatemala in the marking of the boundary line.

Pending the marking of this boundary, how-

M. FRANCOIS FELIX FAURE, NEW PRESIDENT OF FRANCE.

M. Francois Felix Faure, member of the chamber of deputies for Seine-Inferieurs, who has been elected president of the republic of France, to succeed M. Casimir-Perier, was born in Paris, January 30, 1841. He was under secretary of state for the colonies in the ministries of Gambetta, Ferry, Brisson and Tirard, and was one of the vice presidents of the chamber of deputies preceding the present one. He has been a republican deputy for about fourteen years and has served on several of the most important committees of the chamber. M. Faure has made a legislative specialty of business questions, particularly those concerning the French merchant marine and foreign commerce. He served in the Franco-Prussian war as chief of a battalion of the Garde-Mobile, and was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor on May 31, 1871

Struck by a Train.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 29.—Maggie Maguire, her brother William Maguire and a boy of 19 years of age named Verrier, while driving from Arctic Center to their home at River Point Monday night were struck by a New York & New England express train, and Miss Maguire was instantly killed. Young Verrier was badly injured about the neck and head and one of his legs cut off below the knee. Maguire was badly bruised.

Sustains the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The petition of John G. Moore for a writ of mandamus to be issued against Commissioner of Internal Revenue Miller to prevent the collection of the income tax was overruled Wednesday morning by Judge Hagner in the district equity court. The case will now be taken in appeal to the United States supreme court in order to test the constitutionality of the income tax law.

A Farmer Murdered.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 29.—The body of Irwin Myers, a farmer, who left his home southwest of here Monday morning, was found this evening by Charles Van Dorn, a school teacher, hanging over a fence with a bullet hole in the head. Myers' horses and wagon were found near by. Myers was an officer of an association of farmers organized to prosecute trespassers and the supposition is that he came across a gang of trespassers and was killed by them.

BAD STORM IN TEXAS.

Several Persons Drowned at Various Ports by the Capsizing of Boats.

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 30.—A storm of great velocity struck this city about 4 o'clock Monday morning, which smashed and damaged a number of frail tenements, but inflicted no serious injury to persons, although a number of narrow escapes are chronicled. The disasters among the shipping were more serious and several small vessels were swamped and a number of persons drowned.

At Pepper Grove bay, 25 miles north of this city, a rendezvous for oyster boats, the sloop Nellie Miller, with Capt. Albert Tanberg and mate aboard, went down. The captain was caught in the rigging and could not free himself and was drowned. The sloop City Girl was capsized and the crew thrown into the water. They clung to the vessel until the wind abated, when they were rescued by a passing boat. Sloop Laura and Mina was capsized and blown ashore, and one of the crew drowned. The captain was caught in the cabin and was compelled to break through the bulkhead, and when rescued was nearly dead. The sloop Magic, which arrived late Monday evening, reports that the mail sloop Edna Freiberg was found, bottom up, off Smith's Point. She carried the United States mail between this city, Bolivar Point and Smith's Point.

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 22.—Business was light in the senate outside of the senatorial vote. Bills were introduced: To create a state fire marshal; changing the boundaries of special school districts; to change the method of appeal from the award of supervisors in opening roads and erecting bridges; providing for the division of townships. At noon the senate proceeded to vote for United States senator, which was as follows: Washburn 22, Nelson 17, McCleary 1, McHale 2, Donnelly 5, and the balance scattering.

In the house bills were introduced to regulate the exercise of the right of eminent domain in certain cases; appointing a commission to revise the statutes; relating to baking powders; to encourage the smelting of iron ore; to amend the law relating to the sale of state mineral lands; regulating patent medicines; to prevent corruption in politics; relating to liquor licenses. At noon the house voted for senator as follows: Washburn 32, Nelson 45, Comstock 10; McCleary 8, McHale 11, Donnelly 13, and 7 votes scattering.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 23.—But little work was done in either branch, all interest being centered in the senatorial contest. In the senate bills were introduced for the equitable distribution of the gross earnings of railways; providing for arbitration boards to settle disputes; relating to the liability of husbands and wives for payment to domestic servants. Wyman's bill appropriating $60,000 to meet the university deficiency was passed.

In the house bills were introduced abolishing capital punishment; regulating the manufacture and sale of spices; to provide uniform charges for telephone services; to regulate the sale of liquor in quantity of five gallons or more. Henry Fulz wanted his bill for the forfeiture of the land grants of the Minneapolis & St. Cloud railroad recalled from the committee on railroads and referred to the committee on public lands, and it was so arranged.

At noon both branches met in the hall of representatives for the senatorial election. Gov. Nelson was elected on the first ballot.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 24—The proceedings in the senate were of a routine character. Senator Lloyd introduced a bill having special reference to the receiving of deposits by the officers of insolvent bank and institutions, and where this is done a punishment of 10 years in the state's prison or a fine of $10,000 is provided. Other bills were introduced to provide for the distruction of the Russian thistle; to prohibit the sale of liquor to minors; to appropriate $5,000 for state camping grounds in Wabasha county; to appoint a state mining inspector; to amend the law on holding annual town meetings. A committee of five on building and loan associations was appointed.

In the house a squabble occurred over the bill appropriating $60,000 to cover deficit of the state University. Some wanted to rush it through but Underwood and Jacobson opposed and the measure was sent to the committee. Bills were introduced prohibiting the transfer of liquor licenses; relating to the erection of elevators at terminal points, Provides for the submission of a constitutional amendment to a vote of the people; amending the law relating to appeal from county supervision in road matters.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 25.—Senator Day was elected president pro tem and there is no question that he will succeed Mr. Clough as lieutenant governor when Gov. Nelson resigns. Bills were introduced to appoint a commission to inquire into the purchase of the capitol site; to appropriate $250,000 to take up revenue and building bonds of 1889; amending the laws regarding mechanics liens; to prohibit the establishment of pest houses in cities; to regulate the declaring of dividends by financial institutions; to transfer the school text book fund to the revenue fund. The bill to legalize the acts of villages relating to money for roads was passed under suspension of rules.

In the house bills were introduced to amend the laws relating to chattel mortgages, notices and service; to authorize the examination of parties before trial; to prevent the spread of noxious weeds from empty freight cars; to amend existing laws relating to township assessors; to appropriate money for the purchase of safe and fixtures for state treasurer; prohibiting clauses or conditions in fire insurance policies. The bill to suspend issuance of mineral leases and contracts on state lands was passed under suspension of rules. The senate bill appropriating money for the university deficiency was passed.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 26.—The senate held no session today. The house was in session only 40 minutes. Bills were introduced regulating child labor in factories. It prohibits the employment of children under 14 years of age at any kind of labor outside of that provided at their homes by their parents. Children under 16 who cannot read and write English cannot be employed except during school vacation. One bill proposes a constitutional amendment to allow a specific tax on mine products. The other important bill was introduced by Mr. Lee, which proposes to regulate the sale of immitation butter.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 28.—The senate met at 8 p. m., introduced a few bills and then went home for the night. Senator Thorpe's bill provides that saloons shall not use screens or anything that will prevent the public from seeing who are taking drinks. Senator Greer sent up a bill providing for an appellate court, while Ozmun's bill provides for the perfecting of judgments within 30 days after findings are filed.

The judiciary committee reported the passing of S. F. 71, relating to the inspection of state boilers, and on motion of Senator Howard the rules were suspended and the bill had its final passage.

The committee on state normal schools reported back S. F. 30, a bill to establish a state normal school at Duluth.

Representatives were paid at the rate of about $3 per hour for the day's work this morning. The house was in session considerably less than two hours, and during that time did nothing more than to introduce the usual grist of bills and to pass the joint resolutions of Senator Frank Day, relating to the Patterson bill, now being considered by the United States senate. The Patterson bill is a measure introduced in congress in the interest of railroads, and by it the interstate commerce act is so modified that in all cases where complaint is made by a shipper the burden of proof is thrown upon him instead of the road. The resolutions besought the senate to forbear passing the measure, and was passed by the house by an unanimous vote.

JUST TEN YEARS

Since a Remarkable Happening.

An Interesting Interview With a Prominent Commercial Traveller.

The newsgatherer on his daily search for items of interest often comes across happenings of more than passing note. It was during a recent conversation with Mr. A. H. Cransby, the well-known commercial traveller, with the Cochran Lumber Company, that a reporter of the Commercial learned of a wonderful case. Mr. Cransby is well known in Memphis and surrounding country, and now resides at 158 Kerr street.

"Just ten years ago," said he, "my wife noticed a small lump in her breast. She thought nothing of it, but it increased in size rapidly, and soon broke through the skin, and commenced to discharge. She was put under treatment of the best physicians, but they very soon found that they could do her no good, and simply prescribed antiseptics to keep the place clean. Both her grandmother and aunt, by the way, had died with cancer, and when apprised of this fact, the doctors told me that they would not attempt to save her; that she was incurable. Although the cancer had by this time become deep seated, and her health very low, I had one of the most noted specialists of New York to treat her. After treating her awhile, this doctor admitted that the case was hopeless and further treatment useless. It is difficult to imagine how despondent we all became, knowing that she must die, and unable to give her any relief. I had spent over five hundred dollars with the best medical skill to be had, and felt that there was no further hope.

"One day I happened to read an advertisement of S. S. S., recommending that remedy for cancer, and in view of the failure of the most eminent physicians in the country, I confess I had little faith left in any human agency. However, I purchased a bottle of S. S. S., and to my delight, it seemed to benefit her; after she had taken a couple of bottles, the cancer began to heal, and astonishing as it may seem, a few bottles more cured her entirely. You can probably better understand how remarkable this cure was, when I explain that the cancer had eaten two holes in the breast two inches deep. These healed up entirely, and although ten years have elapsed, not a sign of the disease has ever returned, and we are assured of the permanence of the cure, which we at first doubted.

"I certainly regard S. S. S. as the most wonderful remedy in the world, and it is truly a God-send to those afflicted with this terrible disease. Yes sir," he concluded, "you may be sure that I shall always be grateful to that remedy, for without it my home would now be desolate and my children motherless."—Memphis, Tenn., Commercial.

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

Sympathetic Heart Disease Often Attends It.

The Modern Treatment Consists in Removing the Cause.

(From the Republican, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.)

Mrs. V. Curley, who has resided in Clarence, Iowa, for the past twenty-two years, tells an interesting story of what she considers rescue from premature death. Her narrative is as follows:

"For ten years prior to 1894 I was a constant sufferer from acute stomach trouble. I had all the manifold symptoms of acute dyspepsia, and at times other troubles were present in complication—I did not know what it was to enjoy a meal. No matter how careful I might be as to the quality, quantity and preparation of my food, distress always followed eating. I was despondent and blue. Almost to the point of insanity at times, and would have been glad to die. Often and often I could not sleep. Sympathetic heart trouble set in, and time and again I was obliged to call a doctor in the night to relieve sudden attacks of suffocation which would come on without a moment's warning.

My troubles increased as time wore on, and I spent large sums in doctor bills, being compelled to have medical attendants almost constantly. During 1892 and 1893 it was impossible for me to retain food, and water brashes plagued me. I was reduced to a skeleton. A consultation of physicians was unable to determine just what did ail me. The doctors gave us as their opinion that the probable trouble was ulceration of the coats of the stomach, and held out no hope of recovery. One doctor said: "All I can do to relieve your suffering is by the use of opium.

About this time a friend of mine, Mrs. Symantha Smith, of Glidden, Iowa, told me about the case of Mrs. Thurston, of Oxford Junction, Iowa. This lady said she had been afflicted much the same as I had. She had consulted local physicians without relief, and had gone to Davenport for treatment. Giving up all hope of recovery, she was persuaded by a friend to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The result was almost magical.

I was led to try them from her experience, and before many months I felt better than I had for a dozen years. I am now almost free from trouble, and if through some error of diet I feel badly, this splendid remedy sets me right again. I have regained my strength and am once more in my usual flesh. I sleep well and can eat without distress. I have no doubt that I owe my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I only wish that I had heard of them years ago, thereby saving myself ten years of suffering and much money."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

THAT WAS DIFFERENT.

His Case Was Not Quite So Bad As It Appeared.

He stood at the entrance to a dentist's office and ever and anon he glanced up the stairway, and something like a shiver passed over him. A score of pedestrians observed him and smiled as they passed on, but by and by one halted and said:

"My dear sir, you have my sympathy."

"Thank you."

"I've been right here myself and know how it is."

"Yes."

"I have stood where you stand and felt as you feel."

"You have, eh?"

"But I realized that I must face the inevitable, and so I walked upstairs and had it over with."

"Did he hit you very hard?"

"Hit? How do you mean? It hurt to have the tooth out, of course. Perhaps you've got to have two out?"

"Oh, no—my teeth are all right."

"Then what's the matter?"

"Why, I'm a collector. I've a bill seven years old against this dentist, and last time I was here he said he'd knock my jaw off if I ever came again. Oh, no, I haven't the toothache. I'm just waiting around here to get my sand up and go up and tackle him for four dollars and fifty cents and get out alive."—Detroit Free Press.

Difficulties.

After all, difficulties are but friends in disguise. They come with formidable mien, and to meet them men must summon to their aid every faculty of brain and body; they must make a fight, and whether they win or lose they are the gainers. Success is not always measured as the world measures it, because the men who sometimes fail most signally are those who have met difficulty most courageously. The man who is honest and true to his own convictions of right and duty is never a failure, though the world may write him such. Difficulties decide who is the fittest to bear the heavy responsibilities of life. The men who cringe and yield to them are the failures and are not equal to the task of doing great deeds, nor even to bear the daily round of toil. Difficulties have for their object and end the shaping of man's character, and he who comes through them without losing his courage, who can rejoice in obstacles conquered, and with quiet pulse and more watchful eye await the next, who can truly say, "Sweet are the uses of adversity"—has learned his lesson well. To him the gain has more than compensated for the toil along the way, and any other difficulties which may rise before him will be undreaded and unfeared.—Detroit Free Press.

JOKES OF THE NIGHT.

Blessed jokes of my dreams! Your praises I'd sing.
No mirth can compare to the mirth that you bring.
I've read London Punch from beginning to end,
On all comic papers much money I spend,
But naught that is in them can ever seem bright
Beside the rich jokes that I dream of at night

How I laugh at those jests of my brain when at rest,
The gladdest and merriest, sweetest and best!
And how, when I wake in the morning and try
To call them to mind, oh! how bashful, how shy
They seem, how they scatter and hide out of sight—
Those jokes of my dreamings, those jests of the night!

Take the one that came to me to-day just at dawn:
The cable car turns and remarks to the prawn:
"The crowbar is seasick; but then what of that,
As long as the camel won't wear a silk hat?"
I laughed—why, I laughed till my wife had a fright
For fear I'd go wild from that joke of the night.

And they're all much like that one—elusive enough,
Yet full of facetious, hilarious stuff—
Stuff past comprehension, stuff no man dares tell;
For nocturnal jests, e'en told ever so well—
'Tis odd it should be so—are not often bright,
Except to the dreamer who dreams them at night.

HER SOLEMN PROMISE.

"THIRTY years," she said—"why, it's more than a generation, half a lifetime. It seems impossible."

"Yes, thirty years. It seems that you are much more interested in those dead soldiers than you are in me. I asked you a question, and you don't deign to reply."

"Well," she smiled, "didn't we come down to see the old battlefield? That was the year you were born, wasn't it, Carroll? O pardon me, you did ask me something. But I was distracted by the surroundings."

And he was appeased.

"If you could only care enough for me, Lila. If I could only feel that no one would step in and win away your heart. Yes, I'd go. I'd give up this wretched theatrical business and go down there to the mines. But I know what pressure would be brought to bear on you. The admiral is getting old; he wants to see you married and settled and your fortune secured to you. O, Lila, I haven't much heart."

"You haven't?" she laughed, saucily. "Dear me! One would think so from this stolen ride of ours! You are very sage, dear, about my aunt and uncle. But, nevertheless, there is more grit in me than you imagine. Drop the stage forever. Go to Mexico, and don't fear but I'll be faithful till you return. Why, I'm barely eighteen. And I'll go in for art to fill the time. I'll take to painting; yes, I will — desperately, dear."

"A promise, solemn or otherwise," said the girl. "I keep all my promises."

When they parted that afternoon he had her promise, and he decided to return to Baltimore at once and make arrangements to go to Mexico.

Lila Havens went on alone to the friends she was to visit at Sharpsburg.

"We expected you this morning," said her hostess.

"Yes, dear. But you see I was unavoidably delayed. What a lovely day it has been."

"And there is a telegram for you, Lila."

"Really? Something aunt forgot to mention, I dare say. Excuse me." She broke it open carelessly. "Dear me!" She puckered her brow. "Only fancy! The admiral is coming down here to-morrow."

"My dear Lila," he said, "I must have a little talk with you."

"Yes, uncle."

"Lila, my dear"—they were quite alone—"I have had a proposal for your hand in marriage. If I had chosen the man I could not be better pleased. It will give me great happiness to see you the wife of Judge Mason."

"Uncle! He is more than twice my age. I never dreamed of it."

"He is a young man, my dear, a vigorous young man. He will idolize you. You knew he admired you."

"He is a widower."

"But his only daughter is married."

"O, uncle, it—it is out of the question."

"My dear, you give me great cause for apprehension. It will disappoint me terribly if you do not accept him."

"But, uncle, I am but eighteen. Why should I marry for five or six years yet? Ill never be young but once—never," she said, pathetically. "And I am not a penniless creature that requires a home. I might be allowed to pick and choose."

"My dear." The old man looked suddenly grave and pale. "There is bad news; you must make up your mind to meet it bravely."

Lila's face reflected some of the paleness of his own.

"Uncle—my—my money? Have I lost it?"

"There has been a terrible financial failure. I hardly know how to tell you. We only heard yesterday and we don't know for sure yet. I am afraid —Lila—you must bear up—I am afraid you have lost nearly all you had."

The girl leaned back in her chair. There was a stunned look in her face. She did not speak. The admiral went on speaking more rapidly.

"I can hardly blame myself. It was an undreamed-of thing. Of course, there is a little real estate left you. Heaven knows I wish it had been all in houses. Judge Mason—"

"Oh!" the girl broke in suddenly, "he won't want me now—when he knows I am penniless."

"My child, he came as soon as he knew it."

Lila's visit was ended almost as soon as begun. She went back at once with Admiral Blair.

She went to her room and locked herself in. Then she wrote to Carroll Trainor:

"I am no longer rich. There is no use of an engagement. I have lost everything. Perhaps you will be rich some day, Carroll. If so, you must come and find me."

But she said nothing of Hon. Thomas Mason.

Trainor felt grieved at the tone of her letter. He wrote back reproachfully. She had made a promise. Perhaps she sought to be released from it. If so, he would release her. In her place he would hardly have so written.

But then he was only a man.

The girl's soul sickened within her. A brief note from Trainor told her that he was just leaving for the gulf coast, where he would find a steamship for Vera Cruz. He thought he would never return to the United States.

A great despair came over her. In her sensitive state she felt that he no longer cared for her.

She capitulated and consented to receive Judge Mason's addresses.

Three months had passed. The wedding was to take place the last week of June. Miss Havens was to become Mrs. Thomas Mason.

The wedding invitations were about to be sent out—the wedding day was fixed a fortnight hence. Miss Havens, out on a shopping errand, turned a street corner sharply, and ran against some one. She looked up and grew pale. It was Carroll Trainor.

"You?" she said, faintly.

"You didn't expect to see me? Lila, for heaven's sake is it true? You are going to marry Judge Mason?"

She nodded with an effort. The idea of the marriage to which she had become reconciled, but never enthusiastically disposed, suddenly seemed sickening. Her whole soul revolted.

"YOU!" SHE SAID.

"Carroll!" she gasped. O, Carroll! If there were any escape!"

"Escape? What do you mean? Isn't it your own choosing? Are you being forced into marrying that old widower?"

"I—I—O, you seemed not to want me. And uncle and aunt seemed not to want me. Nobody seemed to want me—except Judge Mason. He was very kind—but I never have loved him. Carroll, if you had not deserted me!"

"I—deserted you! I've just returned from Mexico," said Trainor, "and I'm going back there at once. I've got a splendid chance. It's lonesome for a man to be by himself. The climate is like paradise."

The admiral and his good lady were at the breakfast table.

His morning mail lay before him. He took up the top letter of all and gazed severely at it. The handwriting was Lila's. The letter had been posted the night before. He opened it, read it in silence and passed it to his wife.

"Do not send the invitations," it said, "for I shall not marry Judge Mason. He is a good man, and will understand it was a mistake. I love some one else and have gone away to marry him. We shall spend our honeymoon in a palm-thatched hut in Mexico."

Mrs. Blair could not speak. After a moment's silence the admiral observed: "On the whole, I'm glad the marriage is off. The judge's daughter was greatly opposed. She might have made things unpleasant after a bit."

And still again: "She's a plucky little creature. Lila is—God bless her!"—N. O. Times-Democrat.

In Bondage.

Her eyes were wild, her hair was in disorder, her face was flushed, her hands were clinched. She was a deeply-injured and desperate woman. "Oh, cruel one," she cried, in anguished tones, "I have borne with you too long! You have injured the very foundations of my being. Day by day you have tortured me, and yet I could not bear to give you up. When first we met how your ease and polish attracted me! When you became my own how my friends envied me! But your understanding is too small for my large soul. You are opposed to my advancing myself. You have injured my standing in society. If we had never met I might have walked in peace. So now begone! We part forever." There was a moment of convulsive breathing, a gritting of teeth and a sharp sigh. It was all over. By a supreme effort she had pulled off her new shoe.—Judge.

He Carried the Basket.

Men who have been married ten or a dozen years are too seldom famous for extreme courtesy to their better halves; but sometimes they are, nevertheless, very "thoughtful."

That was the case with Mr. Silas Perkins, who took his wife with him to the Pike county fair. Mrs. Perkins had on her arm a basket containing the dinner and supper for the pair.

The crowd grew dense, and Mr. and Mrs. Perkins began to be jostled a good deal.

"Here, give me that basket, Sairey," said Mr. Perkins.

"That's reel kind of you, Silas," said Mrs. Perkins, giving up the basket.

"Kind of me!" exclaimed Mr. Perkins, resenting the insinuation. "Gosh! I was afraid you'd git lost!"—Youth's Companion.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Regarding Prison Labor.

The committee from the Trades and Labor Federation have formulated a measure dealing with the subject of prison labor. The principal object of the bill is the abrogation of the present labor contract now held by a shoe manufacturing firm of St. Paul, and in this the measure has the indorsement of other manufacturers, who are injured by it, as well as the labor advocates. The bill will provide that all convicts in any penal institution whatsoever who are employed while imprisoned, shall so far as practicable, be made to do their work by hand, and thus be enabled to learn thoroughly some suitable trade. It will provide a greater diversity of work and less men in each department, thereby lessening to a great extent the present conflict with free labor must be labeled appropriately and distinctly.

The bill in no manner conflicts with the manufacture of binding twine as at present carried on at Stillwater.

Prison Labor.

Representatives of the shoe manufacturers and members of the Shoemakers' unions of the Twin Cities met at St. Paul and discussed with several members of the legislature the proposed measure for the abolishment of contract labor at the state prison. The measure provides that no new contracts shall be made after the expiration of those now in force and that the products made by prisoners on state account shall be used as far as possible in state institutions, the remainder to be sold in open market. It further provides that the number of prisoners to be employed in the manufacture of any product shall not exceed one-twentieth of the number employed as free labor in the manufacture of the same product in the state.

Big Rush.

The Duluth land office had the biggest rush in several months. One hundred and fifty men and two women part cipated in it and the police had their hands full keeping them in order. The township opened for settlement was 68-19, whose northerly border is about two miles south of Lake Namekon, through which boats on the gold field run. The Ash river runs through the town, which is well timbered in parts. It was on account of this timber that the rush was made, but only 35 were able to get what they want.

Poultry Show.

The most successful poultry show ever held in the Northwest closed at Minneapolis the 24th, and the ninth annual exhibit of the Minnesota Poultry Association was over. In all respects the officers of the association are gratified at the success they have met. The exhibits were numerous and uniformly good, the judges gave universal satisfaction in their markings, the attendance was excellent throughout the week, and consequently the finances are in good shape.

HOW I MADE $1,200

By not sowing Salzer's seeds! That is what a jolly farmer said as he entered our sanctum. How is that? Why, says he, Salzer's seeds not only grow but they produce enormously. Had I planted a few acres more of his oats, wheat, corn, potatoes, grass and clover seeds, I would have had to double the capacity of my barns; that would have cost me $1,200. It is a fact that if you want big, rousing farm, grass and vegetable crops, you must sow Salzer's seeds. IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 7c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed company, La Crosse, Wis., you will get free a sample of GRASS AND CLOVER MIXTURE and their plant and seed catalogue. [K]

THERE is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. # GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the stomach and liver, rousing the organs to healthful activity as well as purifying and enriching the blood. By such means the stomach and the nerves are supplied with pure blood; they will not do duty without it any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or pepsin—the stomach must do its own work in its own way. Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, it is better to go to the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve cells on the food they require. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness and Nervous Affections, such as sleeplessness and weak, nervous feelings are completely cured by the "Discovery." It puts on healthy flesh, brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the whole system.

Mrs. K. HENKE, of No. 806 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful. Since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief.

—The State of Minnesota vs. Simon Matzko, Paulina Matzko complaining witness, before Justice Walter, on Tuesday, M. A. O'Hair prosecuting attorney, resulted in binding Simon over to appear at the June term of District Court.

—S. H. Dyer, an old Delano resident, now of Excelsior, is a member of the jury engaged in trying Harry Hayward, at Minneapolis, for the murder of Miss Catherine Ging. Sawin will, doubtless, render justice in the case so far as he can.

—Some time ago we informed our readers that Mr. Gutzwiller had traded for a third street residence; got a cage and perhaps would have the bird by spring. Things, according to reports, are progressing favorably as could be expected. The course of true love never did run smooth." But it is told on good authority that he attended the theater in Minneapolis, not alone, a few days since. He must be growing brave. Perhaps he will, yet, settle down and become a solid citizen.

—The Lineau Concert Combination gave an entertainment at the City Hall, to a well filled house, on Wednesday evening. The audience appreciated every number. Tortorelli and his harp received the first encore, and responded finely. Mr. James W. Evans, in his impersonations of character, made some decidedly good hits; one was in showing a young frequenter of saloons, and then by rearranging his toilet, or rather disarranging it, showing the same man twenty-five years later in life. Those people forty years of age in the audience can recall many living examples, as bad as Mr. Evens' representation that have occurred, right in our midst; and some of the subjects were present at the hall; to such the lesson was lost; but to many a young man the shot hit the bull's eye.

—Save up your copies of the Farm Journal and at the end of the year you will have a book on farming which you would not care to part with.

—J. S. Cooper has at last received his winter outfit for delivering oil; and now goes on runners. He must earn all he gets out of his bargain at present rates.

—The GAZETTE had hardly made its appearance on the street last Friday before a small boy came rushing into the office to enquire, "Who is Mother Grundy?

—Phil Martin is the possessor of a pair of heels, he claims stood the march through "dixie land" and served him through several battles, in a creditable manner; but one of them drew the line at "making ice."

—The High School pupils have been writing on state questions in several of their studies this week. Some of them they considered quite difficult. Keep at it. "It at first you don't succeed try, try again.

—Another saloon row was examined into on Tuesday evening by Justice Walter. The Squire seems to be getting on his mettle concerning disturbances of the peace. It is about time something was being done to quiet the title our village has received.

—The village marshal and constables put in a share of Tuesday night, while the thermometer was down among the twenties dodging around the hotels and depot trying to keep in view a quartette of suspicious looking and acting individuals. They did not succeed however.

—J. S. Cooper tells us he has delivered waterwhite for the two months he has been engaged in the business as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| December, | in outside towns, | no gals, | 2919 |
| " | in Delano, | " " | 1695 |
| January, | in outside towns | " " | 2546 |
| " | in Delano, | " " | 1548 |

—Coasting is fine sport, and the young folks are now enjoying the moonlight nights to the full extent of their ability to do so. The White hill makes a good place to slide, the sleds going across the bridge; but a guard should be placed at every crossing to see that teams or pedestrians are not run into.

—Farmers are paying their small debts with hay, wood, etc., etc. This is good as far as it goes: but it is no more current for the town folks to do business with than the silver is for the President to pay off the gold bearing bond. Still a surplus of this kind of money has not accumulated here; we would receive a number of cords of good wood, at market prices on subscription.

—The defaulting Treasurer of South Dakota failed to be captured as easily as some of his sanguine followers thought he would be. His bondsmen are obliged to make good the deficiency; and it is said that several respectable citizens will lose all their property on account of the sins of the defaulter. Since hearing of so many cases of this kind; and being nipped a little themselves several of our citizens would not go anybody's bonds for love or money now.

—Among the many evils to which people are obliged to listen on the streets none, perhaps, shock the nerves of respectable people more than to hear men who think themselves some better than the average, pour forth a string of swear words. If these same men should go home and hear their wives or children use the same expressions they would hang their heads for shame: or indignantly reprimand them for so doing. Don't do yourselves what you would not care to have others do in your presence; if you can help it.

—We are in receipt of a few sample copies of The Farmer's Journal, which we have been distributing where they were supposed to be appreciated, and to do us most good. If you haven't got one, write to The Farmers Journal, Philadelphia Penn., and you will soon have one. The Journal comes monthly at 50 cents per year. All farmer; politics left out. To subscribers paid up and one year in advance for the GAZETTE, we will have the Farm Journal sent FREE for one year, if advantgae of this offer is taken before February 22. New subscribers paying one year in advance can have both papers for the price of the GAZETTE for one year. Now is your time to get agood Farm Journal, which every farmer needs.

BUFFALO GAZETTE $1.00 per year.

School Notes

This is examination week and all the scholars are busy.

Some of the pupils utilized the hill last week by coasting. A very pleasant time was passed considering the temperature of atmosphere.

One of the Civics class vainly imagines that "Magna Charta" is a part of a state constitution.

The club met as usual last Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Leavens. There was a full attendance and an excellent program.

Mrs. Leavens read three chapters of Ivan hoe. We are now in a very interesting part of the book.

Mr. Freeman rendered "Sebastapool" and the "Spanish Fandango" on his guitar.

Mr. Davies gave us a Scotch recitation which was very entertaining. He also rendered a song.

After refreshments we had a "Family Row" and then adjourned. Many thanks are due Mr. and Mrs. Leavens for the pleasant time passed.

Owing to a conflict on the program, the civics class will take their examinations Saturday. This far the examinations have not been very severe. The eighth grade scholars are passing through their "first agony."

There are several victims of the million stamps fraud among the girls at school.

Our high school is gradually increasing. We now have another pupil. A JUNIOR.

"The Drive Wheel"

Of trade is success, and this is as true of railways as of business. With this thought in mind it is not difficult to account for the success of The Northwestern Line—The Great Line from the Twin Cities to Chicago. The Northwestern Line does the things that make success. Success is its watchword, and this is an equivelent for palatial train accommodations. Voluntary indorsement of The North-Western Line is spontaneous on the part of every traveler who patronizes it.—The Tribune, Bismark, N. D.

Personals.

Wm. Kubon, of Minneapolis, was in town Tuesday.

Editor Buckley visited the Sawdust City on Saturday.

J. H. Wendell, of Buffalo, was in town a short time Saturday morning.

Elmer Coffin went to St. Peter on Saturday, and returned Wednesday evening.

Dr. J. S. Shrader visited Minneapolis Wednesday; returning in the evening.

Rev. J. W. Powell drove to Watertown last Sunday to his regular appointment.

Mrs. Anna Hitz and son Carl, of St. Paul, came up Thursday on a business trip.

Hattie Johns came home from Howard Lake on Saturday evening. Rather a small miss to travel alone.

Dr. E. E. Shrader and lady, of Watertown, attended the Lieman entertainment in Delano, Wednesday evening.

Handed In.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Zabel visited Bernard Roehl, of Independence, last Saturday.

Fred Hilderbrandt is on the sick list for a couple of weeks,

Miss Minnie Willcutt celebrated her birthday on Tuesday; she can't vote until next time. She will teach the spring term in 79.

August Knukle is chopping cordwood for Wm. Zabel; a two months job.

G. S. Kittock visited John Grulla, in Independence, last Sunday.

August Stoltz has returned home from Watertown, S. D. He will winter at home.

Thoughts Suggested on the Appearance of a Certain Dog in Our Community.

The following communication was handed us this week, for publication:

Can anyone find an animal so faithful and sagacious and so companionable a friend to man as a dog? True we find them even pertinacious in their affections—their love increasing with the almost rough usage their socalled masters have submitted them to. They travel far—and when sent on errands of mercy look so wise as they set out in search of poor benighted wanderers on the snow-clad heights of mountainous Switzerland.

Our great men have found them faithful companions and sharers in their work; we refer to our lofty browed novelist, Walter Scott, whose lovely deerhound never left his master's side. The great Statesman, Bismark condescending to arrange Germany's Empire, with his faithful hund; and not least we have Napoleon whose sterner affection was read by his trusty favorite.

The one dog which draws our attention at this moment is a gentle-eyed setter, our dear Snowball, who numbers with the unemployed in this season; his own wishes being consulted, doubtless he would prefer chasing the duck and retrieving the chicken for his loved master. His only occupation, as we have seen, is to be caressed by the children and grown up people, enjoying his dessert and fruit. He knows, too, where to find a more substantial meal. Arriving at the door of his friend and leaving the snow in the cold, he enters in to seek the last half of his name, to his satisfaction and to theirs.

Public School Report.

The following is the report of the average standings of the pupils of the public school, from Nov. 5 to Dec. 21, 1894. A correct idea of the class average of the High School cannot be given as some pupils are carrying more subjects than others.

A star (*) before the name indicates that the pupil has been neither absent nor tardy.

County Cullings.

Wright county, as usual, was induced to whoop 'er up for the republican Legislature.

Mr. Clement has severed his connections with the Annandale Post, after this it is to be Rank Republican.

The Washburn men didn't seem to have any show in the Legislature from the first. The Wright county Senator, an avowed Washburnite, failed to get his nommee, Mr. French, a clerkship even.

Hon. A. N. Dare, of Elk River, one of our representatives in the Legislature this winter, seems quite an active member; one of his bills already introduced is to have the Pullman cars run on a more accomodating plan, and no tips allowed conductors. And a safe is to be proyided for passenger's valuables.

Among Our Exchanges.

Knute Nelson, who is a native of Norway, is the first foreign born Scandinavian to be elected to a seat in the U. S. Senate, as he was the first to be elected governor of a state. —Litchfield Independent.

P. J. Smalley is just as hard at work raising money to keep up Democratic organization as is our friend Tams Bixby to maintain the Republican party. In the meantime, Knute Nelson, Pat Kelly, Dave Clough, Senator Keller, Senatos Stevens, Representative Furlong, and a number of other representative leaders of both parties are strong in the bonds of union. Who wouldn't be true to the party under such leaders?—Midway News.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such people a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will give rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of over, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $3500.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the softer sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

THE House has passed a resolution memorializing Congress to change the election of U. S. Senator to a popular vote of the people.

IN assaulting Mr. Heard, of Mo., for his wife's acts, Mr. Breckenridge has shown his belief in the decision rendered by Judge Otis that the husband is responsible for the wife's doings and sayings.

THE January number of the Market Gardener is at hand. To persons who would like to have good gardens this is a very useful publication. It is printed at Minneapolis by the Market Garden Company, monthly for 50 cts. per year.

THE first number of the Tenth District Printer came to hand this week. It is a neat little paper, bearing the name of H. S Woodward, Editor; is printed in Minneapolis in the interest of organized labor. It is quarterly. This number contains several articles of interest and instruction to the average man of the craft.

SOME of the dailies are claiming that Gentleman Jim Corbett has been giving some of our legislators instructions in prize fighting. If the legislators ever expect to climb the ladder of fame to the Halls of Congress it looks now as if it would be necessary to know something about the manly art.

COL. W. E. HASKELL, of the Minneapolis Times proposes to issue a mammoth Northwestern paper of 48 pages, containing accurate information about Minnesota, and North and South Dakota, from more than a hundred contributors. This is to be shipped direct to England, for free distribution among the middle people; the most intelligent of the agricultural classes. The polling lists of Scotland, Wales, England and Ireland have been secured and the special number is to be sent to every one appearing on the lists in the agricultural counties. This is a great advertising scheme for the Northwest and bids fair to bring a number of intelligent additions to our agricultural districts not yet settled.

THE sickness of two of the jury and the complete succumbing of S. H. Dyer in the Minneapolis court room, by the foul air caused by the crowded and unventilated room, is another evidence of the insidiousness of disease and even death in its approach. It was said that those in the room knew no difference, but people coming in from the fresh air noticed the foul smell of the gasses and effluvia from hundreds of human bodies: and still there was enough poison in the atmosphere to prostrate a strong man; to cause him to swoon away. Ventilators were put in while the court took a recess from Thursday night till Monday morning, and further trouble of that kind averted. The papers say the ventilators were put in overhead and not, as some of our local authorities want them, under foot.

THE Harry Hayward trial is still drawing crowded houses in Minneapolis. It is one of the most revolting on record. The medical evidence goes to show that the pistol shot killed Miss Ging; and that the fractures in the skull and nose bones were received after death. Blixt testified that he was sent by Hayward to ride with Miss Ging and to kill her. That he shot her while she was looking out trying to see if Harry was coming. That he drove to the place where she was found and raised her feet over the side of the buggy and let her fall, with the laprobe, to the ground. That she struck the wheel and fell on her face and turned on her side, where she was found a few minutes after.

The theory of the defense appears to be that Blixt had an accomplice, but not Harry. That the doctors are mistaken, and that the face was first struck and then the shooting took place. That Blixt did not tell the truth but that he concealed the fact of his having an accomplice and of his identity. Blixt professes to have been converted since the murder, and to have made his peace with God, and says he is now telling the truth.

A TROLLEY car plunged through the open draw of Kinnickinnic Avenue bridge, in Milwaukee at 8:30 A. M., Monday. The motorman, John Kennedy, and two ladies, Miss Antoinette G. Ehlman, kindergarten teacher, and Miss Schmidtkenny, employed at knitting works were killed. Twelve passengers were on board; the others were saved.

CONGRESSMEN Breckenridge, of Ky., and Heard, of Mo., had a "scrap" in the House a few days ago. It is said that the Kentuckian don't like the Heards from Missouri because the lady of the house busied herself about ostracising him from society, and actually withdrew from a gathering because Mr. and Mrs. B. were a part of the company.

THE State Bar Association recommends the revisioh of the Minnesota State Statutes "if it can be done in a proper manner." Of course it can be done in a proper manner. Things can be simplified; and an index made so that lawyers, justices and others interested can find what they are looking for in less time than it takes to read it when found. We are for revision of the statutes.

ACCORDING to a recent decision handed down by Judge Otis, Minnesota law makes a man responsible for the slanders uttered by his wife. It is also unlawful for anyone to charge a man with having been drunk. Public morals are so high in our state as to make it a crime, under the Schaffer law for a man to be drunk, consequently to accuse one of having been on a week's drunken debauch is actionable.

REPUBLICAN papers are now bothering their readers with a lot of stuff about Knute Nelson not being able to get on committees that Washburn would. What of it? The probabilities are that Mr. Nelson's tastes are for different committes. Maybe he would prefer to be on some committee that would be of national importance. Wait and see. We doubt not our new Senator will fare as well as his predecessor.

QUITE a rabies scare has been going on in St. Paul recently. On Dec 2. R. L. Gibbs, auditor of freight receipts of the G. N. R'y., after a brief illness, died. On Jan. 24, Frank Hoshaw, clerk in G. N. general office was stricken and soon died. The disease was recognized as hydrophobia and was similar to that of Mr. Gibbs'. Inquiries were made which resulted in finding that on entering the elevator one day early in November, a strange dog, a nice little black and tan stood shivering about and had bitten, very slightly, both these men, and Miss Margaret Otis, who was in the elevator at the same time. Miss Otis has, as yet, developed no symptoms of the dreadful disease; but has been sent to Paris for treatment by Pasteur.

THE Farm Journal of Philadelphia is the leading monthly farm paper of the United States. It is boiled down, and hits the nail on the head every time. It has over 200,000 subscribers scattered from Maine to Washington and from Michigan to Texas. It is adapted to farmers' needs in all parts of the United States, and is devoted to stock raising, the orchard, the dairy, the garden, poultry, the household, the boys and girls, etc. Its breezy, crisp pages contain as much information in the course of one year as many of the high priced weeklies; while its earnest manly tone and bright common sense way treating farm matters leave a good and lasting taste in one's mouth. The subscription price is 50 cents a year.

The publisher of the GAZETTE will send the Farm Journal, FREE, for one year to all old subscribers paying up their arrearages and one year in advance, before Feb. 22. Washington's birthday; also to new subscribers paying one year in advance before that time. Write to the Farm Journal, Philadelphia, Pa., for samples.

THAT people love to be humbugged is made clear by the fact of their inordinate indulgence in the use of patent medicines. Patent medicine cure-alls are so common that scarcely ever is a doctor called to see a sick person but he must first ascertain what particular remedies the patient has been using. He is called upon first to find out, if he can, under the use of what drug the prevalent symptoms occurred, and which of the many, often, is responsible for the almost dying condition of the patient. He must spend valuable time; perhaps resort to the subterfuge of sending four or five miles to town for a remedy, while those already administered from the family bottle are allowed to exhaust themselves before he dare give anything.

Cupboards are filled with nostroms containing deadly poisons, which are indiscriminately used for old and young. For colds and fevers. For wakefulness and for sleepiness. And some appear to have a place in the home apothecary shop on account of their similarity to intoxicating drinks; which they would not have the public know they cared to use,

Often we hear of persons dying suddenly of heart failure, or some other mysterious cause. Are not many of these sudden deaths the result of poisons administered in too large or too often repeated doses of some medicine purchasee as a cure for all ills on the place, whether in the barn, henhouse or the cradle? Are not many valuable lives cut short by relying on taking what some advertisement in an almanac form has prescribed as a sure cure for indigestion, a bad cold, or other ailment, when, had they consulted a physician, perhaps one or two doses, properly given would have restored their system to its normal condition.

It is first necessary to know what the matter is before administering remedies. What would be good for one trouble often would but serve to aggravate another. It does not depend upon the number of shot that strikes the game, but upon whether one hits a vital part whether your game bag is filled: so it does not depend so much upon the quantity or variety of medicines you take but upon whether you have the proper one for your particular case whether or not you are aided in recovery.

While on the subject there is another great injustice in many cases of suffering humanity, who are called upon to take medicine from a bottle ordered for another member of the family or maybe a stranger who generously offers it as it cured him and he has that much on hand. Or a copy of a prescription will be retained in a neighborhood for years. Those using it don't know what the medicines are or their actions but continue to practice medicine on the community, which goes it blindly. An old bottle will be returned to the drug store and refilled regularly month after month, indefinitely; those getting it filled not remembering what it was first prescribed for, nor what is in it, but everybody is called upon to take it as it is a "sure cure," they don't know for what.

When the matter is looked at in this way is there any wonder that legislators are anxious to have laws made to protect those who don't know enough or are too thoughtless or careless to protect themselves.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 1, 1895.

President Cleveland would much prefer that Congress would pass a bill, either in accordance with the recommendations contained in his special message, or with its own ideas of what ought to be done to enable the government to redeem its promises to pay when presented; but if Congress does nothing, he does not propose to sit idle and see the credit of the government injured by the lack of gold to redeem its notes. He has given Congress a last chance to act, but if such leading members of the Senate as Vest and Sherman do not misjudge the situation, the Senate is tied hand and foot and cannot act, even if the House passes the bill now before the committee on Banking and Currency, which proposes to carry the recommendations of the President into effect. That being the case, it may be set down as certain that President Cleveland and Secretary Carlisle will act. They will issue more bonds to get the gold to redeem the greenbacks and Treasury notes under the specie resumption act of 1875, and the President has said that he would continue to issue bonds as often as gold is required until Congres relieves the situation by legislation.

As President Cleveland and every member of the Cabinet understands and construes the present laws, it is no longer a question of whether one favors the issue of bonds, but of getting gold, which can only be gotten by bonds. Whether Congress authorizes an issue of bonds or not, bonds will be issued. When Congress declines to sanction the issue of bonds it is under the circumstances the act of a coward, inasmuch as it is shirking a responsibility that properly belongs to Congress. Besides, Congress in providing for bonds could accompany it with remedial legislation which would put an end to the gold raid upon the Treasury.

Chairman Wilson is confident that the bill for the differential duty on sugar from countries which pay an export bounty, which passed the House by the very decisive vote of 230 to 31, will pass the Senate and become a law. His confidence is based upon assurances given him by Senators of all parties that they would support the bill and help push it through the Senate.

The National Board of Trade, which held its twenty-fifth annual session in Washington this week, unanimously endorsed President Cleveland's plan for the relief of the Treasury, which is embodied in the financial bill now before the House. This action is regarded as significant. If the National Board of Trade, which, like Congress, is composed of men of different political beliefs and from different sections of the country, can unanimously agree, why cannot Congress do the same. Congress is being deluged with similar endorsements telegraphed by organizations of business men in all sections.

The "drummers' bill", allowing the issue of 5000 mile interchangable railroad tickets at reduced rates, now only needs the President's signature to become a law.

Postmaster General Bissell is the latest Cabinet victim of the weekly resignation rumor. Mr. Bissell has not and never had the slightest idea of resigning, and he is entirely at a loss to know why he should have been selected by those who seem under contract to report an impending resignation from the cabinet at least once a week. Only two members of the Cabinet—Secretaries Lamont and Herbert—have escaped having their names coupled with an alleged contemplated resignation. Unless something which is at this time entirely unexpected shall occur, there is no probability that any member of the Cabinet will retire from office until the President does, on March 4, 1895.

There was little doubt of the final result after the House adopted by a vote of 132 to 121 the special order reported from the committee on Rules for the consideration, and final vote on the Reilley Pacific railroad funding bill, but the debate was spirited and occasionally bitter in the extreme, and words were uttered which left wounds which will rankle for many a day.

There is now every reason to believe that Secretary Gresham's very proper effort to mediate between Mexico and Guatemala will result in a peaceful settlement of the dispute between these two nations, notwithstanding the sneers of that class of republicans who would oppose the Lord's Prayer if it emanated from the administration.

Speaker Crisp has resumed his duties. He says he was greatly benefitted by his short rest.

The Howgate trial opened this week but so far there have been no sensational developments.

The Social Evil.

The young men of the present age should not only read the seventh chapter of Proverbs but they should commit it to memory, so that, wherever they go they shall carry with them the most excellent advice and warning it contains.

The temptations which city life present to young men were never more numerous, never more enticing than now. The business streets of our great cities are lined with the habitations and the resorts of evil men and women whose sole business is the capture and the destruction of their victims. And in nine cases out of ten the young men are the ones that are coveted and caught.

The social evil is seemingly on the increase, and unless good citizens combine against it as they are doing here in Chicago against gambling, it will soon become a menace to our progress as a nation. It is said that there are forty thousand prostitutes in New York city, and there are nearly as many in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, New Orleans, Cincinnati; in fact all our large cities are cursed with this terrible evil, and the worst if it is there is no serious attempt in any of these cities to stamp out the curse.

Young men come to the city for work, they come from the farm and small towns, ignorant of the dangers which shall beset them. They are away from home, strangers in a strange place, the very kind of material for which evil people are looking.

Too often the first steps in the downward career are taken in the saloon. A glass of beer, a few sips of wine and the young man is ready for the bagnio, a place which he might never think of entering while sober. There are thousands of liquor shops in this city where the "strange woman" is "at home" and waiting for her victims. The keepers of these places encourage her for she adds much to the day's profits, and she is regarded as a necessary adjunct to the sale of liquor. The two evils have great affinity for each other and the houses of ill fame that do not sell liquor are the rare exception.

"Can a man take fire in his bosom and not be burned? Can a man go upon hot coals and his feet not be burned?" Neither can a young man lead an immoral life and not suffer in the future. Truly hath the wise man said: "Her house is the way to hell, going down to the chambers of death."

And it came to pass on the first day of the second month, of 1895, that David took the oath of office as Governor of Minnesota, and all the Knuteites said "Amen." Now it is supposed that David will walk in the ways of his fathers and do that which is right in the sight of the Scandinavians, for he is as potter's clay to Knute and to those who put him in power.

Grover sends his gold message to Congress and tells what must be done to save the credit of the nation. The devil walked stealthily in the shadowy bowers of Eden, clothed in the garb of righteousness, approaching our forefathers, temptingly said, "If thou wilt only eat of this tree thou shalt become like gods." And so was introduced the fall of man, of which we have all become partakers.

A casual observer has but to run over the records of Congress during the last thirty years to find out the condition of things. The New York bankers and many of the leading papers say Cleveland has struck the right cord that will bind the nation together; that Congress is now face to face with the national crisis. Cleveland and WallStreet want the non-interest bearing bonds taken up or put out of the way and issue interest bearing bonds, so as to save the credit of the nation and keep up the gold reserve fund. The President hints or says in his message that $500,000,000 of interest bearing bonds, running for 50 years, would tide this country over its present crisis and land us safely on the sunny shores of Elysium and our credit would be maintained. It seems the people must begin to see where we stand and I hope that in '96 there will go up from the camp of Israel a mighty shout backed by the ballot box, "Equal rights to all; special privileges to none." The people must wake up or the money kings will have us bound hand and foot. Yes, I voted for Grover but I have made amends for the offense and been forgiven, under a promise never to do so again. It seems that Congress is getting to be about as much good to the country as a box of monkeys would be. The present state of affairs would put to shame the ghosts of Jackson and Lincoln. It seems the people have been made fools long enough and it is time to get down to business. The question is not who shall be in power but shall the country continue to live and prosper.

Late Literary News.

General Lord Wolseley makes a most important contribution to the literature of the China-Japan war. In an article for the February Cosmopolitan, he discusses the situation and does not mince matters in saying what China must do in this emergency. Two other noted foreign authors contribute interesting articles to this number. Rosita Mauri, the famous Parisian danseuse, gives the history of the ballet and Emile Ollivier tells the story of the fall of Louis Philippe. From every part of the world, drawing and photographs have been obtained of the instruments used to torture poor humanity, and appear as illustrations for a clever article, by Julian Hawthorne, entitled, "Salvation via the Rack." Mrs. Reginald de Koven, Anatole France, W. Clark Russel, Albion W. Tourgee, and William Dean Howells are among the story tellers for the February number of the Cosmopolitan.

"The Drive Wheel" Of trade is success, and this is as true of railways as of business. With this thought in mind it is not difficult to account for the success of The Northwestern Line—The Great Line from the Twin Cities to Chicago. The Northwestern Line does the things that make success. Success is its watchword, and this is an equivalent for palatial train accommodations. Voluntary indorsement of The Northwestern Line is spontaneous on the part of every traveler who patronizes it.—The Tribune, Bismarck, N. D.

"The Other Night" I made a trip from Chicago to St. Paul and Minneapolis with my wife on the famous Northwestern Limited. For the price of a second ticket in an old style sleeping car, I secured in the private Compartment Sleepers, as cosy a little room as was ever built inside a railroad car—not so very little either; it took up the whole width of the car excepting a narrow aisle at the side and had two large berths. I said it was cosy—it was more; it was magnificent, and we spent the evening as comfortably, and with as much privacy as if we had been in our own home. I do not put it too strongly when I say that this train is the personification of Rolling luxury, and that the Northwestern line runs the finest trains for all discriminating Montana travelers to patronize going east via St. Paul and Minneapolis.—The Standard, Anaconda, Mont.

STEEL rails are known to have a short life in tunnels and other closed spaces into which the fumes from locomotives are discharged. This appears to be due to the conversion of the sulphur in coal into sulphuric acid and the subsequent chemical action of the acid upon the steel.

THE Massachusetts highway commission proposes to have trees planted along all the state roads which are constructed. The commission's idea is an excellent one, which should be actualized on prairie roads in this part of the country. Arbor day could not be better employed than by increasing the number of trees planted along all prairie highways.

FOR expenditures for common schools New York comes first, the Empire state paying out $19,111,684 for the support of its public schools; Pennsylvania next, $16,410,907; Illinois third, $14,654,050, and Ohio fourth, $12,180,794. No money is more wisely and economically expended than that for common schools. Ignorance is a much more costly product.

THE trees of the forest are being cut up now with alarming rapidity to make paper, nearly all the newspapers of the day and many books being printed on paper made out of wood pulp. This paper still lacks the firmness and tenacity of paper made out of rags, but it is cheaper and the weak points are being strengthened gradually, so manufacturers claim.

BILL COOK, the famous desperado, is about 5 feet 8 inches in height, rather stocky built, and weighs 165 pounds. In conversation he looks one squarely in the eye and never quails.

THIRTY-THREE fatalities have been reported for the last season in the Alps, which is less than the average. Four persons met their deaths by avalanches of falling stones, six by exposure of the weather, fourteen missed their footing and fell down precipices, three were killed by lightning, one fell into a glacier fissure, one was lost while seeking edelweiss and four cases are unexplained

A NEW carpet for the Waterloo chamber at Windsor castle, said to be the largest ever manufactured, has been woven in the jail of Agra, India, by prisoners undergoing penal servitude. SENATOR PRITCHARD, the new man from North Carolina, who has just taken his seat, is now the youngest man in the senate, being only thirty-seven years of age. Senator-elect Butler of the same state is still younger, so that they will probably be referred to by the frivolous writers as the "North Carolina kids" or the "baby senators from the tar-heel state." Senator Pritchard is in every way a self-made man. He started as a printer's devil, and finally learned how to write squibs for the weekly paper that employed him.

IN eastern cities it is said to be a noticeable fact that many more unmarried business women and women of means are taking out life insurance policies than ever before. "Why not?" said a bright girl to an interviewer the other day. "There are more women than men in our eastern cities, and not much chance for a girl to marry in New York these days. The young men live comfortably on $2,000 a year, and in their clubs, and say with a wife it would only be a change to a cheap flat. Why should not a woman insure and lay up a few dollars for old maid days?"

THE Massachusetts legislature is talking of giving up annual meetings of the legislature and annual elections of state officers. The latter costs about $300,000 a year and the legislature costs more, besides the expense and interruption to business. Massachusetts and Rhode Island are the only states which elect their governors every year. In Massachusetts, however, people hate to relinquish old customs, and the change to biennial elections and legislative sessions may not come very soon; but there is more talk about changing the system every year and the change is sure to come.

THE month of January, 1895, will figure on the records as one of appalling disasters to those who go down to the sea in ships. The average loss of life by wrecks upon the ocean in 1894 was 507 a month, while the record for the month just closed shows 792 fatalities. Among these disasters that which has occurred to the North German Lloyd steamer Elbe is the most terrible. The Elbe, on the morning of January 30, was run into by the steamer Crathie off the Holland coast, between Rottendam and Lowestoft, England, and within twenty minutes the Elbe sank, with a loss of 314 lives.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 30.—During a discussion of the currency question in the senate Mr. Vest said he would follow the president's lead no longer, and bitterly denounced the financial measure proposed by the president. A bill was introduced permitting Associate Justice Jackson, of the supreme court of the United States, to retire on account of ill health. In the house the time was occupied in discussing the Union Pacific railway bill.

THURSDAY, Jan. 31.—Senators Gorman and Hill made strenuous efforts to have the senate take some immediate action on the pressing financial question. Resolutions were passed calling on Secretary Carlisle for information concerning every detail bearing on revenues, reserves, deficiencies, etc. A joint resolution providing for a special election the first Tuesday of October, 1895, to ascertain the will of the people respecting financial matters was introduced by Senator Peffer. In the house the time was occupied in discussing the Pacific railway funding bill.

FRIDAY, Feb. 1.—In the senate the district appropriation bill was taken up again and served as a text for further financial discussion, during which Senator Teller, representing the silver element gave warning of opposition to any financial plan not agreeable to him. In the house, during a debate on a Hawaiian resolution, Congressmen Breckinridge (Ky.) and Heard (Mo.) called each other liars and one blow was struck, when they were arrested and made to apologize. A bill was passed giving the Seventh judicial circuit of the United States, composed of Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, another judge. A resolution was adopted calling on the president for all correspondence and information regarding the alleged aid furnished the rebels in Hawaii by representatives of the British government.

SATURDAY, Feb. 2.—The senate occupied the time in discussing the District of Columbia appropriation bill. Lee Mantle took the oath of office as senator from Montana. In the house the Pacific railroad funding bill was recommitted to the committee on railroads by a vote of 177 to 108, showing an unexpectedly large majority against the measure. A bill to temporarily revive the rank of lieutenant general of the army was passed.

MONDAY, Feb. 4.—The senate passed the house bill for a national military park at Gettysburg. The bill retiring Justice Howell Jackson from the United States supreme court bench was favorably reported. In the house an omnibus bill for the payment of southern war claims to the amount of $718,663 was defeated. Hawaiian correspondence submitted showed that Great Britain had not interfered with affairs of the republic. The appropriation bill providing $21,805,526 for the legislative, executive and judicial expenses of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, was reported.

FROM WASHINGTON.

THE government receipts from all sources during the month of January were $27,804,399 and the expenditures $34,823,447, a deficit for the month of $6,719,048 and for the fiscal year of $34,282,070.

THE fire losses in the United States in January amounted to $10,936,968, against $13,576,485 in January, 1894.

DURING January the coinage at the several mints was: Gold, $3,098,300; silver, $574,000; minor coins, $68,200. Of the silver coined $200,000 was in silver dollars. Since July 1, 1894, the number of silver dollars coined was 3,293,978.

THE public debt statement issued on the 1st shows a net increase in the public debt, less cash in the treasury during January, of $13,542,573. Total cash in the treasury $761,470,382.

THE efforts of the treasury department to negotiate a gold loan in Europe were successful and the new issue of bonds may be for $200,000,000.

IN the United States the visible supply of grain on the 4th was: Wheat, 83,376,000 bushels; corn, 12,720,000 bushels; oats, 7,683,000 bushels; rye, 404,000 bushels; barley, 1,796,000 bushels.

THE EAST.

BY a lamp explosion at Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. Zindlinger and her twin daughters were burned to death.

THE GING MURDER.

The Trial of Harry Hayward is On at Minneapolis.

The State Establishes the Murder and Introduces Blixt, the Accomplice, Who Tells His Part in the Bloody Deed.

The evidence in the Hayward trial reached the summit of gastliness the 4th. Human skulls, cross sectioned, and intact, were very much in evidence throughout the day. They were used as illustrations in the course of cranial anatomy in which the jurors were instructed. By means of them the twelve men were shown the general bone structure of the human head, the course taken by the bullet that killed Catherine Ging and the nature and extent of the fractures on the sides of the murdered woman's head. With them, too, the effects of blows and fractures in general were explained at length. The learned counsel for the defense did not content himself with direct fractures, but went deeply into the possibilities of contre coups and the effects upon the skull and the brain of blows given directly and obliquely.

The object of it all was this: The state seeks to prove that the death of Catherine Ging was caused by the bullet fired from the revolver held by Claus Blixt. The state obtaining that statement from the witnesses without difficulty, is not prone to push the anatomical investigation very far until the defense by so doing forces the state to follow suit. The defense probes deeply into the matters anatomical because it is seeking to show that the two fractures on the front of the skull of the murdered woman were made by a a heavy instrument, the "T" rail, before the shot that penetrated her brain was fired. The defense admits that the shot through the brain was necessarily fatal, but if it can be shown that death or insensibility was caused by the blows which produced the fractures, Blixt's confession and testimony making no allusion to the use of an weapon but the revolver, will be discredited in the minds of the jury. Thus will be opened a way for the all important reasonable doubt. To defeat the efforts of the defense in this direction the state endeavored to show by the witnesses that the body falling from the buggy might have resulted in the fractures and injuries to the face.

The witnesses were the ex-deputy coroner, Dr, Louis A. Nippert; Dr. William Russell, who inspected the body where it was found; Dr. R. J. Hill, who assisted Dr. Nippert in the autopsy, and Harry Gilbert, an employe of Gooseman's livery stable.

The most dramatic scene that has ever occurred in a court room in Hennepin county was enacted the 5th when Claus A Blixt, the self-confessed slayer of Catherine Ging, was placed on the stand, by the state to the surprise of everybody.

Few eyes glanced toward Harry Hayward as the name was pronounced, but those which did failed to see any start or blanching of the cheek. Instead there was a slight sneer as the handsome young man looked at his accuser and then he settled himself in his seat to hear his sensational recital.

Blixt told his story in a clear voice, plainer than the majority of the witnesses who have been on the stand. He was cool and collected, although at times his fingers worked nervously as his hands were clasped in his lap. He told how Harry had outlined his various plans, how he had cut the T rail for him (an old, rusty motor line rail, much smaller than a railroad rail) by heating it in the furnace and then cutting it with an axe; how Harry had plied him with liquor on the fateful night, and then of that trip on the lonely road. He kept to his original tale, but gave a new reason for his doing the deed.

Harry, he said, had threatened him, but he refused to do the work, then finally Harry had threatened to kill his (Blixt's) wife if he did not comply with his request. Then at last he consented, afraid that Hayward would carry out threat, Harry had told him that he had already killed two men and didn't care whom he killed to further his plans. At this point Blixt, whose voice had been growing shaky while speaking of his wife, broke down and sobbed like a child.

The recital of the killing was dramatic. Blixt, as he told the story, illustrated it by giving motions with his bony and hands, and after he had closed with the fall of the body, and the passing of the wheel over it, there was silence for a moment, and then a great sigh went up from the audience. At last it had been moved to actual feeling. Blixt said he could have shot her 10 times before he did. She kept leaning out of the buggy looking for her lover, who had promised to follow them. Once he thought he would stop the rig, leave it and her, and fly the country to escape Harry, but then he thought of his wife, who would be left behind, and he feared for her, and carried out the work. As she leaned forward, he shot her. The body stiffened back, and raised up slightly, its head going agaiust the back curtain. The speaker illustrated it by stiffening his own body as he closed his eyes to show how she looked. Then he acted the scene again as he told how he had taken the robe and placed about her, and then placed his arm and hand against the form at a point above his head to keep her in position.

At what point he shot her, on the road, he could not say. He knew that he drove on about 25 yards, and then about and drove toward town. Finally he began to think he was getting too near town. He was almost palsied by fear with the spectral body covered with the goat skin robe, by his side. In a few minutes he would be in the city with his bloody companion. He must get rid of it. He reached down, took the feet in his hands and slid them over the side. They slid out and the body toppled over face forward from his side, and slid to the ground. The horse started, the wheel bumbed over the body where it lay, and he sped away toward the city. As he told his story he pushed his feet over the little platform where he was sitting, leaned his body forward, and gave a lurch, illustrating how the boey fell.

From that he told how he had driven on Lake street, to a point about three blocks beyond Hennepin, and there left the buggy, walking up the Hastings & Dakota track. He told of his going out to Bloomington avenue to collect a loan, then to Washington avenue, where he shook dice in a saloon and had two glasses of beer, then home to the Ozark, where he took the cartridges from the revolver in Harry's bath room and placed in others, burning the former ones in the furnace. Then he went to bed, where Harry saw him later.

The testimony was minute in the smallest details, even to telling little conversations not material. He related how he had soldered a gold watch in a tin can for Harry, and hid it in an old white lead keg in the attic, from where Harry removed it. According to his story, Harry had told him that he had caused Miss Ging to go riding, to frequent places with other men, among other places St. Paul, so that suspicion might be thrown from him. All in all, it was seemingly a story impossible for the man like Blixt to conceive unless it actually occurred.

When the revolver was produced there was another dramatic scene in which Mr. Erwin figured. No one could extract the chambers from the revolver. Harry took it, Mr. Erwin holding it in his hand at the same time, and instinctively there was a movement of nervousness in the audience. A deputy stood close to him, ever watchful. The cartridges fell out on the floor, and Harry cut his finger on the weapon.

Blixt was a revelation. He had made a good witness in the morning, but it was in the afternoon, at the battle of cross-questioning, that he shone out, separate and distinct from the ordinary run of witnesses, even throwing in the shade the expert witnesses for the state. When he took the stand in the morning, there had been some little fear as to how he would bear the ordeal. He was a surprise. When he took the stand in the afternoon the room was a mass, a perfect sea of faces, and all, every one of them, were focused upon that gray looking visage on the raised seat near the judge, his head outlined against the thick white frost on the window pane back of him. It would not have been wonderful if he had quailed under the ordeal, but he did not.

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 29.—In the senate the Smith-Probstfield contest was decided by allowing Senator Smith to retain his seat. A large number of bills were introduced, the principal ones being: To require all officers to make a detailed report of fees collected; to authorize townships to issue bonds for the construction of fences to keep out Russian thistles; to prohibit pool selling; to determine liability of fire insurance companies; to provide for the examination of persons desirous of teaching in public schools; fixing punishment for counterfeiting trade marks and trade labels; relating to legal publications in newspapers and affidavits thereof.

In the house during the morning hour the contest for reading clerk was spirited and was decided on the fourth ballot in favor of Robert Deakin, of St. Paul. The most important bill introduced was the one to transfer $250,000 from the general fund to the capitol fund, to aid in setting on foot the building of a new capitol. Another bill of importance was one for the creation of a state mineral land agent. Other bills were introduced, prohibiting the sale of liquor within a mile of the state fair grounds; to prevent pool selling or book making; to establish a premium for the use of broad wagon tires. Mr. Gutterson presented a joint memorial recommending the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people, which was passed under suspension of the rules without a negative vote.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 30.—Both branches were content with routine work today. In the senate the usual batch of new bills were introduced. Senator Morgan introduced a bill prohibiting members of the railroad commission from being stockholders in common carriers. Other bills were introduced, proposing a constitutional amendment relating to taking private property under execution; requiring county treasurers to mail proper notices of amount of taxes due by delinquents; amending the medical practice act. The bills transferring the school text book fund to the revenue fund; to appropriate money to meet deficiencies of the state, and the bill to appropriate money to pay the seed grain notes issued by the governor were passed under suspension of rules.

In the house Sutton's resolutions to investigate the work of the pine land investigating committee were taken up and after some discussion were laid on the table. The bill to bond villages was postponed indefinitely. The following bills were introduced: To provide for a state historical museum; for the publication of official election ballots for county and state; for the protection of property of passengers in sleeping cars and regulating fares charged by sleeping car companies; to amend existing laws relating to publication of the delinquent tax list. The speaker announced that the following gentlemen had been appointed by him according to the resolution introduced by Mr. Feig, providing for the investigation of charges that interest on public moneys had been retained by public officials: Feig, Lovejoy, Gibbs, Warner, Douglas. The bill repealing the capitol bill was voted down in committee without discussion.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 31.—The senate did very little beside routine work. A few bills were introduced the principal ones being: Relating to the sale of baking powders; requiring registers of deeds to report on lands acquired by certain corporators; to amend the code relating to the employment of minors around saloons; to legalize laidout highways; to amend the code relating to indecent assault on women. Thorpe's resolution asking congress to pass a bankruptcy bill was passen. The afternoon was spent in committee of the whole. The bill for the compilation of general laws was recommended for passage.

In the house three bills were passed. They are relating to election of county commissioners in Aitkin county; amending the laws relating to wolf bounties and the bill prohibiting the aiming of fire arms. The bill prohibiting the establisament of pest houses in certain cases and the bill regulating the powers of park commissioners were recommended to pass Bills were introduced: to promote practical forestry; to amend the constitution so that the permanent school fund may be loaned to aid in the erection of school houses; making barbed wire fences legal fences

ST. PAUL, Feb. 1.—In the senate Fuller introduced a bill for the better protection of the owner of logs and senator Knatvold presented a bill for the regulation of freight on ores. Another bill for the promotion of forestry was presented. The following bills were passed: concerning mutilated and lost village bonds, relating to weights and measures; legalizing the compilation of the general laws of the state.

Gov. Clough will approve of Senator Jones' joint resolution in favor of the appointment of a Northwestern interstate commission to agree upon some legislation for the suppression of the Russian thistle. It is understood he will appoint Senator Jones and Representative Reeves to represent the state in the conference.

In the house bills were introduced to provide for the treatment of inebriates by counties; to establish a normal school at Crookston; to provide for the collection of taxes on real estate by installment; to provide for the deposit in court of effects on which there are adverse claims; to amend the law relating to the recording of chattel mortgages, conditional notes seed grain notes etc. In the afternoon the following bills were passed: a mending the laws relating to the sale of tobacco; regulating and defining the powers of park commissioners and the bill prohibiting the establishment of pest houses in certain cases. The committee on elections, through its chairman, J. D. Jones, presented a report in the Allen-Furlong contest in favor of Mr. Furlong.

The house adjourned until Tuesday.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 4.—The Senate held a short session in the evening and after introducing a few bills adjourned. The bills are to legalize the record of certain deeds and mortgages; to prevent debtors from giving preference to creditors and secure an equal distribution of assets; to provide for the punishment of persons injuring or destroying dams, booms, etc. Defining the liability of fire insurance companies in certain cases. Abolishes the co-insurers' clause and makes the face of the policy prima facie as to the value of property destroyed in case of total loss.

THROUGH AN OPEN DRAW.

A Milwaukee Trolley Car Plunges Into the River—Three Persons Drowned.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 6.—A trolley car of the Russell avenue and Holton street line plunged through the open draw of the Kinnickinnick avenue bridge at 8:30 Monday morning, carrying three people down to death in the icy waters of the river. Six others were rescued from the partly-submerged car.

The dead were: Mrs. Antoinette G. Ehlman, a kindergarten teacher in the twelfth district primary school and a daughter of Prof. Ehlman, director of music in the public schools; John Kennedy, motorman; Miss Schmidtkuntz, employed at National Knitting works.

From all accounts the accident seems to have clearly been due to the carelessness of the motorman, John Kennedy, but he stuck to his post in a vain endeavor to stop the car, which he had permitted to approach too near the open draw, and paid the penalty of his carelessness with his life.

Russell avenue and Holton street car No. 145, south bound, was speeding up Kinnickinnick avenue about 8:30 o'clock with twelve passengers aboard. Rolling along at a fair speed, when not more than ten or twelve feet from the bridge Conductor Peterson, who is said to have been in service only a short time, rang the bell to stop. Instantly the passengers became alive to the fact that something was wrong, and, looking out, saw that the open bridge was almost at hand and no brakes had been applied.

At the sound of the bell the motorman grasped the brake crank and twisted it with all his strength. But the wheels slipped, there was no time to reach for sand and the helpless passengers realized that no power on earth could prevent them from plunging headlong into the yawning gulf of icy waters.

Wild shrieks from the four women passengers intermingled with the gasps of the pale-faced men. There was no time to plan. The rear door was the only means of escape offered. The men on the rear end, two or three, including the conductor, had already jumped. William P. Severely was the first to reach the door. He had occupied the front seat at the window and had seen the bridge open shortly after the railroad crossing had been passed. He needed not the warning bell of the conductor to notify him of the danger. He was the first to bound forward and reach the handle of the rear door. But he never opened it. The instant he touched it the forward end went down and he, together with the terror-stricken passengers who were crowding behind him, was thrown to the front.

A heavy crash followed as the ice was struck and then the car gradually sank midway into the water. The fire was instantly quenched and the passengers entirely submerged. The two ladies who met their death must have been at the very bottom and were probably instantly suffocated, as their bodies show no signs of bruises.

ROBBED A BANK.

FREMONT, O., Feb. 6.—Five masked men entered the town of Milan during the night, and at 4 o'clock Monday morning blew open the vault in the Lockwood bank. The explosion was so great that it wrecked the building in which the bank was located and awakened the entire population. The citizens poured into the streets in time to see the thieves drive off in a buggy toward Sandusky, where two of them are reported under arrest.

The safe and vaults were blown open by dynamite, making a complete wreck of them and the office. They took some $15,000 in cash and $10,000 in government, Nickel Plate and Sandusky, Milan and Norwalk electric railway bonds.

Cashier L. L. Stoddard, who lives over the bank, was awakened by a heavy explosion, and instantly divined its source and meaning. Without waiting to don his clothing Mr. Stoddard rushed down stairs. At the front entrance of the bank he was confronted by three masked men, who followed an order for the cashier to halt by a volley from their revolvers. Nothing daunted by the odds against him Stoddard opened fire with his own gun. Several shots were exchanged, with no other effect than to arouse the sleeping citizens of the little town, and in ten minutes fifty men were in pursuit of the robbers, who had been reinforced by two confederates who had escaped from the rear of the bank. On the outskirts of the town the burglars entered a livery carriage which they had in waiting and started towards Sandusky. The pursuers were left in the rear, but continued on their way to Sandusky, and on arriving there soon found and identified the horse and buggy hired by the robbers.

DEATH IN THE CONFESSIONAL

Sensational Suicide of Miss Catherine Morrison in a New York Church.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—It was a few minutes before 6 o'clock Friday evening when two women in the Church of the Epiphany on Second avenue heard the sound of a body falling, followed by groans and gasps from a confessional box in the southeast corner of the church. One woman summoned the assistant sexton, who hurried into the church and opening the confessional found lying in a heap, with blood flowing from her right wrist and throat, the almost lifeless body of a young woman. A doctor was called, who saw that the woman's condition was hopeless, and twenty minutes after the discovery she was dead. In a pool of blood in the confessional was found an old-fashioned razor. With this she had almost severed one of her hands, and her throat had been cut from ear to ear. From letters found in her pocket it was learned that she was Catherine Morrison, of 179 East One Hundred and Eighth street.

He Is Released.

DANVILLE, Ill., Feb. 5.—Charles Keler, of Chicago, a director of the American Railway union, was released by Judge Bookwalter Monday from the county jail, where he has been confined since last October. He was fined at that time $100 for urging the local American Railway union lodge to pass boycott resolutions against the grocery firm of Ralston & Angie. He was unable to pay the fine and in default thereof was placed in jail.

Gold Shipments Show Abatement.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—No gold was taken out Saturday except for the use of jewelers and dentists, and none was returned.

THE PISO COMPANY.

The above is the style of the firm which manufactures Piso's Cure for Consumption and Piso's Remedy for Catarrh, at Warren, Pa. The company was recently incorporated, succeeding E. T. Hazeltine, under whose name the business has been conducted for many years. In fact the business was established in 1864, when $85 was paid for the first barrel of sugar bought, that was 33 cents a pound; other things were proportionately high, as much of the Piso Cure is now sold for 25 cents as was then for $1.00.

While the firm has been a very persistent advertiser in newspapers, its aggregate outlay annually has been comparatively small, so that the steady and rapid increase in sales to their present large proportions certainly indicates that Piso's Cure for Consumption possesses high merit as a remedy for coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles generally. The pleasant taste of the cure has doubtless contributed materially to its popularity.

Growth in business has necessitated the invention of numerous labor-saving machines. Notable among these are apparatus for washing, filling, corking and sealing bottles with which three men easily turn out 2,000 bottles an hour. In the advertising department improved machines in the bindery finish 100,000 Pocket Book Almanacs in a day with only twenty operators. Another labor saver is the box machine on which one man puts together a thousand cartons daily which are filled with a dozen Piso's Cure for Consumption by another man in the same space of time.

The Piso Company gives steady employment to a small army of workers, of both sexes, and its uniform liberal treatment of employes is a topic of much favorable comment among the citizens of Warren. Altogether the prosperity of the company appears to be peculiarly deserved.

OH maiden, with the eyes of blue
And shining golden hair,
What is the gift you bend to view
And clasp with loving care?
Upon your cheeks the blushes play,
Your eyes like sapphires shine,
As looking up you bless the day
Of good Saint Valentine.

Oh queenly maid, with eyes of night
And hair like raven's wing,
What is the gift you hold so tight,
That dainty, perfumed thing?
And what the laughing words you say
With lips like ruby wine?
While in your heart you bless the day
Of good Saint Valentine.

Oh gentle maid, with eyes of brown
And curls of chestnut hair—
That form a mantle or a crown,
Whiche'er you choose to wear—
What do the simple verses say
Among the flowers that twine?—
That you should kneel to bless the day
Of good Saint Valentine.

Oh happy maidens, fair and sweet,
The gift to each is dear
That Cupid brings on pinions fleet
When love is waiting near.
And, as you hide it safe away,
To each will seem divine
The joy that came upon this day
Of good Saint Valentine.

A BUFFALO-GRASS VALENTINE.

WHATEVER other accomplishments or characteristics Simon Early may have possessed his predominant qualities were excessive bashfulness and a very slender form, set off by a pale, lemon-colored strip of fuzz on his upper lip. He was in the employ of Messrs. Hoof & Tallow, of Windy City, a frontier town noted for its briskness and its numerous cyclones, which, it was declared, turned the inhabitants over as often as a setting hen is said to turn her eggs over. It was seldom, however, that any fatalities had to be reported, though many complaints of being "shuck up right smart" might have been heard on various sides.

Messrs. Hoof & Tallow plied a thrifty business in buying up and shipping out hides, bones, etc., products made abundant by the cyclone, the blizzard and the great, gaunt prairie wolves.

Simon was fresh from the rural districts around Star Valley, Kan., from which it was rumored that his folks had been driven by force of dry weather and chinch-bugs. A few of their former acquaintances, however, declared that the tall, thin-visaged being known as Simon's father had been actuated in quitting his old place of abode more on account of the enforcement of the prohibitory law than for any other reason, and had come to live among cowboys and buffalo grass, where more freedom of conscience was permitted.

Be that as it may, the elder Early had removed his family and belongings to the more unrestricted town of Windy City, where the diffident Simon had secured a position in his Uncle Hoof's establishment.

In order to help Simon scrape off some of the bashfulness for which he was renowned his considerate uncle and Mr. Tallow frequently sent him across the hillocks and hollows of buffalo grass to outlying farmers and ranchers to bargain for fresh supplies of hides, bones, and anything in their line.

It was St. Valentine's day, mild and pleasant. But the good and much-enduring citizens of Windy City were not an almanac-reading people, and it is doubtful if more than a half-dozen of them could have told you why the 14th of February was such a popular day with young folks.

Simon was one of that half-dozen. He knew what Valentine's day meant, and it had been his intention to answer an advertisement in a newspaper where he had read that two fancy, lace-trimmed expressions of a lover's feelings might be purchased for five cents.

He didn't care for the money, and, much as he would have liked sending both of them to a certain maiden over on Tar creek, he lacked even the courage to write the manufacturers what he wanted. They didn't keep valentines for sale at any of the stores in Windy City. But shutting whatever regrets or longings he might have closely in his heart, Simon mounted his broncho and rode away across the prairie to engage hides and bones for the firm.

He blushed to himself as he thought how much pleasanter it would be to engage that certain maiden in conversation, if he only dared do it.

An unusually early blizzard had swept along Tar creek, killing a great deal of stock for the ranchers. This enabled the youth to reap a rich harvest in the peculiar wares of the firm.

Having bargained with some fellows engaged in the bone-picking business to deliver at an early day, Simon started toward home, directing his broncho by a cattle path that passed the ranch of old Sandhill Hyde, one of the first comers to Tar creek. The old rancher, jovial and grizzly, caught sight of Simon and hailed him.

"'Hullo, Sime! Ride in an' lite. It's near hash time, an' ef yer not erbove breakin' an' eatin' corn-dodger an' taters with ole San'hill an' his gals; jes' take yer lean carcass off thet critter an' kem in. Ther' women folks'd be plumb tickled ter hev yer stop."

"I'm much obliged to you, Mr. Hyde," returned Simon, halting before the old rancher, and only a few feet from the door of the cabin, "but I must be gettin' back."

"Yer hain't goin' to do no sech thing, Sime. Git right off, I say," insisted old Sandhill.

"I can't, Mr. Hyde," stammered Simon, blushing as red as a Kansas sunset, and bowing nervously to the six buxom daughters of Sandhill, who, hearing voices outside, had rushed to the door to learn who had arrived. So great was the shock to Simon, when he beheld those six black-eyed, rosy-cheeked creatures gazing at him, that he really felt faint. His backbone was as limp as a piece of wet cheese-cloth.

Several times before he had met Sandhill's six girls, and at three or four "gum-chaws" on Tar creek that winter he had actually had the courage to play with one of them. In fact, that one was the certain maiden Simon had thought of when he read about the two valentines for five cents. A cowboy friend was responsible for initiating the diffident youth into the mysteries of those frontier play parties, and although the dark orbs of Alzony Hyde had almost unhinged his nervous system, he had somehow managed to play several games with her.

He had not seen Alzony since the New Year's party at Thad Miller's, and now the sight of her in all her strong beauty set wild emotions capering in his breast, and he resolved to fly as speedily as he could tear himself away from Old Sandhill. Then he suddenly rembered that his employers had commissioned him to call that very day at Rancher Hyde's. Despite the fact that it was agony to talk business with those six girls standing in the doorway, Simon made a heroic effort and stammered out:

"I can't get off to-day, but I wanted to see you on a little business."

"All right, Sime. Wot kin I do fur yer?" encouraged Old Sandhill.

"Have you any hides?" asked Simon, very red in the face, "I want what you have if you can spare 'em."

A peculiar twinkle came into the old rancher's eyes, and raising his lusty voice, he called:

"Sary Lib, kem hyer!"

"Wot yer want?" demanded a fleshy, middle-aged woman, pushing the girls good-naturedly out of the door and taking possession of the space herself.

"Hyer's this Windy City hairpin wantin' ter know ef we hev any hides ter spare," he informed his smiling spouse.

"Waal, I low we hev," she returned, nodding pleasantly to the easeless Simon, her smile broadening as she scented one of Sandhill's characteristic jokes.

"Waal, Sime, yer hear wot Sary Lib hev ter say, so as fur as I'm consarned yer kin hev every hide I've got ef yer want 'em." was Sandhill's answer, winking facetiously at his better half.

"How many have you?" asked the hide buyer, growing more and more uneasy under the quizzical treatment of the old rancher.

"Six, all mighty well kep'," with an expansive grin.

"I'd like to see them right away," answered Simon, fidgeting nervously with his bridle rein. "I got to be gettin' back."

"All right, Sime," and pointing to his six giggling girls, Old Sandhill continued: "Thar, Sime, is my Hydes, an' I 'low yer won't strike er finer lot in this whole blame kentry. I didn't spect er slim hairpin like yer would want 'em all, but ef yer do, take every hooter of 'em, an' may bufferlo grass an' bones save yer!"

The face of the timid hide buyer was painful to behold. He tried to urge his broncho away, but he was powerless to speak or move. The girls, unable longer to repress their risibilities, joined their parents in laughter.

"Waal, Sime," the old rancher went on, choking back another roar of mirth, "seein' as yer kin' o' morose erbout ther matter, I'll throw in ther ole woman ter boot!"

That was too much. With a shock Simon recovered his power of motion, prodded his broncho sharply, and started away from the scene of his torture. Then Old Sandhill lifted up his voice and called to a cowboy at the stable:

The words were scarcely uttered when a swift clatter of hoofs was heard, and a cloud of dust from the dry road announced that Limber Bob was on Simon's trail.

"Old Sandhill orders yer back, Simey," yelled the pursuer. "So yer best mosey erlong back ter Ther ranch with me an' sorter save funeral expenses."

Covered with Limber Bob's unfailing six-shooter, Simon was fain to ride back to where Old Sandhill waited for them.

"That's er nice way ter treat a feller when he's tryin' ter help yer out on Valentine's day, hain't it?" Old Sandhill greeted the shame-faced Simon. "Now, see hyer, Sime, yer jes nateral y got yerself implicreated with my family, an' I aim ter hev satisfaction. Didn't yer kiss my Alzony at that gum chaw at Thad's?"

"Didn't yer, eh?" Old Sandhill insisted of his captive.

"Yes," Simon managed to stammer, at last, "but I—I—couldn't help it."

"How many times did this dude kiss yer, Alzony, over ter thet gum-chaw at Thad's?" he asked his daughter.

"How many times, Biney?" he appealed to another.

"I 'peal ter yer, Sime, seein' the gals won't tell. Now own up how many times yer smacked my gal. Shoot him on ther spot, Bob, if he don't own up honorable like," commanded Sandhill.

"Three times," came feebly from the poor hide-agent.

"Three times! Great taters! Why, young feller, yer wuss complercated with my Alzony than I 'spected. But I'm jes goin' ter give yer er chance ter crawl outen ther complercation as respectable like as yer kin. Yer like Alzony, don't yer, Sime?"

"Yes," was the response.

"Yer like Sime, too, Alzony?"

"Hursh; pap!"

"Speak up, gal. Le's hev no foolin'," urged her father.

"Well, yes, then," she returned, hiding her burning face against her mother's ample shoulder.

"Thet settles ther whole business," announced Old Sandhill, with a broad smile of satisfaction. "Do yer know, Sime, wot day this hyer is?"

"Of course it is, yer scant hairpin, an' when I was a young feller it was a great day fur ther young folks ter mate off, like ther birds in ther woods. Don't yer remember yer Valentine, Sary Lib?" he asked, looking affectionately at his wife.

"Yes, 'twas yerself, Sandhill," she answered, a tender light stealing into her eyes.

"An' I'm yours yit an' always. An' jes so, Sime, yer my Alzony's valentine, and she's your'n! The rest of yer go in the cabin, an' let Alzony ask Sime ter tie up and git over his rush."

Limber Bob did not have to ride Simon down the second time.—Ad H. Gibson, in National Tribune.

REED'S FINANCIAL SCHEME.

Plan on Which He Is Endeavoring to Unite the Republican Strength.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Calculations of the supporters and opponents of the administration's new financial bill were upset Monday by the interjection of a new factor into the campaign. Mr. Reed, of Maine, the republican leader, brought forward a plan for which he is endeavoring to enlist the entire strength of his party, and which he will offer as a substitute for the administration scheme if he thinks his plan can command sufficient support to make it a factor in a fight.

There are but two sections to the Reed plan in the form in which he has submitted it to his colleagues. He first proposes to restrict the law of 1875, which authorizes the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds to redeem the greenbacks, to 3 per cent. bonds.

The second section authorizes the secretary of the treasury, when there is a deficit, to issue certificates of indebtedness to pay current expenses, the certificates to be in sums of $25, $50 and $100 and any multiples thereof, bearing interest at 3 per cent. and payable in "coin."

The bill, as Mr. Reed explained to the republicans, whose support he sought, is but a temporary expedient to tide over the present distress. The substitution of "coin" for the gold provision of the administration plan is expected to win for it the toleration, if not support, of the free-silver men, who bitterly oppose all propositions to discriminate by stipulation in any bill in favor of gold. Its comparative simplicity, it is expected, will commend the bill to the house in preference to more complex plans.

HELD UP A TRAIN.

Robbers Secure a Big Sum of Money in Arizona.

PHOENIX, A. T., Feb. 2.—Southern Pacific west-bound train No. 20 was held up 6 miles this side of Wilcox Wednesday night at 8:35 by a party of masked men. They separated the express-car from the train, hauled it 5 miles west and putting six shots of dynamite on the through safe blew it wide open. It contained $10,000 in Mexican silver, which was removed. The trail of the robbers was marked Thursday morning by a profuse scattering in the Sulphur Springs valley of the Mexican dollars.

Besides the $10,000 in Mexican money there was nearly as much more of American silver on the train, which had been sent to pay the railroad employes along the line, and this was carried off by the robbers. The loss is said by some to be between $50,000 and $75,000. A reward of $500 is offered for the capture of the thieves.

WILL SKIRT THE STATES.

Thomas W. Winder Planning a Bicycle Ride of 21,600 Miles.

LA PORTE, Ind., Feb. 5.—Thomas W. Winder, a well-known newspaper man, has changed his plans and will now start February 28 for his tour on a bicycle around the United States, to decide a bet and to make a record. Mr. Winder intends to make a trip along the coast and border line of the United States by circuitous country roads, a journey estimated to be 21,600 miles. This trip he is to complete in 300 consecutive days, which requires that he shall ride at least seventy-two miles a day. He will cross thirty-three states and territories and 220 counties, visit 2,984 cities, towns and villages, and register at seventy-six points on the way. The start will be made from New Orleans, going west, so that the entire trip can be made in warm weather.

IN PERIL.

Officers of the American Warship Concord Captured by Chinese.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A dispatch from Shanghai says a telegram has been received there from Chin Kiang stating that a party of officers from the American worship Concord landed at Chin Kiang for the purpose of shooting game. They shot a Chinaman by mistake. The populace became infuriated and attacked and carried off the whole party. The commander of the Concord sent an armed force of blue jackets and marines rescue to them at all hazards.

FREE COINAGE MEN AHEAD.

They Will Have About Ten Majority in the National Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Many eastern republican senators are getting telegrams and letters from their constituents urging them to stand by the president and lay aside party feeling and aid in passing a sound currency bill. This has impelled a canvass of the senate, which shows forty-seven for free coinage of silver and thirty-nine against. The admission of Senators Wilson, of Washington, and Clarke, of Montana, will increase the free silver vote to forty-nine.

Kbio Agai Heard From.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Senator Allen (pop., Neb.) presented what he called "the credentials of Warren S. Reese, as senator-elect from the state of Alabama," and asked that they be placed on file.

The credentials are signed by R. F. Kolb and J. C. Fonville, who claim to have been elected governor and secretary of state at the last election, but allege that they are kept out of office by the present incumbents.

The paper was laid on the table. (The seat claimed by Mr. Reese is the one to which Senator Morgan has been reelected, and for which his credentials are now on file.)

Another Senator Elected.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 4.—The action of the republican caucus of Thursday night was formally ratified Friday in session of both houses of the legislature when Congressman John L. Wilson, of Spokane, was elected United States senator to fill the existing vacancy caused by the failure to elect a successor to John B. Allen two years ago. The vote stood: Wilson (rep.), 80; J. H. Wescott (pop.), 24.

War Material for China.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Several vessels loaded with powder, cartridges and other war material have left Hamburg. Herr Krupp is constructing guns in fulfillment of orders from the Chinese government.

Receiver Greenhut Removed.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Judge Grosscup Monday morning removed Mr. Greenhut from the receivership of the whisky trust and appointed John C. McNally, John J. Mitchell and Edward F. Lawrence receivers.

QUEER SORT OF ENGLISH.

The Argument for Appeal of a Learned Pleader in an English Court.

My learned friend with mere wind from a teapot thinks to browbeat me from my legs. But this is mere gorilla warfare. I stand under the shoes of my client, and only seek to place my bone of contention clearly in your honor's eye. My learned friend vainly runs amuck upon the sheet anchors of my case. Your honor will be pleased enough to observe that my client is a widow, a poor chap with one post-mortem son. A widow of this country, your honor will be pleased enough to observe, is not able to eat more than one meal a day or to wear clean clothes, or to look after a man. So my poor client had not such physic or mind as to be able to assault the lusty complainant. Yet she has been deprived of some of her more valuable leather, the leather of her nose.

"My learned friend has thrown only an argument ad hominy upon my teeth that my client's witnesses are all her own relations. But they are not near relations. Their relationship is only homœpathic. So the misty arguments of my learned friend will not hold water. At least they will not hold good water. Then my learned friend has said that there is on the side of his client a respectable witness, viz., a pleader, and since this witness is independent, so he should be believed. But your honor, with your honor's vast experience, is pleased enough to observe that truthfulness is not so plentiful as blackberries in this country. And I am sorry to say, though this witness is a man of my own feathers, that there are in my profession black sheep of every complexion, and some of them do not always speak gospel truth. Until the witness explains what has become of my client's nose-leather he cannot be believed. He cannot be allowed to raise a castle in the air by beating upon a bush. So, trusting in that administration of British justice on which the sun never sits, I close my case." The Englishman.

MISTRUSTED HIS SEX.

Will of a Durham Miner---Opposed to a Possible Successor.

A Durham miner, aged seventy-three, visited a Newcastle lawyer (a bachelor) for the purpose of making his will. The old man's property consisted of two small cottages, which had cost him one hundred and fifty dollars, and a little furniture.

The lawyer, having asked his client how he wished to dispose of his property, the latter replied: "Ma ald woman hes to hev all se lang as she's ma widdow. Efter that ma bairns gets all."

"What age is your old woman?" asked the lawyer.

"Seventy-two," replied the miner.

"And how long have you and your wife been married?" asked the lawyer.

"Over fifty years," replied the miner.

Thereupon the lawyer suggested to his client that he should give the wife the interest during her life, whether she continued a widow, or otherwise.

"Hinney, aa winnot; aa'll hev ma aan way," said the miner.

"But surely," replied the lawyer, "you don't expect your old woman, now seventy-two years old, would marry again after your death?"

The miner, looking the lawyer full in the face, answered with much solemnity: "Wey, hinney, thor's nae knaaing what young cheps like yourself will de for money."—Pearson's Weekly.

His Choice of Two Evils.

It was two o'clock in the morning and colder than four kinds of charity, when the policeman saw the man standing on the street corner shivering until his heels rattled on the sidewalk.

"What's the matter?" asked the officer, approaching him.

"I—I—I—I'm cold," shivered the man.

"What are you standing out here for?"

"Every place is shut up."

"Have you a home?"

"Yes."

"Can't you get in there?"

"Yes."

"Well, why don't you. You'll freeze here."

"I wouldn't be surprised," said the man, bracing up to a degree of firmness, "but I'd a blamed sight rather be froze than be roasted, and my wife is waiting up for me, because the light was turned up full when I was 'round there a while ago."

"Um," grunted the policeman, and invited him to remain where he was and continue to shiver.—Detroit Free Press.

WHO WINS THE $300?

A novel way to obtain a suitable name for their great, yes, wonderful new oats, has been adopted by the John A. Salzer Seed Co. They offer $300 for a name for their new oats; their catalogue tells all about it. Farmers are enthusiastic over the oat, claiming 200 bushels can be grown per acre right along. You will want it.

Farmers report six tons of hay from Salzer's Meadow Mixtures; 112 bushels corn per acre in a dry season, and 1,161 bushels potatoes from two acres.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 10c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you get free their mammoth catalogue and a package of above $300 PRIZE OATS. [K]

ON THE ROAD to recovery, the young woman who is taking Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In maidenhood, womanhood, wifehood and motherhood the "Prescription" is a supporting tonic and nervine that's peculiarly adapted to her needs, regulating, strengthening and curing the derangements of the sex. Why is it so many women owe their beauty to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? Because beauty of form and face radiate from the common center—health. The best bodily condition results from good food, fresh air and exercise coupled with the judicious use of the "Prescription."

If there be headache, pain in the back, bearing-down sensations, or general debility, or if there be nervous disturbance, nervous prostration, and sleeplessness, the "Prescription" reaches the origin of the trouble and corrects it. It dispels aches and pains, corrects displacements and cures catarrhal inflammation of the lining membranes, falling of the womb, ulceration, irregularities and kindred maladies.

"FALLING OF WOMB."

MRS. FRANK CAMFIELD, of *East Dickinson, Franklin Co., N. My troubles were of the womb—inflammatory and bearing-down sensations and the doctors all said, they could not cure me.

Two Kinds of It.

The landlady had left the star boarder to carve the fowl while she went out into the kitchen to see about some of the other portions of the feast. Presently she stuck her head in the door.

"Isn't that carving done yet?" she asked in a tone implying that it was not, and was not because the boarder didn't know any more about carving than a Philadelphian knows about rapid transit.

"It is, madam," he responded with the sweetest grace imaginable, "but the chicken is not," and he passed it over to her with the raw edges showing through in half a dozen places.—Detroit Free Press.

"The doctor has ordered me to try a change for a while," said Mrs. Gabb.

"Then if I were you I would go to a photographer's and have my picture taken," said Mr. Gabb.

"Why should I do that?" asked the lady, as she brought her teeth together with a click.

"Because the photographer will tell you to look pleasant, and if you obey him it will be the greatest change that you could possibly experience."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

DELANO DIARY

—Tomorrow, Feb. 8, will be Delano Fair Day.

—February, so far, seems to be our coldest for the season.

—There is a fortune teller at the Danforth House this week. It.

—See Geo. P. Schaffer's notice to his customers in another column.

—John Boenner is employed by Fred Stranch in his broom factory. Some good brooms are being made.

—On Tuesday and Wednesday the greatest fall of snow of the winter, about six or seven inches occurred. It was in the form of a blizzard, the thermometer registering away below zero most of the time.

—It is to be hoped that if the usual disturbances of peace and harmony occurring on Fairdays are found, that the police force will not be partial in their choice of prisoners; but take all alike; don't slight the old timers nor the village folks.

—Some of the cards sent out by the Methodish church people, have been returned with liberal donations for the payment of the debt. Others have failed in their mission; but have been sent to others, hoping to find those able and willing to help lift the burden from the church. From the present outlook enough will be forthcoming by April to square up everything.

—Next month occurs our village election. Voters should decide, in their own minds, who they desire to have for President and Trustees, for Recorder, Treasurer, Justice of the Peace, Constables, Street Commissioner and Assessor. They should attend the caucuses of their respective party and see that their choice has a fair chance for nomination. They should not stay away from the caucus; neither should they sit with open mouths and acquiesce in everything said by a clique who have a state already made out and every time a nomination is called for spring the slate name before anybody else can speak, and then move the nomination be made by acclamation. The proper way to nominate is by ballot; and care should be taken that all have an equal chance. It has been customary for certain loudmouthed politicians to talk people out of nominating the very best men we have for village officers. As soon as a good man is mentioned, the cry is raised, "I don't think he will accept." "He is too busy to attend to it", or "He is afraid it will hurt his business." In this way, many times, the best material for officers our town affords; men who have spent the best days of their lives here; who have done their share toward making our village what it is; and whose interests are here, are set aside for some newcomer, who is unknown to a majority of the voters; whose record is not before them, and who is no more fitted for the position than are the old settlers who have made the town for the new man to come to; and who deserve representation among its officers. As for the old settlers alluded to, some of them have held office and proved themselves as true to their trust as efficient officers as any we ever had; and, if chosen, they would accept and do so again. Others, who would make good men for the position of honor, or of profit, would not refuse to serve if properly nominated and elected. The average citizen of the United States considers it an honor to serve the public in the capacity of an officer and very few would refuse the office. Think the matter over carefully and be on hand to aid in nominating the very best men for each position on the ticket and then help elect them.

—Days are growing perceptibly longer; and the evenings shorter in like proportion.

—The Delano Washington's Birthday Association is to celebrate in the City Hall. Committees were announced a couple of weeks ago and a partial programme arranged as follows:

Music.
Prayer. Rev. O. R. Fassett.
Music.
Welcome. Mayor W. F. Kohler.
Music.
Introduction of George Washington by President John H. McGary.

DINNER.

Music.
Address, by President McGary.
Music.

Short speeches by Messrs. M. A. O'Hair, T. J. Catlin, George P. Schaffer, Ed. Kelsey, C. W. Ingerson, Wm. Ziebarth, F. H. Lindsley and others.

Bring enough dinner with you to divide with those who can bring none. Coffee is served free in the hall.

Personals.

W. A. Chowen, of Minneapolis, was a pleasant caller this week.

I. Gutawiller, went east on the G. N. Tuesday evening.

(Handed in.)

Ben Willcutt went to Hanover Friday to bring his sister Minnie home for a visit over Sunday.

J. H. Walter thinks if stoves would take in cordwood lengths it would save work this cold weather.

John Kornek had a runaway on Thursday; no damage done.

Miss Mary Mahalsek went to Waverly Saturday to visit relatives.

School Notes

This is the first week of the new term and the scholars have started in with a good deal of zeal and energy. Some of the pupils are taking new studies but some--are taking last terms studies over. Higher Algebra and Physiology are the new studies on the program.

We are proud, this year, to have sent the highest marked paper ever sent from here to the examiners. It bore a mark of 100 per cent.

Some of the members of the physiology class wish to inform those interested that the "systematic" nerve centers are located in the ventral cavity.

There is some talk of dividing the Club into two clubs, one for the eighth grade and the other for the High School department. The High School talk of reading subjects for essay.

Miss Steele has been under the influence of a bad cold during the past week.

Mr Frazee visited the High School Wednesday. Visitors are always welcome although they are a rarity.

Mrs. Leavens now hears the arithmetic and geography classes recite.

The new physiological chart has come and will soon be put into practice. It is quite an addition to our school apparatus.

There are now fifteen classes which are heard daily in the High School department.

Just a slight twitching of the eye toward a certain young man will cause that gentleman to put on a very long (?) face.

A SCHOLAR, '96.

County Cullings.

Among the names of those allowed pensions recently, appears that of Nathaniel Chaffins, Howard Lake.

One of the dailies is authority for saying that a Senator from the Sixth district was in attendance at the Gentleman Jim Corbett interview as an interested party. Does it mean Mr. Culkin?

Since Judge Otis' recent decision that saying a man was on a week's drunken debauch is actionable it is expected that Messrs. Eaton and Gutzwiller will stop saying each other was under the influence of liquor. If they are innocent of the grave charge, of being criminals, of course they will bring an action at once to defend their characters; or to recover damages sustained.

Representative Swanson has introduced a bill into the Legislature, which if passed, will oblige brewery agencies in small towns to pay the regular license of $500. for selling intoxicants. We don't believe in license at all but can see no reason why saloons should be required to pay $500 a year while the brewery agent drives his wagon up into a public place and in defiance of law hands out bottle beer to a crowd of people, claiming he has a government license.

OLD SETTLERS' REUNION.

At Dudley's Opera Hall, Buffalo, Feb. 22nd, 1895.

According to a vote of the Old Settlers Association of Wright County, held Feb. 22nd, 1894, their annual meeting will be held at the same place on the 22nd inst.

The Executive committee of the Association met Jan 9th, and appointed the following committees:

James Sturges and Geo. Davis to prepare tables and other conveniences for picnic dinner. J. C Nugent and J. H. Wendell, as committee on reception. There was then arranged the following.

PROGRAM.

Dinner from 12 to 1:30 p. m. in the smaller hall and at 1:30 the audience to be seated in Opera Hall.

1. Music ..... Buffalo Cornet Band.
2. Annual election of officers.
3. Annual collection to defray expenses.
4. Song ..... Ladies Quartette, Buffalo
5. Prayer ..... Rev. A. H. Abbott
6. Music ..... Buffalo Orchestra.
7. Address of Welcome ..... A. Y. Eaton, President Village Council.
8. Song ..... Miss Mattie Redlan.
9. Response to address of welcome D. R. Farnham.
10. Song ..... Miss Maggie Young.
11. Ballad ..... Monticello Male Quartette.
12. Letters and telegrams of regrets G. W. Florida.
13. Music ..... Buffalo Orchestra.
14. Ballad ..... Rockford Boys.
15. Reminiscences ..... Mrs. Ida Wing.
17. Cornet Solo ..... Miss Bessie Sturges.

There is a cordial invitation to all to be present. The music, vocal and instrumental, will be excellent. Preparation will be made for the largest turnout and the most enjoyable reunion ever held in the country. Come all

GEO. W. FLORIDA, Chm. Ex. Com.
S. A. PUTNAM, Sec. Com.

Among Our Exchanges.

The appointments of Gov. Nelson, nearly all of which are re-appointments, do not bear out the Washburn charge that Nelson bartered senatorial votes for state offices.--Moorhead News.

Willmar Gazette: Sjur L. Thorpe, of Dover, had the Texas fever badly last fall, and left for that state in November, despite the advice of relatives, in search of fortune. He returned last week, and the stories he tells of his experience there and on the road are not such as to induce others to follow his example. He is glad to get back in Minnesota.—Litchfield Independent.

Stop that boy! A cigar in his mouth, a swagger in his walk, impudence in his face, a care-for-nothingness in his manner. Judging from his demeanor, he is older than his father, wiser than the president. Stop him, he is going too fast. He dont know his speed. Stop him ere tobacco chokes his nerves ere pride ruins his character, ere good ambition and manly strength give way to low pursuits and aims. Stop all such boys. They are legion, the shame of their familes, the sad and solemn reproach of their parents.—Ex.

A bill has been introduced in the legislature prohibiting the manufacture, buying, selling or giving away of cigarettes. If our solons do their duty, the law will be passed with heavy penalties for violation of the same. The intellect destroying cigarette should not be longer tolerated in any civilized country. There has been some doubt raised however, as to the "intellect destroying" qualities of the cigarette. The question arising is, have they ever come in contact with intellect?—Weeping Water (Neb.) Republican.

Temperance Co-operation.

St. Louis, Feb. 4.—Archbishop Kain, of the Catholic diocese of St. Louis, has placed himself on record as firmly approving the cooperation of Catholics and Protestants in temperance work. The annual conference of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union is to be held here on next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The ladies invited the presence and co operation of members of the Queen's Daughters, the local Catholic charitable association.

Officers of this latter hesitated on account of the difference in faith, and consulted the Aachbishop, their spiritual director. His grace informed the ladies that it was his earnest request that they should accept the invitation and co operate with the Young Women's Christian Temperance Union. The archbishop is a strong temperance advocate, and his action is looked upon as being particularly significant.—Morning Call.

For Little Boys to Figure On.

"Two men agree to dig a ditch of 100 rods for $100. Each to receive $50; one to dig from each end. One complaining of hard digging, the other agrees to take seven shillings per rod and give the other nine shillings per rod. How many rods must each dig to still receive the $50?"

We do not know what kind of mathematicians they have up in Hubbard county, but nearly any Brainerd school boy would say in a minute that the problem was not stated rightly, because when the men would meet the job would be completed, each having earned an equal amount, one would have dug 56¼ rods, and the other 43¾, and each would have earned $49.21875 or $98.4375 altogether, which would be one dollar, fifty six and a quarter cents short of the $100. It would come out even, however, if the man who had the easiest digging received ninety cents a rod, to $1 12½ for the other man, in which case one would dig 55 5-9 rods, and the other 44 4-9 rods, which would just complete the job and give each man $50.—Brainerd Journal.

Brainard's Musical World.

The February number of this popular magazine contains a large amount of choice musical reading, including articles by Wm. H. Sherwood, Emil Liebling, Robert Goldbeck and other eminent musicians. Fine portraits of Liszt, Schumann, Melba, and other illustrations are given, together with four piano pieces and a beautiful new song--eighteen pages of music in all. A piano lesson by Emil Liebling, also a fine portrait, suitable for framing is given with each number. Terms $1.50 per year, 15 cents per copy. To introduce the World to those who have never taken it, it will be sent four months on trial on receipt of 25 cents in stamps. Address The S. Brainard's Sons Co., Chicago.

Teachers' Examinations.

Teachers examinations for Wright County will take place as follows.

Annandale, March 1 and 2.
Delano, March 5 and 6.
Howard, March 8 and 9.
Monticello, March 12 and 13.
Buffalo, March 15 and 16.

Examinations will begin at 8:30 each morning.

J. F. LAW,
19-17. Supt. of Schools.

List of Patents.

Granted to inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., Solicitors of America and Foreign Patents, Opp. U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

Perhaps There'd is no factor of the present day that so represents the rapid material progress of our civilization as the luxury of modern travel. For instance, scarcely is a single home comfort missing in the completely appointed Northwestern Limited. Its equipment embraces every luxury known to modern travel. It is vestibuled and lighted brilliantly with gas from end to end and you can walk through it as though some stately hall of some palace. Instead of a journey being a handicap, on a train like this one it is a fascinating recreation and treat.—The Times, St. Cloud, Minn.

DEMORIST'S MAGAZINE
BUFFALO GAZETTE
One year for $2.50.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.
Square Type.
Conical. Philosophic. Artistic. Perfected.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person who this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16¾ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $850.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with this, send for a specimen copy (free), and we will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put a stop to the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

THE WRECK.

Out from the port-hole we watched the wreck,
Beaten by tempest, hurried by wave,
Frowned at by clouds, beckoned by grave,
Thundered the loud billows roar;—
"You have no right here, no one will save,
What storm demon has brought you to crave
Succor or strength on this shore?"

Helpless it turned as ready to sink,
Parting, yet held by an iron will;
Wrathful, the waves beat at it still,
No mercy had they to show;
Only with torturing thrusts they kill
All hope that has lingered there, until
It stoops to the undertow.

Was it not a human wreck we saw,
Beaten by tempests of thoughtless deeds,
Frowned at by clouds of selfish creeds?
Deafened and helpless it lay,
Looking for growth of heavenly seeds,
In those who beheld its greatest needs
Yet never came that way.

—MARY G. NICOLSON, in the Church Union.

IF the young man that furnishes pictures of those connected with the notorious murder trial now going on in Minneapolis for a daily of that city and who selected the presiding Judge's wife as one of the victims will now publish the grandma and the best girl of the reporter of the murder trial perhaps its readers will be equally regaled.

THE Swedish Lutheran Conference was opened by Dr. Norelius, in St. Paul, on Wednesday, the 13th inst.; the house was crowded. The Dr. read an interesting report of the last nearly nine months, since the synod was held at St. Peter. The President and Vice-President were re-elected. Twelve new congregations were, on application, admitted, making a total of 292 for the Minnesota conference. G. Bodin, treasurer of the conference, made his report which was approved. Receipts for 9 months past, $8,958.65 for mission work, within conference. The new system of collections was discussed and don't seem to meet with universal approval.

THE Harry Hayward murder trial drags its slimy and weary length along. On Wednesday the State closed its case. Apparently as strong a case, against as vile a wretch as ever was hung. There seemed to be no point not covered, and fully sustained by corraborative evidence to show that the prisoner at the bar deliberately planned and arranged every detail for the horrible murder; and while engaged in this dreadful business, was in company with the elite of the city, attending places of amusement, and otherwise acting a gentleman of the "uppercrust". The charge, if sustained will go far toward educating young ladies to beware, still more than formerly where, and in what man to confide. Harry, when the state had finished its case, is said to have remarked that but one side had as yet been heard. The defense was opened yesterday by John Day Smith one of defendant's counsel. He claims the defense will prove Blixt a liar, Adry a lunatic and an alibi for Harry.

A FEW weeks ago Hon. Ignatius Donnelly withdrew from politics; bid farewell to political strife and turmoil, and all the people rejoiced. It was thought that much that was unpleasant in politics would now be done away with, and would be known no more. He seemed completely cowed; to even go so far as to think that Providence did not smile on his efforts. Soon after his public withdrawal, his old enemy W. D. Washburn, was, by his party, in the legislature, relegated to oblivion, politically speaking, and made a great howl at how it was done, accusing his former associates and party friends with having been bought up; of having after their election to the legislature been debauched. The Sage of Niniger, instead of quietly enjoying the terrible drubbing received by his old combatant and sailing to himself at his discomfiture broke out into a tirade of abuse on the whole Washburn tribe. He should have remembered that several of them have been judged by that final arbiter; that W. D. Washburn has himself been found wanting by his own party friends and that there really was no longer a foe in this direction to fight. He should have rested on his arms; and not, after the giant had succumbed to the force of circumstances, gone to work to mutilate the corpse, to slice it in bits; and to ghoul like, tear from the grave those that have gone and parade their imperfections to the gaze of a public not particularly interested in gazing on them. "Let the dead past bury its dead." "Sufficient to the day is the evil thereof."

The Road to Ruin.

The public has become familiar with the reports of defalcations, forgeries, murders, and in many instances these crimes are committed by young men of good family—well educated young fellows who have moved in good society and have been above suspicion of anything worse than the follies and dissipations common to young men "about town," until they suddenly developed into full fledged criminals.

In the great majority of such cases the young men who go wrong are the sons of over-indulgent parents, who have been allowed to live in idleness, to form dangerous associations and to cultivate habits of extravagance. It is a common thing to find a father who has accumulated a competence or a fortune by hard work and careful economy, who is so proud of his gentlemanly son that he cheerfully supports him and supplies him with pocket money, hoping that the young man will some day develop stronger qualities and take a more serious view of life. This hope is generally disappointed. The mistaken father forgets that an idle brain is the devil's workshop. When a lad leads an utterly idle life for years, and sometimes only for a few months, the chances are that he will form bad habits and bad associations. His expenditures will rapidly increase; and he will soon find it difficult to supply his wants.

When an idle young man reaches this point he grows discontented and reckless. He belongs to a fast set, or he has formed an "entangling alliance" which demands more money than he can obtain through honest channels. How can he get a large sum of money without working for it? This is the problem which he is trying to solve. He complains of his hard luck and envies his more prosperous acquaintances. He starts on the downward road, gets in debt, gambles and drinks, or if he escapes these vices his brain is disordered by his feverish greed.

To such a man a temptation is bound to come sooner or later. Perhaps he misappropriates the funds of others or commits a forgery. Possibly the sight of money in the possession of an unsuspecting companion in a lonely place leads to murder. In these days when the love for money is universal there are many such murders committed by men who are trying to live without work.

The father who supports an idle boy and encourages him in the idea that in some way he will be able to get through life well-fed and well-dressed is training his son for the penitentiary or the gallows. Even if the boy is too timid or too clever to plunge into crime, he is looked upon by a majority of people as a drone who is of no use to the community. Industrious men are reluctant to permit these fellows to associate with their daughters and their old playmates who are making their way in the world by honest industry shun their companionship.

In this country the pariahs of society are the men who are determined to live in idleness and make somebody foot the bill. If among the readers of the Times this morning there is a father with such a son let him lose no time in forcing him to go to work. Any reasonable stretch of authority is justifiable in such a case.—Minneapolis Times.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 8, 1895.

Neither President Cleveland nor Secretary Carlisle was surprised at the action of the House on the financial bill. They were kept thoroughly posted on the sentiment of the democrats of the House, but there was an element of doubt as to how the republicans would vote even after ex-speaker and Presidential candidate Reed made his great combination bid for the support of the silver men of the west and the gold men of the east, by offering a substitute, which he was pleased to call a non-partisan compromise, and to close his speech advocating it by asking the following Soloman-like questions: "Now, why is not that the solution of our problem, without raising vexed questions which we know cannot be solved? Why is it not a practical solution of our trouble? Why is it not suitable in every way?" The lack of egotism and gall will never keep that man Reed out of anything. Nobody ever knew until he made that speech that he had in addition to his great literary and parliamentary accomplishments found time to completely master the complicated science of finance, and the House refused to believe it even after he said so.

Some Senators—not all of them republicans, either—were much disappointed at Secretary Carlisle's answer to the Senate resolution, asking whether there would be a deficiency in the estimated revenues of the government for the year ending Dec. 31, 1895. Secretary Carlisle's answer was plain and flat-footed—there will be a comfortable surplus in the Treasury at the end of the year. Some of the republicans are still saying that it is the lack of revenue that is causing the depletion of the gold in the Treasury—probably following the rascally political axiom, "A lie well stuck to is as good as the truth."

The Senate can act quick enough when so disposed. An instance of this promptness was given when the ratification of the Jabanese treaty was re-considered and the treaty amended in accordance with Secretary Gresham's request. The Senate had amended the treaty so as to give either nation the right to abrogate it after one year's notice. The Japanese Minister said his country would object to that clause, because it gave this country an opportunity, if so disposed, to abrogate the treaty before it was even put into operation. The treaty does not go into effect until 1899. Secretary Gresham and the Senators thought the objection well founded; hence the last amendment, which gives either country the right to abrogate the treaty by one year's notice, after the treaty has gone into operation.

The subcommittee of the Senate which is in charge of the Indian appropriation bill has had no end of trouble about appropriations for sectarian schools. The Catholics claimed that the Lincoln Institute at Philadelphia, and the Hampden Institute at Hampden, Va., for both of which specific appropriations were made by the bill as it passed the House, are sectarian schools, one Episcopalian and the other Congregational, and asked that specific appropriations for some of their schools be added to the bill. The subcommittee settled the matter by striking out all specific appropriations for denominational schools, and leaving the question of sending Indian children to any of them discretionary with the Secretary of the Interior. In other words, for him to spend the money appropriated for the education of the Indians as he may think best.

More Hawaii! It seems to be a veritable old man of the sea saddled upon the back of Congress, and is certainly becoming tiresome. This time the amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill authorizing the President to enter into a contract for the laying of a cable to Honolulu was the text on which the Hawamaniacs preached, but they by no means confined themselves to the text. The whole field had to be gone over, including Lil's abdication to save her head.

President Cleveland promptly nominated Gen. Schofield to be Lt. General, the same day that he signed the bill restoring that grade to the army. General Schofield, who is deservedly popular, is being overwhelmed with congratulations.

One of the bills pending in Congress that is almost certain to become a law is that providing for the retirement on account of bad health of Justice Jackson, of the U. S. Supreme Court. It is not believed by those who know his present condition that he will ever be able to resume his duties again.

Not since the war has there been so many changes in the personnel of the House during a single Congress as have taken place in the present one. Thirty of the members elected thereto are now out of it, eleven of them have died, sixteen resigned, and three have been unseated. How about that office-holders shestnut, "Few die and none resign"? But in this case every resignation was to take another office.

Sugar Making.

CORA PRESTIDGE.

In the spring of 1894 my brothers told me that if my younger brothers and myself would tend the sugar bush, they would tap the trees.

Well, the first thing of all was the getting of the buckets and filling them with water. After filling them a few times they were ready for use. So we children piled up the buckets in our arms and started to the woods, and I tell you carrying sap buckets in your arms is not very easy. We got to the fence, started to climb over but the buckets went over first and we after them. We got up, piled up our buckets, and started anew, went a little ways farther and fell over a log. We once more piled up our buckets and this time we got there all right.

The next came the tapping of the trees, and after they were all tapped we hung the kettles, and in the morning we went and gathered what little sap there was, kindled a fire and went to work. We had no wood cut at first, so we had to cut the wood. It kept us busy trying to keep a fire and keep wood on hand. My brothers would go and get the wood and I thought I would try and help them. I got the ax and tried to split some wood, but some one would be sure to come and catch me at it so I gave that up. Then we took our pails and started to gather the sap again, we got our pails full and started for the camp. We went a little ways, fell down and spilled our sap. Then we had the trouble of filling them up again and finding our way back to camp. When we got there our fire was all out so we had to hurry around and find dry wood enough to start it up again. We got our fire started and the sap boiling, and then we sat down to rest.

By and by the sap was thick enough to take home. We kept this up for many long days until the sap had most stopped running and the trees had began to leaf out, and then we had to stop for the season, and I came to the conclusion that sugar making was a hard task and great fun.

Even if you know your eggs are fresh do not take them to market with the shells dirty; it does not help to inspire confidence in their quality.—The Farm Journal.

A new ordinance has gone into effect in Stillwater which makes it a misdemeanor for youth under sixteen years of age to be on the streets after 9 o'clock in the evening.—Morning Call.

Find a quack medical advertisement in this paper if you can! Do you know that these fellows would pay us ten thousand dollars a year if we would let them put in their advertisements? Such is the fact. But your good will and welfare, and a clear conscience, are worth more to us than that.—The Farm Journal.

It is said that strict Hebrews are never afflicted with cancer, a fact which scientists ascribe to the fact that the meat eaten by them is slaughtered in conformity with the Mosaic law, and is therefore free from those deleterious qualities which produce diseases of the blood. If this is the case our sanitary officials might profit by it, and confer a boon upon humanity by agitating a reform in the manner of slaughtering cattle.—Morning Call.

"The Other Night

I made a trip from Chicago to St. Paul and Minneapolis with my wife on the famous Northwestern Limited. For the price of a section in an old style sleeping car, I secured in the private Compartment manner, as cosy a little room as was ever built inside a railroad car—not so very little either; it took up the whole width of the car excepting a narrow aisle at the side and had two large berths. I said it was cosy—it was more; it was magnificent, and we spent the evening as comfortably, and with as much privacy as if we had been in our own home. I do not put it too strongly when I say that this train is the personification of Rolling luxury, and that the Northwestern Line runs the finest trains for all discriminating Montana travelers to patronize going east via St. Paul and Minneapolis.—The Standard, Anaconda, Mont.

For Little Boys to Figure On.

"Two men agree to dig a ditch of 100 rods for $100. Each to receive $50; one to dig from each end. One complaining of hard digging, the other agrees to take seven shillings per rod and give the other nine shillings per rod. How many rods must each dig to still receive the $50?"

We do not know what kind of mathematicians they have up in Hubbard county, but nearly any Brainerd school boy would say in a minute that the problem was not stated rightly, because when the men would meet the job would be completed, each having earned an equal amount, one would have dug 56¼ rods, and the other 43¾, and each would have earned $49.21875 or $98.4375 altogether, which would be one dollar, fifty-six and a quarter cents short of the $100. It would come out even, however, if the man who had the easiest digging received ninety cents a rod, to $1.12½ for the other man, in which case one would dig 55 5-9 rods, and the other 44 4 9 rods, which would just complete the job and give each man $50.—Brainard Journal.

The man digging at 7 shillings per yard, in order to earn $50 would have to dig 55 and 5-7 rods.

The one working for 9 shillings would have to dig, in order to earn $50. 44 and 4-9 rods.

Together they would in order to earn $50, a piece dig 101 and 37-63 rods, or 1 and 37-63 rods more than the first bargain made.

Of trade is success, and this is as true of railways as of business. With this thought in mind it is not difficult to account for the success of The Northwestern Line—The Great Line from the Twin Cities to Chicago. The Northwestern Line does the things that make success. Success is its watchword, and this is an equivelent for palatial train accommodations. Voluntary indorsement of The Northwestern Line is spontaneous on the part of every traveler who patronizes it.—The Tribune, Bismark, N. D.

There is no factor of the present day that so represents the rapid material progress of our civilization as the luxury of modern travel. For instance, scarcely is a single home comfort missing in the completely appointed Northwestern Limited. Its equipment embraces every luxury known to modern travel. It is vestibuled and lighted brilliantly with gas from end to end and you can walk through it as though some stately hall of some palace. Instead of a journey being a hardship, on a train like this one it is a fascinating recreation and treat.—The Times, St. Cloud, Minn.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

Square Type. Conical Spatulate Philosophic Artistic Feminine.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 21 inches, reproduced from the original painting by the Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in these developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates a small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tips, these traits which belong essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

IF Russia should decide to take a hand in the China-Japan difficulty she could take both nations by the heels and knock their heads together, so to speak, as her army on a peace footing numbers 868,000 men, and on a war footing she can put into the field 2,530,000. And Russia is within easier striking distance of the seat of war than any of the other powers.

FULLY $1,000,000 of relief has gone through the hands of the relief commission in Nebraska for the sufferers. It has been a generous and gratifying response. It is charged that he defied the president's authority and urged his ministerial associates to do the same; and finally that he interfered with Casimir-Perier's domestic affairs and started the baseless story of divorce proceedings.

THE Denver Times says that indications point to a gold mining boom in Colorado the coming spring. The gold strikes at Leadville are fully as important as the great silver strikes at the same place in the fall of 1878, which led to the mining boom in the spring of 1879. Cripple Creek is doing well. Creede bids fair to become a gold camp. Boulder county is producing largely of the yellow metal. Many other gold mining camps in the state are beginning to produce and gold mines discovered a score of years ago, and which were too low grade to pay, are now profitable.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 6.—The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was taken up in the senate and would have been disposed of except for the item of $500,000 for immediately beginning cable construction between the United States and Hawaii. The bill for a new post office building at Chicago was passed. In the house the time was occupied in discussing the administration's financial measure.

THURSDAY, Feb 7.—The laying of a cable to Hawaii was further discussed in the senate, but no conclusion was reached and the item remains as a stumbling block to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. The Indian appropriation bill ($8,829,700) was reported and the nomination of Maj. Gen. John M. Schofield to be lieutenant general was confirmed. In the house the administration bill to authorize an issue of $500,000,000 in gold bonds was defeated by a vote of 161 to 134.

FRIDAY, Feb. 8.—In the senate the the president's message was read announcing a new loan of $62,500,000, instead of $100,000,000, as agreed upon. The Hawaiian cable amendment to the diplomatic and consular bill was then further discussed and the president's message giving Minister Willis' latest dispatches as to the sentences of death in Hawaii was presented. Senator Lodge (by request) introduced a bill to provide for the issue of $1,200,000,000 worth of bonds payable in gold coin at 2½ per cent. interest, to run from ten to twenty-five years. In the house the president's message providing for a new issue of bonds was read; also a message on the Hawaiian question. The legislative appropriation bill was discussed.

SATURDAY, Feb. 9.—By a vote of 33 to 25 the senate decided to lay a cable to Hawaii and appropriated $500,000 to begin the work. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was passed and eulogies on the late Senator Stockbridge were delivered. In the house it was voted to place individual clerks of members on the annual salary roll at the rate of $100 per month. The legislative appropriation bill was further discussed and an attempt to strike out the appropriation for the civil service commission was defeated.

MONDAY, Feb. 11.—Senator Hill presented a resolution in the senate defining the policy of the government concerning bimetalism, gold payments, etc. The post office appropriation bill was discussed. In the house the bill to provide for coinage at the branch mint at Denver, Col., was passed, and the legislative appropriation bill was considered.

THE GING MURDER.

Adry Hayward Tells the Story of the Crime.

One of the Most Remarkable Scenes in the History of Criminal Courts—The Defense Declares Adry Is Insane.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 12.—Adry Hayward, brother of the accused, was placed on the witness stand yesterday. He had barely begun his testimony when Mr. Erwin arose and said:

"May it please the court, I want to enter an objection to the testimony of this witness in that he is not competent to testify to anything in relation to this homicide against Harry Hayward upon the ground that he labors under a delusion, and is, in fact, insane upon the subject."

The Court: "Well, I don't see that he is any more insane at the present time than many of the attorneys." (Laughter.

Mr. Erwin: "If your honor please, the law requires me to make an objection upon any proposition of which I expect to avail myself, and I wish to take an exception to the court's ruling at his time, and also to the courts remarks before the jury."

The Court: "Very well, an exception will be noted." Adry testified as follows:

"One day about the middle of last September Harry came to me and asked if I wanted to make some good money. I told him I was always ready to make good money and asked him what his plan was. He said it was nothing more nor less than to kill a woman for $2,000. I told him I was not in the business of killing people, and women especially, and that if I was I would not do it for such a paltry amount as $2,000. Harry assured me that it would be the easiest thing in the world to do, without danger or suspicion."

The matter of the accident policy for $5,000 taken out by Miss Ging in the Hartford company was then gone over and Adry told how Harry had come to him in a rage over the matter.

" 'Damn her" said he (he hardly ever swears but he said 'damn her' this time), 'I'll kill her now anyway if I never get a cent—such a damn fool as to take out a $5,000 policy instead of $7,000 one.' He said he would make more money out of it now anyhow as he would have her make out notes to him for $10,000."

Adry then told of having seen him make out four notes upon his father's desk a short time afterwards, but when the notes were shown to him could not swear that they were the ones, although he acknowledged that the printed forms were those used in the Haywards' office.

"He stated to me at different times that he also proposed getting the girl out in a hack, getting a certain hackman in town, and he described him as a large, fleshy man, who would do anything for him; that he would get her out in that way, and that he would shoot the hackman, too. I asked him if the hackman had a family, and he said that he had, and I made the remark that it was a terrible thing to kill a person, let alone another to accomplish his purpose. And he also proposed to drown the girl, but objected to that later on; he said it would look like suicide. He proposed driving out in a buggy with her, and wondered how she would fall if she struck a boulder; and also driving out in a buggy and letting her get the lines tangled in her hands, let the horse run away with her and kill her.

"On Friday morning he came to me between 10 and 12 o'clock and said that Blixt had asked him if it wasn't pretty near time to sacrifice the dressmaker.

"I said: 'Harry, you are not going to kill the girl, are you?

"He said: 'Yes, she's got to be the victim this time.'

"I talked to him about the horrible aspect of his intention, told him that he must not do it, that it was terrible to think of.

"He replied that she had lived long enough, and then I told him that if he did not drop the idea I would report him, and that just as surely as he killed the girl he would hang for it."

As Adry uttered in a terse, deliberate tone these last words, a momentary hush fell upon the spectators and attorneys and all eyes were focussed upon Harry. The man of ice had weakened—there was not a doubt of it. As the ominous words from his own brother fell upon his ears, a deathly pallor for a moment overspread his features. He bit his lower lip convulsively and his bosom heaved twice with two long, deep breaths. The iron had struck home, and for an instant Harry Hayward, who had hitherto not manifested a sign either of excitement, fear, or anger, revealed to the gaze of the crowd something of the awful emotions which must be fighting for egress within his heart. Only for an instant, however. The blood rushed back in ruddy tide to his clean-shaven features, the heaving bosom grew quiet again and lapsed into the measured respirations of a calm man, the mocking under-lip resumed its careless expression, and Harry was himself again.

"Fifteen or twenty minutes to 8 on Dec. 3, Harry came to my flat and asked for $5, which I gave to him, and he told me I had better go to the theater. I asked him why. He said something was liable to happen; that it must be done; that he had no time; was in a hurry. He threw his hands about in an excited manner and said: 'Go away, don't bother me; don't be a fool, but go.'

"He asked me then to go to his flat at 9 and see if the revolver was under his pillow. I said I wouldn't. Then he wanted me to pull his curtain up in case any excitement occurred around Thirteenth and Hennepin. I said I couldn't do it. Then I went to my father-in-law's, getting there at 8:20 and went home late. At 3:30 Harry came in and said: 'Don't you know what's happened? Miss Ging's dead. She has been murdered. Her body was found way out by Lake Harriet, stone dead.' I was urged by Harry to go into his flat. He said that he was tired. I went, and sat down. After a while Harry went to his trunk and took out his Colt's revolver and cleaned it, remarking, 'Just like finding money.' I said I had to go, covered him up with a coat and tried to get a paper for him. In the morning Harry went upstairs and got a paper to read."

MEN OF THE WORLD.

JULIUS ROGERS, of Marshall county, Ia., who was such a small baby that nobody expected him to live, is now the biggest man in that part of the state, standing six feet five inches in height and weighing three hundred and fifty-two pounds.

VANILLO, the eldest son of King Behanzin, the ex-king of Dahomey, has begun school life at the Lycee, of St. Pierre, Martinique, the place of his captivity. "He wishes to learn French," it is said—out of gratitude, no doubt, to his captors.

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 5.—Both houses held morning sessions only. In the senate Morgan introduced a bill adding another cause for divorce. It specifies the habitual and excessive use of narcotics. Dunham sent up a measure authorizing county commissioners to issue bonds to aid in construction of roads and bridges, the amount of bonds not to exceed 1 per cent of assed valuation. The bill of Mr. Smith to appoint a committee consisting of three members of the house and two from the senate to confer with a similar committee appointed by the legislature of North Dakota to confer upon the subject of some suitable legislation to secure lower freight rates on grain and coal was passed under suspension of the rules. It was decided to recommend for passage the Potter tax bill reducing the delinquent penalty to 1 per cent.

In the house Jacobson introduced an important bill amending the laws of 1887 regulating common carriers. Other bills were introduced providing for the issuance of certificates of indebtedness by cities of over 10,000 inhabitants; providing for the annual revision and establishment by the state railroad and warehouse commission of the tariffs of rates, fares, charges and classifications of all common carriers of the state to investigate rates on fare conjointly with the committee from North Dakota legislature. The calendar was quickly disposed of. The bill of Mr. Staples to amend the road laws; the bill of Mr. Gutterson, relating to the same subject, and the bill of Senator Roverud to legalize certain acts of village councils relating to highways, comprised the calendar list, and all three were passed with little discussion.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 6.—In the senate several important bills were introduced. Perhaps the most important was by Senator Potter, making illegal any conspiracy or agreement to regulate prices. Others were: placing all officers in cities of over 40,000 and counties of over 50,000 on regular salaries and all fees to be turned into the treasury; providing for state inspection of mines and a primary election bill. The rest of the day was spent in committee of the whole.

In the house the Allen—Furlong contest was taken up and decided in favor of Furlong by a vote of 71 to 23. On the face of the recount of votes Allen had a small plurality but he failed to file his notice of contest in a legal manner. Bills were introduced: to fix the fees of sheriff for executing the death penalty at $500; to appropriate $50,000 for a building for girls at the state agricultural school; to provide for liens of owners or operators of threshing machines: The bill making Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday was passed under suspension of the rules.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 7.—In the senate the bill from the house making Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, a legal holiday was after patriotic discussion passed and sent to the governor. Bills were introduced creating a veteran teacher's relief fund out of fire insurance taxes: to provide for the incorporation of mutual life and casualty companies: to define duties of master and employer to employe in certain cases: relating to carnal knowledge and abuse of children.

Senator Johnson, of Hennepin, presented a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of three senators to investigate certain charges to the effect that the purchasing officer for the Rochester insane asylum has been purchasing dry goods; groceries, clothing, boots and shoes, drugs and medicines and other articles from outside the state, thus making an unfair discrimination against the wholesalers of the state.

In the house a lively debate sprung up between Jacobson and Feig over the resolution to transfer $50,000 from the school text book fund to the revenue fund. The resolution was recommended to pass by a vote of 58 to 19. Among the important bills introduced was one by Lockwood giving a right of civil action for injuries resulting through the sale of intoxidants. Other bills were: repealing laws relating to the manufacture or sale of lard and lard compounds; to codify the insurance laws of the state. In the committee of the whole the bill to prohibit wrongful practices by officials of the state was recommended to pass, also the one relating to the taxation of certain railroad lands.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 8.—It was purely a routine day in both branches. In the senate bills were introduced: to appropriate $100,000 to farmers whose crops were destroyed by hail in 1894; to prohibit the display of foreign flags on public buildings; to prohibit the posting of notices of chattel mortgages; to prevent employers keeping black lists; providing school books for indigent children; to regulate and improve civil service in cities. The bill abolishing pool rooms near the university and the one allowing owners of cranberry marshes to use meandering streams were passed under suspension. Senator Iltis' bill protecting muskrats was passed.

In the house just as the Anderson bill was to be put upon final passage it was discovered that the enacting clause had been omitted. This was remedied by amendment and the bill passed and clinched. The house passed the senate bill transferring school text book fund to the revenue fund and the following house bills: vacating state and territorial roads through platted portions of cities; to organize a medical corps in the National guard; to prohibit wrongful practices by state officials and the bill relating to liquor licenses. The bill recommending congress to pass a bankruptcy bill was recommended to pass.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 9.—The appearance of Representative Warner's bill amending the state capital act was awaited with great interest by the house members this afternoon, because of the talk which has been current for some days of an effort to either defeat the whole scheme for a new building or cripple it in such a manner as to satisfy its opponents. The bill was reached at 3:15, and all expectation that the Hennepin members would take any part in opposition were disappointed. In fact, there was but slight opposition verbally, only Messrs. Jacobson and Feig speaking against the bill. It was finally referred to the appropriation committee with the consent of the Ramsey delegation.

In the senate, Senator Reichus' resolution, regarding the reports of the two expert architects upon the new state capitol plans refused to down. It was called up by its author again this morning and passed. On Thursday, when the resolutions were introduced, Senator Stevens gave notice of debate and had its consideration delayed. Yesterday it went over, by consent, on account of Senator Steuens' absence.

This morning Senator Stevens said he had consulted with the members of the state capitol commission, and they were ready to have these reports or any other pertinent facts given to the public.

Senator Hodge introduced a bill defining what constitutes a legal newspaper, also prescribing the form of lease issued by the state for mineral lands.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 11—The house only held session today and at noon adjourned until Wednesday on account of Lincoln's birthday. A few bills were introduced none of them of great importance. Jacobson introduced a resolution calling for information regarding salaries and fees of public officers; number of clerks-deputies etc., and salaries paid them. The act proposing an amendment relating to the elective franchise was reported for passage. Also the bill for the annual revision and establishment of tariff rates by railroad commission. The principal bill introduced was one repealing the present prison labor law.

FROM LAST REPORTS.

Hawaiian Government's Efforts to Stamp Out Treason.

Six Rebel Leaders Condemned to Death, Three Banished, and Others Receive Life Sentences—Senate Wants Cable to Honolulu.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 12. The steamer Warrimoo arrived here Saturday night from Honolulu, bringing news of happenings there up to February 2. On board the Warrimoo were three men who have been exiled by the Hawaiian government for participation in the recent rebellion. They are J. Cranston, A. Muller and J. B. Johnston. Mr. Cranston, upon arrival here sent for the American consul. He intends placing his case in the hands of the American authorities and will seek redress for the expulsion of Muller, Johnston and himself.

The government expelled Cranston and Muller on charges of conspiracy to use dynamite, and Johnston, who was a special police officer, with turning traitor. Cranston and Muller, it is said, were to blow up Central church on the night the rebellion broke out. Of the three exiles Johnston is a British subject, Cranston an American and Muller a German. They say they do not know what they were arrested for, were given no trial, were kept confined without any chance of communication, and did not know they were to leave until taken aboard the Warrimoo.

The trial of the ex-queen has probably already occurred. The charges and specifications were served upon her on January 31, and the trial was set for the following week. Her own diary, found at Washington palace, will be put in as important evidence against her.

The impression is general that she will plead guilty, but that notwithstanding a full trial will be held. There is no doubt but that the executive will extend to the ex-queen the utmost clemency consistent with the public safety.

"1. Treason, by engaging in open rebellion against the republic of Hawaii; by attempting by force of arms to overthrow and destroy the same and by levying war against the same, and by adhering to the enemies of the republic of Hawaii, giving them aid and comfort within the Hawaiian islands and elsewhere.

"2. Treason, by aiding, abetting, procuring, counseling, inciting, countenancing and encouraging others to commit treason and to engage in open rebellion against the republic of Hawaii and to attempt by force of arms to overthrow the same, and to adhere to the enemies of the republic of Hawaii in giving them aid and comfort in the Hawaiian islands and elsewhere."

The military commission has brought in findings in twenty-four cases. Two were acquitted. The others were found guilty and sentences were fixed by the commission subject to review by President Dole. The sentences vary from death to imprisonment for five years with fines. The lowest sentence for treason by the Hawaiian statute is imprisonment for five years and a fine of not less than $5,000.

The six leaders were all sentenced to be hanged. They are: Charles T. Gulick, William H. Rickard, William T. Seward, Robert W. Wilcox, Samuel Nowlein and Henry Bertelman. Sentence in the last two cases will be commuted as both men have furnished valuable evidence for the government. Gulick was born in this country, Rickard is an Englishman and Wilcox is a Hawaiian. The only one of the four who is entitled to the protection of the United States is William T. Seward. As yet no date has been set for the executions.

It is the general belief that no capital punisment will be meted out to the condemned rebels, the first hot feeling of resentment against the disturbers having passed away and given place to one of mercy and moderation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—By the decisive vote of 36 to 26 the senate agreed on Saturday to inaugurate the project of laying a cable from the Pacific coast to Hawaii. An amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was made giving $500,000 for beginning work on the cable and authorizing the president to contract for the entire work, estimated to cost $3,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The state department will proceed to take vigorous measures in the case of J. Cranston, who araived at Vancouver Sunday on the Warrimoo, an exile from Hawaii. A brief statement of his case has been received at the state department from the United States commercial agent at Vancouver, alleging that Cranston is an American citizen; that he was guiltless of any participation in the rebellion, and that he was forcibly placed aboard the steamer and exiled without any trial and to his severe pecuniary loss. It will be necessary, in order to make out a case against the Hawaiian government, to substantiate Cranston's statement at every point. According to his own story Minister Willis took his deposition before he was ejected from Hawaii.

A MONSTER PETITION.

Contains Over 6,000,000 Names of Foes to Liquor and Opium.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Chicago has just sent the champion petition of all history to Grover Cleveland. It took a dozen large boxes to hold it, and Mrs. Carse had it in charge. It will be formally presented to the president in Convention music hall, Washington, Friday evening of this week. This record-breaking document is the mammoth polyglot petition of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union. It contains 6 miles of signatures, and if the written names of all its verbal indorsers were added it would be 35 miles long. Miss Frances E. Willard is the woman who inspired it, and the petition asks the rulers of all nations to suppress the liquor and opium traffic. Hitherto the largest petition ever framed and the only one that approached to this in the number of its signatures was the famous petition of the British chartists in 1841 asking for the repeal of the corn laws; that had nearly 1,000,000. Miss Willard and her coworkers started out twelve years ago to get 2,000,000 women's names to their petition, and the history of the years of work that have intervened compasses the whole world. The work has now been practically accomplished, and the great polyglot petition has at last started on its travels to the court of every ruler of the world—for this document is to be carried around the world in two special steamers furnished by Miss Willard and Lady Henry Somerset. But this will not be until 1896.

GRASS IS KING!

Grass rules. It is the most valuable crop of America, worth more than either corn or wheat. Luxurious meadows are the farmers' delight. A positive way to get them, and the only one we know, is to sow Salzer's Extra Grass Mixtures. Many of our farmer readers prise them and say they get 4 to 6 tons of magnificent hay per acre from Salzer's seeds. Over one hundred different kinds of Grass, Clover and Fodder Plant seeds are sold by Salzer.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 7c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get a sample of GRASS & CLOVER MIXTURE and their mammoth seed catalogue free. [K]

Rev. Dr. Parker

Is the beloved pastor of the Universalist church at Fargo, N. D., and has also been a pastor in Providence, R. I., New York City and Troy, N. Y. He says:

"I regard Hood's Sarsaparilla the best blood purifier, and I have good reason for this opinion. I am now 80 years of age. Four years ago I was afflicted with rheumatism in my back and limbs, so badly that it was impossible for me to get my usual sleep at night. I had just partially recovered from the grip, which reduced my weight 40 lbs. My appetite was poor and I felt languid and weak. In fact I was in a very dilapidated condition. Having heard and read so much about the wonderful cures produced by Hood's Sarsaparilla I resolved to give it a trial. I followed the directions, and before the fifth bottle was finished my appetite was restored, I felt invigorated and strong. My rheumatic difficulty had entirely disappeared. I cannot but think very highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla." J. N. PARKER. Be sure to get Hood's.

A WOMAN'S NERVES.

The Story of a Woman to Whom Noise Was Torture.

Prostrated by the Least Excitement—Physicians Baffled by Her Case.

(From the Gate City, Keokuk, Iowa.)

Mrs. Helen Meyers, whose home is at 3515 Vernon Avenue, Chicago, and whose visit to Keokuk, Ia., will long be remembered, was at one time afflicted with a nervous malady which at times drove her nearly to distraction. "Those terrible headaches are a thing of the past," she said the other day to a Gate City representative, "and there is quite a story in connection with it, too."

My nervous system sustained a great shock some fifteen years ago, brought on, I believe, through too much worrying over family matters, and then allowing my love for my books to get the better of my discretion where my health was concerned. Why, whenever my affairs at home did not go along just as I expected, I would invariably become prostrated from the excitement, and I would consider myself fortunate indeed if the effects of the attack would not remain for a week. I was obliged to give up our pleasant home not far from the Lake Shore drive, because I could not stand the noise in that locality. I could find no place in the city which I deemed suitable to one whose nervous system was always on the point of explosion. To add to my misfortunes my complexion underwent a change, and I looked so yellow and sallow that I was ashamed to venture from the house at all.

"Madam," said my doctor to me soon after an unusually severe attack of the malady, "unless you leave the city and seek some place of quiet you will never recover." So I concluded I would visit my uncle, who lives in Dallas County, Iowa, and whose farm would surely be a good place for one in my pitiable condition. I picked up the Gate City one day and happened to come across an interesting recital of the recovery of some woman in New York State who was afflicted as I had been. This woman had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I thought that if Pink Pills cured that woman they might do the same for me. I began to take the pills according to directions, and I began to feel better from the start. After I had taken several boxes of them I was ready to go back to Chicago. My nervousness was gone and my complexion was as fresh as that of any sixteen-year-old girl in Iowa, and Pink Pills is what put the color in my cheeks. No wonder I am in such high spirits and feel like a prize fighter. And no wonder I like to come to Keokuk, for if it had not been for Pink Pills bought from a Keokuk firm I would not have been alive now," laughingly concluded the lady.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

BEAUTIFYING THEIR FEET.

Young Women Preparing to Bathe Next Season Without Shoes or Stockings.

Every manicurist nowadays is also a pedicurist. Not a few stylish young women pay as much attention to dressing their toe nails as their finger nails. A manicurist told me all about it the other day.

"It is all due to sea bathing," she said. "The woman who has a pretty foot is not averse to exposing it even to masculine scrutiny when she can do so without incurring the censure of those fickle powers that from time to time prescribe what constitutes propriety according to the shifting usages of society.

"The beach offers superb opportunities for the display of pedal charms. It is not alone fondness for salt water that makes pretty girls go bathing. You may have noticed that many of them seem more partial to the sand than to the water when in bathing costume.

"A pretty foot as well as a pretty face is a 'cheering sight to see,' and the pretty foot is something that can be cultivated. I can make a shapely foot a thing of beauty and a joy forever, and a foot that wasn't originally cast in a well-formed mould I can make presentable. There is one thing that is fatal to a pretty foot, and that is a tight shoe. Much of my work consists in overcoming the deformities thus created. It takes time, but it can be done.

"I have at least a dozen young women who seek my professional assistance regularly once a week, and that their time is well bestowed will be proven at several fashionable watering resorts next summer, to the admiration of their masculine friends and the envy of some of their feminine friends.

"There is nothing immodest in the idea of a woman showing her feet sans shoes and stockings; and since it involves the abandonment of tight shoes and consequent freedom from corns and other evils that tight shoes entail, I think it is something that ought to be encouraged. If sandals were fashionable I should soon be rich. I don't doubt that pedicurists did a thriving business in the palmy days of Greece and Rome."—Chicago Tribune.

A Matter of Taste.

"The young Kaiser Wilhelm is not such a patriotic German as I supposed he was."

"What makes you think so?"

"Well, I see by the papers that he has no use for the German diet."—Texas Siftings.

Not long ago some workmen were busy repairing the bed of the railroad, when an inmate of the asylum approached one of the laborers, and, from his position on the inner side of the inclosure, began a somewhat personal conversation: Inmate—Hard work that! Laborer—Troth an' it is. Inmate—Whit pay dae ye git? Laborer—Sixteen bob a week. Inmate—Are ye mairrit? Laborer—I am, worse luck!—and have six children. A pause; then: Inmate—I'm thinking, ma man, ye're on the wrang side o' the fence.

SCROFULA

Miss Della Stevens, of Boston, Mass., writes: I have always suffered from hereditary Scrofula, for which I tried various remedies, and many reliable physicians, but none relieved me. ## A WOMAN OF FORTY SUMMERS.

Full of outline and fair of face,
Swinging her fan with languid grace,
White arms gleaming through folds of lace,
A woman of forty summers.

No line of age in the forehead fair,
A life unmarred by touch of care,
In spite of her forty summers.

A husband lover and children sweet,
Pleasures to charm and friends to greet,
Roses scattered before her feet,
Through each of her forty summers.

Summers all, for winters bold
Have snatched her sunshine and made her cold;
Have killed her roses and left her old;
Nothing she knows but summers.

Nothing she knows of laden cloud,
Of freezing air and tempests loud,
Of snows that weave for Hope a shroud;
Her life has been only summers.

So calm she sits in the balmy air,
No sorrows to fret, no cross to bear,
A summer idyl, a vision fair,
This woman of forty summers.

Yet cold and blast but make us strong,
After the snow the robin's song;
To the fullest life by right belong
The winters as well as summers.

And they whom fame shall carve in stone,
The women whom men would fain entrone,
The women whom God has stamped His own,
Live winters as well as summers.

THE ANAXAT BABY SHOW

Peculiar Predicament of a Young Married Couple.

"BOSTON, Mass., April 10, 18—

"DEAR HENRY: I am thinking of having a baby show at Anaxat some time early next month. You know I am an old hand at getting up such things and think it may be made a success. I have seen a great number of babies whenever I have been out there, and in pleasant weather, such as we are apt to have in May, I think a 'show' will draw a crowd. Now may I ask you to take care of some things for me? In about ten days I shall send out perambulators, and beg you to see them stored in Smith's warehouse, sending me the bill. If you will do this I shall be much indebted to you.

"Hoping you and your wife are in good health, I remain yours truly,

"S. QUINCEY LAMB.

"MR. HENRY WOODIS, Anaxat, Mass."

This letter was unfortunately lost in the mails, for I never received it. Unfortunately, I may well say, for it involved me in the worst scrape I was ever in.

About two weeks later, as I was seated at the breakfast table and was half way through the meal, the maid brought in a telegram. Tearing it open, I read:

"One hundred perambulators will come by 7:30 express. Store them as agreed.

"S. QUINCEY LAMB."

One hundred perambulators! For me! Seven-thirty-express! Store them as agreed! To say that I was amazed would be putting it mildly. Luckily my wife came to my rescue.

"The 7:30 is due here now," she said, looking at the clock.

"With a hundred baby carriages addressed to me," I chimed in.

"Heavens!" I cried, "the neighbors will think I'm out of my mind."

"It's the only thing to be done," Helen said.

"Well, I'll go," I answered desperately, and leaving my half-finished breakfast, I took my hat and darted off.

It was a warm spring day. On the way to the station I thought out a plan of action. "The train must have gone," I reasoned, "leaving the wretched things on the platform." And then I imagined how it would look half-covered with baby carriages, all addressed to me, and wondered if any of my friends had seen them. "What on earth does Lamb want with a hundred perambulators here?" I asked myself. But I could find no answer to the question. "As agreed upon." I had not heard from him for two months, and surely then he had not mentioned sending me such a cargo. There was some mistake somewhere, I plainly saw, but soon gave up wondering where.

I reached the station at last, and saw to my dismay the further end of the platform covered with the dreaded objects. I had no sooner stepped on to the platform than the station-master hurried up and informed me that there were a hundred perambulators for me. I said yes, that I expected them, and it seemed to me that he looked at me with a new interest as he asked me what was to be done with them. You must know that I was only married last fall, and the knowledge of this fact doubtless added to his astonishment. He was probably wondering to himself what on the face of the earth a newly married man wanted with a hundred—but I am tired of mentioning them. The very thought of that morning makes my blood run cold whenever I see one of them on the street.

I asked the station-master if there was any express wagon about, but to my horror he said the only expressman the town owned was laid up with a lame leg. In despair I looked about me and saw a couple of loungers near at hand. Hailing them as a heavensent deliverance, I went up to them and asked if they wanted to earn a fiver apiece. They were delighted, and I explained that they must wheel the carriages from the station to my house, half a mile off. I thought my law practice in town would have to wait a day, and we three started off, I leading, each pushing one of those things before him.

As we passed along the principal street we attracted much attention, and my face grew more and more red as I passed various acquaintances. On we went until we reached the house, where we handed them over to Helen. Then back again to the station. And so all that hot morning we trundled carriages through the town. We got to be a regular sight, and by twelve o'clock all the people in town, at least so it seemed to me, were in line to see us pass. The perspiration streamed from my face, my collar had wilted early in the day, and I felt tempted to discard my coat. Various conjectures were made by acquaintances as to what was up. I heard several people ask if Mr. Woodis intended to open a private hospital for babies, and I inwardly groaned at the hardness of my fate. My anger also rose against Lamb as time passed on, and I vowed if I ever got hold of him I'd pay him back for his scurvy trick.

Gradually the carriages accumulated in our house, and at the end of the twenty-fifth trip Helen told me that all the bedrooms and halls were full and that they would have to line the walls of both parlor and dining-room.

"Put them anywhere," I said, and hurried back to the station. A dozen times I declared that I would stop and let the men finish the job, but the thought of those things with my name on them covering the platform filled me with fresh energy. All that morning we worked, and as we carried the last three up the steps I heard the clock strike one. I paid the men and went into the house. Baby carriages were everywhere. The parlor had a row of them on all four sides, they took up a part of the dining-room, and a fringe of them surrounded the hat rack in the hall. I deposited my hat in one of them and went upstairs. I opened my door and saw more carriages. They were everywhere, packed closely, leaving only a narrow path through which to pass.

Lunch was over and Helen informed me that we had accepted invitations to an afternoon tea for that date. "Can't I get out of it?" I groaned, but prepared to go, knowing that the chief topic of conversation would be my extraordinary purchase of a hundred perambulators. As we started Helen said that perhaps her friend Louisa Hass might drop in to tea. She lived in Boston, but had a standing invitation to take tea with us whenever she pleased. "She said see'd come some day soon, when I saw her last Tuesday in town," my wife said. Off we went, and as I had predicted my wondrous purchase was the chief topic of interest.

On our return we found our friend had come, had been told that we were not at home and had concluded to wait for us. "I saw some baby carriages in the hall," she said, "but thought nothing of them until I went upstairs to take off my bonnet. There I found them galore. I was amazed and couldn't account for so many in any way. What is the matter?" she asked. We showed her the telegram, told her all that we knew about it, and asked her what she could make out of it. We had given up wondering some time ago. At last I went to bed tired out with the day's excitement, but my dreams were filled with endless rows of baby carriages.

I found out afterward that, chancing to meet a friend in Boston soon after he sent the telegram, Lamb casually mentioned that he intended having a baby show at Anaxat in a week or so. This friend, one Charles Cardline, as it chanced, had a brother in Anaxat and he happened to be at his house on the very afternoon of the tea party. As he said good-by to his brother at the station, on his way into town, he remarked that he believed there was to be a baby show there soon. As his brother was about to question him the train came by, and, getting on, he left for Boston. On his way home his brother thought over his last remark, and after much pondering the idea came to him that that was the cause of my receiving one hundred perambulators that very morning. He was immensely pleased at having found the answer to the problem which no one had been able to explain, and informed his assembled family at supper that he knew why Mr. Woodis had bought those baby carriages—that he was going to have a baby show within a few days. It never struck him as peculiar that a young lawyer recently married, as I was at that time, should have a baby show in his private residence, or, if it did strike him, the thought was vastly outweighed by the evidence against it.

The news spread like wildfire, and by the next night it was known all over town that I was to have a baby show in a day or two. It naturally followed then that every mother who had a baby was anxious that it should be entered in the show for others to admire and wonder at, and I came down to breakfast on the following morning in fear and trepidation lest some eager mother should come to see me before the day was out.

My fears were justified, for just as I was finishing my breakfast the servant told me there was a lady on the porch who wished to see me. With a premonition as to the cause of her visit I hastened to meet her. She was sitting on the porch with her baby in her arms. She immediately arose and informed me that she had heard that I was to have a baby show and desired to enter her little darling, when, to my dismay, who should I see approaching my gate but two more mothers with their precocious infants. At this sight I hastily informed her that it was all a mistake, there was to be no show, and—but to my horrified gaze was presented another pair approaching.

"I am very sorry to have caused you this annoyance," I said, "but there has been a false report." And leaving her I advanced to meet the approaching forces, intending to address them from the porch, hoping that the first mother would have sense enough to leave. Alas! it was not so. The sight of the others had emboldened her and she advanced into the house and selected the best carriage in the parlor for her own darling.

With a groan I saw another trio approaching from the other direction, and hastened to the gate to forewarn them, allowing the others to gain the porch and thence to struggle into the house in search of resting places for their burdens. More and more approached. Seeing the parlor full of women, the newcomers thought they had better hasten also, and were spreading all over the house in order to find perambulators for their children before the supply gave out. My words had no effect; the sight of others spurred them on. Hannibal, Marc Antony, Rienzi—their tasks were nothing as compared with mine. Their audiences listened—I spoke to deafened ears.

My wife came out to me at last in despair.

"The house is full," she said. I caught a glimpse of a group just then marching up to the porch and seating themselves there, and still they came. I shouted at them. 'Twas useless. The sight of other babies filled the approaching forces with a desire that theirs also should share the privileges of their rivals.

Suddenly Helen jerked my sleeve. "Look," she said. I turned and saw my friend Quincey approaching along the street, valise in hand and a happy smile on his face. Just then a lively infant on the porch sent up a piercing shriek, which was joined in by several others, and a general hubbub followed. But the reception he received at our house I am sure he will never forget.—Arthur's Home Magazine.

—The great thing in observation is not to be influenced by our preconceived notions, or what we want to be true, or by our fears, hopes or any personal element, and to see the thing just as it is.—John Burroughs.

THE BLIZZARD.

A Cold Wave Strikes the Country—Waves Are High on the Atlantic.

On the 7th this country was in the grip of one of the worst blizzards in the records of the weather bureau. A storm of snow and wind, accompanied by the celebrated Dakotan icy temperature, raged with awful ferocity. And it was not alone the west which suffered. New York was right in the midst of a howling blizzard. The storm that enveloped New York started in Florida and swept up the Atlantic, catching into its embrace all the cities of the coast. The thermometer at Washington, D. C., stood at 8 degrees above.

The people in the south also got something to which they were unaccustomed. Down in Arkansas it was almost cold enough to freeze up the hot springs, being 4 degrees above zero there, and the mercury making the same stand in Tennessee.

In New Orleans, Mobile, and all along the gulf coast there was a fall of 40 degrees in 24 hours. The thermometer fell to 20 degrees above there. This means that the roses which now are at their perfection of bloom and are the pride and glory of the cities of the south have had their beauty blighted by the touch of the northern frost.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The storms which have been impending throughout England are becoming more severe. The highlands of Scotland are completely isolated and all the railroads are blocked with snow.

An unknown vessel has foundered off Port Patrick, Scotland, with the loss of seven lives, and a two-masted steamship with a black band around two white smokestacks is ashore on the Isle of Man.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 12.—The latest information from Cape Breton indicates that the recent storm has been the most destructive experienced there in thirty years. Great damage was done at South Igonish and for 30 miles along the gulf shore. About nineteen houses and three stores were washed away. So great was the force of the sea that large rocks were carried through the frail houses. The houses were soon undermined, then wrecked and floated out to sea with their contents. Everything was lost, but the inhabitants escaped, and no lives are as yet known to be lost. Sixteen miles up the coast is New Haven, another cove of some thirty families. Here the houses are built back on the shore, but the fish houses and the stores are on the beach. These buildings, with their contents, valued at $10,000, went, as did those of South Ingonish, being swept out to sea with all they contained. At Middle Head and other places along the coast fish houses, huts and fishing gear were destroyed.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Feb. 12.—A schooner ashore at Point of Woods lifesaving station proved to be the Louis V. Place, Capt. Squires, from Baltimore for New York, coal laden. Capt. Baker, of the Lonehill station, and the Point of Woods crew, succeeded in reaching the vessels at 11 o'clock Saturday night and rescued two of the crew, which had consisted of eight men. They were all in a badly frozen condition, and had been in the rigging two days and a night. The other six men had either been washed overboard and drowned or frozen to death in the rigging.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 12.—The freezing weather continues. The best-informed orange-grower in Florida, James A. Harris, of Citra, says 95 per cent. of the crop will not reach 100,000 boxes, against 5,000,000 boxes this year. The early vegetable crop, the entire strawberry crop, and four-fifths of the pineapple plants are destroyed. The aggregate loss is conservatively estimated at $10,000,000.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 12.—A conservative estimate of the damage to winter wheat and rye in Nebraska caused by the high wind of Wednesday places the loss at 15 per cent. Some of the grain was blown entirely out of the ground and in other places buried a foot deep with dirt and sand.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 12.—Ten or twelve oyster sloops have been wrecked and from twenty to thirty lives lost in the Chesapeake during the blizzard. The Kent Island shore is strewn with wreckage. The frozen body of an unknown oysterman floated ashore on a cake of ice near Tolchester.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—For the first time in thirty years the Delaware river between this city and Camden was frozen solid Sunday from shore to shore and people crossed on the ice.

Many casualties occurred Saturday from the intense cold in various northern states and Canada, and one was reported from as far south as Richmond, Ky.

Teutonic Saves Nine Lives.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Hundreds were attracted to the White Star dock to view the Teutonic and the work of her crew in putting her into shipshape appearance. Tons of ice had to be chopped from her foreworks and prow, and drifts of snow could be seen packed away in sheltered places. Hers had been a most tempestuous trip, but it had also been a merciful one. Nine seamen were rescued by the Teutonic Friday afternoon from the schooner Josie Reeves, of this city. The rescued were taken off the schooner only after a severe afternoon's work. Nothing is known of the fate of the abandoned schooner Reeves.

Quick Action.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The bill appropriating $10,000 for the immediate relief of the suffering poor of the District of Columbia affords an example of what congress can do when prompt action and dispatch of business are imperative. The bill was introduced in the senate after 12 o'clock Friday afternoon. At a little past 2 o'clock the printed copy of the bill was back from the government printing office. It was introduced and passed by the house and at 3 o'clock was ready to be sent to the president for his signature.

In the Reciprocity Column.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The state department has received a cable message from Consul General Williams at Havana saying that the Cuban customs officers, under instructions from Madrid, have placed American imports into Cuba in the second or reciprocity column of tariff rates.

Cost of the Samoan Protectorate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13. — Secretary Carlisle sent to the house, in reply to a resolution, a statement showing that the share of the United States in the expense of maintaining a protectorate over Samoa up to the present time had been $71,346.

Asiatic Criminals.

The worst feature of the Asiatic criminal is his vindictiveness. To plot against the life of one who has done his best to compass your fall, who has dishonored wife or daughter, or lain in wait for a son; to shoot a grasping landlord and knock a land agent on the head—these sort of episodes are familiar enough in British annals of crime. But in his thirst for revenge the Asiatic will sacrifice himself, his wife, his child, his unoffending neighbor, if he can only get up a case against a rival. Human life for him has no sanctity. If the native policeman ought to discover a human body in the premises of his deadly foe, with clothes and ornaments, any one may be sacrificed to supply the corpus delicti.—Saturday Review.

BACK WITH RICH TROPHIES.

Last spring notice was made in these columns that Mr. Henry A. Salzer, of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., America's leading Seed Growers and Merchants, was in Europe in search of rare seeds and novelties for the American farmer and citizen.

Judging from their new catalogue, his trip was an eminently successful one. It is brim full of rare things. Of especial merit we name the Bismarck Apple, bearing the second year; the Giant Flowering Star Phlox, the German Coffee Berry; and for the farmer the Victoria Rape, Germanica Vetch, the Lathyrus silvestris, the Giant Spurry and Giant Incarnate Clover; Sacaline, and dozens of other rare things.

This wide-awake firm is in the van, and their catalogue, which is sent you for 5 cents postage, would be cheap at $1 per copy.

YOUNG SPIRITS,

a vigorous body and robust strength follow good health. But all fail when the vital powers are weakened. Nervous debility and loss of manly power result from bad habits, contracted by the young through ignorance of their ruinous consequences. Low spirits, melancholia, impaired memory, morose or irritable temper, fear of impending calamity and a thousand and one derangements of body and mind, result from such pernicious practices. All these are permanently cured by improved methods of treatment without the patient leaving home.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE and the Farm Journal for one year for ONE DOLLAR.

—The newsboys and city daily papers are having a rich harvest these times with their all "about the Hayward trial."

—Rev. Webb held Episcopal services at the Presbyterian church last Monday evening. He is to have a portion of his vested choir with him on his next visit.

—The Epworth League sociable at the M. E. manse, on Tuesday evening was a grand success, and was enjoyed by a couple of dozen people, in good style.

—If you need dental work of any kind call on Dr. Niven, at Howard Lake, Feb. 16. 17, and 18. Try his painless method of teeth extracting. Everybody in love with it. 20-1t.

—Several have availed themselves of the opportunity and will read The Farm Journal, of Philadelphia, and the BUFFALO GAZETTE for the next year for $1. Offers are still made up to and including Feb 22.

—One of Burt's wheat groats canvassers had the bashfulness to thrust his pipe into his pocket; but being lit it burned its way to view and made a big hole in the overcoat. He says he will now stop smoking.

—A sled load of young folks drove out to John Cunningham's on Saturday evening and spent the evening with Miss Viola. A good time was had; but the ride is said by some to have been awfully cold.

—Rev. T. Davies and wife drove to Buffalo on Saturday for the first time; and, on looking up the bretheren were much astonished to learn that one of the pillars resided in what they had mistaken for the home of the chief saloonkeeper of the place. Though they thought they did not suffer from cold, they learned on their arrival that Mrs. D. had frozen her nose.

--Rumors and rumors keep coming out that some of the village officials spend the middle of the night in gambling. Either this is a fact or it is not a fact. If it is not a fact then the accusations should not continue to be made; if it is true they should be dealt with according to law; and those known to the facts should either keep still about it or enter complaint in the proper way, as is the duty of any law abiding citizen.

—President McGary, of the Delano Washington's Birthday Association, was in town on Monday and imparted a little of his enthusiasm to some of the committees on celebration and secured the City Hall for the occasion, and things are moving on in a satisfactory manner, toward having an enjoyable time on the recurrence of the anniversary of the birth of the "father of our country." President John is a hustler from away back and nothing is going to be left undone to make this, the third celebration in Delano, a grand success.

—Delanoites have had another practical lesson in "protection" this week. Two men and a woman came to town to sell "Burt's Wheat Groats" to our citizens. They retailed it from house to house for two days, selling quite a lot of 3 pound sacks: then they were informed that they must pay $3.00 per day for the privilege. After settling up accounts and leaving consignments with several grocery firms: they, instead of making this headquarters for canvassing neighboring towns, as they had intended, took Wednesday morning's train for the west.

—Find Schaffer's reading notice to his customers and act accordingly.

—This week's pleasant weather is appreciated by our citizens after the three week's cold spell.

Pay your personal tax on or before Feb. 28, for the next morning the penalty will be added to the tax.

—The R. R. men are at work attaching the tank pipes to the village water works system and will soon be using city water.

—Pete Younik's band serenaded Len Dedrick Wednesday night it being the occasion of his 45th birthday. Len is growing old.

—Dr. Niven, dentist, will be in Howard Lake, Feb. 16, 17 and 18. Fun to have teeth pulled when Anti-pain is applied to the gum. No pain at all. 1.

—E. J. Swedebeck is getting the modern improvements into his house, on River street and proposes to take some comfort in his old days, even if the weather is cold.

Township officers are to be elected next month. Put the best men in every place you can. Don't stay away from the polls and then complain that you have a poor set of officials.

—All the committees of the Delano Washington's Birthday Association as well as all that are interested are to meet at the Post Office on Saturday, Feb. 16 at 2:30. BY COMMITTEE.

—Those using village water are not favorably impressed with manure as a protection to the pipes from cold; they say it may preserve the limpidity, partially, but adds too much to the odor.

—Who says advertising does not pay? Joseph Kunkel advertised his farm for sale, trade or rent last week. This week a man from near Howard was here hunting him up. He did not make a bargain, however.

—The Great Northern is getting crowded out of Twincite with its shops. What's the matter with bringing some of them to Delano? We can furnish them water, electric lights, and such city things, at reasonable rates.

—Loads of pork continue to go from here to the cities. It does seem as if somebody would start a packing house here and make a pile of money while they pay farmers good prices and keep them and their money at home.

—Some of the young ladies while riding home from the Dime Museum at Rockford last night fell in love—that is with the nice ride; while some fell out of the sleigh into a snowdrift, but they took their Coffin with them.

One of the party.

—At a meeting of the Village Council held on Monday evening the contract with the G. N. R'y. was read and discussed. The contract is for supplying water for locomotives. In case of accident or any other cause if the water is cut off from the tank it shall be restored within 24 hours. If not restored within 24 hours the village shall forfeit only such sum as they would have earned if they had continued the supply. The contract is for five years and shall bind the successors of either party. Mayor Kohler was authorized to sign the contract for the village.

Motion carried that Adam Horsch keep the hydrants thawed out until spring and then present bill for the same.

—Why don't our village council call for bids for everything they want done; or bargain with whom they please at their own price, when they please for all services or material wanted? For printing they let a portion of it to the lowest bidder and decided between two bids at the same figures, and for other printing simply carry it to the place of preference. For collecting rents for water and lights they hire one of themselves at $8 pet month; for thawing out water pipes they engage another of themselves; for bossing business another of themselves is employed. Why don't they let these jobs out to the lowest bidder? if they are going to do any business on that plan they should do all that way; treat everybody alike.

—Every farmer wants a paper that will tell him something about his own business. From which he can feel that he is learning something that will help him to do better on his farm. That will give him pointers on stock raising; wheat, corn, potato and other crop growing. That his wife and children can read, and receive instruction and amusement from. That is not full of politics. That will help furnish plans for beautifying the house and premises. Such is The Farm Journal, of Philadelphia, monthly, for 50 cts per year. We have made arrangements so that we will furnish to all subscribers paying up and one year in advance. and to new subscribers paying in advance one year for the GAZETTE, The Farm Journal one year FREE. Send or bring in your money before Feb. 22.

—When merchants cut, inordinately, on prices of staple goods, customers have learned from experience to keep their eyes open. When professional men cut rates, below regular living rates they are acknowledging to customers that their services are worth less than the services of others in the same line. When mechanics, or people working at different trades cut prices very much, it is pretty good evidence that something is going to be lacking in materials used or in workmanship. People generally have come to know about what things can and ought to be done for and the individual may gain temporary but not lasting advantage who seeks, by underhanded and subtle means, to supplant others in their business and merchants whose goods are not up to date cannot hope to long compete with those doing a straightforward and honorable business, and who are not ashamed to say so in their village papers.

--See Teacher's Examinations, in another column.

—Considerable complaint is heard on account of the small price, $20. per month received by the village for pumping water for the R. R. that has cost them $40. or $45. per month just for an engineer, to say nothing of the other expenses connected with keeping up a pumping station. And it is said that other places get from $45. upwards for the same work, and Litchfield gets $20. for supplying a few engines only. Of course our village council should know best about the bargain; that's what they are for, to look after the interests of the village and if they haven't they ought to have done so.

Special to the Journal.

Oelwein, Iowa, Feb. 14. -The schoolhouse at Lamont, 10 miles south of here, was burned to the ground this morning shortly after school opened, the fire starting from the furnace. It was a two-story frame building.

The children became panic stricken. Alfred Brown, a pupil, was caught by a falling chimney and his head crushed. He will not recover. Clarence Lake was also badly injured. Loss, $5000.

And yet our school board insist there is no danger of fire in a school house. They should at once provide fire escapes or some other method of exit for those on the second floor As it is the cry of fire would create the greatest possible panic at once, and death would most certainly result from a fire.

Washington's Birthday.

The Delano Washington's Birthday Assocation will hold their annual meeting at the City Hall on the 22nd. Part of the exercises are to be gone through with before noon commencing about 11:30. The programme so far as has been arranged, is given below:

J. C. Johnson, Lyndale's prosperous merchant, Creamery Coffin, and Farmer John McGary was a trio of Independence citizens in town Monday on business.

School Jottings.

This has been rather a dull week at school. The usual Monday lessons were recited Monday morning

Some of the High School scholars, accompanied by several teachers and others, took a sleighride Saturday evening to the home of Miss Viola Cunningham. They report a pleasant time.

A number of scholars went to Rockford last evening. The Magazine Club of that place gave an entertainment

The club met as usual last Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Leavens. The program was as follows:

Reading of Ivanhoe, Miss Steele and Mrs. Leavens,
Song, Kind Words, Misses Steele, Johns and O'Hair.
Reading, Anna Maxfield.

After playing "Twenty Questions" we adjourned.

The weather which we had last week did not seem to be conducive to study.

The Seniors, (A. M. Grace O'Hair and Frances T. Bauman) have not yet organized. They are doubtless wondering which will hold the greater number of offices. A SCRIBBLER.

County Cullings.

It is strange how nearly the Waverly Tribune correspondent about Mr. Vandegon's death came to getting the language of Mr. Collins, the Maple Lake editor of the Annandale Post. Strange things do sometimes happen.

Populist Plant's pump, of Monticello, according to the Buffalo Journal's items, is to revolutionize the pumping business. It is said to be constructed so as to turn by means of a crank, instead of the pumping method heretofore in use.

Hugh Vandegon, a farmer of Maple Lake, committed suicide by hanging himself in his house last Tuesday. It is reported that the act was done while he was in a fit of temporary insanity superinduced by financial troubles.—Maple Lake Dept. Annandale Post.

We are informed that Mr. Bland made a mistake in his letter, last fall, and that instead of $84. it should have read $96. We are only giving it to the public to keep the record straight, and as we have tried to keep the public posted on the subject on both sides, so far, consider that they are entitled to this bit of additional news.

The Waverly Tribune says Wallace King, of that place, happened to get his dinner at the hotel in Minneapolis on the day Bill Erwin wanted to make out Blxt was there and the noted attorney had Mr. King's name brought in with others trying to prove a "green goods" gang. People better take lunch along with them when they visit the Sawdust city if they are liable to such treatment when registering at their hotels.

Rate of Taxes.

EDITOR GAZETTE: The following will perhaps interest most of your readers in the Village of Delano and Township of Franklin:

The assessment of lands and improvements thereon in the town was raised by the County Board 80 per cent, the buildings were raised by the same board, 10 per cent. Horses were reduced by state board from 15 to 40 per cent. The rate of taxes for all purposes except schools in the township is 10.4 mills; in the village, 11.8 mills.

The different school taxes are as follows:

Dist, No. 31, Adickes, 3.08 mills.
Dist. No. 32, Plattner, 4.00 mills.
Dist. No. 33, Bork, 6.05 mills.
Dist. No. 34, Delano, 15.03 mills.
Dist. No. 35, Montrose Village, 8.05 mills.
Dist. No. 48, Ziebarth, 2.03 mills.
Dist. No. 58, Kriedler, 3.31 mills.
Dist. No. 61, Hainlin, 5.00 mills.
Dist. No 70, Welker, 5.00 mills.
Dist. No. 71, Joint Carver, 2.01.
Dist. No. 112, Rockford Village, 8.00 mills.

WM. ZIEBARTH.

When winter clothes the earth in white,
When coldest winds are blowing,
When shortest day brings longest night,
When icy streams are flowing—
Then in the shelter of the home
We know the joy of living,
And in the cheerful fireside glow
Find cause for true thanksgiving.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

THE Morris High School Chronicle made its second appearance before the public on the 15th.

AITKIN is to vote the 12th of March on a proposition to establish an electric light plant and extend the water mains in the village. One by one the villages are adopting modern comforts and conveniences.

IF those economical legislators who fear that it costs the state too much to hire chaplains will volunteer to do the praying themselves as a part of their regular duties perhaps the question will be solved.

IT is astonishing how many of the country papers are made to believe they must oppose Dr. Zier's bill obliging patent medicines to be labeled, because they derive a benefit by advertising. How much do they advertise? And what per cent of regular rates do they get?

THE Duluth News Tribune is all at sea on the financial question, and enquires in an editorial "Who Knows." Is it possible their Congressman Mr. Towne, has not posted them on this subject? We would advise the News Tribune to consult with Major Baldwin when he arrives home, next month; perhaps he can give them a few pointers.

WHEN attorneys on both sides get up in court and openly charge each other with buying up testimony for and against a prisoner charged with one of the most horrible and cold blooded murders on record it is about time something should be done in the matter. These charges should not be made unless true; and if true the heaviest penalties should be meted out to the offenders.

THE Harry Hayward murder trial is still going on before crowded audiences, in Minneapolis. This week the defense has been trying to upset Blixt's and Adry's stories. Medical men have testified to the improbability of Miss Ging's body being held in the buggy as described by Blixt, also as to the almost impossibility of her skull being fractured as it has been described, from a fall from a buggy as Blixt stated it must have been. Hayward's mother swore she went to Harry's room for ink at the time he is known to have been at the theater, and found both doors locked; while Blixt claimed to have found them both open when he came after the murder. The defense is leaving no stone unturned to create a doubt on some point, in the minds of the jury.

THE license system of our republican brethren seems to be spreading in favor. If a man will pay into the Treasury enough money he can do about as he pleases. For from $500 to $1000 a year he can run a saloon; sell to minors; to old drunkards; keep open nights and Sundays unmolested so far as the authorities are concerned. For a sum of money paid, gambling houses, houses of ill fame, and other dens of iniquity can be run right in respectable communities. Now it is proposed to make a license for selling cigarettes to children; boys of tender years. We would not be surprised to learn soon that some financier had offered in Congress a bill authorizing each mine owner paying into the U. S. Treasury a thousand or two of dollars the privelege of coining all the silver dollars containing 50 cts. each, they see fit.

THE distribution of offices in Minnesota is a source of considerable discord among democratic politicians. Most of the appointments find somebody to object, and in most cases the trouble seems to be more about who shall not be appointed than who shall. If President Cleveland would select men through the country peculiarly adapted to the business for which he appoints them, instead of taking the ones that come down there with the biggest and loudest mouthed gang to clamor for the place he would have less trouble in Minnesota. It is getting about time the office should begin to seek the man. And there are just lots of good democrats who would gladly fill positions of trust, honor and profit who have something else to do than sit around the capitol at Washington and insist on having something.

THE new capital bill is not having the smoothest kind of sailing. If some one would introduce a right nice bill locating the capital on the state lands in Kandyohi county, they probably would get more votes than they ever did before. If Kandyohi wants it now is her time.

WHEN a regularly graduated physician writes a prescription for a bottle of patent medicine he lays himself open to the suspicion that either he is familiar with the ingredients, and is interested in the sale; or that he don't know what he is giving; either is beneath the dignity of an honored and honorable profession.

RUMOR says Mike Doran and a few co-workers are endeavoring to fix the state for David B. Hill, of New York for President in '96. We don't think they can deliver the votes this time. Minnesota don't want any more Presidents from York State for a few years at least. This country is growing westward; and a presidential candidate to succeed must live farther west this time.

THE Editorial Association met in St Paul this week. Quite a large attendance was out, and a good time had The formation of a new association was voted down, the old organization being preferred by a majority of those present. An effort was made to commit the association as against the patent medicine bill but failed as it deserved to do.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has not entirely forgotten how to veto bills, and on Tuesday sent to the House his veto of the bill to remove the charge of desertion against Jacob E. Eckert, private in Company B, Fifty-first Ohio Volunteers. He inclines to the belief that deserters are not entitled to the same treatment as old veterans who stood by till the last.

IT seems our legislature with a large republican majority is going to try some of the G. O. P.'s doctrine on the people of Minnesota by enacting a law giving a bounty of two cents a pound for all sugar made in the state. How much will each voter make by this? Wont some rich fellows start a manufacturing plant and buy, at their own prices, the materials of those that raise them and reap all the reward for making sugar? And wont each farmer contribute, by way of taxes, that much toward making the rich richer, and the poor poorer? When states begin to make tariff laws, and bounty laws, it is about time to shut down on the whole business.

From the Nicollet County Independent we clip the following:

The country paper is to the locality in which it is published exactly what the daily papers are to the great cities. If a wholesaler receives a proposition for credit from a country merchant he consults first the commercial book of rating, and second the newspapers in the town where the merchant resides. The rating shows what the merchant is worth in dollars and cents, while the advertisement in the paper shows what he is worth in brains and enterprise, and the latter consideration cuts quite as prominent a figure in the matter of extension of credit as does the mere question of dollars and cents to the merchant's credit at the bank. A merchant may lose his money, but if he possess the energy and talent which usually find their impression in the form of advertising, he has that of which no panic can rob him, and which is safe from the attacks of even dishonest cashiers.—St. Paul Globe.

SOME individuals are endeavoring to have a law passed changing our system of governing district schools from the present district organization to township organizations. The main trouble with school officers is that too often men are selected who have no interest in the school, unless it be what little they can make out of their positions by furnishing wood, or in purchasing supplies, etc, etc. Men should be put on the board who have children to attend school, or who are themselves educated enough to know the benefits, the necessity of an education and who are willing to aid in making the school a good one. Who will occasionally call in and see that things are going as they should. It seems to us the plan of putting all the schools of a township under one management would give less satisfaction, and those having control of so many schools in which they have often very little interest of a proper kind, would reap larger financial or political rewards. Let the present system alone.

A FEW of the newspapers are making quite a fuss about the hiring of chaplains, by the state, to open the two Houses of the Legislature. They say it costs too much for the good derived. Do they not earn as much as the average Legislator? And are not their services equally as valuable?

THE patent medicine men use very lame arguments against the proposition to compel the publishing of the ingredients of each patent medicine on the label. They first say they have no fear of the bill passing. Then why did a score of them come before the legislative committee to oppose it? Why did Mr. Noyes send a letter to legislators asking them to vote against it? Why are manufacturers sending letters to newspapers asking them to oppose it; and to use their influence with the legislators:

Then the wholesale druggists howl because they have large stocks on hand and they fear they could not get rid of them if the ingredients were printed on the labels. Is a few dollars to these fellows to be weighed in the balance against the lives of the loved ones who are sacrificed on the altar of this trade? Are people to continue to drop in their tracks, when apparenfly healthy, with "heart failure" often attributable to the long course of poisonous remedies, self administered. Is the human race to become extinct through the use of remedies publicly advertified, and sold, under the cloak of "patent medicines" when reputable druggists are forbidden by law to sell the pure drugs for like purposes, simply to fill the coffers of those who dare take the responsibility of putting such things on the market haphazard for the money there is in them?

THE bill introduced by representative Zier to require manufacturers of patent medicines to print, plainly on the label, the ingredients of such medicine has been severely attacked by D. R Noyes, the famous wholesale druggist. He went pretty far and charged the Hon. Mr. Zier with things unbecoming a representative of the people of this great state. Mr. Zier gets back at him and asks that he write an apology for the letters sent out by him to members of the Legislature, and plainly tells him, and with good reason, too, that he has made misleading statements in regard to the effect the bill would have on certain new remedies, etc.

Mr. Noyes accuses the doctor of working a blackmail scheme to bleed the manufacturers and is reported as saying, "If successful the same mercinaries will go for beer, spices, etc., etc. as well as for baking powder and oleomargarine, and then for your business or mine if they can make money by so doing. Where will they stop? Is it not time to set down decisively on them now?"

What can Mr. Noyes be making and selling to the poor unsophisticated country people that is adulterated in such a manner that he is afraid the legislature will expose his business?

We are not acquainted with Dr. Zier, nor are we in favor of class legislation. But if a law could be made making it a crime with a good round punishment for adulterating or misrepresenting anything for sale, as for instance "a sure cure for consumption" or "the only pure baking powder," etc. it would be a good thing. As for the patent medicine being drawn out of the country every medical man, or other person with a regard for health and morals, would agree that it would be a good thing to get rid of all that would become unsalable simply by printing the formula. Why, people not only in the country, but in the heart of great cities like St. Paul and Minneapolis, go to a grocery store and buy "a sure cure for coughs, colds" and nearly everything else that flesh is heir to, and treat a child or several of them for days, until they are obliged to call a physician, only to learn that the family has Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, or some other contagious disease that the whole neighborhood and perhaps the school has been exposed to. Of course if competent medical advice had been secured at first, several funerals with attendant expenses might have been obviated, a few bottles of "patent medicines" would have been unsold, and possibly a few lives of cheap advertising in some unscrupulous newspaper would have been ordered discontinued. But the epidemic might have been suppressed in its incipiency.

In some places bottles of patent medicines have stood on the shelves for months; the sun has warmed them by day, the frosts have cooled them by night, and their ingredients would be hard to find out even by the manufacturer himself, having become so deteriorated by the change of temperature, lapse of time and other influences. Think of spending hours or days of valuable time depending on this mixture of, you know not what, for some severe sickness, that you know no more about while your little one breathes its last, and is quietly buried from sight, simply for the purpose of swelling the plethoric pocket book of men with nerve enough to offer such things to suffering humanity, (is it any wonder some of them spend their last days in an asylum for insane?) and to help some poor printer, who is unscrupulous enough to fill his paper with such things at reduced rates to eke out an existence.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15, 1895.

With the Senate pulling one way and the House the other there is little probability that President Cleveland's advice will be taken to the extent of saving $16,000,000 in interest that will have to be paid on those 3 and 3½ per cent bonds. The House Ways and Means committee has reported a resolution for the saving of those millions by authorizing the issue of 3 per cent gold bonds.

But nothing can be hoped from the Senate, where it has been announced by those who are strong enough to make good their language that the only financial legislation they will agree to is the bill for the unlimited coinage of silver which has been favorably reported from the Finance committee. This bill provides that the government shall coin and deliver for each dollar's worth of bullion presented at the mints one silver dollar, and that the difference in weight shall be retained as seignorage, and was originally a section of a general financial bill introduced by Senator Jones, of Arkansas.

It would seem that Secretary Carlisle's statement, that the only reason for not at first making public all the details of the contract made for that purchase of gold with bonds was that it might hamper the other contracting parties, and that the administration had nothing to conceal should have been sufficient, but it has not prevented some of the Senators from making exhibitions of themselves.

Senator Hill had a little fun with "his whiskers", otherwise known as Senator Peffer, this week. "His whiskers" wanted to know why his resolution asking the Senate Judiciary committee to report on the legality of the bond issues could not be acted upon. Senator Hill, a member of the Judiciary Committee, said, in the absence of the chairman of the Committee he was not at liberty to explain why a report had not been made, but he stated that the committee would be disposed to get the opinion of the Attorney General before acting upon such a question. This angered "his whiskers" who said: "Oh, I do not want the opinion of the Attorney General. I regard my own opinion on this point as good as that of the Attorney General." "Then", said Senator Hill amidst the laughter on the floor and in the galleries, "I have nothing whatever to say, after that statement." The sarcasm was lost upon "his whiskers", who prompted by his egotism continued: "I have no doubt that I have given it not only more careful consideration, but more intelligent consideration." This time Senator Hill joined in the laughter which closed the farce.

The Senate amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill appropriating $500,000 to start the laying of a government cable to Hawaii, has many bitter enemies in the House, which has refused to concur therein. The bill is now in conference, and unless the Senate recedes a contest lasting to the closing days of the Session, and maybe resulting in the failure of the appropriation is inevitable.

Secretary Carlisle took some of the conceit out of ex-speaker Reed this week, but he still has enough left to supply a dozen ordinary men. The incident occurred when Secretary Carlisle was explaining to the Ways and Means committee of the House, of which Mr. Reed is a member, why said how that bond contract was made by the administration. Mr. Reed pompously inquired of Secretary Carlisle why his substitute, which was last week defeated by the House was not satisfactory to the administration. Secretary Carlisle answered by reading a clause of the act of 1874, which had been overlooked by all the speakers during the financial discussion, and which would have nullified any benefit that might have been derived from the Reed substitute. For once Mr. Reed was lost for an answer. The law read by Secretary Carlisle gives the holders of National Bank notes the right to have them redeemed by Treasury notes, if they so desire, and as the Treasury notes are redeemable in gold it makes national bank notes also redeemable in gold. The Reed substitute only recognized the greenbacks as redeemable in gold. There is a head of ignorance in Congress as well as among the people, on this financial question.

Patent Medicine Bill.

The following printed letter has been received by M. D's. throughout the state the past week and is self explanatory.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 18, 1895.

Dear Doctor; We, the undersigned, wish to call your attention to a bill introduced in the Legislature by Dr. Zier, House File 84, requiring those who manufacture patent medicines and nostroms to publish their formula on each bottle, box or package. The measure is a just one and has received the endorsement of many physicians and pharmacists of the state. As you well know, many if not most, of these preparations contain many poisons such as, morphia, strychnine, arsenic, and others again are perfectly worthless and a fraud. This is required in all European countries and we believe it is a step in the advancement and protection of the public. We ask you to kindly write your representatives in both Houses of the legislature requesting them to lend their aid and support to this worthy measure. Your immediate attention is asked as the Committee on Public Health is to act on this bill in a few days.

Fraternally and sincerely yours,

C. N. HEWITT, M. D. Secretary State Board of Health.
H. F. HOYT, M. D., Health Officer, St. Paul.
A. N. AVERY, M. D., Health Officer, Minneapolis.

CORRESPONDENCE

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

Miss Annie Rohrenbach, of Donnelly, Minn. visited Mrs. W. L. Haggerty last week.

The play entitled "Uncle Josh" was played to a good house, last Tuesday. It was given by home talent. They did very well. F. Powers capped the climax.

F. H. Johnson visited the city yesterday.

Delly Gent and Al. Reichler have taken a contract to cut 1000 cords of basswood, of Benton and Johnson at Camden Place.

Mrs. Avery died at the residence of Mrs. Burch on Wednesday at 12:00. The funeral will take place at Rockford on Saturday at 2:30 P. M.

ST. MICHAELS MENTION

Republican good times will soon make their appearance. We need them.

Weather is fine, sleighing good and much hauling done. Cordwood and wheat are among the articles sold.

A sad accident occurred on a farm about three miles north of this place. Mr. N. Maxweiler being engaged in hauling logs, had his foot crushed by one, Improvement is reported.

The knot for life between Peter Endres, of New Trier, and Miss Matilda Becker, of this place, was tied Feb. 19th by Father Deusterman. The guests assembled at the bride's home and a good time is reported. The future home of the newly married couple will be near New Trier, where Mr. Endres has had a store ad multos annors.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

The days are getting longer and it begins to look spring like, and soon the farmer will begin to talk about putting in his crops.

The Hayward murder trial has been going for a month now and the people are getting a little tired of it. It is costing Hennepin county a good deal of money and the daily papers are making money out of it.

Maple Plain now has a Weather Bureau Station, so now they will know when it will be safe to go to bed and when to get up, plant corn, mow hay, etc., etc.

Last week was one of birthday parties, one at B. H. Hall's and one at Albert Batdorf's, both being in honor of the heads of the family. And yet there's more to follow.

Dr. Wright, who has been confined to the house, is out again.

A. Hitsman went to Minneapolis yesterday with a flock of sheep.

Times are not improving any, notwithstanding the issuing of interest bearing gold bonds. It seems neither our Legislature nor Congress is doing much for the country.

J. H. MCGARY.

To Brother Printers.

Aid is being sent here for the farmers, but we can't issue on aid flour or a piece of sidemeat, and having run all our white paper through we are using up our old paper we have on hand. It is about exhausted and only the office towel is left which has not been washed for seven years, so ask our brother printers to consider our situation with a family to support with nothing coming in, and we know their ever generous disposition will see some way to contribute a little paper or a couple of hours' work to keep my paper going for the good it will do the outside world in telling them how this afflicted, drouth stricken district is getting along, also to enable us to get shoes and proper wraps for our wife and four children.

All communications will be cheerfully answered and any donation will be acknowledged in the press, whether for us or to be divided with other printers in this district. If other information is needed, write to Wm. Van Winkle or Tribune and I can assure you any little gift, if no more than a dime, will be gratefully received.

A. G. CATLIN.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness, closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 18½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe for Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put a in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of e whole family.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

THE Morris High School Chronicle made its second appearance before the public on the 15th.

AITKIN is to vote the 12th of March on a proposition to establish an electric light plant and extend the water mains in the village. One by one the villages are adopting modern comforts and conveniences.

IF those economical legislators who fear that it costs the state too much to hire chaplains will volunteer to do the praying themselves as a part of their regular duties perhaps the question will be solved.

IT is astonishing how many of the country papers are made to believe they must oppose Dr. Zier's bill obliging patent medicines to be labeled, because they derive a benefit by advertising. How much do they advertise? And what per cent of regular rates do they get?

THE Duluth News Tribune is all at sea on the financial question, and enquires in an editorial "Who Knows." Is it possible their Congressman Mr. Towne, has not posted them on this subject? We would advise the News Tribune to consult with Major Baldwin when he arrives home, next month; perhaps he can give them a few pointers.

WHEN attorneys on both sides get up in court and openly charge each other with buying up testimony for and against a prisoner charged with one of the most horrible and cold blooded murders on record it is about time something should be done in the matter. These charges should not be made unless true; and if true the heaviest penalties should be meted out to the offenders.

THE Harry Hayward murder trial is still going on before crowded audiences, in Minneapolis. This week the defense has been trying to upset Blixt's and Adry's stories. Medical men have testified to the improbability of Miss Ging's body being held in the buggy as described by Blixt, also as to the almost impossibility of her skull being fractured as it has been described, from a fall from a buggy as Blixt stated it must have been. Hayward's mother swore she went to Harry's room for ink at the time he is known to have been at the theater, and found both doors locked; while Blixt claimed to have found them both open when he came after the murder. The defense is leaving no stone unturned to create a doubt on some point, in the minds of the jury.

THE license system of our republican brethren seems to be spreading in favor. If a man will pay into the Treasury enough money he can do about as he pleases. For from $500 to $1000 a year he can run a saloon; sell to minors; to old drunkards; keep open nights and Sundays unmolested so far as the authorities are concerned. For a sum of money paid, gambling houses, houses of ill fame, and other dens of iniquity can be run right in respectable communities. Now it is proposed to make a license for selling cigarettes to children; boys of tender years. We would not be surprised to learn soon that some financier had offered in Congress a bill authorizing each mine owner paying into the U. S. Treasury a thousand or two of dollars the privelege of coining all the silver dollars containing 50 cts. each, they see fit.

THE distribution of offices in Minnesota is a source of considerable discord among democratic politicians. Most of the appointments find somebody to object, and in most cases the trouble seems to be more about who shall not be appointed than who shall. If President Cleveland would select men through the country peculiarly adapted to the business for which he appoints them, instead of taking the ones that come down there with the biggest and loudest mouthed gang to clamor for the place he would have less trouble in Minnesota. It is getting about time the office should begin to seek the man. And there are just lots of good democrats who would gladly fill positions of trust, honor and profit who have something else to do than sit around the capitol at Washington and insist on having something.

THE new capital bill is not having the smoothest kind of sailing. If some one would introduce a right nice bill locating the capital on the state lands in Kandyohi county, they probably would get more votes than they ever did before. If Kandyohi wants it now is her time.

WHEN a regularly graduated physician writes a prescription for a bottle of patent medicine he lays himself open to the suspicion that either he is familiar with the ingredients, and is interested in the sale; or that he don't know what he is giving; either is beneath the dignity of an honored and honorable profession.

Following are the grade changes for the week ending Wednesday February 13, 1895.

RUMOR says Mike Doran and a few co-workers are endeavoring to fix the state for David B. Hill, of New York for President in '96. We don't think they can deliver the votes this time. Minnesota don't want any more Presidents from York State for a few years at least. This country is growing westward; and a presidential candidate to succeed must live farther west this time.

THE Editorial Association met in St Paul this week. Quite a large attendance was out, and a good time had. The formation of a new association was voted down, the old organization being preferred by a majority of those present. An effort was made to commit the association as against the patent medicine bill but failed as it deserved to do.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has not entirely forgotten how to veto bills, and on Tuesday sent to the House his veto of the bill to remove the charge of desertion against Jacob E. Eckert, private in Company B, Fifty-first Ohio Volunteers. He inclines to the belief that deserters are not entitled to the same treatment as old veterans who stood by till the last.

IT seems our legislature with a large republican majority is going to try some of the G. O. P.'s doctrine on the people of Minnesota by enacting a law giving a bounty of two cents a pound for all sugar made in the state. How much will each voter make by this? Wont some rich fellows start a manufacturing plant and buy, at their own prices, the materials of those that raise them and reap all the reward for making sugar? And wont each farmer contribute, by way of taxes, that much toward making the rich richer, and the poor poorer? When states begin to make tariff laws, and bounty laws, it is about time to shut down on the whole business.

FROM the Nicollet County Independent we clip the following:

The country paper is to the locality in which it is published exactly what the daily papers are to the great cities. If a wholesaler receives a proposition for credit from a country merchant he consults first the commercial book of rating, and second the newspapers in the town where the merchant resides. The rating shows what the merchant is worth in dollars and cents, while the advertisement in the paper shows what he is worth in brains and enterprise, and the latter consideration cuts quite as prominent a figure in the matter of extension of credit as does the mere question of dollars and cents to the merchant's credit at the bank. A merchant may lose his money, but if he possess the energy and talent which usually find their impression in the form of advertising, he has that of which no panic can rob him, and which is safe from the attacks of even dishonest cashiers.—St. Paul Globe.

SOME individuals are endeavoring to have a law passed changing our system of governing district schools from the present district organization to township organizations. The main trouble with school officers is that too often men are selected who have no interest in the school, unless it be what little they can make out of their positions by furnishing wood, or in purchasing supplies, etc, etc. Men should be put on the board who have children to attend school, or who are themselves educated enough to know the benefits, the necessity of an education and who are willing to aid in making the school a good one. Who will occasionally call in and see that things are going as they should. It seems to us the plan of putting all the schools of a township under one management would give less satisfaction, and those having control of so many schools in which they have often very little interest of a proper kind, would reap larger financial or political rewards. Let the present system alone.

A FEW of the newspapers are making quite a fuss about the hiring of chaplains, by the state, to open the two Houses of the Legislature. They say it costs too much for the good derived. Do they not earn as much as the average Legislator? And are not their services equally as valuable?

THE patent medicine men use very lame arguments against the proposition to compel the publishing of the ingredients of each patent medicine on the label. They first say they have no fear of the bill passing. Then why did a score of them come before the legislative committee to oppose it? Why did Mr. Noyes send a letter to legislators asking them to vote against it? Why are manufacturers sending letters to newspapers asking them to oppose it; and to use their influence with the legislators:

Then the wholesale druggists howl because they have large stocks on hand and they fear they could not get rid of them if the ingredients were printed on the labels. Is a few dollars to these fellows to be weighed in the balance against the lives of the loved ones who are sacrificed on the altar of this trade? Are people to continue to drop in their tracks, when apparently healthy, with "heart failure" often attributable to the long course of poisonous remedies, self administered. Is the human race to become extinct through the use of remedies publicly advertised, and sold, under the cloak of "patent medicines" when reputable druggists are forbidden by law to sell the pure drugs for like purposes, simply to fill the coffers of those who dare take the responsibility of putting such things on the market haphazard for the money there is in them?

THE bill introduced by representative Zier to require manufacturers of patent medicines to print, plainly on the label, the ingredients of such medicine has been severely attacked by D. R. Noyes, the famous wholesale druggist. He went pretty far and charged the Hon. Mr. Zier with things unbecoming a representative of the people of this great state. Mr. Zier gets back at him and asks that he write an apology for the letters sent out by him to members of the Legislature, and plainly tells him, and with good reason, too, that he has made misleading statements in regard to the effect the bill would have on certain new remedies, etc.

Mr. Noyes accuses the doctor of working a blackmail scheme to bleed the manufacturers and is reported as saying, "If successful the same mercinaries will go for beer, spices, etc., etc. as well as for baking powder and oleomargarine, and then for your business or mine if they can make money by so doing. Where will they stop? Is it not time to set down decisively on them now?"

What can Mr. Noyes be making and selling to the poor unsophisticated country people that is adulterated in such a manner that he is afraid the legislature will expose his business?

We are not acquainted with Dr. Zier, nor are we in favor of class legislation. But if a law could be made making it a crime with a good round punishment for adulterating or misrepresenting anything for sale, as for instance "a sure cure for consumption" or "the only pure baking powder," etc. it would be a good thing. As for the patent medicine being drawn out of the country every medical man, or other person with a regard for health and morals, would agree that it would be a good thing to get rid of all that would become unsalable simply by printing the formula. Why, people not only in the country, but in the heart of great cities like St. Paul and Minneapolis, go to a grocery store and buy "a sure cure for coughs, colds" and nearly everything else that flesh is heir to, and treat a child or several of them for days, until they are oblized to call a physician, only to learn that the family has Diphtheria, Scarlet Fever, or some other contagious disease that the whole neighborhood and perhaps the school has been exposed to. Of course if competent medical advice had been secured at first, several funerals with attendant expenses might have been obviated, a few bottles of "patent medicines" would have been unsold, and possibly a few lives of cheap advertising in some unscrupulous newspaper would have been ordered discontinued. But the epidemic might have been suppressed in its incipiency.

In some places bottles of patent medicines have stood on the shelves for months; the sun has warmed them by day, the frosts have cooled them by night, and their ingredients would be hard to find out even by the manufacturer himself, having become so deteriorated by the change of temperature, lapse of time and other influences. Think of spending hours or days of valuable time depending on this mixture of, you know not what, for some severe sickness, that you know no more about while your little one breathes its last, and is quietly buried from sight, simply for the purpose of swelling the plethoric pocket book of men with nerve enough to offer such things to suffering humanity, (is it any wonder some of them spend their last days in an asylum for insane?) and to help some poor printer, who is unscrupulous enough to fill his paper with such things at reduced rates to eke out an existence.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 15, 1895.

With the Senate pulling one way and the House the other there is little probability that President Cleveland's advice will be taken to the extent of saving $16,000,000 in interest that will have to be paid on those 3 and 3½ per cent bonds. The House Ways and Means committee has reported a resolution for the saving of those millions by authorizing the issue of 3 per cent gold bonds.

But nothing can be hoped from the Senate, where it has been announced by those who are strong enough to make good their language that the only financial legislation they will agree to is the bill for the unlimited coinage of silver which has been favorably reported from the Finance committee. This bill provides that the government shall coin and deliver for each dollar's worth of bullion presented at the mints one silver dollar, and that the difference in weight shall be retained as seignorage, and was originally a section of a general financial bill introduced by Senator Jones, of Arkansas.

It would seem that Secretary Carlisle's statement, that the only reason for not at first making public all the details of the contract made for that purchase of gold with bonds was that it might hamper the other contracting parties, and that the administration had nothing to conceal should have been sufficient, but it has not prevented some of the Senators from making exhibitions of themselves.

Senator Hill had a little fun with "his whiskers", otherwise known as Senator Peffer, this week. "His whiskers" wanted to know why his resolution asking the Senate Judiciary committee to report on the legality of the bond issues could not be acted upon. Senator Hill, a member of the Judiciary Committee, said, in the absence of the chairman of the Committee he was not at liberty to explain why a report had not been made, but he stated that the committee would be disposed to get the opinion of the Attorney General before acting upon such a question. This angered "his whiskers" who said: "Oh, I do not want the opinion of the Attorney General. I regard my own opinion on this point as good as that of the Attorney General." "Then", said Senator Hill amidst the laughter on the floor and in the galleries, "I have nothing whatever to say, after that statement." The sarcasm was lost upon "his whiskers", who prompted by his egotism continued: "I have no doubt that I have given it not only more careful consideration, but more intelligent consideration." This time Senator Hill joined in the laughter which closed the farce.

The Senate amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill appropriating $500,000 to start the laying of a government cable to Hawaii, has many bitter enemies in the House, which has refused to concur therein. The bill is now in conference, and unless the Senate recedes a contest lasting to the closing days of the Session, and maybe resulting in the failure of the appropriation is inevitable.

Secretary Carlisle took some of the conceit out of ex-speaker Reed this week, but he still has enough left to supply a dozen ordinary men. The incident occurred when Secretary Carlisle was explaining to the Ways and Means committee of the House, of which Mr. Reed is a member, why and how that bond contract was made by the administration. Mr. Reed pompously inquired of Secretary Carlisle why his substitute, which was last week defeated by the House was not satisfactory to the administration. Secretary Carlisle answered by reading a clause of the act of 1874, which had been overlooked by all the speakers during the financial discussion, and which would have nullified any benefit that might have been derived from the Reed substitute. For once Mr. Reed was lost for an answer. The law read by Secretary Carlisle gives the holders of National Bank notes the right to have them redeemed by Treasury notes, if they so desire, and as the Treasury notes are redeemable in gold it makes national bank notes also redeemable in gold. The Reed substitute only recognized the greenbacks as redeemable in gold. There is a head of ignorance in Congress as well as among the people, on this financial question.

Patent Medicine Bill.

The following printed letter has been received by M. D's. throughout the state the past week and is self explanatory.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 18, 1895.

Dear Doctor; We, the undersigned, wish to call your attention to a bill introduced in the Legislature by Dr. Zier, House File 84, requiring those who manufacture patent medicines and nostrums to publish their formula on each bottle, box or package. The measure is a just one and has received the endorsement of many physicians and pharmacists of the state. As you well know, many if not most, of these preparations contain many poisons such as, morphia, strychnine, arsenic, and others again are perfectly worthless and a fraud. This is required in all European countries and we believe it is a step in the advance vancement and protection of the public. We ask you to kindly write your representatives in both Houses of the legislature requesting them to lend their aid and support to this worthy measure. Your immediate attention is asked as the Committee on Public Health is to act on this bill in a few days.

Fraternally and sincerely yours,

C. N. HEWITT, M. D. Secretary State Board of Health.
H. F. HOYT, M. D., Health Officer, St. Paul.
A. N. AVERY, M. D., Health Officer, Minneapolis.
J. OHAGE, M. D., President State Medical Association and President State Board of Medical Examiners.

CORRESPONDENCE

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

Miss Annie Rohrenbach, of Donnelly, Minn. visited Mrs. W. L. Haggerty last week.

The play entitled "Uncle Josh" was played to a good house, last Tuesday. It was given by home talent. They did very well. F. Powers capped the climax.

F. H. Johnson visited the city yesterday.

Delly Gent and Al. Reichler have taken a contract to cut 1000 cords of basswood, of Benzon and Johnson at Camden Place.

Mrs. Avery died at the residence of Mrs. Burch on Wednesday at 12:00. The funeral will take place at Rockford on Saturday at 2:30 P. M.

ST. MICHAELS MENTION

Republican good times will soon make their appearance. We need them.

Weather is fine, sleighing good and much hauling done. Cordwood and wheat are among the articles sold.

A sad accident occurred on a farm about three miles north of this place. Mr. N. Maxweiler being engaged in hauling logs, had his foot crushed by one. Improvement is reported.

The knot for life between Peter Endres, of New Trier, and Miss Matilda Becker, of this place, was tied Feb. 19th by Father Deusterman. The guests assembled at the bride's home and a good time is reported. The future home of the newly married couple will be near New Trier, where Mr. Endres has had a store ad multos annors.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

The days are getting longer and it begins to look spring like, and soon the farmer will begin to talk about puting in his crops.

The Hayward murder trial has been going for a month now and the people are getting a little tired of it. It is costing Hennepin county a good deal of money and the daily papers are making money out of it.

Maple Plain now has a Weather Bureau Station, so now they will know when it will be safe to go to bed and when to get up, plant corn, mow hay, etc., etc.

Last week was one of birthday parties, one at B. H. Hall's and one at Albert Batdorf's, both being in honor of the heads of the family. And yet there's more to follow.

Dr. Wright, who has been confined to the house, is out again.

A. Hitsman went to Minneapolis yesterday with a flock of sheep.

Times are not improving any, notwithstanding the issuing of interest bearing gold bonds. It seems neither our Legislature nor Congress is doing much for the country.

J. H. MCGARY.

To Brother Printers.

Aid is being sent here for the farmers, but we can't issue on aid flour or a piece of sidemeat, and having run all our white paper through we are using up our old paper we have on hand. It is about exhausted and only the office towel is left which has not been washed for seven years, so ask our brother printers to consider our situation with a family to support with nothing coming in, and we know their ever generous disposition will see some way to contribute a little paper or a couple of hours' work to keep my paper going for the good it will do the outside world in telling them how this afflicted, drouth stricken district is getting along, also to enable us to get shoes and proper wraps for our wife and four children.

All communications will be cheerfully answered and any donation will be acknowledged in the press, whether for us or to be divided with other printers in this district. If other information is needed, write to Wm. Van Winkle or Tribune and I can assure you any little gift, if no more than a dime, will be gratefully received.

A. G. CATLIN.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness, closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $3,500.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion plates, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which includes in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which, being essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe for Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

TEN lawyers appeared in a case before a Saratoga justice the other day, in which only sixty-five cents was involved.

THERE are in the United States today 13,230,168 men of military age, every one ready to take up arms against any foreign foe who might threaten our borders.

ACCORDING to dispatches Mme. Patti's sickness in Vienna is costing her $1,000 a day. She can stand the strain several days, however, without going into the hands of a receiver.

EX-SENATOR WARREN rarely takes a morning's walk around his Wyoming farm. One reason is that it is six times as big as the state of Rhode Island, and has on it 2,000 horses, 15,000 cattle and 130,000 sheep.

GERMANY has 25,240 breweries, England 12,874, and the United States 2,500. The whole number in the world is 51,000. Malt liquors seem to be favorites the world over, but especially in Germany and England.

A WEALTHY New York man has left a will which calls for the killing of his horses and his hounds so that they may not fall into the hands of cruel owners. The right of a man to make such a will is questioned by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

THE daily income of the principal rulers is said to be: Emperor of Russia, $25,000; sultan of Turkey, $18,000; emperor of Austria, $10,000; emperor of Germany, $8,000; king of Italy, $6,400; Queen Victoria, $6,300; king of Belgium, $1,640; president of France, $5,000; president of the United States, $137.

LAST year the New York legislature passed a compulsory education law and now that an effort is making to enforce it, it is found that there are no school accommodations for about 150,000 children in New York city alone. Under the law children between 8 and 16 found away from home can be arrested without warrant as truants from school.

THE sinking of the Elbe has revived the discussion as to the effectiveness of the ram in naval warfare. If the Crathie, an unarmored ship, could sink a much larger steamer like the Elbe, it naturally follows that a war vessel having a specially constructed ram can do equal destruction even to an armored vessel. Neither gunpowder nor dynamite could cause greater havoc.

"NEVER write anything you would not sign your name to," was one of the sentiments which won a prize at the Boston Press club dinner. As the old lady said of the doctrine of total depravity, it's a mighty good doctrine if you only live up to it. John Boyle O'Reilly, a chivalrous soul, said some years ago: "Never do anything as a journalist which you would not do as a gentleman."

IT is recalled that Ward McAllister, who originated the expression, "The 400," afterwards modified it by saying that he meant not 400 persons, but 400 households whose members belonged to fashionable New York society. Mr. McAllister, it must be said to his credit, now that he is dead, laid more stress on family and breeding than he did on mere wealth in the formation of his social estimates.

FROM a summary of London street accidents it appears that no fewer than 6,336 persons were injured last year, which is about eighteen accidents per day. To these have to be added 172 fatal cases. The bicycle has an unenviable prominence among the causes of injury. There were 609 persons injured by these machines, but the tables do not show how many of the injured were cyclists themselves.

IT is already apparent that the financial loss because of severe winter weather will be enormous. The wheat crop has been injured in many localities, a great deal of stock has been frozen to death or killed because there was nothing to feed it, the orange yield will be greatly reduced and the hardier fruits of the north will also suffer. But nature has a way of granting compensation to the tiller of the soil, and the prospective shortage is bound to add to the value of supplies on hand.

THE bicycle craze does not show any signs of diminution. It is stated that the old factories have increased their plants enormously for this year's trade, and the name of the new ones is legion. A recently issued trade directory contains a list of 208 manufacturers who turn out nearly 500 differently named wheels, and each factory will make from 1,000 to 30,000 a year. Besides these, many machines are imported. At this rate it will not be long before every man, woman and child will be provided with a wheel in addition to those which nature may have bestowed.

COOK county, Minn., is one of the most thinly-populated counties in the union. It had, by the census of 1890, only 98 inhabitants, a gain of but 63 in ten years. Bowman county, N. D., had 6 inhabitants, and Sheridan county had but 5; Choteau county had only 8 inhabitants, and Martin county 7. Most of these sparsely-settled counties of the new states have doubtless gained considerably since 1890, but the sparsely-settled counties of Texas are probably little changed in this regard. Lamb county had 4 inhabitants; Parmer county, 7; Yoakum county, 4, and Loving county, 3.

MARIE JONIAUX, the Belgian poisoner, whose crimes horrified the entire civilized world, has begun her sentence. The woman murdered her sister, brother and uncle for the sole purpose of securing the insurance money on their lives. The crime stands almost without a parallel, but the murderess will pay an awful penalty. According to Belgian law she must be confined for the rest of her days in a cell into which no single ray of light is allowed to enter. Her food will be pushed into her cell through a narrow slit, and she will never see a human being nor hear a human voice again.

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 13.—A financial bill on the lines of thepresident's last message was presented to the senate, and another providing for bonds at 3 per cent., payable in gold coin, and for the issue of gold certificates. The house resolution was passed extending the time for making returns on the income tax from the first Monday in March to April 15 next. In the house Mr. Hudson (Kan.) offered a bill looking to an increase in the revenues of the government. Consideration of business concerning the District of Columbia occupied the remainder of the session.

THURSDAY, Feb. 14. — The senate voted to make no changes in the present railway mail system. The subject has been the chief point of contention of the post office appropriation bill. In response to a request Secretary Carlisle furnished figures on the treasury gold reserve and expenditures. In the house the request of the president for authority to issue gold bonds was refused by a voted of 166 to 120.

FRIDAY, Feb. 15.—Bills were reported favorably in the senate to repeal the differential on sugar from bounty-paying countries, to establish free American ports where foreign raw material may be manufactured, and for the creation of an industrial commission of twenty-one, which is intended to arbitrate labor difficulties. The post office appropriation bill was passed. In the house the naval appropriation bill ($31,807,073) was discussed. The bill for a deep waterway to connect the ocean and great lakes was favorably reported

SATURDAY, Feb. 16.—Senator Hill's resolution defining the financial policy of the government caused an exciting debate in the senate. Senators Wolcott (Col.). Lodge (Mass.) and Teller (Col.), made a most scathing denunciation and arraignment of the administration for its recent bond contract with the Rothschilds and other foreign bankers. Mr. Wolcott made a direct and personal criticism of the president. In the house the general debate on the naval appropriation bill ended. The senate bill was passed granting two condemned cannon to the Iowa Historical society at Des Moines. Twelve pension bills were also passed.

MONDAY, Feb. 18.—The sundry civil appropriation bill ($41,559,145) reported to the senate provides that hereafter all bonds issued by the government must first be offered at public sale. The agricultural appropriation bill was passed. By a vote of 30 to 27 it was decided to take up the Jones bill for the unlimited coinage of silver, the government to retain the seigniorage as profit. In the house a bill was passed making the pensions of all Mexican veterans $12 per month. The naval appropriation bill was further discussed.

THE GING MURDER.

The Defense Places Its Witnesses on the Stand.

The Trend of the Testimony is Toward the Establishment of an Alibi—Maggie Wachtler Implicates Adry Hayward.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 15.—The defense of Harry Hayward was begun yesterday by John Day Smith, who in a speech of an hour and a half assailed the case put up by the state. Mr. Smith said the defense had no theory but maintained the state had failed to fully substantiate any connection of Hayward with Blixt in the crime. That Blixt did the killing is not denied. The defense claims that it can clearly establish an alibi for Hayward during the hours of 6 to 8 the evening of Dec. 3, and show exclusively that he was not on the Kenwood boulevard where Blixt claimed he met him and Miss Ging.

John F. Walsh, keeper of the morgue testified to the appearence of the body when received by him.

Terrence Connolly, brought in the clothes worn by Miss Ging the night she was killed.

Then came the alibi, when Merril Bartlett, head usher at the Grand Opera House, stated that he saw Harry and Miss Bartleson come to the theater at about 8:15 o'clock. The defense wasted over a half hour in asking him questions, until the court stated that it might be proper to go on with the examination. Mr. Nye did not cross-examine to any extent.

Edward W. Murphy stated that he was at the Grand Opera House the night of Dec. 3, and saw Mr. Hayward there with Miss Bartleson. He saw them go out when the play was over. There was a little blow for the defense in cross-examination, for Mr. Murphy stated that while he only knew Hayward slightly, Hayward appeared to take the most exquisite pains to have himself seen and recognized, and made a most exaggerated bow to the witness.

Ole Thorson was quite fluent in answering questions for the defense, but when Mr. Nye took him he was obtuse. He said that he lived at the house in South Minneapolis where Blixt said he called the night of the murder, and stated that there was a light burning there all night, and no one called or knocked that night. Police officers had come to see him afterward, and he told them the same story. Mr. Nye tried to get something out of him, but was compelled to state finally that he would let the witness think the question over all night and ask him in this morning.

A Bombshell.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 16.—A bombshell was thrown into the camp of the defense in the Hayward trial yesterday afternoon by one of its own witnesses. A witness called by the defense stated positively that he saw Harry Hayward and Catherine Ging in a carriage together at the foot of Lowry hill at about 7:15 the night of the murder.

M. D. Wilson, the livery man from whom this unexpected piece of testimony came so quickly that it fairly took the breath of the attorneys away. Harry Hayward reeled under the shock as though he had been struck full in the chest by some terrible blow. It was only for a moment, however. In a second he had recovered himself entirely.

Mr. Wilson was the last witness called yesterday. The very first question asked him showed that there was something peculiar about his testimony. He gruffly stated that Mr. Sweetser had been out to see him last Sunday, but that he had learned nothing from him. However, matters proceeded satisfactorily enough for the defense until Mr. Nye asked the witness if he knew who the people in the carriage were. The answer came quickly back that the woman was Catherine Ging.

"Do you know the man?" was the next question.

"I did not then, but I do now," came the answer.

"Who is it?"

"That gentleman sitting there behind Mr. Erwin," was the reply with singular emphasis. Harry Hayward shuddered convulsively. The attorneys for the defense looked aghast. Even Mr. Nye was dumfounded.

Mr. Erwin soon rallied, and endeavored to make the witness state that his identification was nothing more than an impression. The witness, however, persisted that there could be no mistake about it. He stated that he had identified Harry Hayward the day after the murder as the man whom he saw riding with Miss Ging.

At the request of Mr. Erwin the court adjourned for the day.

Maggie Wachtler on the Stand.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 19.—There was very little testimony taken Saturday, the court adjourning when the question of admitting the testimony of Maggie Wachtler, the stenographer for Blixt's attorney, was raised. The point was whether the confession made by Blixt before the stenographer of his attorney was a confidential matter between client and counsel, and therefore not admissible.

When court convened Monday, Blixt, his attorney (Mr. Odell), and the state waived all objection, and Miss Wachtler was placed on the stand.

She was voluble, positive and could not be shaken by cross-examination. She called Blixt a liar, Odell a schemer to make money out of the county, and Assistant County Attorney Hall a bulldozer and intimidator of women.

Miss Wachtler stated positively that at about the middle of the statement, while she was taking down Blixt's statement in shorthand, he stated that two weeks before the murder he and Adry put up the job to kill Miss Ging. Adry told him to take the iron and go to the place they had picked out, and if he had any trouble "Frank" would assist him. Then she said Mr. Odell had stopped Blixt and told him he was not to mention Adry in it, and Blixt had said he thought Odell wanted him to tell the truth. She stated that her conscience had troubled her, and she had told E. J. McMahon about it, and finally had gone to the defense. She had spoken of it to Odell, and after that she and Odell had quarrelled, and he had discharged her.

R. G. Fisher and others testified that Harry was at his supper about 7 o'clock the evening of Dec. 3.

Edward Goodsell, a cousin of Harry Hayward, testified that they met in Chicago last fall and at that time Harry had at least $7,000 in currency.

Thomas H. Waterman, a chum of Hayward's was the next witness.

Waterman stated that he was not down town in the morning, and therefore, Dec. 3, could not have been in the Oneida Block, as Adry testified. He was with Harry from about 1:30 in the afternoon until 6:45, and he accounted for the time very fluently. Harry had sent him that day to see Miss Ging, and find out if she really was going into business with his money. Harry told Waterman to find out where she kept her money. Harry was going to get out an attachment for it, as he was getting scared. There was considerable drinking during the afternoon, and visiting of wine rooms. It was a rambling story. Along toward night they rounded up at Fisher's cigar store, and, accompanied by Mr. Fisher, had left there about 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Nye cross-examined him closely, but did not shake the young man. The most important piece of evidence Mr. Nye brought out was to the effect that Harry once asked witness how his conscience was, and if he would burn a lumber yard for $1,000, mentioning Bassett's.

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 11—The house only held session today and at noon adjourned until Wednesday on account of Lincoln's birthday. A few bills were introduced none of them of great importance. Jacobson introduced a resolution calling for information regarding salaries and fees of public officers; number of clerks, deputies etc., and salaries paid them. The act proposing an amendment relating to the elective franchise was reported for passage. Also the bill for the annual revision and establishment of tariff rates by railroad commission. The principal bill introduced was one repealing the present prison labor law.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 13.—In the senate Greer called up his bill transferring the money in the school text book fund to the current improvement fund. This bill had passed the senate, but the house amended it by transferring the money to the road and bridge fund. The attorney general had decided that this was unconstitutional. The bill was referred back to committee for consultation. Bills were introduced to establish two additional agricultural experiment stations, one in the pine region and one in the Red River valley; relating to criminal offenses by corporations: relating to service of writs of attachment. In the afternoon the tax bills of Cronkhite and Patton were taken up and discussed and both were finally referred back to committee.

In the house Jacobson's resolution to ascertain the pay of all state officials was passed. The principal bills introduced were: To provide for compulsory education; establishing courts of conciliation, and to provide for the use of Minnesota stone in state buildings. The following bills were passed: Proposing a constitutional amendment relating to the elective franchise; requiring the filing of notice in certain condemnation proceedings; to appropriate money for the state public school; to amend the act relating to labels and trade marks. The joint resolution asking congress to pass a bankruptcy bill was defeated.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 14th.—In the senate Mr. Theden, by request, presented a bill prohibiting shows on the Sabbath. The following bills were passed: providing for appeals to district courts from judgment in award for opening roads; to authorize the division of organized townships on account of natural division such as rivers, etc.; giving a reward for killing wolves; providing for the reorganization of the state national guard: to prohibit poolselling and bookmaking at races; providing for the number of signers to a petition necessary to place the name of an independent candidate on ticket.

Senator Dunham offered a resolution asking the judiciary committee to advise the senate what authority, under the constitution, the legislature has for expending money for drainage of wet land, and if there is authority to do, upon what different principle rests the authority to expend money on roads and bridges.

About 100 members of the house and 250 invited guests visited the reform school at Red Wing. Dinner was served and a cantata was presented by the pupils.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 15.—In the senate Mr. Theden presented a bill providing for a state board of embalming and to provide for the prevention of contagious diseases. The following bills were passed: relating to the size of election districts; changing the law relating to the sale of liquor to minors: making the use of narcotics a cause for divorce: authorizing organized towns to build fences for preventing spread of Russian thistle; relating to deposits in insolvent banks and provides punishment for violation thereof. Senator Potter introduced a resolution which may interfere with the capitol bill. It provides "That no bills appropriating or setting aside moneys for any purpose ether than current expenses shall be considered until all bills of that nature shall be in the hands of the committee on finance and reported back by them at one time."

In the house no important bills were introduced. The following bills were passed: relating to requisites of summons issued by justices of the peace: to prevent the spread of noxious weeds: detaching villages from townships for all purposes. The bill by Mr. Parker relating to township organization was voted down.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 16.—Contrary to usual rules, both branches held sessions today. In the senate the following bills were passed: To amend chapter 195, general laws of 1893, by allowing the use of certain license money for certain public improvements, introduced by Senator Heneman: to legalize certain corporations and to validate transfers of property made by such corporations, by Senator Morgan: to amend section 1, chapter 19, general laws of 1891, relating to appropriations of moneys by boards of county commissioners for repairing roads and bridges. The rest of the day was spent in committee work.

In the house the bill from Messrs. Cant and Douglas, and designed to encourage back payment of taxes on all lands which have been or may be sold to the state, the certificates of which have not been assigned to the state, provides for the redemption of such property by payment to the county treasurer of the amounts due the state minus the penalties and interest above 7 per cent. Henry Feig's bill aims to supply the social benefits from the absence of which the farmers suffer. It provides for the organization of state and district societies with "markets" and "homes," the present state agricultural society being the state society. The bill by Brevig imposes a number of restrictions on railroads.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 18.—There was a hot fight in the house this afternoon, and the definite fact which can be stated is that the proposed amendment to the capitol bill was temporarily knocked out by a combination of all the forces against the proposition for a new capitol, as well as a number who held the opinion expressed by Henry Feig, that there was "skullduggery" somewhere. The measure will be considered again March 5. Bills introduced: Amending the laws relating to sale or lease of mineral lands; making it a misdemeanor to furnish a newspaper with a libelous statement; relating to the labeling of convict labor goods. The bill prohibiting the sale of liquor near the state fair grounds was passed and the bill relating to manufacture and sale of spices was lost.

A lively little tilt was promised in the senate tonight in the consideration of Senator Thorpe's bill, being a law to prohibit the use of screens on saloon windows. Senator Thorpe read the provisions of the bill, urging that when the committee rise it be reported for passage. The measure was indefinitely postponed. The bill to amend section 44, chapter 38, general statutes 1878, relating to public lands, was passed. This bill is in accordance with the suggestions contained in Gov. Nelson's message, and it permits the investment of the school fund in the bonds of any state, not more than 10 per cent of the fund in the bonds of any one state.

ACCORDING to the latest enumeration there are 26,000 more women than men in Philadelphia.

A BEDSTEAD bottom that is made extensible, to fit any bed, is among the latest inventions.

A HUNTER in Maine recently shot a fox that weighed 17 pounds and measured 5 feet 2 inches.

A COLONEL in the English army may allow only ten per cent of the men in his regiment to marry.

REPORTED INQUISITION.

Hawaiian Officials Said to Be Resorting to Torture to Elicit Confessions.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—The San Francisco Call has printed a story saying that the success of its treason cases was due to the incriminating evidence given by Capt. William Davies, of the steamer Waimanolo. Davies (so goes the report) was arrested on January 5. Davies, who is an American citizen, refused any information. He was not allowed an interview with either the United States minister or consul general.

His legs were bound below the knees and his thumbs were lashed with whipcord to the bolts. A cord was placed below him, so that the unfortunate man's toes just touched it. Davies was stripped to the waist. Davies would not weaken. Sweat oozed from every pore. The strong man in his agony begged for water to slake the thirst that consumed him. The tendons of the victim's limbs stood out like strands of rope; blood vessels knotted on his arms and legs, swelling as if ready to burst. At last when it was apparent by his respiration that it would be impossible to hold out longer, nature succumbed and Davies, cursing the fiends who were torturing him, fainted.

He was quickly revived by Dr. Cooper, and again suspended by the thumbs. The operation lasted from noon until 6 o'clock, and then Davies, more dead than alive, made the statement so much desired by the authorities. A young native was also tortured to bring out a confession. He was put into a tank of ice-cold water until the action of the heart was almost suspended. Full consciousness being then restored the torture was again administered. Flesh and blood could stand such inhumanity no longer, and his confession was forthcoming.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—There is official confirmation of the statements that the Dole government is resorting to unnecessarily harsh measures in this emergency, but it is not believed that the leaders of the republic would deliberately incite the disfavor of the American people by committing atrocities of the sort indicated.

Bond Plan Killed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Another day's debate in the house upon the financial question has but served to emphasize the fact that no legislation affecting the financial situation is to be expected from the Fifty-third congress. A week ago the house refused by a vote of 162 to 135 to adopt the last Springer banking and currency bill which contained a provision authorizing the issue of long-time low-interest bonds, and Thursday, by the still more decisive vote of 167 to 120, it declined to authorize the issue of $65,000,000 of 3 per cent. gold bonds with which to replace the 3¾ per cent. bonds negotiated with the Morgan-Belmont syndicate in payment for the purchase of 3,500,000 ounces of gold coin.

Pullman Exonerated.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—George M. Pullman Wednesday afternoon appeared before Judge Grosscup in chambers and was exonerated from the charge of attempting to evade the order of the court. He stated he was not in his office when the bailiff called with the subpoena but was in Vice President Wickes' office across the way. Later in the afternoon he left on a train for New York, not to avoid the order of the court, but because he had already made all arrangements to go. Nobody was admitted to the chambers but Mr. Pullman and counsel for the different parties interested.

Electrical Workers on Strike.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The electrical workers, 900 men, went out on strike Monday. The electrical workers say that five years ago they notified the Electrical Contractors' association that if on or after February 15 they were not limited to eight hours for a day's work they would strike. Wages had nothing to do with the question—men getting three dollars a day, foremen $3.50 a day. Many big buildings in this city will be seriously affected.

Smallpox in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 19.—There are now fifty-four cases of smallpox in this city twelve being reported Monday and an estimate is made that there will be over 100 cases by next Saturday. The disease is now very prevalent among negroes in the thickly populated portions of the city. The city jail, poorhouse, workhouse and other city institutions are under quarantine.

China's Complete Rout.

YOKOHAMA, Feb. 18. A dispatch dated February 14 from Field Marshal Oyama, who is in command of the Japanese military forces at Wei-Hai-Wei, announces the complete surrender of the Chinese on land and sea. He also announces that Admiral Ting and two other officers committed suicide after addressing a letter from the Chinese flagship accepting the Japanese demands.

Many Are Frozen.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—One hundred coroners' inquests have been held in London in the past four days and in eighty of the cases the intense cold was the direct cause of death. Many deaths from the same cause are reported from the provinces. Advices from the continent show that the cold weather prevails in the whole of central Europe. The snowfall has been phenomenal.

Need Protection at Formosa.

HONG KONG, Feb. 19.—The British cruiser Mercury has been suddenly dispatched from this port to the island of Formosa in response to an urgent appeal sent by the British consul there for the presence of a warship. The consul said the vessel was needed for the protection of foreigners. The Mercury is a cruiser of 3,000 tons and carries thirteen guns.

Greenhut Contempt Case.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Judge Grosscup heard arguments in the case of Joseph B. Greenhut, who was cited to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court, and when counsel had concluded took the matter under advisement, fixing no date on which to give his decision.

In Need of Food.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—Gov. McKinley is in receipt of another appeal for aid for the destitute miners of the Hocking and Sunday Creek valleys, Chairman Coultrap asserting that there is immediate need of provisions and clothing at all the points of distribution.

Cholera in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 15.—Between the 5th and 12th inst. there were sixty-one cases of cholera here and twenty-nine deaths from that disease.

THE RIVER CHICAGO.

A Learned Treatise on Its Very Wonderful Flora and Fauna.

The Chicago river is one of the immortals; it has a personality. Some people claim it is wet. A flock of ducks plunged into it and, to their great astonishment, slid across. A man who fell from the Clark street bridge broke his leg on the surface. He sued the city for damages. The bricks of which Chicago is built are made of the river cut in sections and baked. There are wild animals in this stream. A restaurant-keeper swears that he can't make a stew of this water; the animals eat the oysters. These animals themselves complain that there is not enough liquid in the river to keep them clean. Chicago signs tell you to boil the water, but add: "If it won't boil, fry it." The odor of this stream has been admiringly compared to Samson and Sandow; not however, when either was present. The Chicago people are fond of the odor on that account. It adds strength to the city. Some say the Chicago river flows up hill. As there is no hill in Chicago this proposition is a poser.

The United States coast survey detailed an engineer to test this peculiarity. The engineer planted his apparatus in the river, but never saw it again. This was his report: "The Chicago river does not flow; it stands still. It has no banks, except the First national and others. It has no bed like other streams; its bottom is always on top. The merchant marine traverses it on roller skates. In summer the city is filled with dust. I asked a civilian whence it came. 'Why,' said he, 'you must be a stranger in these parts. That dust blows from the Chicago river.'"—Judge.

THE GREAT GERMAN COFFEE BERRY.

Coffee at one cent a pound, that is what it costs to grow it, good coffee, too. Some say that it is better than Rio. This we know, while in Europe last summer in search of seed novelties we often drank this in hotels in France, Holland and Germany.

Thirty-five packages earliest vegetable seeds, $1 00, not 3 cents per package.

Largest growers of farm seeds as oats, grass and clover, corn and potatoes, etc., in the world. Early heavy yielding vegetables our specialty.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 15c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed company, LaCrosse, Wis., you will get free a package of their GERMAN COFFEE BERRY seed and their catalogue. [K]

HOTEL GUEST—"Now, are you sure that this bed is quite clean?" Maid—"Yes, sir. The sheets were only washed this morning. Just feel 'em; they ain't dry yet!"—Tit-Bits.

SHARPS have not gone out of use, but a great deal of the music nowadays we find in flats.

Tired, Weak, Nervous

Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Strength and Bodily Vigor.

The cause of that tired, weak, nervous condition, in which so many people find themselves, is the failure of the blood to properly nourish the nerves and tissues. Feed the nerves upon pure blood, and they will be steady and strong. Read this:

Mrs. C. H. Venable

SINCE YESTERDAY.

The mavis sang but yesterday
A strain that thrilled through Autumn's dearth;
He read the music of his lay
In light and leaf, and heaven and earth;
The wind-flowers by the wayside swung,
Words of the music that was sung.

In all his song the shade and sun
Of earth and heaven seemed to meet,
Its joy and sorrow were as one,
Its very sadness was but sweet;
He sang of summers yet to be:
You listened to his song with me.

The heart makes sunshine in the rain,
Or winter in the midst of May,
And though the mavis sings again
His self-same song of yesterday,
I find no gladness in his tone:
To-day I listen here alone.

And—even our sunniest moment takes
Such shadows of the bliss we knew—
To-day his throbbing song awakes
But wistful, haunting thoughts of you;
Its very sweetness is but sad,
You gave it all the joy it had.

AN AMERICAN DUCHESS

And a British Burglar, Portrayed by a British Scribe.

My friend, the burglar, when I asked him to drink, called the buxom young lady behind the bar Flossie dorling, and asked her to give him some gin hot—unsweetened.

"Don't drown it," he said, when she was putting the water in—"don't drown it. Give it a chawnee. It cawn't swim, you know." He leaned across the counter and spoke more lovingly to the magnificent young person. "I sy. I sy. Where're you a-going to next Sunday, Ader? Eh? Give us one of them violets you've got."

The magnificent lady frowned at him with such loftiness that I expected him to die on the spot. But he didn't. He only hummed a song intended, I think, to have a topical reference.

The lady at the bar panted and said, breathlessly (and with no stops), what next she wondered horrid fellow little less noise if you please you're not in a low music hall now. He responded to this with some feeling that he wished to 'eaven he was.

He drank to a toast of ten thousand a year for all of us, and sat down near me. Then he took off his soft cap and silently dusted a few crumbs off the marble table and put it on again.

The best-looking business I was ever mixed up in (he said slowly) was down at Heron Court, near Guildford. I may be a bit old-fashioned in my tastes, but I've always been rather partial to duchesses. (He said this with a relish, as though they were something sold in tins.) And when I saw in Lloyd's that the young duke had gone and married Miss Deborah Claney, daughter of the well-known rubber merchant of New Haven, Conn., and when I saw that the wedding-presents were both numerous and costly, and the happy pair had left town for the duke's house near Guildford amid a shower of rice and old slippers, then I said to myself, I said: "Go in and win, my boy, and play the game off of your own bat. Don't have no partners," I says to myself; "don't have no confederates, but jest go in and have a good old try." So I dressed myself up very tastily and I went down to Milford station.

I had a Gladstone bag with me, and in that bag I had a few necessary articles that no one can do without. I don't care how clever you are, you can't do without their help. And I had a little money with me, too. That's another thing that you want always to have about you. Many's the little business I've known spoilt just for the want of a sovereign or two.

I was walking out one afternoon, and I was going down a lane pretty close to the grounds of the mansion. In front of me was a neat girl in blue serge, with a bonnet-box in her hand. She was one of the slim-waisted sort, and she carried herself very upright. As I passed her I caught sight of the address. It was for the duchess. I lifts my hat like this, Look!

"Pardon me, miss," I says, "but might you be one of the maids at Heron Court?"

"Well," she says, "I might."

"Oh!" I says. "Pleasant weather we're having, aren't we?"

She said yes it was very pleasant weather indeed. She said (this she said in a particularly affable way) she was afraid we should have wet before night.

"Been here long?" I inquires.

No, she hadn't been there long, she said. Only three weeks.

"Come down with the duke's party, I suppose?"

Yes, she said, she came down with the duke's party.

"Like the place?"

She said she didn't mind it. I asked her a few questions about the people. She said she could get on all right with the duke, and she was on awful good terms with the duchess, but she wouldn't give a dollar a gross for the servants. For one thing, she didn't believe they kept a proper lookout at the place. Whilst they were wasting their time in smoking and drinking and flirting, a burglar could get in at almost any moment.

"Oh, well, miss, after all," I says, "we're none of us perfect, you know. We all have our little 'obbies."

I put on my best smile and made up my mind to have a dash for it. I asked her whether there was any chance of having a look in and a bit of supper in the evening. She looked at me very straight. Then she said a thing that knocked me silly.

"Say, mister," she says, "where do I come in? How much am I going to make out of this little game?"

I was so astonished that I quite blushed. I did really.

"Well," I says, "if you are going to put it that way I suppose I'd better speak out straight. I'll give you twenty quid now, and I'll give you another twenty after it's over."

"Make it thirty sovereigns now and thirty after," she said, "and it's done."

I started to argue a bit, and she turned on her heel.

"Here, stiddy on, my dear," I says. "Don't lose your temper. You've got a good-hearted face. You're not going to be hard on a poor chap, are you, now? Give me a kiss and I'll give you twenty-five."

She fired up.

"You don't have no kiss, mister," she says, "and if you want me to help you you must hand over the coin. You kent do better, anyway."

I tell you, she fairly surprised me. I assure you, to look at her, you'd think she was as quiet a girl as ever wore shoes. She kept her eyes—bright, black eyes she had—fixed on my face and seemed almost to enjoy the corner she'd got me in.

I turned the matter quickly over in my mind. After all, I knew I needn't really trouble about the second payment. I should be clear away before she had a chance to see whether I put it there or not.

"All right, miss," I says, "don't 'aggle; and don't bite a feller's 'ead half orf. Here's the thirty pound. What time shall I come up?"

She told me that at half-past eight the duke would be having dinner, and that she would leave the window of the duchess' dressing-room open. I might find a ladder in such a place, and, when I got in, I should find the jewels in such a place, and some loose notes and gold in such a place, and I was to leave the thirty pounds for her on a ledge in the chimney. And if any of the other servants caught me, why, so much the worse for me, and if they did not, so much the worse for them. She shook hands pleasantly and went off towards the court.

I felt inclined to shake hands with myself, too. I knew that there was a good twenty thousand pounds' worth of stuff for me if I could only get a quiet quarter of an hour there.

You may believe me when I say I was there that evening to the minute. Just as I neared the mansion I had a nasty feeling that the maid might have given me away. You can never be sure of women. But when I saw the window open of the duchess' dressing-room, and found the ladder and everything ready, I knew it was all right.

"She's a girl after my own heart," I said to myself when I got in the room. "And I'll be after hers when it's all over."

"It's risky work, you know. No matter how easy things are, you always have a queer sort of nervousness unless you're drunk, and then, of course, you're liable to make mistakes. None of the servants was about; they might have been dead for all the trouble they gave me.

I don't think I ever had quite such an easy job in all my life. "This," I said to myself, "this is better than your hard work any day. Honesty may be the best policy, but what do you make out of it? Eh? Do you make hauls of sackfuls of jewelry and money by honesty? Do you make enough in ten minutes to keep you for years, and drunk every day of your life, by honesty? No," I said to myself (I had got the sack nearly full), "if you want to get on in life, if you really want to have a nice little income and a life of happiness, have a turn at—"

There was a swish of skirts near the bed. I turned my lantern on the place, my heart in my mouth, my revolver in my hand. I can tell you I was pleased to see that it was only my girl. I dropped my Colt back into my pocket. She was smartly dressed, and looked quite the lady.

"Got everything, mister?" she inquired. "Got everything?"

"Well, not absolootly everything," I whispered; "but as much as I can carry. I'm just off."

"Have you put my thirty sovereigns in the chimney?" she asked. Lord, she had a head for businesss, that girl.

"Reckon I'll take them now," she said, calmly holding out her hand. "I guessed you'd go and forget."

I counted out the money and handed it over, and shouldered my bag.

"Good-by, miss," I whispers; "see each other again soon, I hope."

"Awful good of you to say that," she said. "Feel as though I kent let you go now." Her hand went to the side of the wall. "We're getting on so sociable and pleasant and friendly like."

I can't tell you how it made me feel when I heard her talk like that. I would have proposed to that girl on the spot if I hadn't been so busy. Only there's a time and a place for everything. I always say, and just then wasn't the time to go canoodling about with girls.

Of course this is the worst of them—once they get mashed on you, there's no getting rid of them without a row.

I went to her to give her a kiss and a good-by. She gave a little scream.

"Stop right there!" she cried. "Stop right there, mister, or you're a dead man."

She leveled a shining little pocket pistol at my head, the other hand still pressing against the wall. There was a sound of hurried footsteps on the landing; the door opened and a muscular young fellow in evening dress rushed in. He was followed by several servants.

"My dearest Deborah!" he cried. Then he sprang upon me and nearly choked me.

"Here, let go!" I screamed. "Where's the duchess? Where in ——'s the duchess? Lemme go, can't ye? I want to tell her something. I want to tell her all about that beauty of a lady's maid there. She's got my sixty pounds."

"And she jest about means to keep it," she answered, laughing. "It'll make a good start for my village blanket club." She turned to the duke. "Now, you see, Tunbridge, how Heron Court is protected."

"My dearest," said the duke, "you're quite right. You shall make your own arrangements now."

She spoke to one of the footmen.

"Give him a good sousing, Barker, with the garden hose, and let him slide."

"Certainly, your grace. Now, thin, me man, this way."

And they took me, and, as I'm a living sinner, they ducked me. Had a narsty cold in me 'ead, I did, for years awfter. — Warwick Simpson, in San Francisco Argonaut.

A Conscientious Dog.

Jack's master was a painter, and Jack, being a lively and spirited little fellow, on two or three occasions tipped over a pail of paint in the course of his gambols. Whenever this happened his master called him up, gave him a lecture, and by way of impressing the matter on his mind, rubbed his nose in the paint—much to Jack's discomfort. One day, however, Jack was playing about the paint shop all alone. Suddenly he ran against a paint pail, and over it went. He looked sadly around for a moment, and when he perceived that his master was not there to inflict the usual punishment, he walked slowly up to the paint, plunged his nose into the hateful mess, and ran whimpering away.—Youth's Companion.

—Maud—"I understand that Jack proposed to you last night and you refused him?" Marie—"Yes; although, poor fellow, I am afraid that if he had not left me so hurriedly I might have relented and accepted him." Maud—"So he told me."—N. Y. Herald.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Arrested.

Harry Reno, a young man residing at Industrial, a Scandinavian settlement, was arrested on a charge of having murdered Christ Lundley, 24 years of age, last November. This arrest has disclosed the fact that, although the people of Industrial knew of the murder soon after it occurred, they have kept it quiet, and it was only by an accident that the sheriff learned of it.

On the evening of Nov. 3 Reno and Lundley became involved in a quarrel over a woman, during which Reno hit Lundley over the head with a billy. It was not supposed that Lundley was badly hurt, but a few days later he died, and then it was found that his skull had been fractured. Instead of informing the county officials, the residents of Industrial, where both young men have lived for a long time, hushed the matter up as well as they were able. The father and mother of the dead man, strange to say, were not at all pleased when brought to Duluth to be present at the grand jury meeting, where Reno will be indicted, in all probability, for murder in the first degree.

Killed.

Samuel W. Chaffee, a teamster 19 years of age, was killed in the Pioneer Fuel Company's wood yard at Minneapolis by the falling of a pile of slab wood. The wood pile was nearly 50 feet in height and covered several acres of ground. During the winter the pile has been undermined, load after load being hauled away each day. Chaffee drove his team into the yard shortly after the dinner hour and crawled up through one of the crevices for the purpose of toppling one corner of the pile that he might fill his cart with less labor. A large block of wood directly above became dislodged and tumbled down upon him, carrying other pieces with it. The unfortunate man was completely buried beneath the wood, and the body was not taken out until 8 o'clock last night. The head was badly cut and bruised, but it is believed that the wounds produced by the falling of the wood would not have caused death, and that Chaffee was suffocated.

Big Sale.

A sale has just been consummated by which a block of pine timber located on the Big Fork river, in Itaska county, has been transferred to A. J. Hughes, one of the heavy lumbermen of Rat Portage, Ontario. The tract sold is estimated to contain 10,000,000 feet of white pine, all of which will be manufactured by Mr. Hughes at his sawmills at Rat Portage. This will necessitate the driving of the logs down the Big Fork into Rainy river and from thence into the Lake of the Woods, where they will be put together in rafts and towed across the lake to Rat Portage. This sale was made by the Manistee & Northwestern Railway Company of Michigan, through their timber agent, R. Ferguson, of Grand Rapids, Minn.

Charge of Study.

The committee of the state board of regents, which has in charge the revision of the course of study at the state school of agriculture, has decided on the following change:

The term of the summer school for girls will be made six weeks instead of four, and English and sewing added to the course of study. The lectures on cooking and dairing will be given twice a week, with practice work every day.

In the junior year at the agricultural school, music will be substituted for military drill. English will alternate with entomology the first half of the term, and with hygiene the last half. Other changes are contemplated, but not yet fully decided on.

$25,000.

Geo. E. Clement has brought a suit against Seymour W. Brown, of Winona, for $25,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. The suit is the upshot of an action brought about one year ago by Lilla J. Clement for $25,000 for a breach of promise and which at the time became very notorious. The jury gave her a verdict for $13,000 and it was appealed to the supreme court but was settled before it was tried. The first case mentioned will probably be tried at the next term of court. Brown is now on a pleasure trip in Mexico.

News in Brief.

At a ski tournament in Red Wing Geo. Peterson lost his balance while in the air and fell in such a manner as to break his leg. The participants in the tournament were all of Red Wing. John Johnson took first prize, jumping a distance of 91 feet, and A. Gilbertson was second, covering a distance of 85 feet.

Charley H. Johnson an employe in Stoneburg's livery barn at Herman, committed suicide today by shooting himself in the head. No cause is known.

While at a dance at St. Wendell, John B. Terway, of St. Joseph was set upon by two other young men with sticks of cordwood, and seriously if not fatally injured. His skull was fractured, and the physicians entertain slight hopes of his recovery. The injured man was brought to St. Cloud for treatment.

Charles Drumbeater, the Indian who killed James Fisherman near Bald Club Lake New Years Day, was bound over by Commissioner Carey at Duluth to the May term of the United States court on charge of manslaughter.

A bill is being drafted by G. W. Stewart, of St. Cloud, to be presented to the legislature soon, providing that all persons practicing the art of healing be first duly licensed by a state board. The object is to put a stop the the operations of Christian Scientists.

Jacob Seit, a brass moulder of Cicago, was found dead in St. Paul in an old shanty by some children at play.

D. K. Pearsons is completing arrangements to connect Grand Rapids, Minn., and Koochiching by telegraph, thus putting the Rainy Lake gold region in quick communication with civilization. The tariff will be ten cents a word.

Fire at Sauk Center destroyed Batchelders hardware store and Hanson's grocery store, with their entire contents. Loss $10,000.

George A. Elder, of Chicago, the wrecker of the American Loan and Trust Company, of Duluth, was arrested on a bench warrant at the instance of attorneys who wanted to make disclosures in supplementary proceedings in a civil suit. Judge Lewis dismissed the prisoner on the ground that he could not be reached by a civil process as long as he was in attendance at court in criminal proceedings against himself.

RATES FOR CLERGYMEN.

A number of the eastern railroads having on January 1, 1895, changed their rules regarding the issue of reduced rates to clergymen, and unauthorized statements as to the reasons for making the change having been published, considerable correspondence between the clergy and the railroads has resulted. The recent letter from Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, President of the New York Central, corrects certain erroneous impressions and states that company's position in the matter very clearly. The letter is as follows:

New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Co., Grand Central Depot.

NEW YORK, January 19, 1895.

Rev. Newton J. Conklin and H. H. Stebbins, D. D., Committee:

GENTLEMEN,—I am in receipt of your letter of January 15th, enclosing the resolutions of the Presbyterian Ministers' Association of Rochester.

The resolutions are based upon a misapprehension of the facts. The press dispatch announcing that the New York Central had withdrawn the ministerial half-rate tickets "because some of the ministers had abused the privilege, loaning their permits to unauthorized persons, and sometimes even selling them," was wholly unauthorized. No such information or notice was given to the press or to anyone else by any officer of this company. There was also an interview reported with me on this subject, making similar, if not more serious charges, but no such interview ever took place.

I deeply regret the publicity which was given to this matter and the discussion which has grown out of it before we had really arrived at what was the best policy for this company and its associates in the Trunk Line Association to pursue. It had been developed that very great abuses existed in the issuance and use of the so-called ministerial ticket. It was not, however, the fault of the ministers. So far as I can ascertain, no clergyman of any church has been guilty of any impropriety in the use of this privilege. Like most departures from regular rules, this one led after awhile to serious demoralization of passenger rates. The privilege of the ministerial order became extended to all persons who had ever been ordained as clergymen, whether they still had any charge or performed any ministerial services or not. Many who had gone into business claimed and received the order. Then it was extended to missionaries and officers of the Salvation Army, of the Y. M. C. A., and of other religious or semi-religious organizations. This enabled railway officials who desired to do so to issue the half-rate ticket to almost anybody.

I am sorry to say that some railways do not treat their agreements with each other with the same sense of honorable obligation which the officers would observe in their individual transactions. We were amazed to discover that in order to increase their business without apparently cutting the rates a few of the roads placed the ministerial tickets in scalpers' offices for sale. In this way they came into the hands of the general public. It frequently occurred that the conductor, when calling upon some passenger whom he did not think was a minister to produce the ministerial order which every clergyman carried, was met by a flat refusal, simply because the passenger was not a minister, had no order and had received or purchased the ticket in some one of the ways which I have described. Or, the conductor would find that under the guise of a missionary or an officer of one of these organizations he had received the order and ticket or else had bought a ticket which some one who could not be vouched for as a clergyman with a charge had secured, and then placed in a scalper's office for sale.

Of course the essential principle at the bottom of the relations between the railways and the public is that everybody shall be treated alike; that the railway fare shall be like the postage of the government, the same to everyone who boards the train and becomes a passenger between the same points. The wisdom of the prohibition of discriminations in favor of one person as against another, or of one shipper as against another, or of one locality as against another, is now universally admitted, and is incorporated in the railway laws.

The ministerial ticket was issued at a reduced rate, not as an act of charity, as some have alleged, but because it was believed that the clergy and the church performed an essential service which was felt throughout the vast employment of these corporations.

Personally, I would be very glad if the privilege could be continued under restrictions which would confine it within legitimate bounds. You will see, however, from the explanations which I have given, how difficult a problem this is.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW,
President.

—Customer—You fellows ought to get rich. You make 300 or 400 per cent. on what you sell. Druggist—What can I serve you with? Customer—Give me three two-cent stamps.—N. Y. Herald.

—Benevolent Old Man—Here's a quarter. So you were sent to Yale when quite young? Ragson Tatters—Did I say dat? I meant jail; I can't pronounce de "j."—Philadelphia Record.

—Indigestion—The little girl was nursing her dolly very carefully. "Is dolly sick?" asked the child's mother. "Yes, mamma. The poor little sing can't digest all 'at sawdust what she's eated."

—Primus—Dalton's sight has become strangely affected, poor fellow. He sees everything double. Secondus—By Jove! I'm glad you mentioned it. I owe him a pound, and I'll tender him this half-sov.—Tit-Bits.

A LITTLE boy was asked what the Sunday-school text was. He answered: "Many are cold, but few are frozen."

DONNING A VEIL.

An Accomplishment That Few Women Have and Still Fewer Acquire.

It is an accomplishment worth acquiring in these days when American women fore abroad almost universally veiled as the beauties of the orient, to put one's veil on successfully, that is so that the hair is held securely in position, the veil itself does not droop below the hat brim at any point, and neither bangs loose nor draws across the face, rendering a wink inconvenient and the nose a martyr to the tickling sensation which every wearer of a veil knows. Half the beauty of the veil, or, more strictly, the enhancement of beauty which the veil gives, is due to the way it is put on. Worse than no veil at all is the veil put on before the bonnet is assumed, as one fashion writer recommends. The filing meshes, pressed closely against the face and hair, leave no room for the charming illusory effect which is the veil's chief "excuse for being." The first requirement in a veil is that it shall be of unstinted size, double width, unless it is to be worn with a small bonnet a yard long, so that it may be gathered up in generous folds over the hat brim and pinned—a veil should never be tied—well up at the back of the hat. A better fit and a prettier effect is given by a little cluster of gathers directly in the middle of the front. It is to be hoped that women will sometime learn that veils figured with sprigs, or, indeed, anything but unobtrusive dots, are never becoming and make them look, as a man was heard to remark the other day, "as if their faces were covered with flies."—Chicago Times.

The World's Health.

While we have not room here to produce the statistics in support, it may be confidently asserted that the average health of the world's civilized people is improving with every decade. Two principal causes are progress in both medicine and hygiene. A hundred years ago smallpox was as much dreaded as Asiatic cholera or yellow fever are now. Seventy-two years ago today died Dr. Jenner, the man who, on May 14, 1796, performed the first inoculation for the prevention of smallpox. Today his discovery is known and adopted by the majority of physicians in all nations. Pasteur, the Frenchman, has earned the thanks of the world by his inoculation for the cure of hydrophobia. A new triumph of the germ theory of disease seems to be the diphtheritic anti-toxine, which promises to be a safeguard against that scourge of child-life. On the side of hygiene, as great improvement has been made in clothing, exercise, cleanliness and food. Especial attention has been directed to the latter, and the efforts of legislators have been persistently used to secure purity of food, while its preparation for consumption has become a science. The public caterers are alive to the demand, and the cooking of America no longer deserves the name of barbaric. Leaders in this food reform have been the great railroad companies, with their dining cars, on which the best and choicest eatables are cooked and served in the finest style. Pre-eminent among all are the peerless dining cars of the Burlington Route, operated on the cafe plan. The many attractions of these lines makes it the part of wisdom to buy your ticket over the Burlington, and this can be easily done by applying to your home ticket agent, or by writing to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

THE ONWARD MARCH

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't waited beyond reason, there's complete recovery and cure.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

Do You Wish the Finest Bread and Cake?

It is conceded that the Royal Baking Powder is the purest and strongest of all the baking powders.

The purest baking powder makes the finest, sweetest, most delicious food. The strongest baking powder makes the lightest food.

That baking powder which is both purest and strongest makes the most digestible and wholesome food.

Why should not every housekeeper avail herself of the baking powder which will give her the best food with the least trouble?

Avoid all baking powders sold with a gift or prize, or at a lower price than the Royal, as they invariably contain alum, lime or sulphuric acid, and render the food unwholesome.

Certain protection from alum baking powders can be had by declining to accept any substitute for the Royal, which is absolutely pure.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—The village now supplies the G. N R'y with water for engines at this place.

—This republican administration has succeeded in squelching the fires under one engine and driving the engineer out of town. By the way, he was a democrat.

—Geo. Florida, of Rockford, has had teams hauling sawdust from Delano recently; he says for a good many years this is the first time he has had to leave home for that commodity. Big Crow River is so low that he cannot run his sawmill now.

--In driving under the bridge on the West Side a few days ago, we noticed that some one had drawn a load of hay through between the piling, raking off a good portion of the load, leaving it on the ground.

—Dr. J. W. Chapin, of Minneapolis, lectured on Phrenology, at the Swedish church on Tuesday evening. He complained that Delano was the first town he had struck where a license of one dollar was required of a person for delivering a lecture on a scientific subject. In order to avoid this he took up a collection instead of asking an admittance fee.

—We are requested to announce that Rev. A. Dignum, of the London Missionary Society, South India, on a few day's visit to Rev. Davies, will (D. V.) preach next Sunday in the Presbyterian church in Delano at 10:30 A. M.; Maple Plain, 3 P. M.; and lecture on missionary work at Rockford at 7:30 P. M. Sleighs will be in readiness to take any Delanoites who wish to go to Rockford in the evening and we are assured that accomodation will be found for all teams.

—The minority party in our village claims that party politics should not enter into village elections. But people will take sides on something. It had as well be regular political lines as to be on some other lines, for instance German against Scandinavian; Catholic against Protestant; moneyed men against laboring men, or something else. Of course the minority party stirs up all these issues they can, being careful to keep their own voters in line and giving us a republican council year after year, by the aid of Democrats who allow themselves wheedled into helping them.

—At the regular meeting of the Village Council held on Monday the following bills were allowed:

| | |
|---|---|
| J. S. Shrader, medical attendance, | $2.00 |
| J. P. Berneck, special police | 3.75 |
| Martin Nelson, night watch, etc. | 41 80 |
| J. W. Lindsley, hardware, | 5.45 |
| M A O'Hair, attorney fees, | 8 00 |
| G. P Schaffer, mdse. for poor | 21 00 |
| D. Dugan, constable fees, | 6.45 |
| R M Walker, justice fees, | 3.00 |
| H. V. Wilder, care hose, | 3 25 |
| C. L. Belt, care hose, | 1.05 |
| I. C. Stewart, street work, | 3.85 |
| C. E. Astrope, street work, | 1.00 |
| Waterworks and electric light bills. | |
| J. W. Lindsley, hardware, etc. | 22 80 |
| H. J. Bock, thawing out hydrants | 5 00 |
| Milton Muckey, engineer, | 46 20 |
| J. Bauman, wood, | 60 62 |
| Louis Jahrendt, wood | 10.93 |
| John Peterson, wood, | 12 50 |
| Oley Dahigren, wood, | 23.00 |
| Moses Carlton, wood, | 51.25 |
| Frank Shrewsbury, wood, | 18.13 |
| John Goushure, wood, | 6.25 |

A petition from A. Rieder, asking that streets and alleys be vacated in Bill's and White's additions, was referred to the village attorney.

J. W. Lindsley was appointed as the official plumber, with a bond of $500.

--See Teacher's Examinations, in another column.

--We see by the Eagle she has a new subscriber. We got one yesterday too.

—Preparations are going on for a big celebration of Washington's Birthday at the City Hall to day.

--The Phrenologist in town this week seems to have hit too near the truth in a few cases and excited the risabilities of several of his young lady patients.

—Sawdust is said to be selling for 25 cts. a load now-a days, and manure is hauled away as fast as it appears in the alleys. A few years ago things were different.

—On Wednesday a small shower of rain passed over Delano, something unusual for this time of year. A couple of warm days had their effect on the sleighing, also.

—E. J. Swedebeck has traded his store to Pogrzeba, the saloon keeper, who will soon occupy it. John Plattner has not yet determined where he will move his general store to.

—Every member of the City Council ought to be obliged to drive the biggest load of hay to be found on the coldest day of the year, under the railroad on Watertown street, so that they would appreciate, fully, the need of having that piece of road fixed. They might also see if they couldn't get a crossing put in on Fourth street.

—If you are going to raise a barrel or so of fine sorghum for next winter's use, now is the time to be looking up the best seed and preparing to get it into the ground in season so that the crop will have time to mature. No molasses or syrup we get compares with the home made article; it is good and healthy.

—If Delano ever expects to have a park the council should bestir themselves to ascertain where they can get it to the best advantage. Property probably is as cheap now as it will be again for years, and in case a boom comes on the town it will not be an easy matter to secure suitable grounds handy for the purpose.

—Banker Roosen has been down and interviewed the Dairy Commissioner on the creamery business. He says he learns from that source that the creamery is a paying institution. He contemplates putting in a plant here in the near future. That's right, if it is well conducted it should be a paying institution and a convenience to farmers in this immediate vicinity, and an advertisement to the town. Why would not a cheese factory be a good institution too? A pork packing establishment certainly would.

School Jottings.

Another "blue Monday" this week.

A coasting party was the amusement Saturday evening.

Miss Frances Bauman spent Saturday with Miss Steele in Minneapolis. Miss Frances now has another "pair of eyes."

Mrs. Leavens was not well enough to hear her classes recite Monday.

Only four days of School this week. We are very glad that Washington's birthday is thus remembered as he is certainly deserving of the honor, but why is not Mr. Lincoln's natal day also celebrated? Did he not do as much for his country as Washington?

It was noticed that the Monticello High School sent one hundred and fifty certificates(?) to the State Board. Our High School sends the papers to the board and after a very careful examination our certificates are sent to us. It seems strange that all the high schools do not have the same rule.

This is club week, but owing to other amusements for the same evening, it looks as though there would be a small attendance.

The rhetorical work in essay, debate, declamation and reading will commence again in two weeks.

We have been looking over the Morris High School Chronicle. It is a very neat little paper. The school seems to be doing splendid as it expects to be placed on the list as second grade in the spring. It must be that Mr. Dewey is giving the same push to that school that he gave to ours. Result: A graded school was made a high school. SCRIBBLER.

Washington's Birthday.

The Delano Washington's Birthday Assocation will hold their annual meeting at the City Hall on the 22nd. Part of the exercises are to be gone through with before noon commencing about 11:30. The programme so far as has been arranged, is given below:

Sheriff Carpenter was in town on business on Monday.

Ex-Sheriff Nugent and daughter made Delano a flying visit on Monday.

Mrs. Archie Young, of Ashland, Wis., is spending a few days with Delano friends.

Most of Delano's school-mamms visited Minneapolis Saturday to attend the matinee.

Rev. Powell preached the funeral sermon of J. F. Powers at Rockford on Sunday afternoon.

Adjustor Stewart, of Minneapolis, was in town on Tuesday looking after insurance business.

C. G. Roosen visited Litchfield on Tuesday to investigate the workings of the creameries at that place.

County Commissioner Bugbee, of Rockford, passed through town on Monday, making a trip to Cokato.

Geo. F. Walker, of Minneapolis, an old Delanoite, called on his niece, Mrs. Austin Cooper and other relations and friends, Monday.

A. J. Hayes, of Montrose, was in town Wednesday. He did not forget to call in and take the Farm Journal and GAZETTE for next year.

(Handed in.)

Andrew Motzko, of Franklin, visited Louis Smith, of Independence, Sunday.

Joseph Janeuse, of Long Lake, visited Delano friends, last Sunday.

Miss Mary Wiesner, of Maple Plain, visited Delano, on Sunday.

County Cullings.

Why didn't the new Board of County Commissioners let the job for printing stationery for the county? Or why do they not do so now?

Keep an eye out for the way our legislators vote on important bills before that body; see if they are doing what you would have them do. Public servants, like private ones, will bear looking after.

From the Globe we learn that: "Senator Culkin proposes to have a law made to make debts for thrashing grain a lien on such grain if filed within ten days after completing the threshing."

Wright county don't seem to be in it this winter, at the capital. The entire delegation having been Washburn men and being turned down so vehemently are not in a condition to get many favors for old Wright. They can't even get the Fourth Hospital for Insane located here.

From the Minneapolis Times we learn that on Sunday last there was present at the Augustana Convention in that city, from the Pacific district, Moore's Prairie, Rev. C. B. L. Boman, L. P. Esterberg; Cokato, Rev. J. A. Levine. M. Holmstrom; Dassel and Swan Lake, Rev. J. Elm, M. Anderson.

Our new republican Board of County Commissioners is not fulfilling the expectations of some of those who helped elevate its members to the positions they now hold. And they are being powerfully pestered with numerous lengthy and patriotic petitions praying for a reconsideration of the action of the Board in retiring to innocuous disuetude the janitor of the Court House, a good republican and an old soldier, that the democratic Board had found good enough for several years past.

Wright county is fast drifting into diversified farming, under existing circumstances the best thing to do. Farmers who formerly raised all the wheat they could now raise only enough for their own use, and put the balance of the farm into products which they used to buy. Potatoes at 50 or 60 cts a bushel can be raised at home better than to raise wheat and sell it for 50 cents a bushel and buy potatoes. Dairying and poultry raising is more extensively gone into now, also, and where proper pains are taken these are paying parts of the agricultural business.

Sherburne county will, most likely, be able to accomplish what they have long desired, and be set off from the 38th Legislative district. Mr. Craig is in the Little Norwegian Band Wagon, and can have some hope of having some influence so that when the question revolves around to the right place look out for a division of the district. It should have been divided long ago; but Wright county preferred to hold on to a sure thing for the election of her members by a good republican majority; but now a good many Wright republicans would prefer to take a separation, as well as do the Sherburne folks.

The Eagle had one of her spasmodic spells last week and charged Mr. Vorse with having been fixed with the promise of the Clerk of Courtship, the term of the present incumbent expiring next January and an appointment for one year having to be made. But we have it on good authority that the appointing power rests with the Senior Judge of the District; in this case Seagrave Smith, who is a democrat. Possibly Col. O'Leary may hold on to the teat until the next election after all, and the republican promises in Wright county come out as they usually do, if there was any made. Mr. Vorse denies any knowledge of the promise having been made.

Among Our Exchanges.

Now the dispatches state Maj Baldwin will oppose the nomination of O'Connor. The Minnesota machine declines to stay fixed.—Duluth News-Tribune.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, the popular M. D., of Watertown, drove over Saturday to attend to a matter of business at the Court House. The Doc. is one of those genial fellows whose presence is a sure antidote for the blues. Doc., come oftener.—Valley Herald.

Of course republicans are sincere in their demand for civil service reform. The republican officials of Cook county (Chicago) have issued orders to all employees of the county to appear at the ward primaries and vote for the candidates of the ring on pain of dismissal from the service of the county. There is manifest need of a Lexow committee in the vicinity of the court house in the leading city of the West.—Morning Call.

Manager Ames, of the Litchfield creamery, last week received a letter from the Great Northern railroad company asking figures on furnishing butter, cream and milk for the railroad dining cars to run on the through Pacific trains. The reputation of the Litchfield creamery is spreading, evidently. It is surmised that the railroad company intends running its through trams on this line.—Litchfield Independent.

Those who rail at the administration for buying gold with bonds seem to forget the fact that the law on the U. S. statute books, passed by a republican Congress and signed by a republican President expressly requires that the gold reserve of a hundred million dollars be kept on hand, and providing that bonds be sold if necessary to procure this gold. As long as the law remains, the treasury officials can do nothing but obey it and this is what they have done.—Litchfield Independent.

County Superintendent of Schools, L. J. Rocholl, predicts that the proposition to change from the district to the township system in the common schools will never be adopted by the Legislature. He says the people all over the state are opposed to it, that only about one third of the county superintendents in the state favor it, and that two thirds of the members of the Legislature will vote against it. Prof. Rocholl declines to discuss the merits of the two plans for publication because there was no necessity of proving the superiority of the present system over the one proposed. He said among the many letters he had on the subject was one from the state superintendent of North Dakota who said very plainly that the township system was a failure there.—St. Cloud Times.

Exercise For Dyspepsia.

A fruitful cause of indigestion is eating when one is either physically or mentally tired. At such times one should not take solid food. Drink instead, a glass of hot milk. Nothing is equal to it as a stimulant and a sedative. The milk should never be scalded, but heated quickly, and drank as hot as it can be, comfortably. The process of heating reduces both its sweetness and density, but the effect of its cordial and stimulating power is felt at once. Some portions of the milk are appropriated and digested almost immediately after being taken into the stomach. Many who think they need stimulant when exhausted by fatigue will find a glass of hot milk an equivalent that will be at once satisfying and revivifying, without any deleterious after effects.

It has long been demonstrated that motion round and about a vital organ reacts upon it and vitalizes it. Exercise is a great aid to digestion, and special exercises intended to act directly on the digestive organs are recommended as cures for dyspepsia. The one called the torso exercise is very beneficial, and is an invaluable aid to weak and impaired digestion. With the arms hanging lifeless from the shoulders, --technically called "decomposed" or "devitalized,"--and keeping the feet firmly on the floor, twist the body as far as you can turn it from right to left and vice versa; this stimulates voluntary functions, and expels stagnant juices.—From "Sanitarian," in Demorest's Magazine for March.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

A MAN'S THOUGHTS.

Work, there is work to be done,
A whole day's work in a day:
From the rising sun to the setting sun,
Work for all who may.

And the prayer of the working hand
Is the prayer of the working head—
The clamorous prayer of the hungry land—
"Give us our daily bread!"

Fame, there is fame to be won,
A name that stands far a name;
The prize when the race shall be run;
And the honors a victor may claim.

Gold, and better than gold,
Power, and the world's good will;
And better than all a thousand fold,
An honest conscience still.

To suffer and know no shame,
To conquer and leave no ban,
To live as giving, through praise and blame,
Assurance of a man.

—George Cotterell, in Good Words.

SOME people may have queer tastes as to others' notions; but several have intimated that their bread would be more palatable made from baking powders not so thoroughly mixed up with the brains, blood, etc., etc., of Miss Kittie Ging as they have found it in some Minneapolis dailies for the past few weeks.

THE St. Paul people are worrying considerably over the chances to get that $5,000,000 capitol built at once. Minneapolis and the country seem to be in a position to worry them and enjoy doing so. If the bill removing the capital to St. Peter hadn't been stolen, leaving St. Paul in possession, years ago, she might have a few warmer friends than she has, for small favors she might ask for.

HON HENRY JOHNS, of St. Paul, has introduced a bill to reduce legal rates of interest to 6 per cent; but allowing 10, on contract, same as the present law; but he wants to do away with the severe penalties attached for taking usury in any form. Better let the law alone, Mr. Johns. Better not meddle with that. If you can make the six per cent clause go, without changing the usury penalties, well and good, otherwise let it stand.

IT does seem that some great leaven of unrest permeates the people of the world at present. In this country we are called upon, frequently, to read of riots, caused by this, that or the other thing. In this enlightened age and civilized country it seems as if people ought to have good laws, and respect them, without the aid of troops under arms. Care should be taken in selecting men to make laws and to administer them, and less attention given to the filling of individuals pocketbooks. Men and not money should receive the attention of lawmakers for a season. Let honest, competent men, regardless of wealth or poverty, receive recognition as they should and things will change. Don't make it necessary to have a "barrel" in order to acquire a position in this free country.

THE Congregational church, at Rocneiter, Minnesota, passed a resolution relating to the late visit of the legislative committee to their town, being entertained by the use of wines and liquors, that has about the right ring to it. It certainly is nothing less than a disgrace to any village, town or other community of people, in this enlightened age, to run a saloon in connection with the entertainment of visitors. And the members of the legislature who allow themselves this kind of an opportunity to get a few drinks would be a bigger ornament to that body if the worse than vacuum in their offices was filled by sending them home. Below we give the resolutions as they are being published in the papers all over the state:

"Whereas, at the banquet given to the legislative committee at the Cook House on Wednesday, Feb. 20, either by the authority of that committee or by individual members of local committees, wines and liquors were freely furnished those who desired them in a room set apart on purpose; therefore,

"Resolved, that we. members of the Congregational church and congregation, put ourselves on record as without qualification disapproving it. We esteem the proceeding, however justified by custom, as wholly unworthy of the state legislature on whose business the committee was present, as a reproach to the members of the committee who shared in it, as unjust to those who, ignorant of the fact and assured that such would not be the fact, participated in doing honor to the state's representatives, as a wicked disregard of Christian sentiment and practice, as an iniquitous example set the young, and careless diffiance of the large and growing element among us that looks with abhorrence upon the wine cup."

Resolutions of a similar tenor to the above were heartily concurred in by a number of prominent congregations of the city by a rising vote.

SOME of our neighboring newspapers who are so strenuously opposed to Dr. Zier's bill in the interests of health, last week ventured on some more medical advice showing their complete ignorance of what they were writing about. One says, "There are no cases of Scarlet Fever in Clear Lake nor have there been any this winter. There were a few mild cases of Scarlatina, but it was not considered necessary to close the school on that account." Just such misleading statements, made by people who should know better often aid in spreading contagious diseases. People who rely on the superior knowledge of the editor are told that "There are no cases of Scarlet Fever" but "there were a few mild cases of Scarlatina"! and they believe it and grow careless; and when an epidemic might if properly looked upon be avoided it is allowed to spread and finally often results in the death of several children in a community that might have escaped altogether but for the newspaper item throwing them off their guard.

Scarlatina and Scarlet Fever are synonymous terms, and mean the same disease, one of the most fatal and contagious on the list of children's diseases. Some seasons the disease is more severe than at other times, and some families may not mind having it very much while others are maimed for life, or die from its effects. The mildest case may serve for a starting point for the severest epidemic. People ought not to be thrown off their guard in this way by what should be a safe guide to them in the hour of such danger. Rotheln, or German Measles has prevailed in some neighborhoods lately; it is usually a much milder disease and not so much to be dreaded, but often is mistaken for the severer malady. And occasionally the severer ailment is mistaken for something harmless and allowed, while being treated by some "cure all" read about in the best places in the advertising columns, next to reading matter, paying about half regular rates, or less, of these same papers that make fun of the Zier bill and tell their readers that Scarlet Fever is one thing and Scarlatina another. "Inform yourself before you instruct others," in such important matters as these.

THE Midway News and the Moorhead News both contain some pretty plain statements concerning "Public Immorality." It may be that many of our public officials are not what we would desire them to be, nor what they ought to be. But it is a question whether the kind of articles alluded to tends to correct the evils, or simply stirs up the elements of corruption, of dishonesty and all that tends in that direction to a stronger effort to hold what they have had or been accused of having had for years. Does not the reading of such assertions and statements of facts, with such vigorous comments, such severe criticisms tend to discourage the better class of available material for office holders from allowing their names to come before the public as aspirants or even as willing to hold office if it is given to them? Do not the people generally think after perusing these dissertations that no one not actually a fraud can be elected by the voters of this country? Do not such tirades too often repeated, deter more good men than bad ones from running, either willingly, or under protest, for any position of honor, trust or profit? Do they not, on the other hand, encourage the wicked and designing to enter the race, and to make use of every available means to accomplish their ends, the election of men to high places who will do their bidding? If all the papers would confine their remarks to those deserving them it might do better; but when a man gets into an office he seems to be a target for some papers to write at. Some men grown old in years and who have always been known as honest and reliable when they, by some force of circumstances, chance to get into office are covered with slime by political opponents. Things are said about them many times that are not so. People are made to believe, by reading a number of papers that certain men are unfit for certain positions; that it would be unsafe to do business with them, when they are known as thoroughly reliable by all their acquaintances. And others, unscrupulous, by the use of money in various ways ways procure for themselves the writing and publishing of fine recommends. Voters unacquainted with the men are made to believe them models of perfection, while those who know of them personally only laugh at the ridiculousness of running such men for any place on any ticket; and lo! when the votes are counted these men slide in some way, often with larger majorities than some others on the ticket. Is it not, also, a reflection on the voters themselves that they repeatedly elect men of shady or doubtful character to office when running against men they know to be capable, honest, and in every way fit to fill the places?

Does it not tend to corrupt the voting masses themselves to have constantly dinged in their ears and to read in their papers, the principal source of information for many of them, that no honest man can be elected? Do they not grow discouraged and think that the only way to receive their just dues, even, is to vote for the toughest men they can find, and to stand in with the majority? Do not men who favor honest men then succumb to the general clamor, and give their vote to men they know unfit for the positions they seek?

Would it not be better to give a plain unvarnished statement of facts and let it go at that and where a respectable man does bob up, help him all you can, while giving people facts about the others?

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22, 1895.

Whether intentionally or not matters little, but that President Cleveland has, by a few remarks made to several gentlemen who called at the White House to pay him their respects, badly frightened the republican leaders in Congress is certain. The callers in question were Representatives-elect Smith and Corliss, of Michigan, and Towne, of Minnesota. After chatting awhile the President significantly said: "How would you gentlemen like to begin your Congressional duties as early as March 15?" They declared they were perfectly willing to wait until December, and were told by the President that conditions and not personal considerations must determine the time of the meeting of Congress. Within an hour the conversation was known at the Capitol, and the republican leaders in both Senate and House had their heads together. Although they professed indifference, it is known that they dread an extra session of Congress beyond everything, as it will quickly demonstrate their ability to legislate upon financial subjects. They have been hoping that the gold received for the last issue of bonds, which they have so loudly and hypocritically denounced, would enable the Treasury to pull through without an extra session and that by next December there would not be such pressing need for legislation. This scare is having one good effect. It is making the republicans assist in pushing the appropriation bills through, because they have an idea that the President would not object to Congress forcing an extra session by failure to pass them all.

The man who "objects" is now in his glory in both House and Senate. He can block small legislation at will, as unanimous consent is needed to get action on any bill not having the right of way under the rules. There is little probability of any more important legislation, except the appropriation bills.

Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin, who made one of the greatest speeches of his life—he spoke nearly four hours—in reply to the unjust and unpatriotic carping and insinuations of the republican and populist Senators concerning the contract made by Secretary Carlisle to secure gold for bonds, refuted in detail every insinuation that has been made, and made it plain to every unprejudiced mind that Secretary Carlisle, acting in concert with President Cleveland, had availed himself of every possible means to make as favorable a bargain as possible and that no one else could have secured better terms from the men who controlled the gold wanted. Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, who persisted in interrupting Mr. Vilas said: "If the Senator from Rhode Island, instead of standing here to carp at a transaction already accomplished and finished, had put himself at one end of the Atlantic cable, as the Secretary of the Treasury did, and with the aid of the greatest bankers of New York, had cabled, as the Secretary did, to every money market of the world trying in every way possible to get a reduction of the rate of interest he would have had a different opinion as to the possibility of getting gold at such a price as he wanted."

There was no uncertain sound about Secretary Carlisle's answer to the Senate resolution of inquiry as to the necessity for legislation authorizing the issue of Treasury certificates to meet a deficit in the revenues, which all of the republicans and a few democrats in Congress have insisted would have to be met, and which had even been provided for in an amendment to an appropriation bill, authorizing the issue of 3 per cent loan certificates to the amount of $100,000,000. Secretary Carlisle said: "It is my opinion that the Secretary of the Treasury ought to be permanently invested with authority to sell short time bonds or other obligations of the government for the purpose of raising money to meet such deficiences in the ordinary revenues as may occur from time to time; but I do not think that there is any necessity at the present time for the exercise of such authority, if it existed. It is not probable that such deficiencies will occur during the remainder of the fiscal year as will exceed the balance on hand, and it is estimated that during the next fiscal year the receipts will exceed the expenditures." Surely that ought to be sufficient to silence the deficit croakers.

The bill for the unlimited coinage of silver did not reach a vote in the Senate, although it was demonstrated that it was supported by a substantial majority. When the bill was reported to the Senate it was understood that it was to be allowed to be voted upon, in order to put the Senate on record, but after trying to force a vote by a protracted session the bill was sent to the calendar, it having been shown that no vote could be reached.

CORRESPONDENCE

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

The crow and vulture have come and the carrion and offal of the winter will be cleaned up, along with our Congress and State Legislature, and we will get rid of all of these.

For a few days we have been enjoying mild weather, something like a southern climate. A few days ago we had good sleighing, now we have got mud and slop, but hardly think this will last long as it is rather early for spring yet. The roads are very bad; cannot haul much of a load.

Rev. J. N. Potter will begin a series of meetings at the Advent church at Armstrong next Sunday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Wm. Copp and Wm. Mills went to St. Paul today as delegates to the G. A. R. encampment.

Everybody is complaining of hard times and the weather but then some people will feel better after Congress adjourns.

The town board meets next Tuesday to settle up for the year and to transact other important business. Town caucus will be held next Tuesday evening at the Town Hall in Armstrong.

Hennepin county boasts of being the banner county of the state and I guess it is so, for we have got the biggest town in the state, the biggest court house in the state, we have got the smartest men and the biggest fools in the state, and to cap the climax we have got the biggest murder trial on our hands in the United States, and which will cost us the biggest pile of money of any trial now on record, but the people are getting sick of that Hayward trial and the prayer of everybody is that it will soon be over with.

Two letters came to the Maple Plain post office that were saved from the wreck of the sunken steamer, Elbe. They were quite a curiosity.

R. M. Mills is at Minneapolis serving on the grand jury.

Mrs. J. R. Stinson is yet on the sick list but is thought to be improving.

J. H. MCGARY.

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

Mr. Fuller, who went to Buffalo to attend the Old Settlers' reunion, fell on the sidewalk and was brought home in a very feeble condition.

Among those who went to attend the G. A. R. encampment were Mr. and Mrs. L. Conklin and J. Benner.

A. B. Avery and his brother, John, who has been sick, started for Milaca, Minn., on Tuesday, in search of health.

Chaplain McCabe Says He Is Not Too Old to March.

Chaplain C. C. McCabe is evidently getting ready to march with the Grand Army boys in St. Paul in 1896. The following is from the New York Christian advocate under the head "Too Old to March:"

"Speaking of the Grand Army of the Republic discontinuing their annual parade on account of the age of some of its members, recalls a very amusing conversation I had with an old soldier after the recent march in Pittsburg. He must have been a veteran of the Mexican war, for he was eighty eight years old. He was dressed in the Continental Regimentals, which harmonized well with his extremely white hair and venerable appearance.

"'Comrade,' I said, 'did you get tired today?'

"There was a merry twinkle in his eye as he answered: 'Well, a leetle bit tired. When I was only eighty years old I was good for forty miles a day, but since I got to be eighty eight I must confess my legs do ache a leetle.'

"'Stop marching!' Never! Let the column move on through the years until the Grand Army shrinks to the dimensions of a single regiment. Let that old regiment move on until it shrinks to the dimensions of a single company. Let that company march on till only two old men can be found to march of all that chivalrous host who saved the union by their valor and their blood. If I live to march at eighty-eight I will take part in the parade of 1924. By that time I think a ten mile march will make even me 'a leetle tired.'"—Pioneer Press.

The Power Inside a Piano.

The general notion of what happens in the interior of the piano when the finger presses a key may be conveyed in the simplest terms. Would you believe that the power developed when the strings of your piano are tuned to the proper pitch equals energy sufficient to raise twelve tons one foot from the ground? If it has ever been your misfortune to be present when the string-frame of a piano was fractured, the above statement will require no confirmation. A thunderbolt scarcely makes a greater uproar, an earthquake causes little more destruction. The writer happened to be playing on one occasion, with what, in his conceit, he imagined to be great effect. He felt he was being admired by the men and worshiped by the women, when, as he brought his fingers down for a magnificent finale, he instantly found himself upon the floor with the piano stool on his stomach, while the piano itself presented a wreck of keys, lids, mechanism, and serpent-like wires. Struggling to his feet, dazed, his stuttering questions as to what in the name of all the gods and demons had happened, were answered by a finger pointing to the ruins of what had once been a very fine parlor-square.—From "How to Play the Piano Without a Teacher", in Demorest's Magazine for March.

Among Our Exchanges.

Edward Modine, of Oshawa, sold his farm in Oshawa last week to a Mr. Whitman, late of Pennsylvania. The farm contained 170 acres and brought the handsome sum of $5,950.—St. Peter Herald.

The man who holds up a stage or a train is a very mild sort of a cutthroat compared to the man who draws gold from the U. S. Treasury and hoards it for a premium. One robs a few individuals, the other is trying to rob everybody.—St. Cloud Times.

The anti-oleomargarine bill prohibits the use of coloring matter in the products of this kind. That part of the bill is all right, but it permits the coloring of poor, cheap, cow butter; this part of the bill is all wrong. Men under the law will buy up this scalded white stuff, and after highly coloring it, place it on the market as a first-class article. As between the two, give us the oleomargarine every time, for it is clean. Food adulterations should be treated alike.—Weeping Water Republican, Neb.

It is a performance both extraordinary and unwise to attempt to prevent the appearance of Bob Ingersoll on the public platform by refusing to him permission to speak. At the same time it is a signal proof of the deterioration of the man mentally. A few years ago his diatribes were as hostile to orthodox religious faith as they are now, and infinitely more dangerous, but nobody thought of interfering with him forcibly. Now he has fallen to a level so distinctly lower, so near that of mere empty and abusive railing, that men who believe in freedom of speech can be found to favor his suppression. This is a mistake, however. There is none of the martyr's stuff in Bob, and only such ill-advised opposition could make a martyr out of him. A good many people still go to hear him; part of them under the same impulse that takes them to the dime museum, part led by the attraction that would draw them out of the way to see a lively street fight. The more he is heard, the less harmful he becomes. Bottle him up, and his audiences would multiply out of curiosity. The Ingersoll of today is the surest antidote to the Ingersoll of ten years ago. Let him talk.—Pioneer Press.

Protest against the Grain Duties.

A great mass meeting was recently held at Hudiksvall, Sweden, to protest against the increase of the duties on grain and flour. These duties were condemned as being virtually duties on bread. They were called an injustice to the Swedish people. A special protest was entered against the manner in which the last increase was made.—Minneapolis Times.

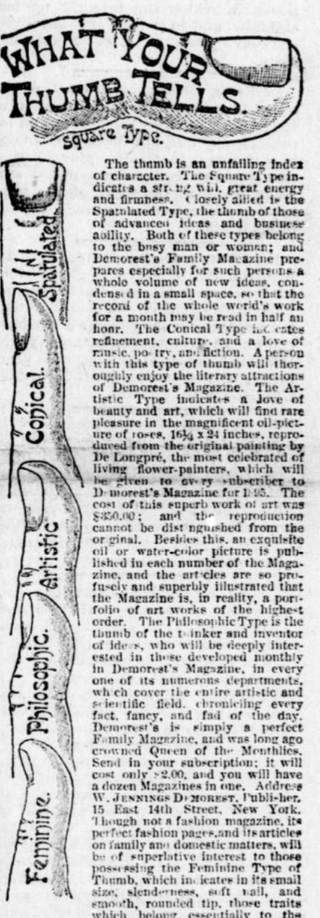
BUFFALO GAZETTE

One year for $2.50.



The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in these developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the fair sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

THE GING MURDER.

Harry Hayward's Direct Examination Concluded.

He Denies All Complicity With the Crime And Charges Adry as the Bad Man Who Instigated the Commission of the Deed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 20.—The feature of yesterday was the testimong of George Grinbell, who told an apparently flawless story, although his reputation is not altogether without stain. He has been an inmate of the workhouse, and was once fined $500 in the United States court for sending his own wife an indecent letter. He stated that at about 7:10 on the night of Monday, Dec, 3, while he was waiting near Fifth street and First avenue north for a rendezvous with a female acquaintance, he observed a gentlemen who seemed to be similarly employed. Such proved to be the case, when a few minutes later a carriage, which he says was the Goosman rig, the same that Miss Ging had, drove up. The only occupant was a young lady who seemed anxious to conceal herself. After some talk in which the waiting gentleman showed himself to be displeased because the woman did not bring something with her, he got into the carriage and drove away with her.

While the facts as related by Grinbell was sufficient to produce a first class sensation, they had the added interest of precipitating a bitter controversy between Mr. Nye and Mr. Erwin, which ended only when the court threatened to impose a fine.

Insanity Testimony Not Allowed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 21.—The feature of yesterday was the several tilts between Mr. Erwin and the court. The attorney attempted to introduce his theory of Adry's insanity and the court would not let it in except with reference to the facts he had testified to, and not generally.

A most important piece of testimony was given by this witness, going to the discredit of the evidence of Blixt. The assassin stated that after returning to the flats after killing Miss Ging, he went to Harry's flat, the doors having been left open for him, and changed the cartridges in the revolver, then put it under Harry's pillow. Mrs. Hayward stated positively that she started to write a letter and ran out of ink. She went to Harry's room to fill her ink well, found both doors locked, and rang the bell. There was no one there. This occurred later than 9:30 o'clock that night. She was quite sure of the date.

Horace Wells, paying teller for the City Bank, gave some good testimony, showing that Harry had cashed large checks at his window in November, and that several times he brought small money and had it changed for $100 bills. This corroborated the evidence of Mr. Goodsell Harry's cousin, who said Harry had 50 bills of $100 each in Chicago, aside from other money.

W. W. Hayward impeached Blixt on some trivial points in regard to the purchase of the valve, admitting portions of his story. He made one point, however, by stating that he had bought two T rails five feet long upon an order from Blixt, who wanted some irons to repair the furnace. Blixt, he said, had used one of them, and not the other. In Blixt's evidence he denied knowing where the rail came from.

He was positive that the day Adry says Harry stated that the time had come to kill the dressmaker he was in the office all the morning, and that the boys had no such talk. He corroborated his wife as to her going for ink, and the time Harry left their flat the night of the murder. He had looked at his watch and it was 18 minutes of 8 o'clock.

The witness coroborated his wife in that portion of her testimony where she said Adry was violent on Oct. 7, and called his mother names which reflected upon her character.

Harry Hayward Testifies.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 22.—The defense scored a point when the bullet taken from Miss Ging and new ones of 38 caliber were weighed. The bullet that killed weighed the same as a short 38 while Blixt testified that Harry told him it was a 38 long.

Harry Hayward was called to the stand shortly before noon to testify in his own behalf. He told of his gambling operations in connection with Miss Ging. He denied Adry's testimony and made the charge that it was his brother who held up and robbed him, Miss Ging and Miss Vedder about a year ago while riding in the evening.

The interesting part of his evidence was when he came to that part of his testimony which brought him down to the day of the murder.

Harry swore that the night of the murder he arrived at the Ozark flats at 6:45 o'clock; then he told of doing an incredible number of things before 7:32, the time he came out from supper and went to his flat. During that time he washed in his bathroom, changed his clothes throughout, went to the basement, went up to see Miss Ireland, went down stairs again and had his supper. He left the flats after going to see his mother twice, calling upon Miss Ireland, talking twice with Mr. and Mrs. Blixt on the first floor, going into the basement and fondling the dog and washing his hands. Then he went down Hennepin avenue a short distance intending to go to the rooms of Miss Ging in the Syndicate Block, retraced his steps and went to the corner of Hennepin and Laurel avenues, and there he looked at his watch and it was 13 minutes of 8.

He stated that he went up to Laurel avenue intending to call upon a yonng lady, and then remembered that he had an engagement with Miss Bartleson. He looked at his watch to see if he had time to go there, and thought he would take her to the theater. He followed this up by recounting his trip to Mr. Bartleson's residence, and giving the time as Mr. Bartleson had sworn to it. He was quite sure that he was in the theater before the curtain went up. In speaking of the testimony of Edward Murphy, who swore that Harry bowed very low to him, he said that he did not bow to Mr. Murphy, but to a gentleman behind him. He thought Mr. Murphy beneath his notice, as he was a man who hung about the entrance to pose for people.

In regard to the bottle of whisky, he stated he often bought the liquor for Miss Ging, and he purchased that bottle Saturday and carried it around in his pocket all day, taking it to his bath room. He thought that if the attorneys would look there they would find it on the shelf. It is possible that Mr. Erwin may claim that Blixt took it from there if he secured it, but if he does he must admit that Harry left his doors open that night—a matter he wants to disprove.

The prisoner's testimony was hardly begun when court adjourned, and it will be continued Monday.

Harry showed plenty of animus toward Adry, and wanted to give reasons why Adry would want to testify against him, and get up a plot to give him the worst of it, but the court would not allow it. There was one feature of this point that looked queer. The defense has been trying to show that Adry was insane and therefore was telling delusions when he told how Harry had approached him to assist in the murder, and yet wanted at the same time to show that he had perfected a deeply laid plot to down Harry by connecting him with the murder.

Harry's Direct Examination Closed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—The direct examination of Harry Hayward was concluded yesterday and the witness turned over to Attorney Nye for cross-examination. The witness denied all the statements made by Blixt and Adry that would implicate him in the crime. His general plan was to swear that instead of his having planned any killing with Adry, it was his brother who had proposed all the bloody details of murder to him. Harry swore that his brother had told him that he had a mania for doing criminal acts, and that it was he who had tried to reason with Adry. Harry explained very glibly why he was asking people how their consciences were. He had been so shocked at his brother's depravity that he resolved to sound many other people to see if they had such wonderful consciences. Thus it was that he had questioned Waterman, and the hackman, and even L. M. Stewart, and he dared the state to put Stewart on the stand.

There was a scene in the morning which was enjoyed by the audience. Mr. Erwin at last managed to get in the evidence in connection with the alleged hold-up on the road near the lakes, where he states that Adry held him up while he was driving with Miss Ging and Miss Vedder. Mr. Nye spoke up when the question was asked, and stated that he had no objection to that evidence going in, if the state would be allowed to show its side of the case. He wanted to be allowed to show that it was Harry himself who had planned that whole affair.

In the cross-examination the state's attorney made him admit that he had been a gambler by habit and profession for years, since he was 17 years of age, in fact. Then he took him to his relations with Miss Ging, and made him again say that he was suspicious that she was gambling with other men. He made him say that he had no other security for that $7,000 loan aside from the life insurance and a promise that she would go into business with it, and give him a mortgage on the stock; that the money was all he had, and he had realized it from property his father had given him and some gambling.

From this point Mr. Nye had the witness repeat his wanderings the night of the murder. In speaking of where he went after leaving the flat the witness stated that he went direct up Hennepin to Laurel avenue. On direct he had stated that he went down Hennepin first, intending to go to look for Miss Ging at her place of business.

Hayward took the pointer and showed on the map where he had gone until he reached Mr. Bartleson's residence. The state's attorney, in the mind of the audience, was not making any headway. The witness was apparently making clear answers, and was not getting confused, but the audience did not know that in his quiet way Mr. Nye was laying the foundation for impeachment.

One of the most important points was when he asked the witness if he was not in the habit of meeting Miss Ging at the corner of First avenue north and Fifth street, and if he did not drive by that point with her some time during the latter part of November. The witness denied it flatly. The state's attorney asked him if he did not know the old gentleman who keeps the cigar stand at that point. He said he did not, yet it is by this gentleman that the state hopes to impeach his testimony by having him swear positively that he saw the two often at that point.

LIVING FOR SOMETHING.

Every One Should Have Some Particular Object in Life.

Nothing within the realm of the possible can withstand the man or woman who is intelligently and determinedly bent on success. A great action is always preceded by a great purpose. History and daily life are full of examples to show us that the measure of human achievement has always been proportioned to the amount of human daring and doing. If not always, yet at least often, "The attempt is all the wedge that splits its knotty way betwixt the impossible and possible." What can be done and is worth doing should be done with dispatch, leaving the worthless things to those who idle and loiter along the walks of life.

Every man and every woman has an assignment in the duties and responsibilities of daily life. To live for something involves the necessity of an intelligent and definite plan of action. "Life was lent for noble duties, not for selfishness; not to be wiled away for aimless dreams, but to improve ourselves and serve mankind."

More than splendid dreaming, or even magnificent resolves, is necessary to success in the objects and ambitions of life. Those who have made money, acquired learning, won fame or wielded power in the world have always, in every age and among all people, done so by embodying a well-defined purpose in earnest, living action. The reason that thousands fail in their work in life is the want of a specific plan in laying out their energies; they work hard for nothing because there are no orderly or harmonious results possible to their mode of action. Results there are of a certainty, but the means are not adjusted to the end, hence the opposite of success ensues; the harvest proclaims the nature and quality of the seed sown. "Ye can not grow figs on thistles." It is the law.

Living for something definite and practical, taking hold of things with a method and a will, compels them to yield their treasures, and thus become the ministers of our own happiness and that of others. The great high road of human welfare lies along the path of steadfast and systematic well doing. They who are most persistent in energy and effort in the right direction, and work in the truest spirit, will invariably be more successful. This, too, is the law, in which "there is no variableness nor shadow of turning."—Boston Budget.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A Resume of the Legislative Proceedings at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 19.—In the senate the following bills were passed: proposing an amendment to the constitution to authorize the taxation of sleeping, drawing room and parlor car companies; to regulate the membership of state boards; proposing an amendment to the constitution relating to eminent domain; relative to criminal offences by corporations; to legalize the taking of acknowledgments in certain cases. In the evening the time was occupied in the committee of the whole. Announcements were made of several junkets.

In the house in the morning the hours of work were settled. Hereafter 10 a. m. will be the opening hour and at 12:30 a recess taken until 2 p. m. and work until adjourned. A majority of the members of both houses of the legislature went on the junket to the state agricultural school in the afternoon. The party boarded special cars in front of the capitol at 2 o'clock and were met at the farm by members of the board of regents and the faculty. In the evening a short session was held in consideration of general orders.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 21.—The senate held only one session yesterday and it was of the tamest kind. Senator Potter introduced a tax bill, which provides for 5 per cent penalty on unpaid real estate taxes, to go into effect June 1, and the other 5 per cent to go into effect Oct. 1. When the calendar was reached it was found that there was but one bill which could be given its final passage, and it took 20 minutes to get enough votes to do it. The bill was S. F. 107, to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors, introduced by Senator Thorpe. It prohibits the sale of liquor in original packages in "no license" districts. The vote on its passage was 30 to 9.

In the house a bill was introduced establishing the rights and liabilities of grain commission men. One of the important bills was by Underleak which provides that any city, village or combination of school districts may unite for providing instruction which shall prepare students for the university, the state normal schools or for teaching. In the descussion of the bill relating to chattel mortgages a lively exchange of courtesies prevailed between Jacobson and Foss, in which the "lie" nearly passed. Two junkets were on tap for the members of the legislature yesterday. The joint committees on prisons and reformatories went to St. Cloud early in the morning and the committees on hospitals for the insane went to Rochester at 2:15. The senate did as much work as it could during the forenoon and held no afternoon session.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 21.—Senator Wyman presented a bill providing for the codification of the banking laws and Senator McArthur's bill provides for a commission to confer with other states for uniform marriage laws. The following bills were passed: providing for the taxation of bicycles, carriages, etc.; punishing persons injuring dams, booms and similar structures; amending the law granting additional powers to the cities of the state and empowering cities to issue bonds; to allow town insurance companies to change location of their business office. The Senate adjourned until Saturday to observe Washington's birthday.

In the house a bill was introduced allowing persons physically disabled to call to his aid a judge of election to work his ballot. The bill makes no provision for those unable to read. Another bill provides for the discharge of surities upon public bonds of public offices upon the request of the party giving the bond. A vote was forced upon the baking powder bill and the same was defeated. The following bills were passed: to prohibit the posting the notice of the existence of chattel mortgages; relating to the storage and disposal of unclaimed baggage; to license peddlers. The house adjourned until Monday at 10 a. m.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 25.—The session of the senate this evening was full of routine business, but the report of the committee of 15 on the capitol experts' report was the only feature to it. The committee made its report and it was adopted because the committee was wise enough to head off any fight, and not only recommend that the report of the experts be published, but went so far as to submit a copy of the report to the senate.

There were just three bills on the calendar and these were given their final passage before the senate adjourned. They were: To provide for the use of stone in the construction of public buildings, introduced by Senator Cronkhite; substitute for S. F. 282, Senator Miller's bill, adding bicycles and sleighs to the list of articles taxable as personal property; to provide for the punishment of persons injuring or destroying dams.

A long day's work, scarcely enlightened by a single incident out of the routine character, is all that can be said of yesterday's session in the house. The introduction of bills in the morning was hurried through and general orders were taken up in the afternoon in committee of the whole, 35 bills being disposed of in one way or another. Then for a short time the statesmen tried their hands at new laws and a number of bills were passed on the calendar. These were: An act to amend section 6, chapter 151, general laws 1881; to authorize the state auditor to draw his warrant to redeem wolf bounties; to appropriate $5,000 for the improvement of the state camp grounds in Wabasha county; to provide for boards of trustees for Young Men's Christian associations.

—"Dear me," said Mr. Meekins, "it seems so absurd for men to be constantly talking about their wives having the last word. I never object to my wife having the last word." "You don't?" "Not a bit. I always feel thankful when she gets to it."—Washington Post.

HISTORICAL.

THE first mention of the gulf stream is in the journal of Alaminos, the pilot of Ponce de Leon, in 1513.

PRESIDENT MONROE was a great stickler for etiquette, once refusing permission to a near relative to attend a reception at the white house because unable to attend in short clothes and silken hose.

MARINE insurance was practiced in Rome B. C. 45. It was very general in Europe before the discovery of America, and it is altogether probable that the ships of Columbus were insured for their full value.

THE first American flag made of American material was raised over the capitol at Washington on February 24, 1866. All the previous flags had been made of English bunting, but this was of American make, and given by Gen. B. F. Butler.

THE cold and apathetic manner of John Quincy Adams created both discontent and unpopularity. He was called "the icicle," and spoken of as "His Presidential Highness." Even his children called him "The President," and addressed their mother as "Madam."

TAKING A NEW START.

Sufferers From Stagnation Advised to Part Their Hair in the Middle.

"I have taken a new start in life," says Mr. Gratebar, "and I have found it much easier than might have been imagined.

"My oldest daughter, who is a very bright, a very sprightly, and, I might add, a very attractive young woman, had for a long time told me that I was old-fashioned and slow. She said that if I would wear pointed shoes and high collars and fashionable ties, and part my hair in the middle, I wouldn't be a bad-looking man.

"How I looked as a result of these changes it might not be modest for me to say; but as to another and very remarkable effect proceeding from them, I may testify.

"With the old blunt shoes and comfortable low collars and string neckties, and with the old way of parting the hair, low down on one side, I seemed to put off an incrustation of old habits, and to step up out of a deep rut, up to a level where men were hustling about in great shape; and with my pointed shoes and high collar and hair parted in the middle, I was one of them, once more infused with the idea of keeping up to the music of active life.

"And I don't hesitate to say that it was parting the hair in the middle that did it. I could have worn unmoved the pointed shoes, the high collars and the new-fashioned ties; but not so the hair parted in the middle; that I felt I must live up to, it would never do for me to part my hair in the middle and then not make good my right to wear it so.

"To all middle-aged sufferers from stagnation I would say: Try parting your hair in the middle."—N. Y. Sun.

AN ALPENA MIRACLE.

Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, of Long Rapids, Discards Her Crutches.

In an Interview with a Reporter She Reviews Her Experience and Tells the Real Cause of the Miracle.

(From the Argus, Alpena, Mich.)

We have long known Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, of Long Rapids, Alpena Co., Mich. She has been a sad cripple. Many of her friends know the story of her recovery; for the benefit of those who do not we publish it today.

Eight years ago she was taken with nervous prostration, and in a few months with muscular and inflammatory rheumatism. It affected her heart, then her head. Her feet became so swollen she could wear nothing on them; her hands were drawn all out of shape. Her eyes were swollen shut more than half the time, her knee joints terribly swollen and for eighteen months she had to be held up to be dressed. One limb became entirely helpless, and the skin was so dry and cracked that it would bleed. During these eight years she had been treated by a score of physicians, and has also spent much time at Ann Arbor under best medical advice. All said her trouble was brought on by hard work and that medicine would not cure, and that rest was the only thing which would ease her. After going to live with her daughter she became entirely helpless and could not even raise her arms to cover herself at night. The interesting part of the story follows in her own words:

"I was urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and at last did so. In three days after I commenced taking Pink Pills I could sit up and dress myself, and after using them six weeks I went home and commenced working. I continued taking the pills, until now I begin to forget my crutches, and can go up and down steps without aid. I am truly a living wonder, walking out of doors without assistance."

"Now, if I can say anything to induce those who have suffered as I have, to try Pink Pills, I shall gladly do so. If other like sufferers will try Pink Pills according to directions, they will have reason to thank God for creating men who are able to conquer that terrible disease, rheumatism. I have in my own neighborhood recommended Pink Pills for the after effects of la grippe, and weak women with impure blood, and with good results."

Mrs. Todd is very strong in her faith in the curative powers of Pink Pills, and says they have brought a poor helpless cripple back to do her own milking, churning, washing, sewing, knitting, and in fact about all of her household duties, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

NO TASTE FOR LITERATURE.

The Historian of Shoteville Scores the American People.

"I fear the American people," said Rev. Abraham Primrose to Uncle Bartley, of Shoteville, by whom he had taken a seat in the car and picked up a conversation—"I fear the American people do not adequately encourage what is best in literature."

"They don't know a darn thing about literachure," replied Uncle Silas Bartley, of Shoteville. "They hain't got the first idee of what literachure is. The American people are the greatest lunkheads on literachure I ever see. Ez fur ez first-class literachure is concerned the American people are wooden-headed gumps."

"Ah, then, you have endeavored, I infer, to disseminate good literature among the people."

"Yes, an' it didn't disseminate worth a cent."

"Did you try to circulate theological works, science, poetry, history, or"—

"Hist'ry, hist'ry, thet's what I tried to sirkelate."

"What kind of history, may I ask, did you endeavor to disseminate?"

"Best hist'ry that ever wuz writ."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, siree. Hist're of the town from its first settler, Azariah Smith, down to the times ev Silas Bartley. Containin' a full account of all the largest hogs raised in the town, from the earliest times to Silas Bartley's shoat killed last year. All of Pete Burlan's snake stories, illustrated with pictures of the snakes. List of all of the wood-chucks killed by Eph Parker. All the huckleberry statistics from the earliest times down. Two pictures of Silas Bartley, the author, both with an' without whiskers. Picture of Silas Bartley's new barn with Silas Bartley himself settin' in his dingle cart in front of it. Silas Bartley's poem on the great hurryeane of 1869, with a life-size picture of the hurrycane. List of all the heifers ever put in the town pound. Picture of the large squash raised by Silas Bartley in 1873, which Ted Plaisted walked ten miles to see an' then went home an' died—an' so forth, an' so forth, an' so forth."

"Well, did the book sell?"

"Sell, toe! Publishers wanted five hundred dollars to git it out; an' then ev'ry man in Shoteville said he s'posed I'd give a copy to the natives; an' ev'rybody that ever lived in Shoteville writ me sayin' they 'sposed I'd send 'em a copy ez they wuz once residents of beloved Shoteville, which I had done so much to glorify in my immortal history. Pete Burlap, the man whose snake stories I put in the book, is the only fellar that bought one an' he hain't paid for it yet. But I've got one in my valise here, wouldn't you like it? It's only three dollars an' fifty cents."

"I regret, Mr. Bartley, very much to say that I hardly feel able to afford the book just now."

"Wall, it's my opinyin," said the Shoteville historian, rising to leave the car, "thet you hain't got no more taste for the best literachure than all the other lunkheads that make up the American public."—N. Y. World.

OUR CASTLE IN SPAIN.

The street's bleak and long, and the rain's blowing cold;
They eye me with pity, grown weary and old;
They fancy I'm out in the wind and rain;
Ah, no! I'm at home in our castle in Spain.

In the glow of the firelight you stand by me there:
It flickers and plays on your shadowy hair.
Outside, in the city, I seek you in vain,
But still you are found in our castle in Spain.

I hear not the roar of the traffic; I hear
Your accent so low and so strange and so clear;
The voice that could bid one forever to remain
With you in our castle—our castle in Spain.

The castle's so fair, so enchanted the ground,
The springtime abides in it all the year round;
There leaves never wither, as hopes never wane;
The lime trees aye bloom by our castle in Spain.

Yet the winds that blow o'er the whole earth renew,
And the stream 'neath its ramparts has flowed the world thro';
And I read in your eyes a love deeper than pain,
Love stronger than death, in our castle in Spain!

Wherever you wander, ah, you I love best!
When you from our refuge realities wrest,
I wonder if you are as glad to regain
Our fortress, our haven, our castle in Spain!

—May Kendall, in N. Y. Ledger.

An Evening's Amusement.

By Elizabeth Timlow.

It was an impromptu entertainment, which, we all know, is usually the most successful. It was just after the holidays, and we had a house party of a dozen congenial spirits at the Hendersons' country home. It had been a gay week, and for this particular evening a long sleighride had been planned; driving rain, all day, prevented this, however, and imposed the necessity of some indoor amusement.

"Why not have an old-fashioned evening of candy pulling and games?" suggested some brilliant spirit—a proposition we all hailed with acclamations of delight!

The coachman, dispatched to two or three of the nearest houses, brought an accession of half a dozen to our numbers, so a lively party soon crowded the laundry kitchen, where we had free scope for our candy. This part of our entertainment needs no description, for we all know that one candy pull is much like another.

But nine o'clock found us all adjourned to the wide old hall, with its great fireplace and huge back log. This was always our favorite rallying ground. Being nearly all old friends, we were ripe for a regular romp.

"We must have the broomstick trick first," cried Alice Henderson, "and Harold is dying to distinguish himself in it."

Harold shrugged his shoulders good naturedly.

"Alice, you are bent on manslaughter with that broomstick business," he protested; but the others, who had never seen it, were clamorous, and Harold consented.

A broom was brought, one having an unusually strong handle. It was laid across two chairs which faced each other. On the back of one was balanced a pair of gloves. This arranged, Harold, armed with a stout cane, very carefully seated himself cross-legged on the broomstick, facing the gloves. If you think this is an easy matter, try it! You will find judicious management very necessary.

Once balanced on the narrow resting place of the broomstick, the object is to knock the gloves off the chair back with the cane, while retaining one's balance. It is exceedingly simple to describe; but, ye gods and little fishes! to accomplish it!—"Hoc opus, hic labor est."

Harold soon succeeded, for he had grown expert by oft-repeated trials, and the others, therefore, were easily persuaded to attempt it. But the involuntary gyrations that the victim makes to retain his equilibrium, and the wild tumbles sidewise that result from the first efforts, are convulsively funny. We always expect to laugh ourselves sore over this, and we always do.

Harold made the next suggestion.

"Come, Judith, you and Holt haven't eaten as much candy as the rest of us, so we'll put you to feeding each other with crackers."

Judith knew what this meant; but Holt had never seen the performance, and he professed his eagerness for an extra course. Alice disappeared to make preparations. She returned with a sheet over her arm, and behind her a smiling maid with a big bowl of cracker crumbs, two saucers and two spoons. The sheet was spread on the floor—a necessary precaution—and the two martyrs to the cause were invited to seat themselves, Turk fashion, upon it, facing each other. This done, they were carefully blindfolded, and each was given a saucer of crumbs and a spoon. Then they began to feed each other. The ridiculously earnest expression of each face, coupled with the wide-open mouths, as each endeavored to insert a spoonful of crumbs therein, convulsed the lookers-on, and their gibes and mocking directions complicated matters further. A heaping spoonful struck against Judith's chin, and most of the contents went down the open neck of her dress. Her vaguely directed spoon encountered Mr. Holt's nose, and his brown beard was liberally powdered.

"This is on the order of a Barmecide feast," laughed Mr. Holt, at last, flourishing an empty saucer. "Miss Judith, are you satisfied with what you didn't get? Suppose we appoint some other victims now."

It was some time, however, before the company considered itself sufficiently amused by this exhibition, and most of us were obliged to take a turn.

"Did you ever pick up potatoes with a teaspoon?" asked Miss Emmet, after a lull, while we took breath. "No? Well, if you'll send for ten big potatoes, Alice, we'll try it. We can use these spoons, though after dinner coffees are more fun."

"If this sort of thing continues," laughed Alice, leaving the hall, "we would better transplant the larder here at once."

"Oh! bring two small baskets, also," called Miss Emmet.

When the things appeared, Miss Emmet arranged the potatoes, which were of goodly size, in two lines of five each.

"Now, Ned," she said, "shall we run a race with these? We each take a basket and a coffee spoon, and see which can pick up the potatoes first in our respective lines. The one who does can impose a forfeit on the other."

"That sounds," observed Ned, "'as easy as rolling off a log.' I have your forfeit in mind, Miss Grace."

"Don't be too sure," laughed Grace Emmet.

They took spoons and baskets and stood ready for the word "Go!" But when Ned began he found the operation more complicated than he had imagined. The potatoes wobbled and rolled around unconscionably.

"My stars! Miss Grace," he cried at last. "You don't mean to say that you have them in already?" as he mopped his perspiring brow, surveying his still empty basket and his five potatoes in different parts of the hall. Grace had reduced it to a science. Of course one was not allowed to push the potato against anything to steady it; but she rolled them sideways, and, holding her spoon in readiness, caught them as the impetus carried them upon the bowl of the spoon.

"Ha! ha! young lady! I see your little game," Ned exclaimed, going to work again. But at that moment Grace deposited her last potato in her basket and gayly cried out: "Muggins!"

"And now, by way of forfeit," she went on, judiciously, "I condemn you to allow me, in the sight of all this company, to place your finger on your nose in such a way that you cannot leave this hall without removing it. Do you believe I can do it?"

"Ordinarily, no," returned Ned, in much dejection; "but after the potato episode I am not prepared to be dogmatic. I will only say to the unenlightened mind it seems impossible."

Nobody knew how Grace would accomplish the feat, and we watched her with much curiosity.

"How many of you think I can do it?" she asked, laughing. "Affirmative, ay; contrary minded, no. The noes have it. Well—"

She led Ned to the staircase and seated him on the lowest step. She quickly slipped his arm through the railing, and bringing it round the newel-post, placed his finger on his nose. There was a shout of laughter, as they saw it was obviously impossible for Ned to rise without removing his finger.

"Beaten again," laughed Ned. "But in return for this, young woman, I propose to hypnotize you so you can't stand alone."

"Oh, no," said Grace, shrinking back. "I can't bear that sort of thing."

"Try me," said Alice, good-naturedly, knowing her friend was really very sensitive about hypnotism. "Though I fancy I shall be a difficult subject."

"I think not," returned Ned, with his head on one side. "You'll do nicely. Indeed, I never failed yet."

He seated her and made mystic passes before her eyes.

"I don't feel a thing," she protested, at last, as one and another inquired with much solicitude how she felt.

"You shouldn't talk to the subject," objected Ned. "However—" with a final grand flourish—"it is accomplished! You cannot stand alone—try it!"

"Indeed I can," returned Alice, springing up lightly. "Behold!"

"Yes, 'behold!'" laughed Ned, with a low bow; "but you are not standing alone, for all of us are standing with you."

"Oh, you wretch! nothing but a miserable pun!" cried everybody, while

POTATO PICKING.

Alice remarked that her good-nature in releasing Grace from the situation had met with the usual reward of virtue in this world.

"Do you know, my friends," remarked one of the outsiders, "that it is eleven o'clock—time honest folks were in bed, and rogues a-jogging?" You know there is to-morrow's grand smash-up in prospect."

"Oh, that's very early yet," pleaded Alice. "We must have the blind lancers, anyway. Did you never do it? It's great fun. Mamma, will you play for us? Choose your partners, gentlemen, for the New York lancers. No, we can't have two sets, because it's as much fun to look on as it is to dance;" and in a trice Alice had marshalled a set on the floor.

"Now, out with your handkerchiefs!" she ordered. "Yes, you are all to be blindfolded, and dance that way." And amid much laughter she bound up their eyes.

Mrs. Henderson struck up the opening bars, and directly they were all wildly making aimless courtesies, balancing at imaginary corners, and trying to turn opposites—when they found them. All these amid the derisive shouts of the lookers-on, and their urgent entreaties to "keep up with the music."

Each figure involved them more hopelessly than the last, as they grew more complicated. It was irresistibly ridiculous to see profound courtesies made to another person's back or to empty space, or to see partners vaguely feeling for each other. The grand chain utterly demoralized them; and when they dropped at last, laughing and breathless, into their seats, we all concluded that, past experience to the contrary, there was infinite amusement to be had out of a square dance.—Demorest's Magazine.

The Mote and the Beam.

In the corridor outside a hotel dining-room the following conversation was overheard, the speakers a woman and man, proven bride and groom by a hundred outward and visible signs.

She (hanging back at the doorway and whispering)—Don't look so happy. I shan't go in with you while you wear that rapturous expression. Everybody there will know at a glance that we are bride and groom.

He (whispering also)—My dear, take the beam out of your own eye.—Harper's Bazar.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Humane Work.

The state humane society held its annual session and election at St. Paul. With five new local societies lately admitted, the state organization numbers 11 component parts. The new socities are those of Mankato, Stillwater, Rochester, Red Wing, Anoka. A new constitution was adopted whereby better representation of local societies may be effected, which gives the society a regular membership and sound basis. The appointment of an executive committee was one of the new requirements. A resolution asking for the official appointment of Mrs. C. T. Meiser as state organizer was introduced by Mr. Cheney. There were other delegates to favor such an appointment for Mrs. N. T. Gause, and the resolution was referred to the new governing board. A petition for an appropriation of $2,500 from the legislature for sending children to the state school, or a suitable home, was favorably acted upon. Mrs. Bartholomew, wife of Chief Justice Bartholomew, was appointed an agent of the society. The treasurer's report showed the society to be in good financial standing.

The following officers for the ensuing year were elected: President, D. R. Noyes, St. Paul; first vice-president, Charles Steele, St. Paul; second vice-presidents, C. M. Stocking, Minneapolis; W. S. Woodbridge, Duluth; B. S. Cook, Owatonna; D. D. Stewart, Winona; W. B. Mitchell, St. Cloud; C. W. Marshall, Stillwater; Rev. John S. Pringle, Rochester; J. W. Andrews, Mankato; A. J. Meacham, Red Wing; secretary, T. A. Abbott; general agent, J. W. Owens; treasurer, W. L. Wilson; attorney, S. E. Hall; veterinary surgeon, B. A. Pomeroy.

Bold Robbery.

Mrs. Christian Hanson, residing at Merriam Park, while on her way to take an interurban car, in order to come to St. Paul to do some shopping, was held up by a highwayman and robbed of her purse. When the ruffan caught hold of her and demanded her money Mrs. Hanson struggled valiantly to free herself, at the same time screaming lustily for help. The unequal struggle was, however, soon terminated by her assailant brutally choaking her. He then seized her pocketbook, which contained quite a sum of money, and fled through the woods in the direction of Minnesota Transfer. Several persons who had heard Mrs. Hanson's screams were soon in hot pursuit and quickly ran him down, recovering the pocketbook with its contents untouched. The prisoner was identified at the police station as James Fisher, a former horse trainer.

Institutes.

State Superintendent of Schools Pendergast has made the following appointments for the teachers' institutes, to be held during the coming spring: Madison, March 8; instructors, A. M. Sperry, B. S. Covell. Dodge Center, March 18; instructors, J. A. Wilson, Mrs. Ada Warner Gray. Rochester, March 25; instructors, M. V. O'Shea, Mrs. E. K. Jacques, Duluth, March 25; instructors, L. C. Lord, Margaret T. McElligott. Grand Rapids, April 1; instructors, J. A. Wilson, Mrs. E. K. Jacques, Owatonna, April 1; instructors, W. F. Williams, Mrs. Ada Warner Gray. Red Wing, April 22, instructors, Mrs. E. K. Jacques, E. C. Wilkins. The institutes are each to continue one week.

News in Brief.

The annual meeting of the Minnesota Editorial association was held in St. Paul. A reception was given at the Commercial club, and at the invitation of J. J. Hill, his art gallery was inspected.

The house and barn of Bert Spoore, near Henning, were totally consumed by fire. Loss, $3,000.

John Dewar and Samuel Cody, the Mesaba forgers, who swindled dozens of range merchants, have been found guilty. They will be sentenced later. The men are wanted in various other places, and will be tried elsewhere as soon as the St. Louis county officials get through with them.

Fred Baggie, of Stillwater, who was employed in McLeod's camp, near Hinckley, was struck by a tree and killed. He was a single man, aged 20.

At Duluth about a dozen boys, from 12 to 18 years of age, all students at the High school, have been organizing a gang for the purpose of robbery, and plans were being laid to use a deserted house out on East First street as a general headquarters.

Frank Finnegan of Royalton was arrested for running a blind pig.

Henry Benjamin, Ralph Stoddard and Miner Rood were arrested at Crookston charged with setting fire to the Lee cottage at Maple lake. Evidence is strong against them. They were arrested for illegal fishing some time ago, and threatened to burn all the cottages at the lake for revenge. One of them has made a partial confession.

The Pelican Lake flour mill at Scrambler was burned. Loss $8,000.

John Vohlman's house at Park Rapids burned with its entire contents The family was absent.

Suit for $50,000 damages is about to be entered against the Northern Pacific railroad by the Anoka lumber company. It is claimed that the lumber fire of last summer was caused by a spark from a railroad engine.

John Brabits and his son, James were struck by a falling limb while felling trees at Montgomery. James was struck on the head and John in the stomach, and both died. John was about 50 years of age and leaves a family. James was single, aged 24 years.

Miscellaneous receipts of the St. Peter hospital for the insane were reported to the state auditor as $1,002.61 for the quarter ending Jan. 31.

Pensions to the amount of $1,915 have been collected within the last few months by the soldiers' home.

By a vote of 134 to 48 the poposition to issue $15,000 bonds for a system of water works was defeated at Plainview.

A state tax of 1 per cent of $450.17 will be paid by the Minneapolis Western Railway Company on earnings of $45,019 during 1894. These earnings are in excess of those for the previous year.

The earnings of the Milwaukee road in this state were filed with the state auditor. The earnings amounted to $5,133,246.54, on which the state tax is $153,487.07, a decrease of $34,579.62 from the tax of 1893.

At a meeting of the state Agricultural society at St. Paul, E. W. Randall of Morris was elected secretary for the ensuing year.

DROUGHT PROOF FIELD CORN.

Here is something new. Despite 110 days without a drop of rain, Salzer's new Yellow Dent corn yielded on a large acreage over sixty-eight bushels per acre, while the department of agriculture reports the average yield on corn but a trifle over twenty bushels per acre in the United States. Now think of the possibilities of this corn in a good corn season! It will double this yield then or 136 bus. IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 14c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed company, LaCrosse, Wis., you will get free a pack of this DROUTH PROOF CORN and their mammoth catalogue. [K]

Wronged a Cook.

They had not been married very long, and they had a good cook, but one evening when he came home to dinner he found that not a single thing was cooked properly. He had done a stroke or two of good business during the day, but being naturally an easy-tempered fellow he said nothing.

When dessert was reached, his wife said to him, "I didn't tell you before, dear, but as a treat I cooked the whole of the dinner to-day for you myself."

"Oh, that's it, is it? I owe the cook an apology."

"An apology," she asked. "For what?"

DELANO DIARY

--Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Mrs. Ed. Wood entertained the Epworth League at her home Friday evening. A good time is reported.

—John Plattner has purchased for $2500 the Steffes brick building and will soon be located as a fixture in Delano.

—On Monday, Feb. 25, people discarded bobsleighs and cutters and brought out their wheeled vehicles, and things assumed an air of spring all at once.

—At Welker traded a span of farm horses, on Tuesday, to Henry Ames, of Litchfield, taking in part pay six blooded cows. Since the creamery craze has struck the country cows are better property than horses.

—A creamery properly conducted would be a big benefit to our village and surrounding country, but if it is necessary to run it on a "bonus" basis from the very first jump we would expect it to have an uphill time doing business.

—If the Village Council would expend their surplus funds in supplying pure water for the excellent system of pipes laid down, instead of river water, it would be a better bonus for all comers than the giving of a paltry $90., $100. or $150. as a "starter" toward the erection of a creamery.

—Possibly we may have an early spring; there is nothing like being prepared for such a thing. Have machinery, seeds and everything ready to improve the first day that comes fit for sowing or planting. Our seasons seem to be pleaty short enough for some crops, at best; especially for gardens.

—We do not favor the village giving bonuses to anybody, for one has as good a right to claim a bonus as has another and all cannot be accommodated; but if the village has money to spare and must give a bonus, let them give it to some poor people who need it and not to individuals or corporations to guarantee them against possible loss in their speculations.

—A meeting called by Mayor Kohler was held at the City Hall Saturday evening to talk over building a creamery. After waiting for the school board to finish up some business so as to be in attendance, about two dozen people assembled, mostly from the village, a few from the country. The Mayor acted as chairman, L. P. Probst was chosen secretary. Mr. Roosen stated the object of the meeting was to talk over building a creamery. It soon developed that he had purchased a site on the west side of the river, nearly opposite the Catholic church for $90 and he would like to have the meeting to guarantee that amount to be returned to him, or whoever else might build a creamery. After some talk it was voted to donate $90 for the site; somebody thought $100 would look better, so it was voted to raise it to that. Then it was thought putting up ice would have to be done at once. Mr. Maxfield thought $53 would build and fill with ice a sufficient sized building so the meeting again raised the donation, this time to $150. Some one suggested it would be necessary to elect a village council that would pledge themselves to vote that amount of the village funds for that purpose. A motion was made by I. Gutzwiller, Jr. that the chair appoint a committee of three, consisting of C. H. Vorse, L. M. Maxfield and John E. Borsch to further the plans for holding another meeting on Saturday next at 2 P. M. Motion carried. The committee was announced and an adjournment taken till 2 P. M. Saturday.

—Ernest Otto has employed Paul E Datko to "make stovewood" for summer use.

—David McLeod has rented a part of the Soshnik house on Fourth street and is moving in.

—Our council should consist of men who will be carerul to guard well the growing interests of the village.

—The Sodality ladies' entertainment two evenings this week in the City Hall was entertaining and well attended.

—Longfellow's birthday was observed in some of the departments of the Public school with appropriate exercises.

—Last night the thermometer went considerably below the freezing point and this morning roads are fearfully rough.

—Rumor says that a couple of Delano sports laid themselves liable to a great big fine by removing a large number of the finny tribe from Lake Rebecca on Washington's Birthday.

—February 27th was Ash Wednesday, the beginning of Lent. It was observed by the usual services in the Catholic church.

—The I. O. O. F. lodge held their 14th anniversary at their hall on Thursday evening. They are getting to be quite an old institution.

—A number of Miss Thompson's friends surprised her at the home of Mr. Babb on Wednesday evening. They all report a pleasant time.

—The supervisors of the town of Franklin will meet next Tuesday, March 5th, at the town clerk's office to transact general business. All claims should be presented on that day.

—John Haffner, one of Delano's oldest busines men is packing up to move to Wahpeton, N. Dak. His new friends will find him a good citizen. His storeroom here will be occupied by John Conzet, of Rockford.

—If the gutters on either side of the street were opened up as they should be and the water carried off properly, teams would not have to contend with so much mud on River street, nor on other places near crossings.

—Timothy Gleeson has quite a hale in his walk. Some hot water got onto one of his pedal extremeties, while engaged in thawing the ground and pipes preparatory to connecting the R. R. tank with the village waterworks.

—If farmers and others would pay more attention to having a good garden each summer they would derive much pleasure from it, and, occasionally, a handsome profit. Most everybody likes "garden truck" in season.

—Vick's Floral Guide for 1895 is up to the usual standard of the well known house, and it is fair to suppose that their vegetable and flower seeds will give the old time satisfaction. Write to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, New York.

—Jim Nelson, with a crew of men, is repairing the railroad bridge across Crow river at this place. If they would build a new one over the Watertown road they would do away with a great nuisance and oblige many people who use that thoroughfare.

—The Justice trial before Esquire Walter, on Wednesday and Thursday, was the most orderly and civilized like we have seen for a long time. The room was not, as has been the custom, heretofore, filled with tobacco smoke. A very great improvement.

—Assistant Dairy Commissioner, E. G. Graham and Prof. Haecker, of the State Dairy Experimental Station, are billed to address those interested in creamery business at the City Hall, tomorrow at 2 P. M. Give them an audience and get some pointers on dairying.

—Rev. Dignum, who was to preach here and at Maple Plain and lecture in the evening at Rockford on Sunday last, after visiting his friend Rev. T. Davies for a couple of days received a sudden call home to London, and could not fill the appointments made for him. He talked on Friday evening to a number of visitors at Rev. Davies' residence. All were delighted to hear him.

—His Honor, R. M. Walter, labored for a couple of days on the settlement of a dispute between Mrs. Archie Young, who desired to get possession of her premises from Joseph VanEman who claimed to have rented them for a year from Thomas Shaw, her brother, and is not yet ready to give them up. M. A. O'Hair was attorney for the prosecution, and C. E. Pidgeon, of Buffalo, looked after the defendant's interests. The verdict was given in favor of Mr. VanEman.

--We made the High School another visit on Wednesday of this week. We were pleased to note an improvement in the conduct of the pupils and in the attention given to studies and recitations. We understand that since our last visit three other persons have made short calls; two of them members of the school board. Parents should have interest enough in their children to at least go over and see what kind of a place they have and what they are doing there.

—Our symptoms of spring have wakened up some of our citizens and building and repairing have begun with even the first few days. A new ice house on the west side of the river for the creamery soon to be built; a new ice house in the rear of the old rink for the new brewery company; a new roof on Simon Weldele's saloon and G. P. Schaffer's store are among improvements in course of being made. C. W. Kerrick's foundation for a residence on Third street has come to light from beneath its covering of snow and will probably soon be covered with a fine structure for his future home.

—The Delano Furniture Co. received new goods this week.

--Roosen's opera house is to be fitted up for a new grocery store.

—Don't forget the Teacher's examinations next week: at Delano on the Tuesday and Wednesday, 5th and 6th.

—The spring weather has thawed out the Delano Cornet Band, that has been hibernating for the past few months and its soft strains will likely mingle with the robin's note, as soon as he arrives, in welcoming spring.

—Rev. F. E. Fairbanks, well known in this vicinity writes us this week to have the address of his GAZETTE changed from Forest City to Cedar Mills, he having moved to the latter place. He writes that his little family is well and happy and says, "Our work at this place is grandly moving on with prospects of good revivals in the near future." Glad to hear it.

—The usual scheme for carrying the village election, by taking it out of politics is now being worked in fine shape. Voters are made to believe that unless they help elect officers that will donate village funds to people who do not need them, to speculate on, etc. they are injuring the town. It would be far more to the interests of our town to pay up its indebtedness and use what it can to complete the water works system by furnishing good pure drinking water; and to complete some of the streets to grade, as they should be, than to fool away funds on private matters.

Personals.

I. Gutzwiller, Jr., visited the cities this week.

Guy Halgren was in town on business, Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Walter Bolton, of Minneapolis, visited her sick mother this week.

Alfred Holstrom, of Minneapolis, visited Fay Parslow a couple of days this week.

L. K. Flanders and Rafe Prickett, of Montrose came down on last evening's train.

C. W Kerrick is spending the week in Delano resting from his labors on the R. R.

Miss Maud Galley, of Royalton, made her Delano friends a visit during the past week.

Fred Dow and family expect to leave next week for their new home in "Old Kaintuck."

Mrs. George Goetzman, of Lester Prairie, was smiling on old Delano friends one day this week.

Miss Hattie Gross has completed her school near Otsego and returned home Thursday evening.

Oscar Swanson has gone to Delano to work nights for the Great Northern.—Litchfield Independent.

Martin Conzet and wife were among the old settlers attending the Washington's birthday celebration here.

S. A. Merriman, of Watertown, returned via Delano, Monday evening, from a visit with relatives at Howard Lake.

Mr. McNeil, of Minneapolis, Master Carpenter on the G. N., was in town one day this week looking after R. R. work.

J. F. Soderstrom visited Smith Lake to see what kind of a business place it is, on Monday. He contemplates moving there in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. David McLeod came up from the cities Saturday evening for a visit with relatives. They expect to make their home here.

Mrs. Leavens is expecting Miss G. E McKinsey, the noted artist from Faribault, on this evening's train to spend a couple of days visiting.

(Handed in.)

Miss Minnie Willcutt visited home Saturday and Sunday.

Several farmers who had logs cut and neglected getting them to mill until next week, found the snow gone Monday, and are saving them for next year.

School Jottings.

Miss Steele attended the Juniors' Ball, in Minneapolis, Thursday evening.

Mr. Gutzwiller made us a call one day this week.

The General History class lost two of its members while "Crusading" last week.

At the beginning of this school year there were two pupils doing regular high school work, now there are five.

A number of the scholars visited the lyceum south of town Saturday evening.

Miss Maud Galley, of Royalton, is visiting Miss Grace O'Hair.

The physiology class held an extra session Wednesday after school.

Our roll call now numbers forty-nine pupils.

Several of the scholars and others passed a very pleasant evening Saturday, coasting. They seemed to realize that this would be their last chance.

The pupils have taken advantage of the nice weather and scarcely a person is in the schoolroom at recess or noon. SCRIBBLER.

Washington's Birthday.

Friday, the 22nd, was as fine a day as one could expect to find in this climate and season. Roads were excellent while the sun shone out brightly, but the weather was sufficiently cold to prevent the snow from going off. Delano Washington's Birthday Association and its friends in large numbers assembled at the City Hall with their baskets and splendid appetites, along about noon. Tables were soon arranged and the hungry fed, after which seats were soon arranged in the places lately occupied by the victuals which had so completely vanished from mortal sight, and the program changed. President McGary called the audience to order. Music was furnished by the choir, Rev. O. R. Fassett offered prayer, Mayor Kohler welcomed the people to the village, President McGary delivered an address, after which Charles S. Hawker delivered the speech of the day, followed by Dr. Catlin, Geo. P. Schaffer, C. W. Ingerson, Rev. T. Davies, F. H. Landsley and J. D. Young.

Music for the occasion was kindly furnished by several of the singers of the village and vicinity. The little folks were highly applauded, as were several other numbers.

The officers elected for next year were:

President, F. H. Lindsley.

1st Vice-President, J. D Young.

2nd Vice-President, John Cunningham.

3d Vice-President, C. W. Ingerson.

Secretary, T. J. Catlin.

Treasurer, Geo. P. Schaffer.

County Culings.

Diphtheria is reported from Howard Lake, also from Fair Haven. Too much care cannot be taken to quarantine the first case to come down and prevent an epidemic.

The Eagle has one of her periodical, characteristic screeds, common with her just before election about would be prohibition towns being tired of their efforts to keep the boys and others from being drunk. She claims the temperance people favor license and the saloonists favor no-license as they can make more money running blind pigs. If Howard Lake and other towns will elect officers that will enforce the laws, the question of whether or not prohibition prohibits can soon be settled.

The Wright County Times in commenting on a GAZETTE article says: "The entire delegation did not vote for Washburn. Rep. Craig was an out-and-out Nelson man from start to finish." What has that got to do with the entire delegation from Wright? Mr. Craig lives in Sherburne county, and seems to have had independence enough of his own to vote for his choice and not be dictated to by the Wright county politicians, who upon this occasion, as we said before, "don't seem to be in it."

Senator Culkin has a bill to subject building and loan associations to the laws of the state relating to interest and usury. This law is needed. We believe there are quite a few people in town who, under the leadership of the "financier" at the Eagle office embraced an opportunity a few years ago to grow rich fast; and who could not resist the offer to go into a business where by borrowing their own money they could pay a company a commission for doing the "business" and reap a big financial harvest.

We learn from this morning's Minneapolis Times that Senator Culkin, of Wright, offered an amendment to the bill providing for a fourth Hospital for Insane to be built near the cities, reducing the cost price of the site from $50,000 and locating it within 50 miles of the Twin cities. The Senator "regretted very much that Wright county should find her strongest opposition from Hennepin county, a county with which they had fought many a battle, it not being necessary to go back more than six or eight weeks." That's business "Billy"! Go in! Get us something once! Delano would be a fine healthy locality for the new asylum.

He cares not a rap
Where'er it doth hap
That his wife's cold to him, so they say;
Bus he raves and he roars
And slam-bangs the doors
If his morning's pancakes are that way.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

THE Aitkin Age, in no uncertain manner, calls the attention of Wm. P. Allen, Senator from that district, to the fact that the Anderson bill, providing for the taxation of railroad lands is being killed in committee; and warns him that unless he saves it and gets it through that the end of his term of office will be apt to close his political career.

T. J. MCDERMOTT was not in Washington for nothing after all. He was admitted on the recommendation of Attorney General Olney to practice in the United States courts. But a few years ago Thomas was one of the mail agents traveling through our town. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, while acting in that capacity. Since then he located in St. Paul, in his profession; went into politics, was made chairman of the Democratic State Central committee, and now has been honored still further. "Nothing succeeds like success", and T. J. is having it.

THE Hayward murder trial has been running for about seven weeks and taking up the space in the city dailies, and absorbing the surplus wealth of the citizens of Hennepin County; but is now drawing to a close. County Attorney Nye made the grandest effort of his life in his closing plea for the State, while "Bill" Erwin got out all there was in the defense and gave it to the jury in his best style. After Judge Smith charges the jury it is thought it will be but a short time before the Jury will be dismissed.

Wasn't Posted.

I thought when I came down here in January that law-making was going to be more or less of a picnic, and that I could edit the Star-News about as well here as at home, but I am beginning to change my mind on both propositions. There is a good deal more work about legislation than I had any idea of, and it is a kind of work that don't show up very prominently. A good many people probably have about the same notion regarding it that I did, that the legislators got together a few hours each day, did a little routine work and devoted the rest of the time to enjoying themselves. On the contrary I find that the legislator who does his duty and records his vote on the different measures in a conscientious manner, is kept pretty busy most of the time.—Sherburne County Star-News.

Editor Dare's experience tallies with that of a young Scandinavian of our acquaintance who had worked himself up to a good position as clerk in a general store, in a good sized country town; had learned to speak beside his mother tongue, German and English; and who had begun to think he was quite a man. A firm in St. Paul wanted him to come down to take a position at a good salary in a bank. He left his good job at once, and hied him to the capitol city. Before going he twitted the other young men of the town on their being unable to secure so fine a situation as he could; said they were not "posted" or they could. After a couple of days experience in the bank he returned to his former job, horoughly satisfied that city banking business did not suit him. On being asked why he returned so soon, he replied, "Why, banks close up at four o'clock and I supposed it was a soft job; but they have to balance up the books after closing hours and there is more to do on books each evening than in the store for all summer, and everything must balance to a cent." Someone suggested "Charley, you wasn't posted."

Delano to have a Separator Creamery.

The meeting held on Saturday afternoon to further arrangements for building a separator creamery at this place, was largely attended; the City Hall being nearly full. The meeting was called to order by C. H. Vorse, who, in a few well chosen words, stated the object of the meeting, and nominated for chairman, Ed Kelsey. Mr. K was elected without opposition, and made quite a speech favoring the project. He thought any man that had tried butter making in all its phases from milking cows to raising cream, churning and marketing the manufactured article, would willingly let the creamery have the job.

William Ziebarth was elect secretary.

E. G. Graham, Assistant State Dairy Commissioner was then introduced and proceeded to talk on on the subject from a practical standpoint. He claimed that 100 lbs of milk brings from 60 cts to $1.30, on an average from 85 cts. to $1. That 100 lbs of milk makes on an an average 4½ lbs. of butter. When cream is worth 16 cts. per lb., butter fat brings 22cts. per lb. Cheap, poor butter lowers the price. The plan proposed by Mr. Roosen is called the Dividend plan. Co operative plan is hard to organize. I am a great believer in the co-operative plan, but you have but to pledge the milk and furnish it for six months, Mr. Roosen takes all the risk; he puts in a $3,000 plant. Litchfield, Greenleaf and other places west have done well; are more than pleased. With 5 or 10 cows do not expect to get rich right away. Club 6 or 8 together and take turns hauling the cream to the creamery. Am not much of a talker, would prefer to answer questions.

C. W. Ingerson asked. "How long will one be detained who hauls cream?

Ans. You don't get your own milk but take your turn and put pour milk in and take out what comes, usually not over ½ or ¾ of an hour to wait.

J. E. Borsh asked. Is milk weighed when received?

Ans. Yes, and tested.

Ans. From 20 to 40 per cent. Average about 30 per cent. Use Babcock test.

C. G. Roosen then read quite an interesting article from the pen of Hon. J. L. Gibbs, State Dairy Commissioner, going to show the success of dairying over other kinds of agricultural pursuits. He then proceeded to hand out some typewritten agreements to furnish milk from cows for six months, to a creamery to be started and run by him, for the signatures of as many farmers as possible; those were carried home for circulation among neighbors.

Mr. Roosen agrees to pay on an average for the month what he can afford to for the cream.

J. E. Borsh remarked that he had been in Southern Minnesota, Iowa, and Dakota and found more prosperity where attention was given to dairying, stock raising and such.

Geo. P. Schaffer, would like to hear from patrons of the creamery South of town.

At Welker, Erick Erickson and Charles Stein each expressed themselves as being well satisfied with their experience as patrons of the Lyndale creamery.

Mr. Randall, butter maker for the Lyndale creamery, made a brief speech telling of the success their creamery was having. They have paid from 20 to 21 and 22 cts. per lb. for butter fat. There are now fifty members and more all doing well and satisfied. He offered to answer questions, and was asked by Theodore Strauch How do you care for cream days; you do not haul to creamery. Ans. Keep it in fresh, pure air, not around barn yard. Cool the milk you get last before mixing it with that that has stood then bring to creamery and we will get all the butter fat out of it.

Borsch asked for result of experiments with creameries.

Graham thought where the separators failed it was because they had been run by sharks.

Kelsey said some merchants buy good butter and put it down by the kerosen barrel and taint it until it is not fit for use.

Wm. Ziebarth asked that all sign as many cows as possible; can loose nothing by trying, hope it will be a success.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1, 1895.

Vice President Stevenson is as mild-mannered a gentleman as ever presided over the U. S. Senate, but he this week demonstrated to the Senate as well as the public that there is a wide gulf between mildness and weakness. When the excitement, which has been a marked feature in the Senate all the week, culminated in the greatest uproar ever remembered to have been seen on the floor of the Senate, brought on by the attempt to prevent the Gorman amendment, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue 3 per cent loan certificates whenever ready money was needed, being laid before the Senate, he proved himself equal to the occasion, by ordering the Sergeant-at-Arms to restore order, although he must have seen from the faces of the older Senators that he was trampling upon tradition and dignity by so doing. He even went further, by refusing to allow business to be resumed until perfect order was restored and then to add force to the object lesson in good manners that he was giving to unruly Senators he directed the Sergeant-at-arms to insist upon order being maintained and to place a sufficient number of assistants upon the floor to enforce the order. Then when you might have heard a pin drop the Vice President calmly said, "The Senator from Maryland will now proceed." Afterward the Gorman amendment was withdrawn to prevent the Sundry Civil appropriation bill being talked to death.

It will not be positively known until the Fifty-third Congress dies by limitation, next Monday, whether failure of one or more appropriation bills will force the calling of an extra session. There is little doubt that the appropriation bills can be put through in time by hard work, but there are several pending amendments—among them that repealing all laws for the issue of bonds—either of which will bring out a presidential veto, if they are not dropped.

New stories of the reign of Czar Reed over the House are scarce, but Representative Crain, of Texas, tells one that is new, at least in Washington. He says the following conversation occurred in one of the House galleries while Mr. Reed was speaker, between a precocious boy and his father who had brought him to the Capitol to see Congress: Boy, "Who are all those men down there, writing and reading newspapers?" Father, "Those are the speakers of the House of Representatives, my son." Boy, "Who is that great big fat man in the chair under the American flag?" Father, "That, my son, is the House of Representatives."

Senator Brice has been unmercifully guyed for attempting to secure an appropriation from Congress of $100,000 for experimenting in aerial machines, but the Senator insists that the wheels in his head haven't slipped any cogs, and further that the government ought to assist in hastening the era of aerial navigation, which is bound to come sooner or later.

Representative Bailey, of Texas, is as good a silver man as Representative Bryan, of Nebraska, but he declines to sign the letter addressed to the public, which Mr. Bryan is circulating among democratic members, and he gives his reasons for declining as follows: "Bryan's idea leans more to what is expedient and further from what is democratic than I want to go. It is his desire to pronounce solely for free silver 16 to 1 and stop. Not a word of tariff, nothing of state banks. No announcement of any further principles of government which should guide a party. A party cannot succeed with naught but silver. Man cannot live by bread alone. Bryan's idea is practically only for a day. He believes in using all the silver forces: democratic, republican and populist. I believe in being a democrat and in having a party of democrats. If populists and republicans aiming at free silver can act with us, I would be among the first to welcome them. But I can't surrender my party's faith to gain temporary aid. It might do for the present, but would waste the party and wreck the country in the future. I look on populism as an equal public threat with republicanism. Carry republican doctrines to their ultimate working out, and a few men would own all the property of the country and the rest would be beggars. Carry populism to its utmost expression and nobody would have any property at all. I'm against both."

The House has had time to kill this week, while waiting for the Senate to act on the appropriation bills. It passed the bill authorizing an arbitration commission to settle disputes between interstate common carriers and their employees and a number of unimportant measures.

President Cleveland made a hit in choosing a successor to Postmaster General Bissel, who retired this week.

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

D. R. Thompson and C. M. Johnson transacted business in the city on Monday.

J. Benner is busy putting up ice He expects to run the creamery the coming season.

Mrs. W. L Haggerty and Miss Gay Gent walked from Rockford to Delano in two hours. Roads were bad or they would have lowered the time some.

Isaac Young, of Princeton, traded his hotel property in Rockford for Mr. H.E. Pitts' house and lot with $1000 to boot. Property does exchange hands in Rockford once in a while.

F. Benner is making preparations to start the woolen mill soon.

M. Denney, of Bollinea, N. D., visited his father in-law, S. D. Fuller, who is very low, and not expected to live.

Among Our Exchanges.

Jagomaniac is a new word. The Cincinnati Tribune coined it. The definition is obvious.—Duluth News Tribune.

A law has been enacted in North Dakota, to go into effect July 1, absolutely prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to anybody. The penalty is a fine of not less than $10 or more than $50, or thirty days in jail or both. It is a good law.—Brainerd Journal.

The trustees of the Union Presbyterian church Tuesday closed a contract with Nels Anderson, of the Waverly brick yard, for the delivery of 35,000 brick on or before June 20. Work on the foundation of the church will commence as soon as the frost is out of the ground.—Waverly Tribune.

The boys need protection from the wiles of vile women quite as much as girls need protection from the wiles of vile men. A law which punishes the boy who has been tempted to his ruin should punish the woman who has led him astray, and if both are equal participants in the offense both should share in the responsibility and penalty. —Pioneer Press.

The new tariff law notwithstanding all that has been said, is bringing in more money than "McKinley's bill." For six months the receipts were nearly 25 per cent greater. The new law is increasing free importation, increasing dutiable importations, increasing custum results, and will increase revenue receipts. Time will vindicate the Democracy's course.—St. Cloud Times.

The Times agrees with the correspondent of the Sauk Rapids Sentinel that it is more in accord with their positions for ministers to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ, rather than subjects intended only to "catch the listening ear" of the curious, or fill the church pews. Still, a consideration of the habits, pastimes and amusements of the people, are sometimes appropriate and timely themes.—St. Cloud Times.

General Nelson A. Miles, of the U. S. army, at a speech at the banquet of the Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York said: "I have a son, who says that if he does not go into the army he will go into the navy. If he followed his father's wishes he would go into the profession of journalism. The journals of the country have its fate in their hands. By the education of the people must the republic stand or fall."

The present law regarding the catching of fish is very far from popular, and works great hardship. In many instances throughout the state poor settlers and old soldiers unable to work have been arrested for violating the law when they were only trying to do something to keep soul and body together. The law appears to have been framed with the idea that God made fish only for the purpose of giving city dudes a chance to have some fun in the summer. The people who endure the hardships of pioneer life ought to have the benefit of the bounties of nature at least, especially when they are poor and in great need. Let the dudes play mumblepeg, if they want to amuse themselves.—Brainerd Journal.

The State Editorial Association is in session at St. Paul, and as usual, something wonderful will be evolved from its deliberations. The editors will resolve this, that and the other about prices and return home and cut one another's throats just as they have always done.—Delano Eagle.

If editors do not "cut one another's throats," then Bro. Gutzwiller does the fraternity an injustice in his comment. If they do, then it is a serious thing and deserves earnest and intelligent treatment. In that case for editors to stand around while their good brothers cut one another's throats, and not so much as move a hand to stay the slaughter, is quite as open to criticism as is the idle "resolving" complained of. Why can't you help to do something, Bro. Gutzwiller?—Midway News.

Choice Seeds, Bulbs and Plants

Readers of this paper who would like to procure vegetable and flower seeds of superior sorts at the prices usually charged for inferior varieties and mixtures, or plants and bulbs of high grade for house and garden culture, will be forwarded by L. Renedict, Ellenville, Ulster county, N. Y., his new spring catalogue upon receipt of a 2-cent stamp. It is a handsome work of nearly 40 pages and its cultural directions and hints are invaluable to flower lovers. Mr. Benedict makes a specialty of choice vegetable and flower seeds for the home garden, select bulbs and plants for garden and house culture, and roses, chrysanthemums, etc. etc. A specially attractive offer of pansies, poppies, sweet peas, nasturtiums and asters (the best summer flowers) is made upon the colored plate accompanying each catalogue. 23.

Piano Lessons By Emil Liebling.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

THE Aitkin Age, in no uncertain manner, calls the attention of Wm. P. Allen, Senator from that district, to the fact that the Anderson bill, providing for the taxation of railroad lands is being killed in committee; and warns him that unless he saves it and gets it through that the end of his term of office will be apt to close his political career.

T. J. MCDERMOTT was not in Washington for nothing after all. He was admitted on the recommendation of Attorney General Olney to practice in the United States courts. But a few years ago Thomas was one of the mail agents traveling through our town. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, while acting in that capacity. Since then he located in St. Paul, in his profession; went into politics, was made chairman of the Democratic State Central committee, and now has been honored still further. "Nothing succeeds like success", and T. J. is having it.

THE Hayward murder trial has been running for about seven weeks and taking up the space in the city dailies, and absorbing the surplus wealth of the citizens of Hennepin County; but is now drawing to a close. County Attorney Nye made the grandest effort of his life in his closing plea for the State, while "B-ll" Erwin got out all there was in the defense and gave it to the jury in his best style. After Judge Smith charges the jury it is thought it will be but a short time before the Jury will be dismissed.

Wasn't Posted.

I thought when I came down here in January that law-making was going to be more or less of a picnic, and that I could edit the Star-News about as well here as at home, but I am beginning to change my mind on both propositions. There is a good deal more work about legislation than I had any idea of, and it is a kind of work that don't show up very prominently. A good many people probably have about the same notion regarding it that I did, that the legislators got together a few hours each day, did a little routine work and devoted the rest of the time to enjoying themselves. On the contrary I find that the legislator who does his duty and records his vote on the different measures in a conscientious manner, is kept pretty busy most of the time.—Sherburne County Star-News.

Editor Dare's experience tallies with that of a young Scandinavian of our acquaintance who had worked himself up to a good position as clerk in a general store, in a good sized country town; had learned to speak beside his mother tongue, German and English; and who had begun to think he was quite a man. A firm in St. Paul wanted him to come down to take a position at a good salary in a bank. He left his good job at once, and hied him to the capitol city. Before going he twitted the other young men of the town on their being unable to secure so fine a situation as he could; said they were not "posted" or they could. After a couple of days experience in the bank he returned to his former job, thoroughly satisfied that city banking business did not suit him. On being asked why he returned so soon, he replied, "Why, banks close up at four o'clock and I supposed it was a soft job; but they have to balance up the books after closing hours and there is more to do on books each evening than in the store for all summer, and everything must balance to a cent." Someone suggested "Charley, you wasn't posted."

Delano to have a Separator Creamery.

The meeting held on Saturday afternoon to further arrangements for building a separator creamery at this place, was largely attended; the City Hall being nearly full. The meeting was called to order by C. H. Vorse, who, in a few well chosen words, stated the object of the meeting, and nominated for chairman, Ed Kelsey. Mr. K was elected without opposition, and made quite a speech favoring the project. He thought any man that had tried butter making in all its phases from milking cows to raising cream, churning and marketing the manufactured article, would willingly let the creamery have the job.

William Ziebarth was elect secretary.

E. G. Graham, Assistant State Dairy Commissioner was then introduced and proceeded to talk on on the subject from a practical standpoint. He claimed that 100 lbs of milk brings from 60 cts to $1.30, on an average from 85 cts. to $1. That 100 lbs of milk makes on an an average 4½ lbs. of butter. When cream is worth 16 cts. per lb., butter fat brings 22cts. per lb. Cheap, poor butter lowers the price. The plan proposed by Mr. Roosen is called the Dividend plan. Co operative plan is hard to organize. I am a great believer in the co-operative plan, but you have but to pledge the milk and furnish it for six months, Mr. Roosen takes all the risk; he puts in a $3,000 plant. Litchfield, Greenleaf and other places west have done well; are more than pleased. With 5 or 10 cows do not expect to get rich right away. Club 6 or 8 together and take turns hauling the cream to the creamery. Am not much of a talker, would prefer to answer questions.

C. W. Ingerson asked. "How long will one be detained who hauls cream?

Ans. You don't get your own milk but take your turn and put pour milk in and take out what comes, usually not over ½ or ¾ of an hour to wait.

J. E. Borsh asked. Is milk weighed when received?

Ans. Yes, and tested.

Ans. From 20 to 40 per cent. Average about 30 per cent. Use Babcock test.

C. G. Roosen then read quite an interesting article from the pen of Hon. J. L. Gibbs, State Dairy Commissioner, going to show the success of dairying over other kinds of agricultural pursuits. He then proceeded to hand out some typewritten agreements to furnish milk from cows for six months, to a creamery to be started and run by him, for the signatures of as many farmers as possible; those were carried home for circulation among neighbors.

Mr. Roosen agrees to pay on an average for the month what he can afford to for the cream.

J. E. Borsh remarked that he had been in Southern Minnesota, Iowa, and Dakota and found more prosperity where attention was given to dairying, stock raising and such.

Geo. P. Schaffer, would like to hear from patrons of the creamery South of town.

At Welker, Erick Erickson and Charles Stein each expressed themselves as being well satisfied with their experience as patrons of the Lyndale creamery.

Mr. Randall, butter maker for the Lyndale creamery, made a brief speech telling of the success their creamery was having. They have paid from 20 to 21 and 22 cts. per lb. for butter fat. There are now fifty members and more all doing well and satisfied. He offered to answer questions, and was asked by Theodore Strauch How do you care for cream days; you do not haul to creamery. Ans. Keep it in fresh, pure air, not around barn yard. Cool the milk you get last before mixing it with that that has stood then bring to creamery and we will get all the butter fat out of it.

Borsch asked for result of experiments with creameries.

Graham thought where the separators failed it was because they had been run by sharks.

Kelsey said some merchants buy good butter and put it down by the kerosen barrel and taint it until it is not fit for use.

Wm. Ziebarth asked that all sign as many cows as possible; can loose nothing by trying, hope it will be a success.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 1, 1895.

Vice President Stevenson is as mild-mannered a gentleman as ever presided over the U. S. Senate, but he this week demonstrated to the Senate as well as the public that there is a wide gulf between mildness and weakness. When the excitement, which has been a marked feature in the Senate all the week, culminated in the greatest uproar ever remembered to have been seen on the floor of the Senate, brought on by the attempt to prevent the Gorman amendment, authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue 3 per cent loan certificates whenever ready money was needed, being laid before the Senate, he proved himself equal to the occasion, by ordering the Sergeant-at-Arms to restore order, although he must have seen from the faces of the older Senators that he was trampling upon tradition and dignity by so doing. He even went further, by refusing to allow business to be resumed until perfect order was restored and then to add force to the object lesson in good manners that he was giving to unruly Senators he directed the Sergeant-at-arms to insist upon order being maintained and to place a sufficient number of assistants upon the floor to enforce the order. Then when you might have heard a pin drop the Vice President calmly said, "The Senator from Maryland will now proceed." Afterward the Gorman amendment was withdrawn to prevent the Sundry Civil appropriation bill being talked to death.

It will not be positively known until the Fifty-third Congress dies by limitation, next Monday, whether failure of one or more appropriation bills will force the calling of an extra session. There is little doubt that the appropriation bills can be put through in time by hard work, but there are several pending amendments—among them that repealing all laws for the issue of bonds—either of which will bring out a presidential veto, if they are not dropped.

New stories of the reign of Czar Reed over the House are scarce, but Representative Crain, of Texas, tells one that is new, at least in Washington. He says the following conversation occurred in one of the House galleries while Mr. Reed was speaker, between a precocious boy and his father who had brought him to the Capitol to see Congress: Boy, "Who are all those men down there, writing and reading newspapers?" Father, "Those are the speakers of the House of Representatives, my son." Boy, "Who is that great big fat man in the chair under the American flag?" Father, "That, my son, is the House of Representatives."

Senator Brice has been unmercifully guyed for attempting to secure an appropriation from Congress of $100,000 for experimenting in aerial machines, but the Senator insists that the wheels in his head haven't slipped any cogs, and further that the government ought to assist in hastening the era of aerial navigation, which is bound to come sooner or later.

Representative Bailey, of Texas, is as good a silver man as Representative Bryan, of Nebraska, but he declines to sign the letter addressed to the public, which Mr. Bryan is circulating among democratic members, and he gives his reasons for declining as follows: "Bryan's idea leans more to what is expedient and further from what is democratic than I want to go. It is his desire to pronounce solely for free silver 16 to 1 and stop. Not a word of tariff, nothing of state banks. No announcement of any further principles of government which should guide a party. A party cannot succeed with naught but silver. Man cannot live by bread alone. Bryan's idea is practically only for a day. He believes in using all the silver forces: democratic, republican and populist. I believe in being a democrat and in having a party of democrats. If populists and republicans aiming at free silver can act with us, I would be among the first to welcome them. But I can't surrender my party's faith to gain temporary aid. It might do for the present, but would waste the party and wreck the country in the future. I look on populism as an equal public threat with republicanism. Carry republican doctrines to their ultimate working out, and a few men would own all the property of the country and the rest would be beggars. Carry populism to its utmost expression and nobody would have any property at all. I'm against both."

The House has had time to kill this week, while waiting for the Senate to act on the appropriation bills. It passed the bill authorizing an arbitration commission to settle disputes between interstate common carriers and their employees and a number of unimportant measures.

President Cleveland made a hit in choosing a successor to Postmaster General Bissel, who retired this week.

ROCKFORD RIPPLES.

D. R. Thompson and C. M. Johnson transacted business in the city on Monday.

J. Benner is busy putting up ice He expects to run the creamery the coming season.

Mrs. W. L. Haggerty and Miss Gay Gent walked from Rockford to Delano in two hours. Roads were bad or they would have lowered the time some.

Isaac Young, of Princeton, traded his hotel property in Rockford for Mr. H.E. Pitts' house and lot with $1000 to boot. Property does exchange hands in Rockford once in a while.

F. Benner is making preparations to start the woolen mill soon.

M. Denney, of Bollinea, N. D., visited his father in-law, S. D. Fuller, who is very low, and not expected to live.

Among Our Exchanges.

Jagomaniac is a new word. The Cincinnati Tribune coined it. The definition is obvious.—Duluth News Tribune.

A law has been enacted in North Dakota, to go into effect July 1, absolutely prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to anybody. The penalty is a fine of not less than $10 or more than $50, or thirty days in jail or both. It is a good law.—Brainerd Journal.

The trustees of the Union Presbyterian church Tuesday closed a contract with Nels Anderson, of the Waverly brick yard, for the delivery of 35,000 brick on or before June 20. Work on the foundation of the church will commence as soon as the frost is out of the ground.—Waverly Tribune.

The boys need protection from the wiles of vile women quite as much as girls need protection from the wiles of vile men. A law which punishes the boy who has been tempted to his ruin should punish the woman who has led him astray, and if both are equal participants in the offense both should share in the responsibility and penalty. —Pioneer Press.

The new tariff law notwithstanding all that has been said, is bringing in more money than "McKinley's bill." For six months the receipts were nearly 25 per cent greater. The new law is increasing free importation, increasing dutiable importations, increasing custom results, and will increase revenue receipts. Time will vindicate the Democracy's course.—St. Cloud Times.

The Times agrees with the correspondent of the Sauk Rapids Sentinel that it is more in accord with their positions for ministers to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ, rather than subjects intended only to "catch the listening ear" of the curious, or fill the church pews. Still, a consideration of the habits, pastimes and amusements of the people, are sometimes appropriate and timely themes.—St. Cloud Times.

General Nelson A. Miles, of the U. S. army, at a speech at the banquet of the Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York said: "I have a son, who says that if he does not go into the army he will go into the navy. If he followed his father's wishes he would go into the profession of journalism. The journals of the country have its fate in their hands. By the education of the people must the republic stand or fall."

The present law regarding the catching of fish is very far from popular, and works great hardship. In many instances throughout the state poor settlers and old soldiers unable to work have been arrested for violating the law when they were only trying to do something to keep soul and body together. The law appears to have been framed with the idea that God made fish only for the purpose of giving city dudes a chance to have some fun in the summer. The people who endure the hardships of pioneer life ought to have the benefit of the bounties of nature at least, especially when they are poor and in great need. Let the dudes play mumbletepeg, if they want to amuse themselves.—Brainerd Journal.

The State Editorial Association is in session at St. Paul, and as usual, something wonderful will be evolved from its deliberations. The editors will resolve this, that and the other about prices and return home and cut one another's throats just as they have always done.—Delano Eagle.

If editors do not "cut one another's throats," then Bro. Gutzwiller does the fraternity an injustice in his comment. If they do, then it is a serious thing and deserves earnest and intelligent treatment. In that case for editors to stand around while their good brothers cut one another's throats, and not so much as move a hand to stay the slaughter, is quite as open to criticism as is the idle "resolving" complained of. Why can't you help to do something, Bro. Gutzwiller?—Midway News.

Choice Seeds, Bulbs and Plants

Readers of this paper who would like to procure vegetable and flower seeds of superior sorts at the prices usually charged for inferior varieties and mixtures, or plants and bulbs of high grade for house and garden culture, will be forwarded by L. Renedict, Ellenville, Ulster county, N. Y., his new spring catalogue upon receipt of a 2-cent stamp. It is a handsome work of nearly 40 pages and its cultural directions and hints are invaluable to flower lovers. Rhode Island and Colorado are both names descriptive of color, the latter named from its brightly hued cliffs, and the former from its "roody" or red cranberries.

The Boston aldermen have decided that theater managers must send advance sheets of their living picture posters to the city hall before posting them on the billboards.

Susan B. Anthony says she has not slept at home for four years. From this statement it would appear that her brand of woman suffrage is the imported article, for it certainly is not domestic.

The Glover, a trade journal, says that paper stockings and paper mittens and other economical garments are coming into the New York market. The Sun says that paper vests are sold in the same city for two cents.

In 1837 Fred Douglass was hunted in the alleys of New York like an escaped felon. The day after his recent death his widow received a most urgent request that his body might be allowed to lie in state in the governor's chamber in the municipal building of that city, like President Lincoln's and Gen. Grant's.

In the woman's edition of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post one "lady editor" dashed off the following amazing truth: "Some of you seem unable to withdraw your intellects—well, yes, your intellects—from the dazzling fact that you are men." That's true, and may we who wear trousers never forget that we are men.

Clara Louise Kellogg, whose sweet voice once charmed two continents, is living in New York in comparative poverty. Once she was worth nearly $1,000,000, but it has all been swept away by unfortunate business ventures. The once famous woman has lost her voice entirely, and has no way of recouping her shattered fortunes.

Dr. Loomis' will, disposing of $1,000,000, is an illustration of the large fortunes rolled up by physicians who achieve prominence as specialists in New York. This fortune was made in the main during the last ten years, and its size would indicate that the rumor which places the income of many of the New York crack doctors at $60,000 to $75,000 a year is not far out of the way.

The artist Gibson says that he has seven types of the American girl—the Beauty, the Boy Girl, the Sentimental Girl, the Flirt, the Ambitious Girl, the Convinced Girl and the Well-Balanced Girl. He has not made many pictures of the last-named and confesses that she is the only one a man can fall in love with. Mr. Gibson is in danger of losing his popularity with the young ladies if he becomes too open with his confidences.

In the year 1884 a law of divorce was passed in France. The French people had had to wait a long time for it, but since they got it they have certainly taken full advantage of its provisions. Up to the end of 1891—a period of eight years only from the date of the passing of the act—nearly 46,000 divorce suits were instituted by dissatisfied husbands or wives. In about 40,000 cases decrees of divorce were granted, and the unhappily married couples set free to try their luck again.

Experiments in the agricultural stations of states where drought prevails in the use and growth of the new forage plant, sacaline, are watched with deep interest by farmers. If the statements of the seed warehousemen are true, this plant is destined to be the greatest boon that has been given the arid areas for years. There seems to be no doubt that the plant spreads rapidly, thereby emulating the Russian cactus, but as to its value as forage there is question. This would seem, however, an easy matter to settle.

The distress in Newfoundland, since the failure of the banks there, is so pronounced that the mayor of Boston has appointed a relief committee and it is expected that $25,000 will be raised in New England for the sufferers. It is represented that if help is not promptly accorded, thousands of people will die of starvation. It would seem as if Great Britain, which holds the suzerainty over Newfoundland, should relieve the distress of the inhabitants, or else surrender the province to the United States. If Uncle Sam had that country he could make something out of it.

President Ingalls, of the Chesapeak & Ohio railroad, pays a high tribute to the Young Men's Christian association, claiming that its branches along the line of that road have done as much to bring employer and employe closer together as any other institution. Wherever these branches of the association are located the saloonkeepers have complained that their business was being ruined, and that is higher recommendation than the president's, for it shows that the railroad men are sober and realize that they have too great a responsibility to share it with the saloon.

February, 1866, is referred to by astronomers as "the month without a full moon." January and March of that year had each two full moons, while the intermediate month did not have one. Says a writer in an astronomical journal, referring to this fact: "Do you realize what a rare thing in nature it was? It has not happened before since the beginning of the Christian era, or probably since the creation of the world! It will not occur again, according to the computations of the astronomer royal of England, for—how long do you think? Not until after 2,500,000 years from 1866!"

FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

Wednesday, Feb. 27.—After the financial debate closed in the senate work on the sundry civil bill was proceeded with, and among the amendments agreed to was one authorizing the selection of nine commissioners to represent the United States at the international monetary conference. In the house the pension appropriation bill was passed and the post office appropriation bill was discussed.

Thursday, Feb. 28.—The senate passed the sundry civil appropriation bill, including over $5,000,000 for sugar bounties and the provision for a commission to represent the United States at an international monetary conference. The executive and judicial appropriation bill was also passed. During a debate warm words passed between Senators Chandler, Hill and Martin. In the house the senate amendment to the bill to prohibit the wearing of the sign of the Red Cross without permission of the National Red Cross society was agreed to. It was voted to insist on disagreement to the senate amendment to the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill providing for the Hawaiian cable.

Friday, March 1.—The general deficiency bill was passed in the senate with an amendment providing for the payment of the sums named to the following states on account of moneys spent in assisting in the suppression of the rebellion: California, $3,954; Oregon, $335,152, and Nevada, $404,040. The nomination of W. L. Wilson as postmaster general was confirmed. In the house the entire day was devoted to the consideration of bills on motions to pass them under suspension of the rules. The night session was devoted to private pension bills.

Saturday, March 2.—The senate receded from the Hawaiian cable amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. The naval appropriation bill was passed after it had been amended to provide for the building of but two battleships. An agreement was reached on the sundry civil and Indian appropriation bills. In the house most of the appropriation bills were agreed to and the senate bill forbidding the transmission of lottery business by express was passed.

Monday, March 4.—In the senate a number of bills were passed, one being to limit the severity of the copyright penalty, after which a resolution was adopted thanking the vice president for the ability, dignity and impartiality with which he had administered the duties of presiding officer. The vice president thanked the members for the courtesy uniformly extended to him and then announced that the senate stood adjourned without day. In the house a resolution of thanks to the speaker was adopted, after which Mr. Crisp returned thanks for the uniform kindness, courtesy and consideration with which he had been treated by every member, and then declared the third session of the Fifty-third congress adjourned without day.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The statement of the public debt issued on the 1st showed that the debt decreased $34,033,328 during the month of February. The cash balance in the treasury was $178,197,586. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $890,412,940. The decrease in the debt during the month is accounted for by the receipt of gold on account of the last bond issue, against which no bonds had been issued.

LATER NEWS.

Gas Explosion.

Anderson, Ind., March 5.—The most destructive natural gas explosion in the history of the Indiana gas belt occurred here this morning. A $75,000 business block on the courthouse square was blown all over the central part of the city. In the building were the When clothing store, Prather's shoe store, Hadley's drug store, and a large number of business offices and halls on the upper floor.

Fire followed the explosion, which was like an earthquake, and the remnants of the debris began burning fiercely.

The entire department, was called out, and prevented the fire from reaching the new courthouse.

The loss on the building and contents is total, and will reach $400,000.

The fronts of all business houses in the neighborhood of the explosion were demolished, paved streets were ripped open and telephone wire cables torn down.

Ten thousand railroad miners in the Pittsburg, Pa., district struck the 5th for an advance of 14 cents per ton.

WHAT IT HAS DONE.

A Glance at the Work of the Fifty-Third Congress.

Its Most Important Legislation Was Repeal of the Silver Purchase Law—Tariff Revision Action on Financial Measures.

Washington, March 4.—The three sessions of the Fifty-third congress expiring at noon to-day, were dominated by their controling issues. The first by the silver question. The second by the tariff question. The third by the financial question. A resume of the work of the special and regular sessions of the Fifty-third congress is given below:

On the 7th of August, 1893, the congress convened in extraordinary session for the avowed purpose of repealing the compulsory silver purchase provision of the law of 1890. This was the silver session. Mr. W. L. Wilson, chairman of the committee of ways and means, prepared a bill in conformity to the recommendations of the president's message, and on the 28th of August, 1893, this measure passed the house.

The senate in the meantime had been preparing through the committee on finance a sub-bill, and on the 1st of November this senate substitute received the approval of both houses and became a law by the approval of the president. This measure and the repeal of the remaining vestiges of the reconstruction of the federal election laws closed the important work of the extra session.

Upon its meeting in regular session in December, 1893, congress entered upon the consideration of the revision of the tariff. As in the case of the silver question, but in a much more pronounced manner, the house "proposed" and the senate "disposed." The Wilson tariff bill passed by the house February 1, 1894, was set aside for the Jones-Gorman compromise tariff bill, adopted by the senate on the 3d of July, 1894, after five months' debate, and the house was given the blunt option of the "senate bill or nothing." It took the senate bill and sent it to the president on the 15th of August, 1894. President Cleveland permitted the bill to become a law without his approval.

Supplemental to the passage of the tariff law the senate entered upon a profitless and inconclusive investigation of rumors that senators had been improperly influenced to vote for the sugar schedule and had speculated in stocks of the so-called "Sugar Trust company."

The third and last, or "financial" session of the Fifty-third congress has been especially marked by the refusal of both houses to put into legislative shape the recommendations of the president for the alleviation of the stringent financial situation. The president in his annual message called attention to the continual depletion of the gold reserve and complained that though it was "perfectly and palpably plain that the only way under present conditions by which this reserve when dangerously depleted can be replenished is through the issue and sale of the bonds of the government for gold, congress has not only thus far declined to authorize the issue of bonds best suited to such a purpose, but there seems a disposition in some quarters to deny both the necessity and power for the issue of bonds at all."

The banking and currency committee of the house, with the approval of the administration, submitted a financial measure which, among other provisions materially modified the national banking laws and repealed the restrictions on state bank circulation. This bill was defeated by six majority.

It was followed by a second message from the president received by both houses of congress December 28, in which the president said that whatever might have been the merits of the original plan proposed by him he was "now convinced that its reception by the congress and our present advanced stage of financial perplexity necessitated additional or different legislation." He once again recommended the passage of a law authorizing the issue of low interest bearing bonds to maintain the gold reserve.

The banking and currency committee responded to this suggestion by offering on the 1st of February, 1895, a bill to "authorize the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds to maintain a sufficient gold reserve and to retire United States notes." After only two days' debate this bill was also defeated by a majority of 27.

On the next day the president informed congress that he had negotiated a conditional sale of over $62,000,000 of 4 per cent. coin bonds to a syndicate largely representing foreign capitalists, having no other resource left, because of the "omission thus far on the part of congress to beneficially enlarge the powers of the secretary of the treasury in the premises."

This last message went to the ways and means committee, whose chairman, Mr. Wilson, of West Virginia, seven days after its receipt, reported a resolution authorizing the issue of $65,116,275 of gold 3 per cent. bonds, as recommended by the president. The measure was called up on February 14 and defeated the same day by 47 majority, after a stormy debate. These three financial measures, with the general appropriation bills, consumed the greater part of the session.

Early in the session the democratic caucus of the senate agreed that the following matters should be considered: A financial measure of some sort, details not designated; the bankruptcy bill; the bills for the admission of New Mexico and Arizona; the Nicaraguan canal bill; and the state bank tax repeal bill. Of all these measures the Nicaraguan canal bill alone passed the senate after two months' debate. It failed to receive consideration in the house. The bankruptcy bill was made the unfinished business, but was choked by the appropriation bills. Financial measures were not acted on by the senate, and nothing planned by the senate caucus resulted in legislation. The so-called "pop-gun" tariff bills sent over by the house providing for free sugar, free coal and free iron were not even honored by consideration, and the railroad pooling bill, one of the most important measures passed by the house, was also shelved.

The pooling bill was passed by the house early in the session, but the senate refused to consider it by a negative vote of 42 to 24 on the question of consideration. Strong opposition to the Reilly bill was developed in the house, and after a very sharp debate it was recommitted to the committee without instructions.

The house adopted a joint resolution for an amendment to the constitution providing for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people of the states, but the resolution was reported adversely by the senate committee on privileges and elections.

The following figures show approximately the total appropriations made during the present session of congress: Agricultural, $3,309,700; army, $23,252,608; diplomatic and consular, $1,575,073; District of Columbia, $5,916,533; fortifications, $1,904,557; Indian, $9,976,948; military academy, $424,561; pensions, $141,381,570; postoffice, $89,545,997; general deficiency, $8,600,000; sundry civil, $47,140,000; urgent deficiency, bills passed early in the session, $2,357,321; legislative, executive and judicial, $21,900,000; naval, $29,100,000; permanent annual, $113,073,956; miscellaneous, $50,000; total, $498,952,524.

Choked to Death.

Milwaukee, March 4.—William Mallcug, 15 years of age, was choked to death by a toy balloon squawker. He was playing on the street when he accidentally swallowed the toy, which he had been carrying in his mouth. It lodged in his throat, producing strangulation and baffling the efforts of some men who attempted to dislodge it.

A Veteran's Birthday.

Merrimac, Mass., March 4.—John Kelly Sargant, a veteran abolitionist, who claims to be the oldest freemason in the United States, observed his 93d birthday at his home here.

Fire Losses for February.

Chicago, March 4.—Fire losses for February throughout the country caused a total loss of $12,532,510, of which fires where the losses amounting to $100,000 or more contributed $5,034,550, and fires under $100,000 $7,497,960. The losses for February of last year amounting to $12,918,225.

Brooklyn Strikers Indicted.

Brooklyn, March 4.—The February grand jury handed twenty-five indictments in the court of sessions against persons who in various ways interfered with or obstructed trolley cars during the recent strike.

The Annual Encampment of the Grand Army Was a Success.

The fifteenth annual encampment of the department of Minnesota was most auspiciously opened at St. Paul, Feb. 27. The capacity of Ford's hall was tested to its utmost. The attendance upon the gathering was so large that many of the delegates had to be provided with seats in the gallery. So from point of numbers in attendance the present session is one of the best ever held by the department. And the proper enthusiasm was not lacking. The session was slow in opening, and it was 11 o'clock before the gavel in the hands of Commander Van Sant, dropped to call the veterans to order. Mayor Smith was introduced to the assemblage, and he at once proceeded to extend to the old soldiers a hearty greeting on behalf of the citizens of St. Paul.

Mayor Smith's address was received with storms of applause and was frequently interrupted with cheers. As soon as Mr. Smith had retired the encampment was opened in due form for the transaction of its regular business. This done Department Commander Van Sant delivered his annual address.

After a brief report from both vice commanders, Assistant Adjutant General J. K. Mertz made his customary report on the statistics of the order for 1894.

At the meeting the second day the committee on rules and resolutions reported favorably on the one recommending $100 extra compensation be granted to G. K. Mertz.

The committee on officers' reports favored all recommendations and suggestions made by the department officers. On motion the report was unanimously adopted.

An invitation was extended to the Society of Sons of the Revolution to attend the camp fires in the evening.

The hour having arrived for the election of officers, Comrade J. H. Baker, in a neat and commendable address, nominated Comrade Eli Torrance for department commander. By a rising vote of the encampment, the assistant adjutant general cast the vote of the encampment for Comrade Torrance as department commander.

In the matter of district encampments it was decided that the district secretaries should notify the assistant adjutant general of the dates upon which these encampments are to be held, so that they shall not conflict. The delegates at large to the national encampment are as follows: L. O. Merriam, Minneapolis; William Dunn, Eyota; alternates, Joseph Wiseman, Minneapolis; Robert Scarf, Pipestone.

By congressional districts:

First District—Charles W. Ackely, Spring Valley; alternate, Henry Reynolds, Waseca.

Second District—Harrison White, Beaver Creek; alternate, J. H. Baker, Garden City.

Third District—A. F. Foster, Litchfield; alternate, J. H. Wyman, Le Sueur.

Fourth District—Henry Hasenwinkle, St. Paul; alternate, F. L. Mallory, St. Paul.

Fifth District—J. W. Mortimer, Minneapolis; alternate, Tom Downs, Minneapolis.

Sixth District—M. W. Bates, Duluth; alternate, C. F. Macdonald, St. Cloud.

Seventh District—J. P. Davis, Battle Creek; alternates, J. A. McConkey, Fergus Falls.

Commander Torrance, in appointing J. K. Mertz as assistant adjutant general, and E. N. Leavens as assistant quartermaster general, more than pleased the comrades of the department. The appointments are commendable, as being a recognition of their faithful services to the Grand Army and the department of Minnesota.

Past Commander Van Sant, in surrendering the flag of the department to Commander Torrance, took occasion to thank the comrades for their earnest support during the past year. It pleased him to know that the flag was placed in the hands of one who would guard and protect it with his life.

AFTER A JUDGE.

The Impeachment of Judge Ives of the Fourteenth District Is Asked for.

In the house of representatives a petition was presented from citizens of Crookston asking the impeachment of Judge Frank Ives, of the Fourteenth judicial district, because of corrupt practice, tyranical and arbitrary conduct and ignorance of the law. By passage of a resolution from Henry Feig, through whom the petition came, it was referred to the judiciary committee with instructions to investigate the charges there made and to report back to the house at the earliest convenient time. It is upon this report if it is unfavorable that the house will undertake impeachment proceedings if it decides to conduct them.

The Fourteenth district includes Polk, Becker, Norman, Kittson, Clay and Marshall counties, and Crookston is the chief town. The 11 signers of the petition are all of them prominent business and professional men of the town, and men of high standing of character. Their names are as follows: R. J. Montague, A. L. Rhinehart, L. W. Larson, C. E. Dampire, F. Fowments, W. W. Clemments, DeForrest Bucklen, A. Braleg, M. Losey, Jr., Louis Fontaine, S. Rosendahl.

The 21 separate charges made against Judge Ives are all of them based on one one of the three points mentioned above, though they are recited in detail and at great length in the 17 pages of typewritten manuscript comprising the petition. Judge Ives was elected in November of 1892, and the attempt to impeach him grows directly out of dissatisfaction with his official conduct on the bench. At the time of his election he was opposed by the Democrats and Republicans and even by members of his own party, but it was a Populist year and he won by a large majority.

The resolutions were adopted.

The Retort Courteous.

The heavy swell had inadvertently met the man not in his set the night before, and after the manner of an apostle of swelldom, he had not been at any pains to cultivate the acquaintance. In fact, he had been really rude. A night or two after the men met again and were introduced. This time the swell tried a bluff.

"I believe we have met before," said the common man.

"Ah?" responded the swell.

"Yes; don't you remember, at the club?"

"Really."

The common man began to get hot.

"Didn't I meet a gentleman of your name three evenings ago at the club?" he asked.

"Ah—I think not."

"Well, really," said the common man, "I owe you an apology. I thought he was a gentlemsn, but I guess I must be mistaken. Good evening."

Pioneers of Civilization.

A hundred and four years ago there was born into this world, in a quiet country parish of England, one of the souls that became conspicuous as lights to and leaders of men—John Wesley. He was the founder of the religious sect of Methodists, and seldom has any mortal attained such a following as he in less than a century from his birth. In the great West the Methodist preacher has always been abreast of the settlements; in fact he has been a pioneer of civilization, and much more than will ever be written down is due to him for the development of our country. Among these pioneers the preachers of other creeds have not been laggard; and earliest of them all were the Catholic fathers who visited the far Northwest more than a century ago—their names preserved in the appellations of towns and counties. In the last forty years the great pioneer force of the West has been the railroad—often not waiting for the woodsman or farmer, but pushing far ahead of settlement, and making it a possibility. Such a force has been the great Burlington Route—civilization, development and prosperity has followed its steps as it crossed the Mississippi, the Missouri, spread itself over the plains of Nebraska, touched the foot of the Rockies at Denver, penetrated the Black Hills, and is now in the Mountain State, (Montana), besides paralleling the Mississippi from St. Louis to St. Paul. For information about the system, or tickets and maps, apply to your home agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, St. Paul, Minn.

A Bad Attack.—Bell—"Was Jones seasick coming over?" Pell—"Terribly! We were three hours ahead of the record at one time, and he didn't take the slightest interest in it."—Puck.

The Judge—"I will sentence you thirty days in the workhouse and a bath." Woeful Smithers—"Say, jedge, couldn't you make it sixty widout de wash?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Peggy—"Now, I've told you all about it, and I want to know what you'd do if you were in my shoes?" Mary (with a glance at Peggy's feet)—"I wouldn't stir out till I had got a pair four sizes smaller."

THE OLD DINNER PAIL.

I found it all stowed away up in the attic,
And covered with rust; it had long been unused;
I tenderly polished its battered old cover,
And over the sweet days of childhood I mused.

I lifted the handle; how well I remember
Its cheerful old squeak as I swung it along,
While happily off to the schoolroom I wandered,
When care seemed a vision and life but a song.

My childish companions, I see them before me
Assembled for lessons as in the old days.
I see the dear brother—what, was that a teardrop?
I felt it, but scarcely can see for the haze.

Ah! many a dinner we've tasted together,
My brother and I, from just under this lid.
I see the pail loaded with mother's good cooking,
And down at the bottom some sweet morsel hid.

Bah! how this dust chokes me! and when I look backward,
My life, too, seems empty and covered with dust;
For into it, since those too short days of childhood,
Great sorrows and trials have eaten like rust.

Go back now, companion old, into your corner:
You serve me no longer, your usefulness gone.
I'll banish you from me, with vain recollections,
For work is before me, and I must push on.
—Mayme Isham, in Good Housekeeping.

A MOSLEM MISSIONARY.

What He Did for an American Boy in Egypt.

The old Egyptian cemetery at Assiout is a desolate, sandy tract of land, with a desert stretching away on either hand. Each grave is furnished with double gravestones, placed as seats for the two recording angels, Munkar and Nekir. After death, say the Mohammedans, the soul stays with the body for four-and-twenty hours. During this time it is questioned by the spirits who descend, one bearing the book for the good, the other that for the evil deeds of the departed. When the answers are noted they rise, with the volumes, to the throne of Allah and, according to their contents, the soul is rewarded or punished.

The tombstones at first stand side by side, but in the loose sandy soil they soon sink and lean apart at various angles. No flowers grow there; no woman would even dream of coming to plant any there. Such as it was, however, it had a visitor in the person of an old, blind beggar. Ibrahim had not always been poor and forlorn. He had once been a prosperous dragoman wearing gorgeous apparel and earning much backsheesh by guiding English and American tourists through his native land. Now he was dependent upon the charity of those pious believers who daily distributed bread to the needy from the doors of the mosque.

Ibrahim loved the graveyard. He felt more at home there than in the town of the living outside its walls. So many of his old friends were here. They were all gone into the other world, some in battle with the Berbers or the Sudanese, some from old age, some by pestilence, some by famine, which ever waits to devour the fellah when, by chance, the Nile fails to give sustenance to his poor little strip of arable land. Only he was left of all his generation. He loved to wander from one stone to another. Occasionally he stopped to recall the past, to hold an imaginary conversation with some shade, to give some piece of news and fancy its effect upon the visionary audience. He would often go home quite cheered and refreshed by the companionship and feeling less lonely. One only, and he the dearest, was absent. Whether he lay beneath ocean waves, or under drifting Libyan sands, or in a far-off country, Ibrahim never knew; but it was his only son, his firstborn child, he whose birth had been hailed with much rejoicing. The ceremonies had been observed in due form—the household festival on the seventh day, when the sweetened water was dropped in the baby's mouth to give it a pleasant foretaste of life's gifts; the forty bowls of water poured upon its head upon the fortieth day. The lad had been put under the care of a wise fakir and carefully instructed in the faith of El-Islam; but, in spite of everything, he had proved a renegade, idle and worthless; even, it was whispered so vile as to learn from Christians to drink the forbidden fiery waters which destroy not only the body but the soul as well.

Yes, there was no doubt that he was a bad son, and, when he finally ran away with a caravan of wandering Bedawin, the bazar felt that fate had dealt kindly with Ibrahim. But he himself thought otherwise, for his soul yearned after his troublesome child; and even now, after so many long years, his works of supererogation, his observance of extra hours of prayer besides the ordained five, his visit to the Weli, or tombs of saints, his offerings of ostrich eggs in the mausoleums and scraps of cloth fastened to the surrounding trees, were always performed with the hope that they might somehow benefit that son, for whose sake, when the trump of Israfil should sound, he himself would be content to fall from the razor bridge of El-Sirat into the abyss below, provided only the soul of his boy might be borne across to rest beneath the shade of trees with the houris of Paradise. To his deceased wives, nine in all, he seldom gave a thought, but, for Ali's sake, scourged his poor worn back and stood for hours in the broiling sun; for Ali he roused himself to pray at midnight. He always made one of the blind men who walked behind a bier to chant the creed while the boys followed to sing the "Hashriyeh," the poem of last judgment, and the mourning women wailed behind. And he loved to listen to the burial prayer: "O, Allah! forgive our living and forgive our dead. Pardon those who are present and those who are absent."

On the afternoon in question the old man felt more weary than usual. In his wanderings through the bazar he had, by chance, heard of a certain stranger who lay ill at a miserable hostlery on the outskirts of the town. He had staggered in, no one knew from what place, late one night in a dazed and sunstruck condition and had speedily grown too ill to make himself intelligible. He was young, and evidently a Frank of some sort; but there were none but natives in Assiout during the hot season of September, and no one to look after a sick stranger, especially as there seemed a probability that he might be suffering from cholera. So old Ibrahim felt his way into the mud hut one baking afternoon to sit by the sufferer, to give him water and keep away the torturing flies. From that hour he tended him continually. In his long intercourse with Anglo-Saxons he had grown wise in their speech, and he knew that the wandering accents were American.

He sat patiently, through long, broiling days, not so much from compassion as from the hope that always shone before him that his good deeds might be set down to the account of his lost son. But no Christian mother could have been more faithful and tender than the ignorant, superstitious, fanatical old follower of the prophet. Love works to the same end through devious channels.

Whether from the care of Ibrahim or from his own strong constitution, the young American struggled back to life and to a long, fretful, restless convalescence. He brought forth a small stock of money, enough to pay the tavernkeepers; but Ibrahim went unpaid, because, though he did not know it, the stranger was waiting until he could communicate with his consul.

It was beginning to grow cooler. After a long rest in his favorite resort Ibrahim felt refreshed, and strolled cheerfully back, receiving greetings from the neighbors as he went. "To tend the sick and stranger is to do the will of Allah," said they, approvingly; and their praises were grateful to his ears.

There was little else to reward him. His patient was not one who had learned much from life in the lessons of unselfishness and self-control. But even on him it began gradually to dawn that this oriental patience and courtesy was something surprising and beyond anything that he had a right to expect.

"Ibrahim," he asked a few days later, "when you pray, what do you say?"

The old man flushed. "I speak with Allah, howadji," he answered with simple dignity.

"Oh, see here! I know you don't like to talk about your faith to unbelievers; but I'm not meaning to be impertinent. I really would like to know very much."

The old man bowed his head.

"I say many things, howadji, and different things at different hours. I recite the names of Allah, and I always repeat El Fatiha." And in a low voice he recited:

"'In the name of Allah, the Merciful and Gracious. Praise to Allah, the Lord of all creatures, the Merciful and Gracious, the Prince of the Day of Judgment! We serve thee and we pray to thee for help. Lead us in the right way of those to whom thou hast shown mercy, upon whom no wrath resteth, and who go not astray. Amen.'

"H'm!" said his hearer, as the sonorous Arabic fell upon his ears. "Now if it was in New England, we would call that a pretty good sort of prayer." And he became thoughtful.

December came in, cool and refreshing. The sick man began to get about again. He was much gentler in manner, and showed symptoms of gratitude. He had not been able to convince himself of the soundness of his own views of Ibrahim's mercenary motives. They talked much together.

"To-morrow is a great feast in my country," he remarked, as they sat and sunned themselves in front of the dom palms.

Ibrahim nodded. "Yes, I remember. It is the birth of Issa. We also honor him as a prophet, but not as you do. But often I have heard of him, and sometimes the traveling people have told me stories from your book. There was one tale," he added, wistfully, "that I would like to hear again. We have none like it. It was of a son who went away from his father, far off into a strange country, but he came back."

The other did not speak for a moment.

"The prodigal son," he said, at last. "Yes, I know it. I have a Bible in my bag; I'll read it to you, if you like."

"Thanks, howadji," answered Ibrahim, gratefully. "Yes, gladly would I hear the tale again."

The young man fetched a volume out of the hut, and sat down under the shade of the palm tree. "A certain man had two sons," he began, and he read it through to the end. He looked rather strange when he finished. "What on earth made you ask for that just now?" he said.

"Howadji," answered the old man, simply, "I had a son. It was long ago. He left me one day, and I heard of him no more. The will of Allah be done."

"And you mean to say that you remember him still—that you miss him after all these years?"

"Yes, truly, howadji," said the other, in surprise. "A father does not forget his son."

"But suppose he was no credit to his father; suppose he had been wild and troublesome. Wouldn't he have worn out your patience after awhile? You might have been glad to lose track of him, and it would have been an unpleasant surprise to get him back."

"No," answered the other, patiently; "he would still be my son. Always my heart would roam the earth seeking him; but the dead come not back."

"They do sometimes," muttered the young man.

He rose and walked up and down. "See here, Ibrahim, I've been pretty near death lately. I could easily pretend that I'd passed over the line. I feel rather like a ghost as it is. Now what's the use of a ghost coming back to vex the people who thought him safely dead? He'd much better go back and keep himself out of sight somewhere in the African forest. There's plenty of room for ghosts in there; and it isn't such a bad place."

"My son, my son," and Ibrahim rose and leaned upon his staff. His long, white beard swept his brown breast, his white hair waved beneath his green turban. He was a venerable and imposing figure. "My son, life lies before you. You have gone but a little way, and, if it was not well, yet there is time to make it right. Hear the words of an old man. Go back to your home, and to those who wait and look for you. Do good, not evil. And may Allah grant you find the way of peace."

The boy was silent a minute, and the sightless eyes could not see a certain mistiness in the other pair. "I'll do it, old man," he said, rather chokily. "I'll go back and have another try at it."

Ibrahim was an old man then, he is a very old one now. He is regarded with a certain reverence by the native population. He still wanders to the old graveyard, with feeble steps, and holds converse with the quiet inmates. The houris have rather faded from his mind, and he takes but little interest in the gardens and musk-scented soil of paradise. Only he hopes that somehow, somewhere, some day, he will find his son again, and then all will be well.—Margaret S. Hall, in N.Y. Independent.

THE GING MURDER.

The Trial is Closed as Far as Testimony is Concerned.

Geo. W. Jenks, the Last Witness for the State, Created a Sensation and Caused Hayward to Lose His Temper.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 1.—Yesterday was devoted by the state in rebuttal of some of testimony of the defense. Attorney Nye was taken sick and only a short session was held in the afternoon.

M. J. Griffin testified that he was in the Hayward office the morning of Nov. 30, and saw both Adry and Harry there. This is the morning on which Adry stated that Harry threatened to kill him and on which both W. W. and Harry Hayward testified that Adry was not there. It was on this incident, or its absence, that the defense had intended to base its hypothetical question of insanity.

Blixt's attorney was then called and denied the story of the interview with Blixt in the jail as narrated by Maggie Wachter.

Sergt. Linchen and Patrolman Robinson told of shoveling the bloody sand where Miss Ging's body was found into the ditch near by.

Mrs. Jeanette Hale testified that the night of the murder she and her daughter were going to the theater, and when they were waiting to take the car they saw a man walking fast going towards Mr. Bartleson's residence. This was shortly before 8 o'clock. Mrs. Hale lives three doors from Mr. Bartleshn. She knew Harry Hayward, and thought it was he.

It will be remembered that on Harry's cross examination Mr. Nye asked him if he did not run in the direction of the Bartleson residence, and if he did not slip and fall, both of which accusations he emphatically denied.

Adry Testifies Again.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 2.—The state was occupied all of yesterday in rebuttal. Adry Hayward testified he was out riding with his wife the night of the hold-up and she testified the same.

Louis Gomach testified that Grindell was on Central avenue the night of the murder, nearly a mile from the place Grindell says he saw the buckskin mare.

James Ford, an aged cigar dealer, saw the buggy turn on First avenue and it drove steadily out toward the lake until out of sight, and not stopping, as Grindell testified.

Mrs. Mathes testified that she was in the dining room when Harry came in a few minutes after 7 o'clock the night of the murder, and that Harry left before she did. She and her husband arrived at their rooms at 7:20. Harry testified that he left the room at 7:22.

Dr. E. A. Dunsmoor and Dr. J. H. Dunn were called as experts to testify regarding the injuries in the head. They testified that, in their opinion, the injuries in the skull and cuts on the face might have been caused by the fall. Fractures of the skull were very diverse in their extent under circumstances apparently similar.

Wm. Jaeghe, a gunsmith, was called to produce a number of cartridges which would fit the Hayward revolver, each containing a bullet of a different weight.

Harry Gets Mad.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 4.—The last testimony in the Hayward case was given Saturday, and Harry Hayward, the cool and imperturbable gambler, who heretofore had stood everything brought against him without flinching, lost control of himself and broke out with a torrent of curses.

He had been aroused to a pitch of uncontrollable anger by the last words of the direct examination of the last witness called by the state. That witness was George W. Jenks, the well-known stock broker, and he declared without hesitation or uncertainty that he had seen Harry Hayward running across the vacont lot at the corner of Hennepin avenue and Kenwood boulevard at about 7:20 the night that Catherine Ging met her death. The words fell like a blast from heaven upon the defense. Before Mr. Frwin could recover himself, Harry Hayward, whose arms had been twitching and his face growing redder and redder as the witness proceeded in his account, burst out in a fierce denial when Mr. Jenks had reached the climax and spoke Harry's name.

"He's a liar! a liar out of whole cloth!" hissed Harry, with an expression of such fiendish rage that it is given to but few men to possess. All eyes were turned toword him, but he relaspsed into his chair, saying not a another word, but carrying upon his countenance such a look of indellible rage that those who saw it will never forget it. Throughout the remainder of Jenks' testimony Harry never took his eyes off him, continuing to glare at him like a wild animal that has received a death blow it cannot resent.

At noon there was another fearful scene. Judge Smith had hardly left the room when Harry turning to Erwin, began a terrific onslaught on Adry, who had listened to the portentious testimony giving by Jenks with a smile that seemed closely akin to enjoyment.

I know," said Harry, fiercely, "I know enough to send that fellow to Stillwater for twenty years, outside of this affair.

"Be quiet," pleaded Erwin, "it won't do any good."

"By G——d I am going to swear out a warrant for that damned rogue this afternoon. I can send him to Stillwater. I have been saying nothing and taking everything all through this trial, but I've had enough of it. If he's loose, why I am going to tell the story. I guess I'll give it to the newspapers right now."

"No, no; sit down and stay quiet," answered Erwin. "There's nothing to be gained by swearing out warrants now anyway. Wait a little; our turn will come."

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 26.—The real work of the senate was done in committee. The bill for the sale of the state elevator at Duluth was recommended for passage. The capitol appropriation bill was amended to pay the architect a lump sum and favorably recommended. The bill declaring express companies common carriers was sent to the judiciary committee to make sure of its constitutionality.

Senator Young called up his bill to provide for seed grain loans to farmers, and moved its passage under the suspension of the rules. The bill does not appropriate any money, but makes available an unexpended balance of $42,500 from the appropriation of 1893, which Senator Young believes to be ample for all seeds and which amount is now in the treasury to the credit of the seed grain loans. The bill provides for the repaying of the loans within one year. The bill was passed.

The morning and afternoon sessions of the house of representatives were marked by a few warm debates and the introduction of two resolutions of a sensational character. Mr. Douglas offered a resolution for the investigation of the disposal of public lands. The resolution declares that the state has been deprived of upwards of 14.0 acres of valuable land. Mr. Staples' resolution provides for the regulation of egislative junkets. Mr. Staples declared that n the Stillwater trip servant girls were taken along. The following senate bills were passed: Relating to foreclosed mortgages; relating to he offices of county auditors and treasurers; to amend chapter 74, general laws of 1883, entitled a military code; relative to Russian thistle; to authorize the division of towns

ST. PAUL, Feb. 27.—The senate made up for its junket to the state university in the morning by holding sessions in the afternoon and evening. Dunham introduced a resolution calling upon the judiciary committee to decide the constitutionality of the drainage bills and Senator Keller introduced a resolution regarding the holding of land in excess of 5,000 acres by corporations. Senator French introduced a bill providing for county options for the sale of liquor. Other bills were: Making valid insurance policies although premium rates are not paid when due; to create the office of commissioner of immigration.

When the house convened the secretary of the senate refused to concur in house amendments to the bill supplying seed grain to farmers A committee of conference was appointed.

Four bills were passed out of the 30 on the calendar, as follows:

Relating to unknown depositors at banks.

To amend chapter 148, general laws, 1881, relating to preferred creditors.

Relating to place of trial of civil actions.

To regulate the use of nets in international waters.

Three contestants for seats in the legislature presented their claims for payment by a bill, fathered by the committee on elections. It carries the following amounts: John J. Furlong, $2,462.25; John D. Allen, $2,140; Alexander Chisholm, $816.98.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 28.—When the Duluth normal school bill was reached in the senate a warm fight ensued and the bill was lost by a vote of 16 to 21. Senator Masterman introduced a bill placing storage and warehouses under the laws of the state. Senator Sperry introduced a measure applying the Australian ballot system to the matter of granting liquor licenses. And Senator Ilitis' bill provides for the issuance of liquor licenses at summer resorts for $250. The following bills were passed: Relating to the drainage of wet lands; to prohibit the aiming of fire arms at a human being; proposing an amendment to the constitution relative to the elective franchise, and the Gibbs resolution asking that the old Fort Snelling buildings be ceded to the state

In the house a petition was presented asking for the impeachment of Judge Ives, of the Fourteenth judicial district. Mr. Dressel introduced a resolution calling for an investigation into the disposition of the $150,000 appropriated for the World's fair exhibit. The following bills were passed: Providing for depositing in court money, property or effects for which there are adverse claimants; relating to jurisdiction of justices of the peace; relative to criminal offenses committed by corporations; to protect owners of bottles, etc., used in the sale of soda and mineral waters; relating to terms of court in Fourth judicial district; relating to sale of cigarettes, etc.; relating to justice practice in St. Paul; relating to jurisdiction of justices of the peace in certain cases requiring publication of annual statement of villages, towns, etc.; relating to the bonding of school houses in districts in cities; relating to disposition of the license money of villages.

ST. PAUL, March 1.—In the morning the senate united with the house in the hall of the latter for the presentation of the picture of Gen. Geo. Thomas to the state. The presentation was made by Gen. Johnson, of St. Paul, and Senators Stevens and Morgan replied on the part of the senate, and Messrs. Robbins and Gibbs spoke for the house. In the afternoon the senate went into committee of the whole and after a session of routine work adjourned until Tuesday.

In the house the bill providing for the opening of certain waterways in the Red River valley was passed by a vote of 79 to 18. The bill to establish certain monuments and the one relating to highways were also passed. The following bills were introduced: To abolish boards of public works and vest their powers in common councils; to extend the limits of independent school districts; to provide for the taxation of all personal property; to amend the laws relating to inheritances. The house again voted down the Scofield resolutions providing for a recall from the senate of H. F. 51 the bill transferring $50,000 from the school text book fund to the internal revenue fund.

ST. PAUL, March 2.—The house only was in session today. In the morning Mr. Dressel called up his resolution for investigating the world's fair commission. Mr. Furlong, one of the commission, advocated the adoption of the resolution, saying that vouchers for all money expended had been filed with the state treasurer. The discussion became quite animated. The motion to indefinitely postpone was carried by a storm of ayes. The following bills were introduced: Relating to organization of counties; for the relief of delinquent taxpayers; relating to cruelty to animals; to provide for a county road and bridge fund. The afternoon was spent in committee of the whole.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 4.—As soon as the house resolved itself in a committee of the whole, Zier's bill for the abolishment of capital punishment was taken up and after a warm discussion was killed. Bills were introduced to prohibit the practice of "blacklisting" and to require deposit and trust companies to give bonds. The following bills were passed: Relating to the incorporation of villages; relating to town insurance companies; regulating the employment of children; relating to roads, fixing posts and monuments; relating to the descent and distribution of the estates of adopted children. The bill allowing judges to fix the time of courts was defeated.

THE GENTLER SEX.

THE news of the engagement of the crown prince of Naples to Princess Maud of Wales is confirmed.

MISS E. V. CORNELIUS, of Philadelphia, has devised a new way to be of service to her sex and make a living at the same time. She is a "professional marketer."

YVETTE GUILBERT has met with her first check at Naples. The Neapolitans, who expected to see her dance the can-can, covered with diamonds, hissed her off the stage.

TADZU SUGITE is the name of a Japanese young woman who has been studying in Wellesley college for three years and who is now teaching in Osaka in a Christian school for girls.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX is an untiring patron of manicurists, givers of facial massage, chiropodists and shampooers. She says she believes on principle in being as good looking as she can.

MRS. PARET, the wife of Bishop Paret, of Maryland, is a friend of the birds. She is trying to form a society in Baltimore the members of which will be pledged not to wear any feathers on their hats except ostrich feathers.

Without Labor.

Mr. Spriggs was complaining because so much effort was required in succeeding even so poorly as he did.

"Well," exclaimed Mrs. Spriggs, "did you ever get anything without working hard for it?"

"Yes, I have," he said, discontentedly.

"Oh, I guess not," insisted Mrs. S.

"But I know I have."

"What was it. I'd like to know?"

"A bad cold, my dear," and Mr. Spriggs took heart again and smiled.—Detroit Free Press.

--Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

--Tomorrow will be regular Fair Day in Delano.

—Maple syrup will soon be in the market if the present weather continues.

—An enterprising farmer was heard the other day enquiring where he could get some good sorghum seed.

—Don't forget to vote at Tuesday's election and do your whole duty as a citizen of this great country.

—Whichever party is defeated at the people's caucus usually comes up on election day with a new ticket, and often wins, or succeeds in knocking out the best men on the other ticket.

—The Litchfield Independent has a "flood of legal advertisements" this week. No less than eight mortgage sales among the rest Is the country to be turned over to the money loaner? Or is the cow and creamery craze going to redeem it?

—The Farmer's Band, under the tutelage of Prof. Bohn, propose to do their best to hold their own with the village boys. With a weekly concert by them in the band stand and one by the Delano band there would be lots of music.

—Ancka has passed an ordinance similar to the Stillwater law on that subject, requiring all persons under sixteen to be at home at 7 P. M. That is the proper place for them, but there are many older grown that are as much in need of some such ordinance in most towns.

—The Litchfield Independent claims that the creamery in that place has nearly reached the 20,000 mark for a single day's delivery. And that the one likely to be built in Union Grove soon, will be the tenth co-operative creamery in Meeker county. It also quotes from the Hutchinson Leader that at that place the co-operative creamery is reciving about 3000 pounds of milk and turning out 900 pounds of butter a days and warns them not to make too much, as a couple of men in Iowa were taken up under the oleo law and fined about $1200 for making too much butter out of a given quantity of milk.

—As usual the Republicans of our village and township have called caucuses calling them people's or citizen's caucuses and expect enough of the Democratic majority to attend them and get one or two places on the ticket and help elect the whole ticket, and as usual, it will be found after election that the republicans have the majority of voters among the officers elected, if democrats enough help them, and can do as they please, and appoint republicans and favor them wherever possible. If they were not so clannish as they always prove themselves, there would not be a chance to say so much. Look at our village authorities for the past couple of years, a democratic town with a republican board. Look at the school district, every man of six on the board, republicans, until last year, when it was found necessary by the wire-pullers, to trade off for one democrat in order to save the chief. Don't be fooled by such bait any longer, but nominate a ticket that will have the respect of all. A straight ticket that will attend to matters as they should be. Our town deserves good officers, and there are good men enough in either party to fill them, without allowing a lot of schemers from both parties to come together in caucus and place in the field a ticket that is not satisfactory, and that but for the trading and trafficking of candidates will not be elected.

—Read the report of the creamery meeting, on the first page.

—Dell Young is putting up a fine lot of ice for summer use.

—Look out for a total eclipse of the moon on Sunday evening according to the almanac's calculations.

--Rev. Webb with a portion of his vested choir, will hold Episcopal services on Monday evening.

—Lambert & Williams, players, have engaged the City Hall for next week beginning Monday evening with "Miralda."

—At the Presbyterian church, 10:30 A. M., Rev. Davies will preach on "Foreign Missions and the Prosperity of Home Church."

—Miss Hattie Gross was surprised on Friday evening last, by her Sunday school class, of the M. E church. The little folks all report a very pleasant time.

—The Ladies Aid supper at the City Hall last night was an enjoyable affair. The tables were kept running for quite awhile and a neat little sum was realized.

—Lambert & Williams Co., will give free tickets for ladies accompanying a person holding a paid reserved seat ticket to their entertainment on Monday evening.

—The Roosen Opera House has been straightened up, repapered, supplied with electric lights and will be opened soon as a grocery by our enterprising young townsman, W. D. Young.

—It is to be hoped that our village won't be led around by the nose into establishing for itself a bonded indebtedness equal to that of our school district and under the same "financier."

—We understand that enough has been subscribed by Delano business men to place the Delano Cornet Band on its feet again; and soon as it is warm enough look out for "music in the air" "music everywhere."

—A couple of our village boys went to see about enlisting in the regular army a few days ago. They found Uncle Sam much more particular about who should be numbered among his soldiers than they had anticipated.

—From the Financial Statement of the village it appears that the Treasurer had the handling of $15,273 55; and has now on hand $168.10. The best men in town should be elected to look after the interests of the village.

—Mrs. Emma Shaw received a letter this morning from Mrs. Luther Cunningham which says Mr. C. is quite low, is paralyzed, and has not spoken for three weeks. They have the sympathy of many friends in this their former home.

—Notices have been posted for the election of village officers; also of township officers, on Tuesday, March 12. Caucuses have been called. Attend your caucus and help place in nomination good men, and then be on hand Tuesday to help elect them.

—Mr. C. G. Roosen is going to build and equip the creamery himself and it will be a success.—Eagle.

Good. That's the way to do business. These concerns that can't run without a chance to suck a village teat are about as well out of town as in it.

—During a session of the Christian Endeavor society recently, some one is said to have removed the key of the Presbyterian church from the door, and not long afterwards a couple of wood-boxes full of wood were missed. The persons engaged in that kind of business had better change their vocation at once, and if possible make restitution.

—Several towns throughout our state appear to have been living too fast and are advocating retrenchment. Duluth used to vote aid to brass bands, now the bands have to hold concerts to raise their funds. St. Cloud has been improving her streets until she is no longer able to meet her bills, and having issued bonds for the $20,000 limit is obliged to not accept bids for building a culvert for which they had advertised. The Times advises economy on every line until the debts are paid and says in order "To bring this about the tax payers must see to it that men who are elected aldermen are competent and intelligent."

—Superintendent Lee, of Annandale, held Teachers' Examination at the School House on Tuesday and Wednesday. Twenty-five teachers were enrolled as follows:

From Delano, Viola B. Cunningham, Hattie Gross, Erma Beryl Wilder, Roy F. Wilder, Sophy Soshnik, John Steffes, George Kurtz, Hattie Burns, Rudolph Pickruhn, Rosa Belt, Estella Davis, Robert E. Sturman, Maggie Ethyl Cadwell, Anna F. Maxfield, Olive Mae Johns.

Montrose, Maggie G. May, Dede Franey, Elsie Belden, Addie Denoon, Anna Schumacher.

Waverly, W. Sidney Belt, John Newman.

Maple Plain, Amanda Johnson, Oscar L. Nelson.

Rockford, Elwin Guptil.

Personals.

Dr. Shrader visited Buffalo on Wednesday on pension business.

W. Sidney Belt, of Woodland, was in town the fore part of the week.

August Sieloff has secured a situation with the new up-town grocery store.

Mrs. Hattie Frazier went to Benson on Tuesday to visit her father's family.

Frank Nelson, of the Kalespiel fire company, is visiting the Delano boys this week.

J. B. Light, of Watertown, came up on this morning's train on his way home from the cities.

Mrs. Timothy Gleeson is entertaining a Mr. and Mrs Gleeson from Minneapolis, for a few days visit.

Miss Julia Cunningham, after a few weeks' visit at home, returned to the Flour City Tuesday evening.

Mrs. J. E. Brothers was called on Tuesday to Austin, to be with her mother, Mrs. Neil, who is quite sick.

Rev. Cawley, of Watertown, passed through town quite early this morning; on his way home from Darwin.

Miss Emma Cruikshank came home on Tuesday from Minneapolis. She is to teach in the Welker district again this summer.

Leon Frazee and wife have returned from Alexandria where they spent the winter, and are at home to their friends once more.

Fred Dow and wife left on Tuesday for their new home, Franklin, Simpson County, Kentucky. They have the good wishes of many friends.

County Superintendent Lee left on Thursday after visiting the Delano school a short time, for Howard Lake where he is holding an examination.

Mr. Blatz, father of Mesdames Dyer and Cramer, celebrated his 90th birth day at the home of the latter. He entertained the folks with several songs.

Emery Cunningham, Delano's representative at the State University, came home Tuesday evening for a couple of day's lay off, having stood above 85 in his studies.

(Handed in.)

Mrs. Sam Kimmens returns this week to her home in Minneapolis.

Mr. Walters, of Rockford, visited his nephew J. H., of Independence, Friday.

August Kunkle visited Rockford friends, Sunday.

Miss Emma Zabel and son visited her brother, Ernest, Sunday.

Some of the boys and girls found the new crop of ice rather thin in spots last Sunday and got wet feet and bad colds of course.

Val Stoltz has joined the list of GAZETTE readers; he is bound to keep up with the times.

Some of the farmers are wishing for more snow, but they are afraid they wont get it; they will have to haul their logs on trucks.

County Cullings.

As usual the Eagle is not pleased with the new County Commissioners. Evidently the Old Bird can't "run 'em."

The Rockford correspondent of the Buffalo Journal after citing Rockford's experience and Monticello's recent failure in the business says, "If Mr. Roosen wants a creamery the farmers of Delano had better let him build it."

The creamery craze has struck the Swede end of our county in great shape. According to the Cokato Commoner creameries are to be built in Stockholm and at Cokato. With the usual enterprise of these people they are likely to prove successful. John L. Gibbs was announced to lecture at Cokato, on Saturday, concerning creameries.

The Buffalo Journal is authority for saying that Senator Culkin had as his guests at Buffalo Senator Young and his wife last Sunday week; and that Senator Young is one of the leading men of the state; is the man who nominated Knute Nelson for the United States Senate. Now what in the world can Senator Culkin, a Washburn man, want with such a guest over Sunday?

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Artistic Type indicates a man with great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine proposes especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 21 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $30,000; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and investigator of life, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which is latent in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tips, those traits which belong essentially to the softer sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and you will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

LAST Friday we announced to our readers the report that Harry Hayward had been found guilty of murder in the first degree. On Monday Judge Smith pronounced sentence on the young man, to be hung until dead. The usual process of trying for a new trial, and appealing to the Supreme Court will be gone through with, and failing in these the prisoner will be obliged to suffer the penalty of the law.

MINNEAPOLIS is fast obtaining the reputation of being as bad a town as Chicago. The Harry Hayward murder trial is but just finished when two more arrests for murder have been made. At a birthday party, after drinking, a row was engaged in and Max Piegert was stabbed, and has since died. Paul Kleinschmidt was arrested for doing the deed. Nicholas Bodvin, 17 years old, is under arrest for shooting his father in the head, killing him. He claims self defense.

AN effort is being made by Minneapolis to secure the Republican National Convention again. They are holding out inducements. Denver is a lively competitor. It remains to be seen which, if either will be honored. St. Paul is after the democratic National Convention, with very good reasons for believing she may secure it. Minnesota clearly is a pivotal state to be in the race for National Conventions. Both parties, of course, hope to influence enough voters to swing the state into line for their respective parties. It is more likely to be the democratic convention held in Minnesota this year than it is to be that of the G O. P.

THE Morning Call seems to take particular delight in abusing Dr. Zier, the member of the Legislature from Minneapolis, who knows something of the evils abroad in our land under the system of selling patent medicines, containing deadly poisons; and the harm done to the health and lives of our citizens by depending on remedies no better than so much water, while diseases undermine the health of some and spread to others, and who is trying to remedy the evils. Why don't the Call give some better reason for the sale of patent medicines than the fear of the great rich firms withdrawing their advertising patronage from the state? Is it possible that St. Paul is getting so hard pressed that their papers need attack every bill a Minneapolis man offers in the Legislature; even though it be in the interests of the health of the whole state?

PARENTS, teachers and others having charge of children can learn a valuable lesson from the Hayward case. It developed that this man, when a little boy, played marbles for keeps; then went on step after step until he learned to bet hundreds of dollars on a single game. That he never had a trade, or any steady work. That he had been sent to school and graduated at the University but his gambling propensities got the better of him and caused, as he lost, greater demands for money, until he was unable to supply himself, or get it from others as fast as he desired; he was finally arrested, and now is in jail awaiting the time, in a few short days, when, unless some unforeseen event occurs, he will be hung. Gambling and similar diversions should be discouraged and forbidden, to the very young, to school children and others. Every boy should have something to work at; to employ his moments in a useful occupation of some kind. Every girl should be taught to be a useful member of society. "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

Farmers complain that there is too much competition now in their ranks. The trouble isn't with competition, it is because they do not know how to make the best use of their opportunities. The Northwestern-European edition of the Minneapolis Times, which is soon to be gotten out by Col. W. E. Hadkell, may be a benefit or it may be a detriment. If it results in bringing diversified farmers here it will be of great benefit, but if only wheat raisers come, the price of this cereal will go even lower than now. However, as a matter of fact, most of those people to whom it will go are small farmers who make their living on 10 acres or even less and thrive at that. They are just the people wanted and will develop this country wonderfully. Nobody for a moment beleves that New York state is any less thrifty, nor are the farmers any poorer because every acre of land with but few exceptions, is used to the greatest advantage. The same is true of Minnesota. Good immigration is desirable and necessary to build up the state.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 8, 1895.

The new silver party was launched this week by the executive committee of the Bi-Metallic League together with the suggestion that ex-Representative Sibley, of Pa., who was elected to the Fifty-third Congress as a democrat and gained an unenviable notoriety by blackguarding a democratic President in one of the dirtiest speeches ever made on the floor of the house and who became an avowed populist long before the exoiration of his term, should be the nominee of the new party for the presidency. Sibley was given this distinction solely because he has money and is willing to spend it. As a matter of fact there is every reason to believe that the new socalled silver party is nothing more than a move to compel the republicans to nominate a Presidential candidate who, if not personally favorable to silver, will at least promise to sign a free silver bill, if he is elected and Congress passes one during the term. That's why a candidate was "suggested", instead of nominated. It was this suspicion that the new party is merely intended to be a tail to the next republican National Convention that has prevented such pronounced silver democrats as Bland, of Mo., and Bryan, of Nebr., endorsing it. They, and the silver democrats generally, believe it unwise for democrats to join a new party at this time, and expect that the platform of the next democratic National Convention will show the wisdom of that belief. Representative Newlands, of Nevada, is to be in executive charge of the headquarters of the alleged new party, which are to be established in Washington. Mr. Sibley let the cat out of the bag when he said that if the republicans would nominate Senator Cameron for President, the American Bi-Metallic part, that's the name of the new party—would support him. The only two Senators identified with the new party are Jones and Stewart, of Nevada, both of whom are devoted friends to Cameron. It looks like "the Cameron party" was the right name for it.

Hon. W. C. Gear, one of the five democratic members of the Ohio State Senate, is in Washington. He has this to say of the political situation in his state: "The unterrified democracy of the Buckeye State have never yet been dismayed, and will be found fighting with all the old-time aggressiveness when the next campaign is inaugurated. I very much desire to see Hon. Paul J. Sorg the nominee of our party for governor. He is the strongest candidate that could be put up and if there is a possibility of democratic success it is with Sorg to lead the ticket. His German descent makes him popular with the Teutonic voters. His standing with the laboring people is the highest. Paul Sorg has proved his friendship for the workingman in the most practical way. A large employer of labor, he has never cut down wages and his business has never suffered from strikes. The Ohio republicans are ranged in hostile factions, and if the bitter feeling between the partisans of Foraker and McKinley continues to grow in intensity, there will be a great chance for democratic victory."

"The court is happy to welcome an old acquaintance in a new relation", was the response of Chief Justice Fuller to Attorney General Olney's official introduction of Hon. Holmes Conrad, the new Solicitor General, to the Supreme Court at the opening of the case involving the constitutionality of the income tax. Attorney General Olney, Assistant Attorney General Whitney and Solicitor General Conrad are defending the constitutionality of the tax, while opposed to them are a round dozen of the most prominent lawyers in the United States. The greatest interest is felt in this decision. About fifteen years ago the Supreme Court decided the old income tax to have been constitutional and the impression among laymen is that it will so decide again, but it must not be forgotten that there has been an almost entire change in the personnel of the court since that decision was made.

There is considerable speculation about that monetary conference, which as yet is only among the probabilities. It is expected that the call for it if issued at all, will come from Germany. It will be entirely discretionary with President Cleveland whether he accepts the invitation for this country to participate, but there is no reason to doubt his acceptance. It is not certain that the three commissioners to be selected by the President will be named until the invitation to the conference has been issued and accepted. The six commissioners named by the Senate and House—Senators Jones, of Ark.; Teller, of Colo.; and Daniel, of Va., and Representatives Crisp, of Georgia, Culbertson, of Texas, and Hilt, of Ill. are, with the exception of Mr. Hilt, all silver men.

Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle were much disappointed at being prevented at the last minute by important official business from accompanying President Cleveland on his hunting and fishing trip.

Woman's Column.

EDITED BY MRS. E. A. STACY.

The liquor papers are having lots of sport over Bishop Tallim's saloon. But if you read between the lines you will find that they are not at all pleased with the new movement.

Mississippi is almost rid of the licensed saloon. During 1894 there were but 13 counties in which liquor was sold legally. The revenue tax was $107,600 last year; in 1893 it was $130,400.

The polyglot petition presented to President Cleveland, asking this nation and all other nations of the world "to raise the standard of the laws to that of Christian morals; to strip away the safeguards and sanctions of the state from the drink traffic and the opium trade and to protect our homes by the total prohibition of this curse of civilization throughout all the territory over which your government extends," has attracted the attention of the world. All sorts of comments have been made, many of them favorable, many of them the opposite. But it is a fact which cannot be gainsaid by the most pronounced enemy of the temperance cause that this immense petition containing 6,121,200 names, of which 771,200 are from this country, which written solidly one after the other would make six miles of names, has produced a profound impression upon the world and especially upon those occupying places of authority. The immediate results of this measure may not be apparent, but to one who is familiar with the processes by which great reforms become successful doubts that this great petition is to play an important part in the redemption of the world from the rule of rum and beer.

An effort is being made to get rid of drunkenness while sparing the drink. The effort always has and always will be a dismal failure. Drunkenness has its origin in drink. All experiences show that you can not have the drink without the drunkenness. It is drink, drunk, drunk. The only way to prevent drunkenness is to stop drinking.

When a christian is at peace with any sin in his own life, when he is reconciled to any evil habit, or becomes indifferent to anything in his own character which renders him unlike Christ, he is disloyal to his master. In like manner, when a citizen of the kingdom of God is at peace with any sin of society, becomes reconciled to any evil habits of the community, or indifferent to anything inconsistent with the full coming of God's kingdom on the earth he is disloyal to the kingdom.—Josiah Strong.

The churches seem to be a good deal of a factor in politics this year. In fact, the great movements for municipal righteousness owe their origin and impetus almost entirely to the churches. It has all been done, too, in a way illustrative of how the church is to reach all life. The churches have not been turned into political clubs, but they have been the source of the principles which, applied by the members in their municipal relations, have proved potent for political righteousness. It has been shown again plainly enough that in the spirit which inspires them and in the truths which they proclaim is the hope of cities and nations as well as individuals.—Chicago Advance.

How the Drunkard Began.

A man was once sitting in a saloon. He had an old battered hat on his head, a short clay pipe in his mouth, a dirty shirt and ragged clothes and down-trodden shoes on. But he had not always been like that; he had seen better days once. As he looked out of the saloon door he saw two tidy, clean children come for their father's beer. As soon as they were outside the door the little girl took a drink from the jug, while her brother waited patiently for his turn. The poor drunkard looked at them very sadly, and then said, with a sigh, "Ah, that's how I began, and I can't leave it off now."—Irish World.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

Let it be known to the dwellers in Mesopotamia, Judea, and Cappadocia that the Hayward trial is over; and the people of Minnesota and especially of Hennepin county feel a little more easy, for this has been a long and tedious trial and has required much painstaking in order that judgment might be done to all parties concerned. And now Hennepin county will have the consolation of paying for the prosecuting and convicting of one of the worst criminals ever brought before a court of justice. But there is an old father and mother who receive the news of guilt as a fire brand to the heart. There are many hard things in this world; it is neither a paradise nor a hell, but a school of experience and all are students and will graduate for weal or woe.

Must say we are in receipt of some good news, maybe a little stale by this time but it will pass, and that is that on the 4th of March Congress broke camp and adjourned at high noon by singing the Doxology. Think the rogues' march would be more appropriate; not because of its being a Democratic Congress, but because neither party as a whole did their duty as they should. Abraham Lincoln says "You can fool all the people part of the time and part of the people all the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."

Quite a good many attended the explosion of the Rockford magazine at School House Hall, Maple Plain, last Thursday evening.

MARRIED, in the town of Independence on Friday, Feb. 8th, by Justice R. M. Mills, Mr. Wm. Mills, Jr. to Miss Belle Lewis, both of Independence. The contracting parties are well and favorably known in this neighborhood. May their voyage through life be not like the Elbe that went down in mid ocean, but may it be a smooth and tranquil one, undisturbed by storm cloud or tempest. You have our best wishes for future happiness.

Some of our neighbors have got creamery notions, we understand. I would say that I do not consider myself well enough informed upon this subject to express an opinion as to its paying qualities but would certainly say nothing to discourage any industry that might be started. Our farmers think there is not much money in fifty-cent wheat. That is very true but we should raise a variety of stuff; wheat, oats, corn, rye, barley, hogs, etc. Some of our more enterprising farmers have even started or established a dog kindergarten. You can buy them at a fair price when they have become fully developed in mind and body. Each dog has a pedigree. This you buy and the dog is thrown in. The pedigree gives a history of his ancestors, tells how far he can scent a chicken roost at midnight and how many post mortems his grandfather held in his neighbor's sheep fold. Mr. Editor you will please excuse me for bringing up this subject, but it is a priveleged question and right on the line with other industries. Some of our farmers have gone out of sheep and others have gone into dogs. In the days of human slavery the blood hound was highly prized as a scenter to track runaway slaves, but in these days we have the canine for pleasure and sport.

J. N. Potter held meetings at Armstrong all last week and they say much good was accomplished. It is expected they will continue through the present week.

Robert Mills is still on the sick list. His father thinks of starting with him to Indiana or Tennesee this week.

There was an old and young folks party at Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Gould's last Friday evening. All had a pleasant time.

Some of the old ladies are talking of starting up the soft soap factories. This is a paying business, for there is no duty on soft soap, and then much of it will be needed to grease the track for '96.

Many people stood out doors last Sunday night for hours in their fur wraps, looking at the total eclipse of the moon.

BUFFALO NEWS.

Mrs. C C. Rice, wife of Representative Rice, called on Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Cronk last Sunday.

Mr. Wm. Covart spent two or three days in the Flour City this week.

Hon. C. G. Malgren, of Watertown, was transacting business at the Court House on Tuesday of this week.

S. R. Wells called on friends in the city a day or two last week.

We are pleased to say that the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wendell who has been quite sick with the Scarlet Fever for the past two weeks is much better and will be able to be out after the time of desquamation is over.

At the town caucus held in Dudley's Hall on Saturday last at 2 P. M. the following ticket was nominated: For Supervisors; Geo. Davis. chm., Frank Pitt, H. O. Helmar; Assessor, C. O. Taylor; Clerk, August Haffton.

About 60 of the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pitt gathered at their pleasant home about two miles east of town Monday evening, the event being the 10th anniversary of their wedding. Many useful and valuable presents were received and a general good time enjoyed by all. After a bountiful repast served by the ladies the company returned to their homes with many good wishes for the future welfare of the bride and groom.

The village ticket that was elected on Tuesday last is as follows:

President, C. E. Oakley, Trustees, Geo. C. Carpenter, W. H. Cochrane and A. Fremd; Recorder, S. M. Ash.

ST. MICHAELS.

President, John Lenz; Trustees, A Dehmer, F. Gutzwiller, H. Welter; Recorder, Jas. C. Neiss; Treasurer, J. H. Dick; Assessor, Jas. C. Neiss; Justices, Jas. C. Neiss, H. Dick; Constables, N. Georges, Theo. Aydt.

Senator Culkin introduced a bill to day which contemplates a general reduction in freight rates. His bill provides that in no case shall the rate charged exceed three-fourths of the rate now in existence.—Ex.

The Independent's political platform is as follows: Free coinage of silver; no bank issued paper money; goverment currency sufficient for business needs; tariff for revenue only; equal suffrage to both sexes with an educational qualification.—Litchfield Independent.

Something New.

A suggestion in printing and floriculture combined is to be found in that always welcome catalogue known as "Vick's Floral Guide." This publication for 1895 is out and is printed in 17 differently tinted Inks, with beautiful color plates. It tells much about flowers, gives points to those who love the garden, and presents a full list, with description and prices, of everything one could wish for vegetables, fruit or flower garden. Many pages of novelties, incased in a chaste coyer of silver and gold, are given. Unusual and astonishing offers, such as $300 for a new double Sweet Pea, etc., are made. Those who are interested in seeds or plants should send for a copy of Vick's Floral Guide to James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., and learn the many bargains which this firm is offering. The cost of the Guide is only 10 cents, which may be deducted from the first order.—American Stationer, Jan. 31, 1895.

The Woman's congress, at its national session in Washington, denounced the decoration of hats with bird plumage, the docking of horses' tails and the killing of seals for sealskin cloaks.

"The Pleasantest Way to Administer Cod Liver Oil," is the theme of a recent medical journal. Most people have found "the pleasantest way" is to administer it to some other fellow not in the family.

In the Chinese language the meaning depends more on the tone in which the word is spoken than on the word itself. The same word may have a dozen entirely different meanings, according to the tone in which it is spoken. This fact makes it difficult for foreigners to learn Chinese.

"Phylitsciepoma," with the accent on the "po," is the name of a new society organization at Newark, N. J., and Rev. Phœbe Hanaford is responsible for the preposterous title. It is supposed to mean: Phy for philosophy, lit for literature, scie for science, p for poetry, o for oratory, m for music, and a for art.

Gen. Booth has completed his tour of inspection of the Salvation Army in this country and gone back to England. While in America the general traveled 18,423 miles, addressed 340 meetings in eighty-six cities, and spoke to 437,000 people. He kept every engagement made for him by his advance agent except one, and then he was snowbound in the northwest.

The sixth international geographical congress will be held in London from July 26 to August 3 this year. The subjects under discussion will be: Mathematical geography; physical geography, including oceanography and geographical distribution; cartography, exploration, descriptive geography, historical geography, applied geography, including anthropo-geography and education.

Anomalous as it may appear, American cloth is being sold in the English markets and right in the center of the English cloth manufacturing districts. A representative of an American house has been buying English cloth in England and has at the same time been selling American cloth there. The American cloth is woolen stuff suitable for coatings and men's suitings. The English merchants pronounce it to be superior cloth for the grade.

In the United States marriage is by law only a civil contract. In the Catholic church and in Catholic countries marriage is regarded as a sacrament. In the case of the marriage of a Catholic and a Protestant it is the custom to have a civil marriage in addition to the ceremony performed by the clergyman. In the Castellane-Gould marriage this custom was complied with, and it was complied with in the interest of the woman rather than in the interest of the man. That is all there is to it.

A committee of the Nebraska legislature agreed to name the golden rod as the official flower of the state, and the Omaha World-Herald says of the choice: "It is a most wise, most beautiful and most satisfying selection. There is music in the soul of the golden rod, and the angels paused in their flights on missions of mercy and cheer giving to humanity in the long ago to listen to its sweet, sad song, and the stars and the music of the spheres joined their voices in the harmonious blending."

The largest publishing concern in this country is the national government, which turns out annually over 1,000,000 books, besides the Congressional Record. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, criticising these publications, says their principal characteristic is the lack of competent editorship. Speaking of the Congressional Record it says "it is the largest and stupidest daily paper in the world, edited by a set of rules and a shovel." The St. Louis paper is not far out of the way. The catalogue might be cut down one-half. A shovel and waste basket would be all that would be required.

The number of wrecks at sea and the consequent loss of life in January and February of this year were unprecedented. During those two months seventy-five vessels, including twenty-eight schooners, seventeen steamers, fourteen sloops, five barges, three barks, three brigs, two barkentines, two ships, and one pilot boat, were wrecked, with a total loss of 1,190 lives. Over half of these losses, or 644 lives, were occasioned by six disasters—viz.: Steamer Elbe, 332; steamer Port Nictheory, 120; ferry boat Terciera, 100; steamer Kingdon, forty; steamer Chicora, twenty-six; and steamer Initrahull, twenty-six.

The secretary of state has recently been informed that the original draft of the thirteenth amendment to the constitution abolishing and prohibiting slavery is in the possession of a Mrs. Clark, who resides in one of the suburbs of London. It is in the handwriting of William H. Seward, with alterations and corrections by President Lincoln. It was drawn in the early winter of 1864-'5 and adopted by congress on February 1, 1865. This original draft Mrs. Clark is willing to surrender to the government if formally requested to do so. It ought to be in the archives of the state department.

LATER NEWS.

Rioting.

New Orleans, March 12.—The levee was the scene of a bloody riot today, caused by ship agents bringing outside negroes to take the place of native white men. The police were powerless to check the mob. The excitement can only be compared to the Italian mob in 1892.

In the rioting in the vicinity of the French market, Jules A. Carribbeen, a shoemaker, was instantly killed, being shot through the head.

J. A. Bain, purser on the British steamship Engineer, was shot three times through the head and will die.

Robert Brooks, a white screwman, was shot through the head and will die.

Two unknown negroes were shot through the head. They jumped into the river and were drowned.

At Bienville street two unknown negroes were reported killed.

At the charity hospital four men are reported to have died from their wounds.

It is now positively known that four negroes are dead. One is T. Carribbeen. At the hospital are eight wounded. Of this number two are dying. They are Henry Brown, shot five times in the breast, and Joseph Mallard, shot in the forehead with a Winchester rifle. Mr. Bain, the purser of the British steamship Engineer, is being cared for on board of his vessel. His wounds are pronounced dangerous. The captain threatens to make the shooting of the purser an international affair.

Robert Aitkins, 40 years of age, residing on South Rampart street, received four wounds, the bullets being of small calibre. Aitkens stated that as soon as the firing began there was a number of policemen between the rioters and himself and Purser Bain, and they immediately fell flat on their stomachs behind the cotton bales. When questioned, every officer declared that he had not been detailed on the levee until after 8 o'clock.

A dispatch from Tampa, Fla., the 12th, announces that Taylor, the defaulting ex-treasurer of South Dakota, had been arrested at Vera Cruz, Mexico, to which point he had been traced by American detectives.

The steamer Alliancia, Capt. Crossman, arrived at New York the 12th. The captain reports that on March 8, while off the coast of Cuba, he was fired upon by a Spanish gunboat because he would not heave to and was pursued a number of miles.

SENTENCED TO HANG.

Judge Smith Pronounces the Doom of Harry Hayward.

The Jury Returns Its Verdict: "Guilty of Murder in the First Degree"—The Condemned Man Still Protests Innocence.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 11.—On the night of December 3 last Catherine Ging was murdered by Claus A. Blixt at the instigation of Harry T. Hayward, who at the moment the murder was committed was occupying a seat at the Grand opera house. Friday the jury, after it had settled down to rest after dinner, took one ballot and found Hayward guilty of murder in the first degree. Two hours later it filed into court and the verdict was read.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 13.—Harry Hayward was brought into court Monday morning to receive his sentence for the murder of Miss Ging. Judge Smith, after the usual formalities, sentenced him to hang three months from Monday. This will make the day of execution Monday, June 10.

CATHERINE GING.
[The murdered woman.]

"Hanged by the neck until you are dead." The words fell heavily on the ears of the listeners as Judge Smith pronounced the doom of Harry Hayward.

At 10:30 Judge Smith arose and motioned that the defendant be brought before him.

"Have you anything to say," asked the judge, "why sentence should not now be pronounced?"

Hayward cleared his throat, and with an effort replied: "Nothing, sir, except that I am innocent in spite of the twelve jurors."

Judge Smith then began his sentence:

"It is the most painful duty that ever devolved upon me," said he, "to pronounce the sentence of law upon you at this time. You have had, in my judgment, a fair trial. You have been assisted in the defense by remarkable legal talent.

"The jury have been carefully guarded and kept from the public, so that there was no possible chance that they should have been contaminated. I instructed them not to discuss among themselves the guilt or innocence or the testimony in the case of the final charge, and I am confident that they obeyed the order of the court. They were twelve men carefully chosen and of upright honesty, and they have had each one in his own mind independent of the others an opinion that you are guilty.

"In the judgment of this court this was a conscientious verdict of this jury. Although I am not favorable to capital punishment, as I told the jury in the charge. I am not responsible for it. I am here to obey the law in reference to it. It is with feelings that I wish I could avoid that I pronounce this sentence.

"It is ordered that you, Harry T. Hayward, receive punishment for murder in the first degree, of which you have been convicted, be taken from here to the county jail and after the lapse of a period of three calendar months from this day shall thereafter be taken to a place of execution fixed by the governor of Minnesota and at a time in his warrant set, and hanged by the neck until you are dead."

Harry sat down unmoved and was immediately taken back to the jail.

As Hayward left the courtroom for the jail "Hang him!" "Take him to the gallows!" "Yah-h-h-murderer!" and similar cries greeted him. There was no attempt at violence, though. All that had been well looked after, and there would have been prompt action in case anything of the kind had been attempted.

A moment later Harry Hayward was once more in his cell, with a death-watch doing duty at the door. Hayward accepts the inevitable, and expects to be hanged. In conversation with a reporter the condemned man said, with perfect coolness of manner:

"Hanging is not the worst, by a good deal It is as nothing compared to the stigma that a hanged man leaves behind him. I am innocent, but I have been convicted. That tells the whole story, so far as I am concerned now. I shall be hanged beyond a doubt in my own mind, but I shall go to the scaffold as I went to-day to my sentence. I have no faith in the result of a new trial. The evidence, as put in by the state, is too strong against me. Oh, no, its all over but the final ceremony. I fully expect to be hanged."

"Have you no hope at all in your own mind?"

"Well, there is the shadow of a chance, but it is scarcely more than a shadow. The perpetrators of this crime concealed their tracks well, and I have but one hope that the truth will come out. If Blixt is sentenced to death he will confess to the truth and exonerate me. Of this, I feel that it is but the vaguest possibility. He might not do it, but I think he would. Oh, no, I have no confession to make, other than that I am tired of this reviling and parading. I expect no new trial: hope nothing from it if I get one, and expect to be executed according to law. Good afternoon."

FIVE WERE DROWNED.

A Steamer Becomes Unmanageable in a Fog—Crashes Into a Bridge.

Cincinnati, March 9.—At 6 o'clock Friday morning the stern-wheel steamer Longfellow, of the Memphis & Cincinnati Packet company, left its landing at the foot of Main street and started for New Orleans. At 7 o'clock she struck the south pier of the C. & O. railroad bridge and sank in 40 feet of water. Five persons were drowned and one man is missing. He was undoubtedly drowned.

The real cause of the accident, it is said, was the fact that the boat, like the ill-fated steamer State of Missouri, was so unwieldy that she became unmanageable and the pilots were powerless to control her.

Negro Exodus.

Birmingham, Ala., March 12.—A special from Eutaw, Ala., says: Within about forty days 500 negroes have emigrated from Greene county to Mexico, and several hundred are now awaiting arrival of trains to take them away. They are sacrificing their mules, horses, cattle, etc., to enable them to go, and renters are leaving plantations they have leased for this year. Owing to the late date other renters cannot be obtained to make the crop. This means much loss to the land owners and to the railroads, as the corn and cotton will not be grown to freight away

BANDITS IN ADEL.

Many Citizens Are Injured and One of the Robbers Killed.

Des Moines, Ia., March 8.—Adel, Ia., the county seat of Dallas county, 22 miles northwest of here, was the scene of a bold bank robbery Wednesday morning, followed by the pursuit of the amateur bandits, the killing of one of them and the formation of an angry mob which surged about the county jail Wednesday night and threatened to have the life of the living robber. The funds of the bank were saved by the presence of mind of the cashier who, after receiving a load of shot in his body, swung shut the door to the vault and turned the combination. As a result of the battle which followed the attack on the bank, the flight and pursuit of the robbers, the following list of casualties is recorded:

Dead—Orlando P. Wilkins, a robber from Patterson, Madison county, Ia., aged 30, shot by pursuers.

Injured—S. N. Leach, cashier of the Bank of Adel, seriously shot in left shoulder and neck; C. D. Bailey, leading merchant of Adel, shot in left shoulder; J. M. Byers, prominent citizen of Adel, shot in the hand and arm; R. S. Barr, postmaster at Adel, shot in left arm; C. L. Simpson, a well-known citizen, and Cecil Dexter, a boy of Adel, slightly wounded.

The robbers were O. P. Wilkinsand C. W. Crawford, farmers living in Patterson. A little after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning they drove into Adel in a buggy. Leaving the rig a block away they went to the bank. Wilkins carried a repeating shotgun with six loads. They entered the bank just as Cashier Leach was taking the money from the vault. C. D. Bailey was in the bank at the time. Crawford remarked that they wished to make a deposit. Cashier Leach was busy at the time, but turned with the inquiry: "What is it?" As he did so he looked into the barrel of the shotgun held by Wilkins, who immediately fired.

Cashier Leach staggered and fell, but, rousing himself, flung the currency and gold on the counter into the vault and closed the door. Wilkins fired again, wounding Mr. Bailey. Then Crawford kicked in the door leading behind the counter and he and Wilkins scooped the loose silver into a sack. It amounted to $287. By this time Sheriff Payne, who was on the street, had his attention attracted and opened fire on the bandits.

They made a rush for their buggy, Wilkins firing as he ran and wounding the other citizens mentioned. The robbers started to drive southwest across the country. They were hotly pursued, the hastily collected posse being often within 200 or 300 yards of the fugitives. Many shots were fired, some of which took effect in the horses driven by Crawford and Wilkins.

After a chase of nearly 12 miles the wounded horses could go no further and were abandoned by the bandits, who separated at what is known as "Neal's Crossing." There Crawford secreted himself in a clump of timber, but was soon surrounded and surrendered. Wilkins took refuge in a barn, which was surrounded. To repeated orders to come out he made no reply. Then Crawford was forced at the point of a Winchester rifle to carry a can of kerosene, saturate a straw stack near the barn and start a fire. Wilkins did not shoot at his comrade, and when the flames closed about him made a break across the open space for the timber.

He had proceeded but a few yards when he fell pierced by a bullet from a rifle held, it is said, by a prominent farmer named Pritchard. Then the mob lost control of itself, and the body was riddled by bullets. The corpse of the dead robber and his living companion were later taken back to Adel, where Crawford made a full confession. He claimed that he had been forced into the job by Wilkins, who threatened to kill him if his nerve weakened. The two left Patterson Tuesday and spent the night with a farmer 5 miles from Adel.

LEAD FOR TRAMPS.

Officer Kills One and Wounds Two Others—Exonerated by Coroner's Jury.

Boone, Ia., March 12.—Between 2 and 3 o'clock Saturday morning the police were notified that a row was going on at the Chicago & Northwestern rail mill, in the eastern part of the city, and help was asked to quell the disturbance, which was almost a riot. The rail mill has long been a resort for tramps, who would congregate there and spend the night. Friday fifteen or twenty gathered and when night came they got a couple of gallons of alcohol and held a drunken carouse. Charles Elliott, the night foreman of the mill, was struck over the head when he tried to protect the company's property and knocked senseless. The tramps drove off the railroad men and the police were called upon for assistance.

The three policemen on night duty attempted to arrest the fellows. The tramps attacked the officers and the latter drew their revolvers. Officer Campbell, who was at the door of the engine-room, was attacked by the tramps in their efforts to escape, and he shot one through the heart, killing him instantly, another through the back, wounding him so seriously that it is believed he will die, and a third through the hand. Coroner Clark was notified and held an inquest over the dead man, County Attorney Holmes conducting the examination. After closely investigating the case, the jury brought in a verdict of justifiable shooting, and Officer Campbell was exonerated.

AMERICA'S PROTEST.

France Hears from Uncle Sam Regarding Prohibition of Beef Imports.

London, March 9.—The Times' correspondent in Paris say: Mr. Eustis, the United States ambassador, has presented an energetic protest against the order prohibiting imports of American beef. He affirmed that not a single case of disease had been noted either when the cattle were embarked or landed in France. The United States thinks the prohibition is a purely protective measure, and the question of disease was raised because it alone would justify the prohibition.

A Fiendish Mother.

Paris, Tex., March 12.—Mrs. Mary Caruthers and James Strange are under arrest here charged with the murder of the woman's two children, aged 4 and 11 years. Letters and other evidence in possession of the officers show that there was a conspiracy between her and Strange to murder the children and leave the country. She is about 35 years of age, and fairly good looking, while he is about 30, ignorant and uncouth.

A CHANGE IN THE WEATHER.

One Man Who Was Deceived by a Small Boy and a Big Thermometer.

Men were hurrying along with heads drawn as close to their shoulders as possible so as to get the benefit of all the coat collar they could and were slapping their hands and rubbing their ears while a thirty miles an hour wind was doing its best to make pedestrians think that the mercury stood at 50 instead of 5 degrees below zero. Attached to a post in front of a North side drug store was a thermometer. It was raised about four feet from the sidewalk. Hugging the post and standing directly under the big wooden case was a small boy, who was amusing himself by blowing on the bulb which contained the mercury. The boy looked so much like a continuation of the post that the big German who stopped to see how cold he ought to feel did not notice him.

"Huh! How is dis?" said the German, as he looked at the thermometer curiously after giving it a first cursory glance. "Huh! Tirty-five? Seem like it vas colder."

Unconsciously or otherwise he began to unbutton his coat and to loosen the wrappings around his throat.

"Und it get varmer some more," he added, as the mercury continued to rise in response to the small boy's efforts. "Must be de gold vafe don'd last much. Dis glimate make vun grazy. De babers say it vas sixteen degrees below und now it don'd freeze already."

Then he saw the small boy whose face had expanded into a broad grin at the result of his experiment.

"Ho! ho! ho!" laughed the German. "You play one yoke on me. It vas some more golder than I thought. Dat vas a good fool. Make me think it vas summer almost. Next time you don'd catch me again." And he went on down the street readjusting his wraps and chuckling to himself.—Chicago Tribune.

A Bank Failure.

AN INVESTIGATION DEMANDED.

A general banking business is done by the human system, because the blood deposits in its vaults whatever wealth we may gain from day to day. This wealth is laid up against "a rainy day" as a reserve fund—we're in a condition of healthy prosperity if we have laid away sufficient capital to draw upon in the hour of our greatest need. There is danger in getting thin, because it's a sign of letting down in health. To gain in blood is nearly always to gain in wholesome flesh. The odds are in favor of the germs of consumption, grip, or pneumonia, if our liver be inactive and our blood impure, or if our flesh be reduced below a healthy standard. What is required is an increase in our germ-fighting strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood and makes it wholesome, stops the waste of tissue and at the same time builds up the strength. A medicine which will rid the blood of its poisons, cleanse and invigorate the great organs of the body, vitalize the system, thrill the whole being with new energy and make permanent work of it, is surely a remedy of great value. But when we make a positive statement that 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption can, if taken in the early stages of the disease, be CURED with the "Discovery," it seems like a bold assertion. All Dr. Pierce asks is that you make a thorough investigation and satisfy yourself of the truth of his assertion. By sending to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., you can get a free book with the names, addresses and photographs of a large number of those cured of throat, bronchial and lung diseases, as well as of skin and scrofulous affections by the "Golden Medical Discovery." They also publish a book of 160 pages, being a medical treatise on consumption, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, which will be mailed on receipt of address and six cents in stamps.

Last year we commenced an elaborate plan of advertising, but before we were half through, OUR ADVERTISEMENTS DISAPPEARED. Why? Because WE WERE OVERWHELMED WITH BUSINESS. There was but one thing to do: withdraw the advertising and devote every energy to filling the orders with which we were flooded. This we did, and handled with reasonable promptness a most unprecedented year's business.

WITH ENLARGED FACTORIES, INCREASED FACILITIES, AND TWENTY BRANCH HOUSES FROM WHICH TO DISTRIBUTE OUR GOODS, WE CAN NOW CARE FOR ALL WHO COME. Last year we could not reduce prices because we were compelled in some way to limit the demand for Aermotor goods. We would have been satisfied with lower prices, but why create a demand which we could not supply? We have made the heaviest purchases of steel and material bought in America this year, and at unprecedented prices, and have made terms to dealers which enable them to make unprecedented prices.

In quality, character, variety, finish, and accessibility to full stock of goods and repairs, we are without competitors. In our plan of advertising last year, we proposed to furnish a feed cutter under certain conditions for $15. For reasons stated above we did not complete the advertising, and the feed cutter was not put out. We now propose to make amends in the following manner. We will announce in this paper our NEW ALL-STEEL VERY SUPERIOR FEED CUTTER, WORTH cash with order, f. o. b. Chicago. Only one to one person, he to furnish addresses of ten neighbors who ought to have something in our line. Cut, description and full information regarding it will appear soon.

$40 at $10

We especially desire to caution you against paying excessive prices for wind mill outfits. The temptation on the part of the dealer to overcharge is great. $10 added to the legitimate profit is the dealer. To be sure that you get the proper price and are protected, write us or your wants and you will be believers in low prices. Because of the prodigious output of our factories we are enabled to have special tools for each piece, and thus reduce the hand labor on it to merely picking up the material and laying it down again. So small has become the cost of labor put on the material which we sell that it is not worth mentioning. We have bought the largest dealers in material, of course, in the country, made up in the form of galvanized windmills, towers (tilting and fixed), tanks, pumps, etc. To such an extent has this become true, and to such an extent has the price of our goods taken on that account that unprecedented competition impossible), that FOUR LARGE WINDMILL CONCERNS ARE BUYING THEIR TOWERS OF US THIS YEAR. THEY DO IT BECAUSE WE MAKE THE ONLY ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE AND SAFE TOWER; BECAUSE THEY CAN BUY OF US CHEAPER THAN THEY CAN BUILD; BECAUSE WE ALONE ARE PREPARED TO GALVANIZE EVERYTHING AFTER IT IS COMPLETED, AND COMPLETE EVERYTHING EXACTLY RIGHT.

These concerns are wise, for, even though they may not furnish the best of wheels, the wheel will have the best of supports. Send to us your name and address, and those of your neighbors who may need something in our line, and thereby do us a good turn. The Aermotor Co. is one of the most successful business enterprises which has been launched in recent times. In succeeding advertisements will be discussed and made clear the lines on which that success has been worked out. It was done by a farmer's boy. ## WINTER BIRDS.

I watch them from my window,
While winds so keenly blow;
How merrily they twitter,
And revel in the snow!
In brown and ruffled feathers
They dot the white around,
And not one moping comrade
Among the lot I've found.

"Cheep! Cheep!" their tiny voices
Seem thankfully to say:
"A blessing to the Giver
We sing upon our way.
Though skies are dull and stormy,
To sigh would never do;
For He who sends the winter
Will send the summer too."

Have I a heart so thankful
For all that He bestows—
The sweet as well as bitter,
The snowflake and the rose?
Or do I sigh, impatient,
And thankless, at the gloom
That makes all brighter, sweeter,
The springtime's boundless bloom?

Ah, may I be as cheerful
As yonder winter birds,
Through ills and petty crosses,
With no repining words!
So, teaching me this lesson,
Away, away they go,
And leave their tiny footprints,
In stars, upon the snow!

—George Cooper, in S. S. Times.

STOLEN EVIDENCE.

NO ONE ever knew how it was first discovered that Miss Dinker was a kleptomaniac; but it was a fact, and people made the best of it. Old Miss Dinker was tolerably well off, or her habit of appropriating other people's property would have got her into trouble. But Cumminseed was used to Miss Dinker. When she visited the village store, and put a piece of tape up her sleeve, the watchful shopman added its price to her bill. When she took a neighbor's forks the neighbor sent a polite message to Miss Jane Dinker to have them restored; and Miss Jane, who was old Miss Dinker's niece, would find them up chimney or down cellar, and restore them.

Old Miss Dinker knew that she was deserving of blame in thus indulging her desire for stolen fruit, but as she often remarked when reasoned with, "she couldn't help it."

She was a generous old lady, too, and kindly, and if she taught Jane that man was a deceiver and that spinsterhood was blessed, she meant well.

Capt. Richard Murphy told another story when his ship lay in port, and he himself rested at a little hotel in Cumminseed. And Jane, won over by his merry voice and jolly ways, forgot her aunt's precepts, and one day ran away with him, leaving a penitent little note for her aunt and begging her forgiveness.

The old lady was naturally indignant, but when, three days after, the captain brought Jane back under his arm, established her in a beautiful little house, which he had purchased, and sent for "the old lady to make up," Miss Dinker relented, took tea with her niece and deigned to approve of her choice, and so the village scandal was silenced for awhile, and people called on Mrs. Capt. Murphy.

They lived together for five years in great contentment and a little boy was born to them, and all went prosperously; but at the end of that time the sword that always hangs by a hair over the head of a seafaring man's life fell at last. The captain's vessel was a wreck, and the captain and crew perished in mid-ocean, and Jane, after hoping against hope, and refusing to believe when no one else doubted, and listening night and day for a step that came not and could never come, accepted the truth at last and put on her widow's cap and took the awful truth in place of suspense, and tried to live and bear it for her boy's sake.

Then there came from some far-off place a man who proved himself the captain's brother and who claimed his property, alleging that Jane Dinker had never been married to John at all. Jane was furious, but she could only vow that a clergyman of the Episcopal church had married her. She could not remember the name of the church nor of its pastor, nor had she what the brother called "er lines." The marriage certificate, as she declared, the captain always kept among his private papers and had taken to sea with him. She advertised in a New York paper for the clergyman who had performed the service, but no answer came and finally the law and popular opinion declared that the widow had never been a wife and she was left poverty-stricken and helpless, and not a friend in the world but old Miss Dinker. She came out nobly.

Alas! all the rest of Cumminseed held a contrary opinion. They shuddered at the thought of having associated with such a creature, and wondered how she had dared to impose upon them so. They sent her to Coventry and tabooed her. I think some of the dearest creatures would have tarred and feathered her if they could. Jane Dinker had the comfortable Yankee pride of "respectability" in its Yankee sense strong within her soul, and this scorn quite crushed her. She hid herself from human eyes as much as possible, and went thankfully home with old Miss Dinker, whose income had grown smaller in these years, and who really showed great generosity in taking her disgraced niece to her bosom.

"AUNTY, ARE YOU COLD?"

And now that she had countenanced poor Jane and opened her house to her, she also had lost her friends, and people grew hard upon her.

"You'll tell your aunt, Miss Jane, that I shall proceed to law if I lose another spoon," said one angry matron, to whom Jane had been forced to speak.

When her boy grew older there were children near by who, if he ventured into their company, were dragged away as though he had the plague. And when Jane would have placed him at the one good school, Aunt Dinker having allowed the money, the lady who presided thereover gently hinted that it would not do.

And little Richard, clinging to her hand, asked, as they went home: "What is it, mamma?" Then poor Jane wished that she were dead.

Old Miss Dinker called in high dudgeon upon the schoolmistress, and remonstrated in vain. The fact that she stole a spelling book during her brief stay did not further her object. When a little boy was sent for it at dusk Jane wished herself dead again. If only she could have had pride in anything or anyone, she thought; but life was all shame to her.

"Habits are hard to break," she said, "but I'll try. Only you oughtn't to be so hard on me when I've stuck to you so." And then she revealed a plan which she had concocted for giving the boy an education. "I'll put him to the best school in New York," she said. 'I'll keep the story that they tell—lie, as it is—to myself, and I'll pay his bills regular. 'Tain't likely I'm agoing to see him grow up without eddication. We'll make him a clergyman or a doctor. We'll snap our fingers in the faces of these critters. I'll take him up myself to-morrow and he shall come down every Saturday night."

"I shall miss him so," said Jane. "But it's for his good, and thank you, aunt."

So Jane spent the night in tears, and in the morning Aunt Dinker went to the city, taking with her little Richard.

Jane suffered a great deal that day, and when at night she saw Aunt Dinker return alone she could not find voice to speak to her. But the old lady was in good spirits. She sat down before the fire with her shawl on, and told Jane how pleased Richard was with the journey and how Miss Speers had admired him. And Jane brought her the tea, and she took it sitting by the fire, but still kept her shawl on; and, moreover, the shawl looked curiously thick and bunchy.

Once before had Jane seen the same thing, and it had resulted in the appearance of somebody's workbox. Her heart misgave her.

"Aunty," she said, in trembling tones, "are you cold?"

"Not particularly," said Miss Dinker.

"Then shan't I take your shawl?"

"When I ask you to do so."

Jane was silent. Old Miss Dinker fidgeted. Finally Jane burst into reproaches.

"Oh, aunty! couldn't you help disgracing my poor boy, to steal in New York, where they have no mercy on you, and at the school, where I hoped he could hold his head as high as anyone? Oh, aunt, aunt!"

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Jane. I've been a good aunt to you; and, as for the school, I never touched a thing. I put my hands in my muff, and sat just so, and made a pint of it. And it's nothing much to make a fuss over. I took it almost without thinking. It came in so handy."

"What is it?" asked Jane, desperately.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Aunt Dinker, "and if they want it they can have it. From the school to the depot there came up a rain. I had on my best bonnet, so I looked about me and there was a church open and in I popped.

"Well, as I stood there, out came a gentleman that I knowed was the clergyman, and says he: 'Walk in, ma'am, and wait for the rain to be over. There's a fire in the vestry.' And he left me before the grate in the nicest little room. And I waited until the streets were dry. The sexton came and talked to me, and told how they'd been a workin' there, and they'd just gone. And somehow, when I got into the street, this was under my shawl."

"She's committed sacrilege at last," cried Jane. "Oh, dear! oh, dear!"

"'Tain't neither," cried Aunt Dinker. "It's only a shabby old book." And as she spoke she unfolded her shawl and tossed upon the table a dingy leathern tome, on the covers of which was marked in black letters:

"Marriage Register of St. Grace's Church, 1860–1873."

Jane seized upon it with a low cry.

"St. Grace's church!" she said. "Aunt, aunt, that was the name. That was where I was married." And her trembling fingers turned over the pages, and her eyes sought out the date, and suddenly glittered with joy. "It is here!" she cried. "here! here! here!"

"On the 20th of June, by me, Oliver Sparkle, Capt. Richard Murphy to Jane Dinker, spinster, of the town of Cumminseed, N. J.

"Witness—B. Britters, Clerk."

When Jane Murphy arose from the floor she was an altered woman. Proof of her matron dignity and of her boy's birthright was in her hands, and before the next sunset all Cumminseed knew the truth. The pastor of St. Grace's came from New York at her summons to swear to his book and his deceased predecessor's signature, and legal proceedings were instituted to restore the widow to her rights. Of course they were successful.

To-day no one is more respected in all Cumminseed than Mrs. Capt. Murphy, although she has never quite forgiven her neighbor's cruelty. And Aunt Dinker, growing quite old and unable to go abroad, indulges her singular propensity by stealing napkins from the linen press. There is good in all things, Jane Murphy often says. She never will deny that since such great good came to her of old Aunt Dinker's kleptomania.—Toledo Blade.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Wealth Galore.

The McKay brothers, six in number, residing in Delhi township, Redwood County, where they are prosperous farmers, have just received notice that they, with nine others have fallen heir to an estate of $16,000,000. Their uncle, William McKay, recently died in South Africa, leaving that estate, valued as above. He ran away from his home in Scotland when he was a boy, and never informed his relatives of his whereabouts. He built up this immense fortune in South Africa, during which time his parents, his brothers and sisters all passed away. His will leaves his property to them and their children. The result is that 16 heirs in Redwood county, Minnesota, and Belvidere, Ill., will get about a million apiece.

The Capitol.

At a meeting of the Minneapolis Board of Trade a resolution was passed for the appointment of a committee of seven, with power to add to its number, to confer with the city authorities in the matter of securing the donation of such a site as a legislative committee may select in that city, and to present the matter to the legislature. The resolution named A. L. Crocker, John Goodnow and G. H. Warren as three members of this committee.

Another resolution was adopted offering the state Loring park, with an addition of 5 acres, making 43 in all, for a capitol site, and $500,000 in addition towards the building. It also favors tendering the Exposition or the new city hall and court house in a finished condition.

Tough Cases.

The Minneapolis police arrested John DeLong, Arthur Morris, Rudolph Sharp and Albert Merry, who were locked up at the central station charged with burglary. It is alleged that the gang above named are the four men who held up Macbeth & Armstrong's grocery store at 405 W Thirtyfourth street and compelled the two proprietors, at the muzzles of revolvers, to give up all their available cash, $40.

Delong is a plasterer by trade and a married man, 35 years old, residing at 2417 Colfax avenue S. Morris resides at 3724 Lyndale avenue S; Sharp at Twentysecond and Lyndale, and Merry, who came from Fergus Falls some two months ago with DeLong, who is his uncle.

School Money.

The apportionment of public school money has been made public by Superintendent Prendergast. The total sum of $317,621.95 has been divided among the counties of the state. The report shows that the school population of the state is 276,193. Following is the apportionment of a few of the leading counties of the state and the school population of the same: Hennepin, pupils, 31,301, apportionment, $35,996.15; Ramsey, pupils, 20,267, apportionment, $23,307.05; St. Louis, pupils, 8,677, apportionment, $9,978.55; Winona, pupils, 6,805, apportionment, $7,825.75; Stearns, pupils, 8,383, apportionment, $9,640.45; Washington, pupils, 4,450, apportionment, $5,117.50.

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, March 6.—In the senate Mr. Ozmun presented a bill providing for the appointment of four representatives to attend an interstate conference to discuss the practibility of securing uniformity of laws; Senator Thedon presented a bill to repeal the scalpers' law of last session. Senator McArthur presented a bill exempting from taxation all property belonging to a Grand Army post. In committee of the whole the bill prohibiting lobbying by state employes and the bill providing for the prevention of the spread of noxious weeds were recommended to pass.

For the first time during the session the morning roll call in the house failed to develop a quorum, and a recess of 10 minutes was taken to allow tardy members to arrive. Mr. Jacobson introduced a resolution to adjourn sine die April 10. The reports of standing committees were heard, a few bills were introduced and the calendar was at length reached. By this time enough members had gone away to make the body short of a quorum. The statement was made that a good many members had gone to Minneapolis to hear Erwin's closing argument in the Hayward murder case, so some one made a motion to adjourn to 10 o'clock tomorrow, and the motion prevailed.

ST. PAUL, March 7.—The capitol bill, or more correctly, the bill amending the law passed two years ago for the building of a new capitol in this city had its inning and final battle in the senate yesterday.

Twelve votes were cast against the bill, even as it came from the house in its decapitated shape, despite the fact that the Ramsey county senators expressed their willingness to accept the bill without the appropriation of $250,000 for immediate use of the commission.

The bill is finally dispensed of and only needs the governor's signature to become a law. Thus after a severe struggle the capitol question bids fair to be settled for all time. If the commission did not succeed in obtaining all that was asked for, it received such additional concessions and powers which will enable it to accomplish better results.

It was purely a routine day in the house and but little was done. In the committee of the whole, Jacobson's bill for county option was killed by indefinite postponement. The following bills were passed: An act relating to the unison of the general statutes; to establish the office of state entomologist; to protect the owners of bottles, boxes, kegs, etc., and in the sale of mineral waters; to provide for boards of trustees of Y. M. C. A. associations.

ST. PAUL, March 8.—The senate, after a sharp, wordy war, effectually killed Robbins' anti-lobbying bill by a very decisive vote. A bill was introduced providing for a state soldiers' monument on the new capitol grounds. The following senate bills were passed: Relating to school meetings in common school districts; relating to the salary of state treasurer's clerk; a bill for an act to vest in district courts all trusts relating to town sites heretofore vested in any judge of said courts; a bill regulating and naming of banking and trust corporations. The following house bills were passed: To prevent the spread of noxious weeds from empty freight cars; to amend general statutes, 1878, relating to public highways in townships and authorizing the inhabitants of towns to place roads and bridges under management of board of supervisors.

The house of representatives wound up one of the busiest days of the session yesterday afternoon by adjourning to Monday at 2 p. m.

Twenty-eight bills were introduced, five bills were passed and some discussions were had on bills in committee of the whole.

The following are the bills passed: To appropriate money arising from the collection of certain seed grain notes to the governor's contingent fund from which said money was originally drawn; to authorize the state auditor under certain conditions to cancel the accounts arising from seed grain loans made by the state in 1877 and 1878 and to enforce payment in certain cases; to change to terms of court in Fillmore county; to increase the salary of the chief clerk of the state treasurer from $1,200 to $1,500, was passed under a suspension of the rules.

ST. PAUL, March 9.—It was rather lonesome about the capitol today, as the house was not in session and not any too many members of the senate were in attendance at the session of that body. The senate did some good work, although there was comparatively little news to it. There was an absence of a desire to talk that was so apparent the day before, and after getting down to general orders the senators waded through the work with such dispatch that they cleaned up all the loose work and adjourned at 4 o'clock. It seemed as if there would be no end to bills introduced and the committee reports, but this was about all there was to the forenoon session. The bills that came in were not as a rule of any great importance. Senator Spencer introduced a bill making 10 hours a working day and providing penalties for violation of the law. Senator Thorpe introduced a bill, the main point of which is that it prohibits the sale of liquor to persons undergoing treatment at some inebriate institution.

ST. PAUL, March 11.—In the senate the Anderson bill to tax unused railroad lands was considered. It came up informally in the morning and formally in the afternoon. It was such a big subject it could not be disposed of in one day. Final action will probably be had tomorrow. The attorney general has filed an opinion to the effect that the bill would not affect the gross earnings law. The following bills were passed: Relative to admission of children to state public school; creating a commission to locate and acquire lands and prepare plans for a fourth hospital for the insane; to provide for the exemption from jury duty of all engineers, engaged in active service as such; to authorize the state treasurer to transfer moneys remaining to the credit of the state agency fund of the state public school from said fund to the current expense fund of said school; to provide for the care and keeping of dependent children during or subsequent to the examination to determine their condition.

The house met in the afternoon, but failed to accomplish very much. A bill was introduced by Mr. Wright, of Hennepin, providing that employes of a municipal corporation other than elective officers may be subject to garnishee proceedings. Mr. Kendall introduced a bill to compel railroad companies to build fences along their right of way to prevent sheep from straying onto the track. To prevent the spread and provide for the destruction of noxious weeds in public highways is the object of a bill by Mr. Damp. Dr. Zier introduced another patent medicine bill, which requires that a sample of each remedy shall be analyzed by the state chemist. At 5 o'clock adjournment was had.

The Isle of Boredom.

As you sail through life take pains and steer
Away from the island that lies so near—
The Isle of Boredom, which all men fear.

The island sets up like a shelf of rock,
But woe to the sailor who lands at the dock
And offers the people a chance to talk.

For they talk all night and they talk all day,
And try as you will to get away,
They pin you down and they make you stay.

They talk of the things they have done and said,
They talk you awake and they talk you to bed,
Till you almost wish they would talk you dead.

And the queerest thing, and the one to deplore,
About the dwellers upon that shore—
Not one of them knows that he is a bore.

So steer away from that island shelf,
That is governed, they say, by a wicked elf,
Lest you be a bore and not know it yourself.

SERVED IN TWO WARS.

The Grip Almost Won Where the Bullet Failed.

Our Sympathies Always Enlisted in the Infirmities of the Veteran.

(From the Herald, Woodstock, Va.)

There is an old soldier in Woodstock, Va., who served in the war with Mexico and in the war of the rebellion, Mr. Levi McInturff. He passed through both these wars without a serious wound. The hardships, however, told seriously on him, for when the grip attacked him four years ago it nearly killed him. Who can look on the infirmities of a veteran without a feeling of the deepest sympathy? His townspeople saw him confined to his house so prostrated with great nervousness that he could not hold a knife and fork at the table, scarcely able to walk too, and as he attempted it, he often stumbled and fell. They saw him treated by the best talent to be had—but still he suffered on for four years, and gave up finally in despair. One day, however, he was struck by the account of a cure which had been effected by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He immediately ordered a box and commenced taking them. He says he was greatly relieved within three days' time. The blood found its way to his fingers and his hands which had been palsied assumed a natural color, and he was soon enabled to use his knife and fork at the table. He has recovered his strength to such an extent that he is able to chop wood, shock corn and do his regular work about his home. He now says he can not only walk to Woodstock, but can walk across the mountains. He is able to lift up a fifty-two pound weight with one hand and says he does not know what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for others, but knows that they have done a great work for him.

He was in town last Monday, court day, and was loud in his praises of the medicine that had given him so great relief. He purchased another box and took it home with him. Mr. McInturff is willing to make affidavit to these facts.

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills state that they are not a patent medicine but a prescription used for many years by an eminent practitioner who produced the most wonderful results with them, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves, two fruitful causes of almost every ill to which flesh is heir. The pills are also a specific for the troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, all forms of weakness, chronic constipation, bearing down pains, etc., and in the case of men will give speedy relief and effect a permanent cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. They are entirely harmless and can be given to weak and sickly children with the greatest good and without the slightest danger. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A Derivation.

You will often come across the word "windfall" in your reading, meaning an unexpected piece of good fortune. The origin of this word is not uninteresting, and is said to have been as follows: Some of the nobility of England, by the terms under which they were allowed to hold their vast estates, were forbidden to cut down any of the trees that grew upon them. The timber of the forests was reserved for the use of the royal navy in the construction of vessels, but such trees as fell without cutting the owners of the estates could use as they pleased, so that a heavy wind that blew the trees down—as heavy winds often do—became an unexpected piece of good fortune to the one who could profit from the timber thus acquired. Hence the use of the term "windfall" became common, and finally entered into the English language.—Harper's Young People.

A Hint on Chocolate.

Never serve tea or chocolate with fried foods, says an authority on gastronomy. Serve coffee with fried lobster, oysters, and all kinds of fish, also with cheese. Aside from being an unpalatable and inartistic combination, tea also renders such foods indigestible. Many a woman who has a house furnished in perfect taste sets before her family and guests food-combinations that are inartistic and repulsive to a cultivated palate. Food fried in butter is much more indigestible than that fried in lard or olive oil, which is the best and most economical medium for frying foods in deep fat.—N. Y. Post.

To Preserve Mushrooms.

When a can of mushrooms is opened one often does not wish to use all its contents. It is well to know that they may be kept perfectly well for several days if put at once in cold water to cover them. This water should be changed for a fresh supply every day, and that is all the attention they will require.—Chicago Tribune.

DELANO DIARY

--Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

--"A new broom sweeps clean" if it is a good one. Read F. Strauch's add, and try his brooms.

--W. M Mowatt is looking over bids to build a new brick store, with plate front on his River street lots.

--John B. Plattner has put down a new sidewalk and is improving his new purchase preparatory to moving in soon.

--The total eclipse of the moon was observed by our citizens Sunday evening. It was not so total but what it could be seen.

--Some of our village council have already begun talking electric street car line. It seems kind of visionary, but no more so than some other things that have been done.

--The audiences attending the Lambert & Williams Players' entertainments have increased in size each evening since the first Monday, showing the appreciation of those attending.

--The Danforth House is putting in a new register containing the cards of several of Delano's business men who believe in advertising. Write your name in it when you want a good meal.

--Dell Young thinks he is blossoming out well this week: he has opened a new grocery store; been elected village Recorder, and his father-in-law presented him with a fine driving mare. No flies on Dell.

--Wheat took a little boom in eastern markets this week and the large accumulations have begun to move and it looks as if bigger prices might be received soon. The local market crept up to 53 and 54 cents per bushel on Wednesday.

--The villan was so perfectly played in Mabel Heath, last night, at the City Hall, as to cause several females to shed tears and some of the sterner sex to clinch their fists in anger and desire to get at them.

--The creamery is taking a rest for the present. Mr. Roosen who has taken such an interest in establishing it took a trip to the southern part of the state the past week without his fur overcoat and took a severe cold and has been confined to the house since his return. It is to be hoped that he will soon be able to be about again and go on with the enterprise.

--Lambert & Williams Players opened up a week's engagement at the City Hall on Monday, in the Drama Miralda, and each evening they have had larger houses and this is a sure proof that they are well liked. They are the best dramatic company that has visited Delano in years, every one being a star performer. Particular mention should be made of Miss Clara Williams, also of Mr. Williams, both of whom would do credit to any city stage. Crowded houses will greet them all this week.

--A young boy who had been working about the hall for free tickets to the show during the week, found a pile of tickets in the hall where they were left and appropriated about two dozen of them and sold them and gave them away about town on Wednesday. The proprietors missed them and changed the tickets for the evening so that when the stolen ones came they refused to take them and offered two dollars for the apprehension of the thief. The little fellow was soon found and acknowledged taking about half of them and promised to return the money received for what he had sold.

--An exciting runaway occurred yesterday morning; Lawrence Statko had a load of wheat at the round elevator; as he was obliged to wait for something to be fixed he tied the team and went inside. The team took fright, broke loose, and ran down the grade to River Street, down River Street to the grade to the river for the fire engine; opposite Schaffer's store it ran into Joe Bauman's wagon, breaking the reach thereof; just escaped demolishing Erick Erickson's buggy and plunged down the river bank, leaving the wagon with one hind axletree broken and the load of wheat against the post near Simon's ice house.

--The village election passed off very quietly for the amount of work done; 215 votes were cast, of which number Squire Walter claims to have had every one. W. F. Kohler got a majority of 22 over J. E. Borseh for mayor. Messrs. Gutzwiller, Wittman, and Shrader were elected councilmen; Swan Erickson ran on the Kohler ticket and was defeated. Del Young was elected Recorder against Wyatt Johns, Independent. Louis P. Probst, Treasurer; C. H. Vorse, Assessor, over C. L. Belt, on Kohler ticket; Joseph Brenner, Street Commissioner, Joseph Berneck and George Goodrick, Constables. No opposition to the caucus nominees except as above mentioned.

--A citizen's caucus was held for the town of Franklin and met Saturday and nominated a straight republican ticket. The democrats soon after nominated a straight democratic ticket, and things looked as if the fight would be made on strictly party lines, but a few soreheads got together and made up another ticket and succeeded in knocking out the entire democratic ticket except the candidate for Assessor, Clark Sturman, and one Supervisor, Mat Schaust, Jr. Those elected were good men and will doubtless attend to township affairs in good order, even if the majority of Supervisors, is republican and there is no one but the democrats themselves to blame for having not elected a ticket of their own party. Nothing like pulling together. The republicans tell us they don't believe in party affairs in township and village elections but do they act like it?

Personals.

Mr. Herrick, the Minneapolis Tribune man was in town yesterday.

M. A. O'Hair, wife and daughter Marjorie, visited Waverly, yesterday.

James Sherry came home this morning from Glascow, Mont., for a short visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Crawley, of Minneapolis spent several days with Delano relatives and friends.

Post Master Miller, of Loretto, and Post Master Johnson, of Lyndale, were Delano visitors on Fairday.

Messrs. A Speckel, and J. Widekind left on Wednesday, for St. Louis County to take up land for a future home

Charley Coolen, John Coolen and Nick Frank lumber merchants at Smith Lake, Lester Prairie and St. Bonifacius were visiting the folks at home over Sunday.

Joseph Brown, of Marshall, visited his brother-in-law, Wash Rader, this week. He attended the theater, Wednesday evening and got something not on the programme.

(Handed in.)

Road Bosses were selected in Independence in District No. 1, Herman Redenbaugh; No. 2, Fred Hilderbrandt; 8, Willie Otto; 9, Ed Hitsman; 11, Ben Rochl. R. M. Mills was chosen Town Clerk; J. H. McGary, Treasurer and Assessor: Constable, John Schumacher.

J. A Mayer, Roadmaster from St. Cloud visited his family at Delano, Sunday.

Jack Rochl, Independence, visited Delano relatives Sunday.

Miss Katie Cabula of Watertown visited her sister Mrs. Bohn, at this place Thursday last.

H. Moland, County surveyor set the lines for the Calendine place and Frank Kuchenmeister's farm last week.

Frank Kugera, of Woodland, visited the Delano Fair, Saturday.

Farmers are looking out for seed time; but it will have to get warmer first.

School Jottings.

There was no school in the High room last week Tuesday and Wednesday as the teacher's examinations were conducted in that room. Several of the pupils took the examinations.

The High School Club met two weeks ago with Mr. and Mrs Leavens. After the usual reading of Ivanhoe by Miss Hager, we were entertained by a song by the "choir". Mrs. Leavens' friend, Miss McKinstry then gave us a delightful talk about her memories of Abbotsford which is Scott's old home. We then had a parsing school and adjourned at the usual time.

Miss S. in History class. "How were the prisoners for debt in England treated?" Pupil, "They were not 'treated' at all."

There is now a Solid Geometry class which is heard in the fifth room.

The physiology class dissected an eye Monday morning.

There seems to be a good deal of sickness among the High School pupils this week as the record shows rather a poor attendance.

Mr. Lee, Superintendent of Schools, visited us Thursday morning.

Mr. Leavens performed Mr. Carlson's duties Monday as Mr. C. was away from home.

The physics class have been keeping a thermometer in "frozen" ice. SCRIBBLER.

Franklin Town Meeting.

Fred Kaspohl, town clerk, called meeting to order, on Tuesday, March 12, at Swedeback & Erickson's Hall in Delano. Charles Schroeder was chosen moderator.

It was resolved that the Supervisors receive $2. per day.

| " " 14, | Jerome Teichner. |
| " " 15, | Wm. Plath. |
| " " 16, | Simon Kittock. |
| " " 17, | John Plattner. |

Chairman Wm. Zierbarth read reports and estimates for following year.

The following sums were ordered raised by tax:

| | |
|---|---|
| General Township Purposes | $200.00 |
| Roads and Bridges | 300 00 |
| Poor | 100.00 |
| Total | $300.00 |

Resolved that road labor tax be levied at 30 cents on each one hundred dollars valuation.

The Board of Supervisors were allowed $25. for the purpose of trying to have the road over Wright's Ford and Pioneer bridge made a county road,

The following officers were elected: Supervisors, Ed Kelsey, Chairman, Matt Schaust, Jr. Theo. Strauch; Town Clerk, C. W. Ingerson; Assessor, Clark Sturman; Treasurer, E F. Ziebarth.

Mrs. Doran Dead.

EDEN VALLEY, March 11, 1895.

Harriet J. Doran was born August 6, 1840, at Winchester, Canada, daughter of Wm. Carkner. Married to John Doran, 1860. Moved to Illinois in 1864. Lived in Chicago twelve years, where mission work was done and moved to Minnesota in 1877. Her husband was first appointed as minister of the Gospel in Minnesota to Delano and has been an effective minister of the M E. church ever since. She was a faithful wife to an itinerate minister and on March 7, at 9:25 P. M., of strangulation of a rupture and severe illness of seven days passed away to her reward, peacefully, leaving to mourn her loss her husband and four boys, namely: Wm. Wesley, of St. Paul; Jas. H., of Eden Valley; Thos. F., of Willmar, and Chas. G., of Garretson, S. D. She has been a member of the M. E church since childhood The funeral services were held in the Christian church at Eden Valley at 2 P. M., March 9, Rev. H. C. Maynard, of Paynesville, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. Crise, of the Christian church, at Eden Valley.

County Cullings.

The Buffalo Journal which has been minus her "inards" for a number of weeks comes out again in her normal condition. "Tariff is a Tax."

J. A. Whitaker has resigned his position on the Howard Lake Herald and gone in on his own hook by assuming entire control of the Cokato Commoner. J. A. is quite a pleasing writer and will, of course, make the Commoner lively.

This week a new set of officers for each town and village has been elected. In some cases old ones have been rechosen; in others the old have given place to the new. A change occasionally, helps keep business matters in a healthy condition.

John F. Collins came down from Smith Lake Tuesday morning. He informs us that he has got the arrangments well under way for incorporating that village in the near future. He also says the Annandale Post has got to be so Rank republican that he can't keep up with it as one of its editors.

Teacher's Examinations at Howard Lake.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 18½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting, by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $3500.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of life's, who will be deeply interested in these developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion plates and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the fair sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy--free, and it will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put it in the way of saving money by finding in one number everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

HARRY HAYWARD is reported to have begun talking to a priest. It looks as if the most sensible thing to do, under the circumstances, would be to make his peace with God.

SOME of the great city dailies are still hammering away at Dr. Zier. If they can find no better defense of their position on the Patent Medicine bill than an abuse of Dr. Z they had better let up. Enough is enough.

NOW that railroad companies will have to pay taxes on their unused lands it is quite likely there will not be so many acres in their possession soon, as it will not be such a profitable investment as it has for years. The country will then settle up as it should.

THE St. Cloud Times in speaking of a proposition to give a bonus for the rebuilding of a burned saw mill at that place says, "We would suggest to the aldermen that when they act as a council upon bonus matters they are proceeding upon dangerously illegal grounds:" and wants the matter referred to a general committee appointed by the people to act with the council on bonus matters.

THE rejection of five out of eight Minnesota youths recommended for appointment to West Point cadetships, on the ground of physical disability, emphasizes the need of judicious physical culture. The State University should have the new gymnasium.—Evening Tribune.

A gymnasium is a good thing. But will it make healthy strong men out of boys who smoke cigarettes, cigars and pipes; who spend their nights in dens of dissipation; who live on food not adapted to the development of bone and muscle; who indulge in intoxicating beverages, and who never work at anything to develop their physical manhood?

Early Amber Sugar Cane.

From the Litchfield Independent we clip the following which may be of interest to some of our farmer readers and prove another source of revenue to them:

We have been asked by a number how to raise it and will try in this article to answer them. First as to soil and preparation. A sandy loam or clay soil will give the best returns. It is similar to corn and good corn ground will raise good sorghum, except freshly manured ground, never plant on that. It will stand drouth better than corn, though if you happen to have a piece of poor soil on top of a hill somewhere, do not plant that and then expect to get 150 to 200 gallons per acre.

Planting. First get good seed. Do not get it of the seed houses as they do not make a specialty of it and their seed is apt to be mixed.

We planted some two acres last year with seed obtained from them and it was not worth half as much per acre as the rest.

Again it is not best to plant seed that has been grown in the neighborhood for a number of years in succession as it deteriorates or runs out very rapidly.

Many will plant poor seed and then wonder why they get only four or five gallons per load of cane, when their neighbor gets ten or fifteen.

Testing the juice by saccharometer theirs will test only 4 or 5 degrees, and but little of that, when it should test eight or ten degrees. As to kind the Early Amber is the only kind that will pay planting in this latitude.

Prepare your ground same as for corn. I prefer planting it in rows one way 3½ or 4 feet apart and about 2 feet between the hills. Some plant about 3 feet apart each way. I prefer planting by hand with a hoe as you can plant it more evenly, dropping ten or a dozen seeds in a hill and if the ground is moist covering shallow a half inch or so.

Do not leave the planting till the last thing, but plant as soon as the ground is fit, by the 10th or 15th of May. When it first comes up it is very small and has a reddish look, but changes in a few days so it looks almost like the common barn or pigeon grass. It is almost impossible to tell it apart at this time. Have known people to plow up their fields because they thought it had not come up, when they had a good stand. As soon as it is up take a hoe and go over the field clearing it out thoroughly between the hills and start the cultivator as soon as you can follow the rows. When six or eight inches high it is best to go over it again with the hoe and also thin out the hills to six or eight stalks. It grows very slowly at first and care must be taken to not let the weeds get the start of it. If kept clean until it is 2½ feet high then all you will have to do is to watch it grow.

Some may say, will it pay? Yes if you get good seed and have syrup made properly. Compared with the table in the Independent two weeks ago nothing but onions and potatoes pay any better and when we come to count the work sorghum is away ahead.

Good land will yield from 150 to 200 gallons per acre in a good season besides 12 to 15 bushels of seed, worth at least 40 cents a bushel for feed. The sirup, if a good article, will readily sell at 40 cents a gallon. We sold over one thousand gallons for that last fall and could have sold five times that much. Only a few days ago I received a request from parties in Minneapolis for 50 or 60 gallons and offering 50 cents for it if they could have some as good as a sample they had seen.

As to seed, I have a quantity which I will sell very cheap, either at my house or at Krueger Bros. store. Also have samples of sirup and sugar which I will be glad to show to any one who will call. A. D. WEST.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 15, 1895.

President Cleveland returned to Washington, and Secretary Gresham resumed his duties after ten days sickness, just in time to give Spain a lesson in international courtesy, by forcing her to her knees as an apologist for the action of the commander of a Spanish cruiser who didn't have any better sense than to fire on a United States mail steamer in the open sea, en route from Colon to New York, merely because he had a suspicion that there might be supplies for those engaged in the Cuban revolt on board that steamer. Senor Maruga, the Spanish minister, tried to get his country let down easy by hastening to the department of State ahead of the official notification that the flag of the United States had been fired upon, saying that Spain would apologise if any offense or indiscretion had been committed by the commander of the Spanish cruiser. That minister is smart, he is. He hasn't forgot the last time Spain had to go down on her marrow bones and in addition to give up good Spanish gold for her failure to pay proper respect to that same United States flag.

Attorney General Olney may or may not be personally opposed to an income tax, but if he is opposed it is certainly not upon constitutional grounds, or he could not have made the great and masterly argument he did this week before the Supreme court, in favor of the constitutional right of Congress to impose an income tax. Mr Olney is no orator, in the popular conception of the word, but there was a confidence in the tone in which he talked in a plain, matter of fact, straightforward way to the court, showing that a decision against the constitutionality of the income tax would reverse no less that five previous decisions of the Supreme Court, which was far more convincing to ordinary minds than the tricks of oratory resorted to by some of his opponents. The Supreme Court took a two weeks recess today in order to prepare decisions in this and other important cases. Should the decision be against the income tax the Treasury would be very much embarrased on account of the consequent loss of revenue, and an early session of Congress might have to be called. Already nearly $20,000 income tax has been paid into the Treasury.

Ex-Representative McAleer came over from Philadelphia this week to invite the President, Vice President, several members of the Cabinet and some other prominent gentlemen to attend the annual St. Patrick's day banquet of the Hiberian Society of that city, an organization which ante-dates the Revolution. The society was formerly known as the friendly Sons of St. Patrick. On its membership rolls are the names of Gen. George Washington, Gen. Anthony Wayne, who was at one time its President, Robert Morris, the great financier, and others of national reputation. Its present president is Mayor Stuart, of Philadelphia. Nearly every President of the U. S. has been a guest of this society.

Secretary Herbert very readily understands that all of our naval officers and their families would like to visit Kiel, as the official guests of the Emperor of Germany, and take part in ceremonies, which will doubtless be elaborate and enjoyable, in connection with the formal opening of the Baltic and North Sea Canal; but he also understands that business always comes before pleasure, and for that reason there is no probability that the great pressure, social or otherwise, brought to bear upon him to add other ships to the San Francisco and the Marblehead, which have been ordered to attend the canal opening, will be successful. There are more important reasons for keeping our ships elsewhere.

Senator Gorman celebrated his fifty-seventh birthday this week, and few men of forty are more spry. Among the souvenirs of the occasion was a handsome ivory-handled, gold-mounted horse whip, presented by one of his Washington admirers who knows the Senator's fondness for driving a double team. The Senator and his family will not go to Europe, as has been stated, but expect to spend the summer traveling through California, and probably extending the trip as far as Alaska, returning in time for the Senator to take an active part in the campaign in Maryland.

It is expected that the new arrival in the Cleveland family will put in an appearance before the close of spring. The family will probably remain in the White House until that important event, although it has been their custom to spend the spring and early summer at their suburban residence. But what mother would care to leave the White House under such circumstances.

W. W. Mills and hisson, Robert, left last week for New Castle, Ind. Mr. Mills intends to be absent about three weeks.

The farmers of Independence expect to spread out a good deal this spring in the way of farming.

Some of the republican organs keep chewing the rag about the tariff, the McKinley bill and the Wilson schedule on imports. If they have no better employment for their time and breath just let them keep at it, but your McKinley tariff will never be resurrected, neither will McKinley ever be President. Anybody that knows anything about tariff knows that the Wilson tariff bill is only one step below the McKinley bill in schedule prices and yet these quack doctors on finance and the tariff tell the people that the former bill is a free trade measure. This may be good orthodox doctrine, but is certainly no benefit to the people. These political roosters in politics are trying to draw the people's attention away from the main issue (the money question) and keep them fighting over the tariff. That question is settled and for some time too. The money question will come to the front in 1896 in spite of your McKinley or his tariff measure. This nation needs money in circulation among the masses as well as among the classes and in order to do this we must have more than a single gold standard. England once thirsted for our blood; now all Europe is after our treasure and unless the masses of the people come to the front in a solid column we will be sold into captivity. I give below a few statistics compiled from the census report of 1890. The amount of real mortgage debt in Minnesota in 1890 (and no doubt it is more now) was $197,745,989; that of the state of New York is $1,607,874,301 and that of all the states and territories together is $6,019,679,985. Say nothing about other debts, this is just the mortgaged debt on real property. I might give you many more figures to show up the financial condition of this country, but it is not necessary, as we are a reading people and they can see for themselves. Do you think this was all hatched out of one nest egg of the democratic party as some try to make the people believe? No. It was propagated, conceived and brought forth just after the days of the Rebellion when all honest people were off their guard and from that germ it has grown to its present size. We sowed to the wind and now we are reaping the whirlwind. Our children are crying for bread and the soup houses in our large cities have more attraction for the masses than the temples of worship that our fathers built in prosperous times when it rained manna and every citizen of America sat under the vine and fig tree of his own planting. Let the people wake up to a sense of duty and shake hands across the chasm, for liberty, truth and happiness.

"Forged His Father's Name."

BY MRS. WM. MCKINNEY.

On seeing the above special to the Chicago Record I was deeply impressed by the heartless conduct of the father who, bringing up his son in the way of the transgressor, allowed him to be punished for walking therein.

Those pearly tears trickling down the cheek of that young man calls attention to the fact that many pathetic scenes are of daily occurrence in connection with the business of the modern saloon, one of which comes forcibly to mind in the present case showing the blighting effects of the liquor traffic; and upon none does it fall so heavily as upon the family of the inebriate.

Not many years ago in the small village of Ruthven, a young man, of sympathetic and kindly nature, was engaged in teaching in the public schools. Among his pupils was a lad of some fifteen summers. He was very studious but being pale and delicate caused his teacher no little solicitude for his welfare. One bright morning he was found in tears and the teacher inquired the cause of his emotion.

"O," replied Ned, "you, who never knew the pangs of hunger or the want of fuel in the dead of winter, can little imagine the utter dreariness existing in the home of a drunkard's child."

How true this was. I could not realize the utter absence of all that makes home cheerful and attractive, because of my present surroundings, having a happy home, an intelligent and indulgent father, who, by reason of his firm adherance to the principles of right living had become a bright and shining light that spread its rays along the pathway of the lives of wife and children. Trusting in a noble husband and father truly their lines have fallen in pleasant places.

With heartfelt sympathy for my young friend, I sought an early opportunity to visit his home for the purpose of ascertaining the exact conditions of the family and also to consult the mother in regard to the education of her son.

Upon entering the unpretentious cottage, I was at once struck with the air of neatness and taste exhibited in that home where it was plain to be seen grim want reigned supreme.

I gradually drew from the patient suffering woman her life history, since when a happy trusting girl she had ventured out upon the sea of matrimony in a very frail bark; and now after years had come and gone found herself with a broken oar; but here the mother's eye brightened and a hopeful look o'er spread her careworn face as she said "my ambition has been to place my boy, the pride of my heart, where he might have the advantages of good schools: and my heart warms toward you my friend, while I feel deeply grateful for the interest you have manifested in the welfare of my boy."

After promising to use my influence with the husband and father, whom I could not believe wholly lost to all good and noble impulses, I took my leave. Not long afterward, an opportunity presenting itself, I invited Ned's father, among others, to hear a celebrated temperance lecturer, under whose influence, he was happily led to see a much better path and walk therein.

After the lapse of a few weeks, I with other friends of the boy, arranged for him to attend college. The mother seeing the dearest wish of her heart accomplished, also the return of her husband to the duties of life, became happy and cheerful. No one could recognise in that once bright home, the fact that once all hope seemed to have vanished.

A HUNDRED years ago Mrs. Hannah North, of Augusta, Me., began sending mince pies to the prisoners in the county jail on Thanksgiving day. The custom was followed by her through life, then by her daughter, and now her granddaughter is observing it.

A POSTCARD mailed at Hampstead, England, to an address not five minutes' walk from the sender's house, made a journey of 25,000 miles. In the post the card slipped into a newspaper bound for Tasmania. On reaching Tasmania the card was discovered and returned to the sender in a letter.

IN Kansas the legislature has been very considerate toward women. The election law provides that women, in registering for municipal elections, need not give their exact age, but have only to say, "I'm over 21," to enjoy the privilege. Thus is the ballot robbed of its greatest objection in the eyes of most women. Many thousands will register if they can pose as simply "over 21."

THAT gold should exist in the ocean is an induction that Dr. Henry Wurtz claims to have presented in 1866, and in 1872 the discovery was announced by E. Sonstadt. A careful computation with the best data obtainable, on the basis of 0.9 grain of gold per ton of sea water, about the proportion assigned by Sonstadt, shows that the great ocean should contain gold to the amount of over $80,000,000,000,000,000. The getting of some of this by electrolysis, Dr. Wurtz now predicts, will be one of the problems of the future.

A QUEER coincidence was the cause of considerable merriment in the lobby of the Grand Pacific hotel in Chicago the other day. Early in the day D. Sparrow, of New York, registered and was assigned to his room. Within an hour T. J. Quail, of Gloverdale Mass., was spread upon the register and he, too, went to his room. In the afternoon C. A. Partridge, of Chicago, registered for dinner and remarked that if any notes came for him the clerk should hold them. L. R. Forrest, of Albany, N. Y., registered soon afterward and all mail that came for the three men was put in his box.

DELAWARE is stirred just now by a movement looking toward the suppression of the trade in strong drink. An ingenious man has discovered that the 269 saloons of Wilmington must take in over the bar more than $180,000 annually to cover rent and license taxes before they can begin to make profits, which sum is more than treble what the state expends annually for the salaries of judges, the state auditor, the state treasurer, the secretary of state, the attorney general, the superintendents of public schools, the state detectives and for the support of the insance asylum.

THE czar of Russia may not have intended to do so, but he has given Mme. Modjeska an advertisement world wide and beyond purchase for a price. Because Mme. Modjeska read a paper at the world's congress in '93 in which, being a woman of Poland, she dared voice the aspiration of her race for freedom, the czar has forbidden her to play in any theater within the domain of Russia. The audiences Mme. Modjeska thus loses under his ukase she will far more than gain throughout the civilized world, and, happily for her fame, not because of the czar, but because of her own talents.

DEMANDS AN APOLOGY.

Spain Asked to Explain the Allianca Incident.

Full Text of Gresham's Letter—Spanish Shot Said to Have Been Sent After Two Other Vessels.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Following is the text of the tart note sent by Secretary Gresham to Minister Taylor at Madrid, instructing him to demand an apology for the insult offered the American flag in the Allianca incident:

"TAYLOR, MINISTER, MADRID: This department is informed that on the 8th inst. the United States mail steamship Alliance, on her homeward voyage from Colon to New York, when 6 miles from the coast of Cuba, off Cape Mayal, was repeatedly fired upon by a Spanish gunboat with solid shot, which fortunately fell short. The windward passage, where this occurred, is the natural and usual highway for vessels plying between ports of the United States and the Caribbean sea. Through it several regular lines of American mail and commercial steamers pass weekly within sight of Cape Mayal.

"They are well known and their voyage embraces no Cuban port of call. Forcible interference with them cannot be claimed as a belligerent act, whether they pass within 3 miles of the Cuban coast or not, and can, under no circumstances, be tolerated when no state of war exists.

"This government will expect prompt disavowal of the unauthorized act and due expression of regret on the part of Spain, and it must insist that immediate and positive orders be given to Spanish naval commanders not to interfere with legitimate American commerce passing through that channel, and prohibiting all acts wantonly imperilling life and property lawfully under the flag of the United States.

"You will communicate this to the minister for foreign affairs and urge importance of prompt and satisfactory response.

"GRESHAM."

When shown the text of Secretary Gresham's cablegram to Minister Taylor, Senor Muruaga said:

"I am astonished that this course has been taken, when as yet only one side of the story has been told, and any action must be based on the ex-parte statement of Capt. Crossman."

"Will Spain apologize?" Minister Muruaga was asked.

"That remains to be seen after Spain's side of the story is learned," said he. "Certainly there will be no reply until all the facts are known, not alone from Capt. Crossman, but from the commander of the Spanish gunboat alleged to have done the firing."

KEY WEST, Fla., March 19.—Passengers on the steamer which arrived from Havana Saturday night bring news of reports in circulation there of further depredations by Spanish cruisers on American vessels along the Cuban coast. The latest report is to the effect that a Spanish gunboat, Arced, fired into and sunk an American schooner off Puerto Padre. It is reported that the crew of the vessel, numbering sixteen persons, perished with it. It is not known whether the schooner had arms or carried an expedition for the Cubans. It was reported in Havana that the schooner had sailed from Key West. Inquiries, however, fail to show that any boat is missing or unreported, except those engaged in legitimate trade. Many sailed recently for West India ports with full cargoes.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The Recorder publishes the following dispatches from Washington: Spain has replied to Secretary Gresham's demand. A dispatch was received Sunday night that, so far as it goes, is entirely satisfactory to the United States. It is a response to the last part of Secretary Gresham's dispatch in which he insists that "immediate and positive orders be given to Spanish naval commanders not to interfere with legitimate American commerce passing through that (windward) channel and prohibiting all acts wantonly imperiling life and property lawfully under the flag of the United States."

HAVANA, March 20.—The commander of the Spanish cruiser Conde de Venadito reports that on March 8, while cruising off the eastern coast of the island, he sighted a steamer heading for Maisi point. The steamer's course was to the northeast. The cruiser hoisted a flag and the steamer replied by raising an English flag. The cruiser signalled the steamer to stop but without effect. As the steamer proceeded at full speed the cruiser first fired two blank shots, and then two solid shots. The commander says he did not desire to hit the steamer, but merely to cause her to heave to. He asserts that the steamer was but 1¾ miles off the Cuban coast when the firing occurred. The authorities here have ordered that a full inquiry be made into the commander's acts. Judging from Capt. Crossman's story nobody can doubt that the steamer was the Allianca, which was fired on by a Spanish cruiser on March 8.

Nothing has been heard here to confirm the rumor that the gunboat Alsedo has sunk an American schooner. The rumor is regarded as utterly unfounded in fact.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The Spanish minister was shown the dispatch from Havana containing the report of the commander of the cruiser Conde de Venadito, and while the substance was of a very gratifying nature to Minister Muruaga, he refused to talk on the subject. The statement made by the Spanish commander would, if true, entirely change the phase of the affair. It is very much doubted in naval circles that there can be any foundation for the statement that the Allianca hoisted the English ensign, and it is thought to be highly improbable that any steamer other than the Allianca was fired on at that point on March 8 and no report made so far about the affair.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 20.—News reached here Monday that the schooner Irene was fired into and dismasted by the Spanish cruiser Infanta Isabel. The news was brought to this city by a vessel engaged in the cattle trade between this port and Mainland. The Irene is a small schooner owned in this port by Canary Islanders. She has been employed in the fish trade all winter, but within the past few days returned with a party of court officials from Fort Myers, where an important murder trial has been held. She afterward sailed for the fish ranch at Punta Gorda, where, it was reported, an expedition sailed for Cuba. This point has been under surveillance by the Spanish cruiser, and the schooner was followed from here and fired into.

Says Ting Still Lives.

PARIS, March 20.—The European edition of the Herald is informed by its Shanghai correspondent that, according to the Chinese newspapers, Admiral Ting did dot kill himself at Wei Hai Wei, but was smuggled away in safety. The three coffins conveyed from Kwaugchi to Chee Foo contained Gens. Liu, Chang and Tai.

END OF A FEUD.

A Double Murder Occurs at McGregor, Minn.

DULUTH, Minn., March 18.—The most cold-blooded and deliberate murder in the annals of crime in Minnesota was committed at McGregor, a village about 70 miles north of here, some time Friday morning.

About 9 o'clock Friday morning Arcangelo and Nicholas Cristilli, brothers, entered the small general store kept by Ben Jennetta and his wife and riddled them with bullets from Winchester rifles. Jennetta's head was blown nearly from his shoulders and both he and his wife died instantly. McGregor is a small lumber camp and is inhabited mostly by Italians. The majority of the members of the settlement come from the same province in Italy and have been acquainted for years.

In the dispatches from McGregor and Aitken practically no reason is assigned for the deed. It is said that the two families had a quarrel over the cutting of some timber, which each claimed, and that this was what led to the deed. But the crew of a Northern Pacific way train which arrived in Duluth Friday night say that the murder was prompted by an entirely different motive. The Italians they talked with in McGregor say that the bad blood between the Jennetta and Cristilli families was engendered in Italy, where a brother of Jennetta's wife stabbed in a street row the brother of the Cristillis. The Cristillis are new arrivals in McGregor and the trainmen say that the story is that they followed the Jennettas to that place for the express purpose of revenging themselves for the stabbing of their brother.

WANTS CITIZENS PROTECTED.

International Phase of Walsenburg Lynching—Two Other Italians Shot Down.

WALSENBURG, Col., March 15.—An armed mob of citizens and miners from the surrounding country forced their way into the jail here early on Wednesday and shot down two more of the Italians charged with the murder of the Arkansan, A. J. Hixon, last Sunday. No determined attempt was made to oppose the rush of the avengers.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Marquis Imperiali, first secretary of the Italian legation, called at the state department Wednesday morning and directed the attention of the officials to the news from Walsenburg, Col., of the assassination of four Italians. He asked that the good offices of the state department be used immediately to prevent the further killing of his countrymen.

DENVER, Col., March 16.—The governor has just received a telegram from Baron Fava at Washington asking him to proceed at once against the murderers of the Italians at Walsenburg. Gov. McIntyre will act at once.

DENVER, Col., March 18.—Gov. McIntyre Saturday night gave out a proclamation announcing a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of those who were implicated in the killing of the Italians at Walsenburg. He declares his intention to give the matter his close personal attention and see that the law is vindicated.

LOCKED OUT.

English Boot and Shoemakers to the Number of 200,000 Idle.

LONDON, March 19.—The great lockout in the boot and shoe trade in London began Monday morning and by evening 10,000 operators were out. The lockout also went into operation throughout the boot and shoe manufacturing districts of the country. At Leicester 30,000 operators are out, and at Nettering and Rothwell 7,000 are locked out. The London labor conciliation board has made an offer of mediation between the employers and the employes. The latter object to the introduction of improved American machinery and the employers have refused to arbitrate on the ground that the operators have not abided by previous decisions of the arbiters. It is estimated that 200,000 boot and shoe operators throughout the whole country are out. The workshops in many places will be opened to-day to nonunionists and it is possible that disturbances will follow, as the locked-out operators have stationed pickets around the workshops.

A BAD FIRE.

The A. N. Kellogg Newspaper Company's Plant at Cleveland Destroyed.

CLEVELAND, O., March 19.—The newspaper building on Ontario street occupied by the World, the A. N. Kellogg Newspaper company and the United Press was completely destroyed by fire Sunday evening, the fire starting at about 6 o'clock. The total loss was about $150,000. It is thought that the fire started through the carelessness of the World porter, who was said to have been smoking in the building shortly before the blaze was discovered. The World loss is about $75,000, the property being partly insured. The A. N. Kellogg company's loss is about $25,000 and the building was valued at about $50,000. The World is a daily afternoon publication. R. F. Paine, the editor of the Press, the rival of the World in the afternoon field, tendered the use of the Press plant to the World company. Mr. Bower said at 8 o'clock that the World would be published as usual to-day.

Li Hung Chang's Powers.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Official advices have been received here stating that the powers of Viceroy Li Hung Chang, the Chinese peace commissioner, are to negotiate upon four points.

1. The independence of Korea.
2. A money indemnity.
3. Cession of territory, and
4. The readjustmen; of treaty relations between the two countries in regard to commercial relations, extra territorial jurisdiction and other matters previously covered by treaties which have been terminated by the war.

Li Hung Chang's credentials read simply "to negotiate," but he is clothed with full powers for this purpose. The negotiations, as previously stated, will take place at Simonoseki.

Cowards at Work.

OMAHA, Neb., March 20.—News of a terrible tragedy has just reached this place. It occurred last Thursday in Keya Paha county, near Brocksburg. Mrs. W. E. Holton, who was living alone on her farm, was taken from her bed, cruelly outraged and then lynched.

The body of Mrs. Holton was interred at Oakdale cemetery at Doty Sunday. Keya Paha county is noted for its lynchings by vigilants. There is no doubt but the crime was committed by rustlers who have been running off horses and cattle from the neighborhood, and who have reason to fear the vigilant committee.

SPRING MEDICINE

Is so important that you should be sure to get THE BEST, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven its unequaled merit by its thousands of remarkable cures, and the fact that it has a larger sale than any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier shows the great confidence the people have in it. In fact it is THE Spring Medicine. It cures all blood diseases, builds up the nerves and gives such strength to the whole system that, as one lady puts it, "It seemed to make me anew."

If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for your Spring Medicine do not buy any substitute. Be sure to get

"I was all broken down in health, so weak and nervous I was hardly able to be up. I had severe pains in my side, and headache. I would often have to stop when going up-stairs on account of palpitation of the heart. I had no appetite and a distressed feeling in my stomach. I resolved to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles and have not had a spell of sick headache for four months, feel well, work all day and eat heartily. My friends remark how well I am looking. I think all nervous, run down people ought to take it, especially nursing mothers." MRS. S. ASHWORTH, Eaton, Ohio.

A TOOTH FOR A TOOTH.

That is What the Dentist of the Present Gives You.

Perhaps no profession has made more progress in the last thirty years than dentistry has done. Half a century ago dentistry, as a separate branch of the medical profession, was but little known, and dentists were but very few, even in the great cities. The regular physician pulled the aching tooth, and we have even seen a case where he filled it, and the filling, owing to the healthy character of the bone, possibly, remained in that tooth for all of a long lifetime. At that period the dentist traveled about from one town to another through a wide district, and people who availed themselves of his services were thought to be rather fantastical, and foolish and extravagant as well. In a case where new front teeth were wanted the old tooth was sawed off and the nerve was destroyed with hot irons and infinite torture, in order that a new tooth might be driven in on a wooden peg, a tooth that was a perpetual trouble and never permanent. A tooth that ached then was extracted without remorse, and a filling, when fillings came to be known, as often dropped out as staid in. Now, on the contrary, if the tooth must be parted with, there are so many ways of evading the pain that, had they existed in the old time, Isaac of York might have kept his money, and the anodynes are so used that the patient is conscious and sees the whole operation and suffers nothing at all. But no tooth is taken out now that can possibly be kept in. If a nerve must be killed it is usually killed painlessly, and the tooth that once could not bear permanent and solid filling is treated till it is able to do so. Even when a tooth is so nearly gone that retaining points for the filling are not to be had, tiny gold screws can be inserted whose heads answer for the points, a fine gold wire can hold the fragile sections together and be built about, and anodynes have been found that can be injected into the gum or applied to it and do away with much of the pain once attending a bad excavation or a tender filling. Fillings are made so artistically, too, as almost to be beautiful in themselves; and it is even possible, in case of a cavity on the front surface of a tooth, to insert a bit of enamel so delicately that even the cracks can not be discerned.—Harper's Bazar.

A Hint to Would-Be Orators.

Apropos of Lord Randolph Churchill, an incident may be related which is interesting as showing his pluck and vigor. It relates to the noble lord's early parliamentary life. He was determined to make an impression upon the house of commons, but some of his friends doubted the wisdom of his resolution. He said little, but he left London and took up his quarters at an inn in Rutlandshire. Here he spent his days and nights for a period of six weeks, with only an occasional trip to "town" for a day, in writing and delivering speeches. He practically went into training upon every possible subject of debate. The landlady could hear her lodger hour after hour, day after day, walking about his room delivering speeches, now loud and angry, now soft and persuasive. Perfected by practice, Lord Randolph Churchill left for town, seized his opportunity, made a big speech, and henceforth became a man to be reckoned with. Only to his intimate friends did he ever refer to his rural training in parliamentary oratory, which has been of such splendid service to him.—Tit-Bits.

The reader of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Tunnels.

The Romans, who were great engineers, excavated some remarkable tunnels for aqueducts, but it has been reserved to the moderns to use them in road-building. One of the first was that under the river Thames at London, commenced in 1825, finished in 1843, and for a while one of the world's supposed wonders. It has since been eclipsed by the Severn tunnel (also constructed under a river) which is 4 1-3 miles long. The most noted railroad tunnels are: St. Gothard, 9 1-2 miles; Mount Cenis, 7 1-4 miles, and the Hoosac, 4 3-4 miles. The railroad from Bologna to Pistoja, across the Appennines (Italy) has 46 tunnels in a distance of 62 miles, equaled only by the Black Forest railway (Germany) which has 29 tunnels in 15 miles, one of which forms a complete letter "S." The world now has 86 canal tunnels, length 66 miles; 957 railway tunnels, 291 miles; 8 sub-aqueous tunnels, 6 1-2 miles; and 37 aqueducts, 80 miles. North America has 115 railroad tunnels, several of them engineering works of great skill and cost—but though the Burlington Route has none of them, its attractions in the way of equipment, speed, safety and scenery are such that it is the favorite line with hundreds of thousands of intelligent travelers between the great cities of Chicago, St. Louis, Denver, Kansas City, Omaha, Minneapolis and St. Paul. # KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

TWO VIEWS.

THE PESSIMIST'S VIEW.

Life's a bubble—pricked at that!—
Substance vanished all away.
Stuffin's out—collapsed, sir,—flat!
Little wonder, then, I say,
Men should sigh,
Weep an' die.
All the world's a fraud—a cheat,
Bitter mingles with each sweet,
Stones are ours in place of bread,
Men are fools, and hope is dead.
Oh my, oh—
I told you so!
Boo-hoo! hoo!—don't you see?
That's the way it looks to me.

THE OPTIMIST'S VIEW.

Everybody can't be clever,
Anybody can be jolly;
Sheddin' tears won't help it, never,
Weepin' seems such awful folly.
Be a man!
That's my plan.
Best world ever I was in—
Keeps a body on the grin!
Rain to-day?—what do I care,
Next day's sure to be fair.
Sun shines every day—some place—
Bless his kindly, good old face!
Life's replete
With all things sweet.
Ha! ha! ha! don't you see?
That's the way it looks to me.

WHO ARE YOU?

If You Are Yourself, Can You Prove It?

Strange Story Told by George W. Stout—For Many Years He Supposed He Was Himself—Now His Mind Is Assailed by Doubt.

"GENTLEMEN," began the man with the brick-colored whiskers, as he looked over the group, "my name is George William Stout. I was born in Bucyrus, O., on the 15th day of May, 1847. I lived in that town until I was twenty-two years of age, and then removed to Toledo, where I have resided ever since. My father's name was Walter Stout, and my mother was a Graham. Her given name was Jane. There isn't the slightest doubt in my mind that I am the son of Walter and Jane Stout."

"Well, what is the point?" asked one.

"Just this, my dear sir—am I George William Stout or somebody else?"

"Don't you know who you are?"

"I am no more certain of my legal identity than any of you. That's what has been bothering me for the last five or six months, and the question is not settled yet. My friends say I am George William Stout. A certain lawyer says I may or may not be. In other words, in order to come into possession of a few hundred dollars left by an aunt in England, I have been trying to prove my identity. I thought it a big joke when I started out, but it wasn't a week before I discovered that I had a tough job on hand."

"It ought to be dead easy," remarked the little man with the red necktie.

"It seemed that way to me," continued the other; "but let me convince you to the contrary. My parents have been dead for many years. As they were not church members, I was not baptised or christened. They were married in Iowa, and in a proper and legal way, but had lost the marriage certificate, like hundreds of others, and only because they had lived together as man and wife was the law satisfied that they bore that relation to each other. Right here and now I'll bet five to one that none of your parents have a document to prove marriage."

There was a general hitching about on chairs, but no one seemed desirous of pursuing the matter further.

"My father left two brothers and my mother one brother and two sisters," said the victim, "and, of course, one and all declared that I was George William Stout, only son of Walter and Jane Stout. To swear to it was a different matter, however. It so happened that none of them saw me till I was six months old. How did they know but I was a foundling who had been adopted? They couldn't be sure of me. I went to men who had been boys with me, but when asked to swear to my identity, the most they would do was to aver that to the best of their knowledge and belief, and so on. In two instances, where the parties had not seen me for many years, they declared me an impostor. A servant who lived in our family for ten years, or while I was passing from the age of three to thirteen, not only failed to identify me, but got the color of my eyes and hair altogether wrong, and insisted that the genuine George William Stout had a scar on his left cheek from a cut accidentally inflicted by herself."

"LET ME CONVINCE YOU TO THE CONTRARY."

"But you had carried the name and had done business under it," protested one of the group.

"Certainly. Two banks, several stores and various concerns knew me as George William Stout. I owned property and paid taxes as Stout. My wife married me as Stout. Nevertheless, who could say that I was sailing under my legal name? When the lawyer hinted that George William Stout might be dead or in hiding, and that I had taken his name, I could call him an ass, but could not bring forward any proofs to smash his theory. A bank will permit you to deposit and draw money under any name you wish. I bought a house and lot under the name of Stout, but that didn't give me a legal right to the name. When they asked my wife how she knew my name was Stout, she had to reply that I was introduced to her as Stout, and she had heard me called Stout, but she knew nothing in a legal way. I'm telling you straight, that though plenty of people are ready to say that my name is so and so, not a single one will swear to it out and out. It's simply to the best of their knowledge and belief, and that is founded on hearsay."

The victim paused, as if expecting somebody to say something, but as all seemed occupied in trying to figure it out he heaved a sigh, and went on:

"There's another very funny thing about it. When I was asked how many people I knew I put the number at 5,000. When asked to make a list of them, how many names do you suppose I jotted down? To save my neck I could not go over 225, and the list included women as well as men. It wasn't how many people I had spoken with and could remember their names, but how many I could call friends and acquaintances. I had been traveling about and doing business for years, and thought I had thousands of acquaintances, but that list knocked me out. I have lived in Toledo upward of twenty years, and yet I could name only 60 people there whom I knew even passably well. Some of you may be able to make a list of 200 speaking acquaintances, but I doubt it. Indeed, I'm willing to make a wager on it."

"But how about identifying yourself?" queried the little man with red necktie, who seemed deeply interested.

"I haven't done it yet, and have about given up trying to. I believe I am George William Stout. The next thing is to satisfy the lawyer that I am he. My wife hasn't gone back on me yet, but I catch her looking at me in a puzzled way as if wondering when I let go the name of Smith. What gets me is the way I am treated by most people I ask to identify me. They used to say: 'Good-morning, Mr. Stout,' but now they stop at the 'Mr.,' as if fearful of committing themselves. There's eight hundred dollars in cash over in England to the credit of George William Stout, but the English law isn't going to hand it over to me and run the risk of another chap by the same name bobbing up later on to claim it, and raise a great row. If I get it it will be because the court is morally and not legally certain of my identity. You may think it funny, but when it comes down to legal matters I doubt if any one of you can prove your identity. Any time you want to try it, or any time any of you think you can make out an honest list of speaking acquaintances, come around to the undersigned for an even bet of ten dollars. We have over sixty million people in this republic, but the chap who knows two hundred of them by name can pat himself on the back as being some pun'kins."—Detroit Free Press.

THE SHATTERED MIRROR.

It Has Its Story of Some Very Romantic Deaths.

In a country home near Athens there is one thing that at once rivets the attentive gaze of the stranger as he enters beneath the hospitable roof. It arouses the curiosity and stimulates to inquiry, but one question is all that is ever asked, for the sad answer always ends the conversation and shifts it to other subjects. Hanging upon the wall near the fireplace, in which the huge oak logs blaze forth their warmth and cheerfulness, is an old shattered mirror. A glance is sufficient to tell that it has seen many years of service, and that many decades have come and gone since it was hung upon the wall for the first time. It is past the period of usefulness now, for its shining surface is shivered into many pieces, and it no longer reflects the pleasant features of the human face.

That mirror has a story of sadness connected with it, and a small red stain upon the wall, now almost obliterated by the tooth of time, tells that story. Years ago an old man was standing in front of that mirror shaving. He dreamed of no harm befalling him, and yet the grim reaper was at hand in a most horrible form. The doorway was just behind him, and as the door noiselessly opened a younger man stepped in and stood for a moment motionless. Then a dark scowl settled upon the features of the young man, and he lifted a gun to his shoulder. A sharp report and the old man fell dead upon the floor. The mirror was shattered and a small stain of blood left upon the wall. The young man was a near relative of the old man, and out of hasty revenge for some act of the old man had taken his life. The murderer made his escape and was never captured.

The shattered mirror still hangs in its place, sacredly guarded by a daughter of the victim of that awful tragedy. She allows nobody to touch it, and it will hang there until she dies. What reason can be assigned for its preservation no one can tell, but the daughter chooses to keep it where it was the morning of her father's death. —St. Louis Republic.

Stub Ends of Thought.

It is really pathetic to hear an old bachelor say he is perfectly happy, and try to prove it.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A Resume of the Legislative Proceedings at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, March 12.—The Anderson bill to tax unused railroad lands was before the senate all day and a vote was not had until late in the evening. While it failed to secure a passage of the bill, it came uncomfortably close to the danger line. The result of the roll call was a surprise to both the friends and opponents of the measure, showing strength of the bill in excess by several votes than was anticipated by both sides. The roll call showed 26 ayes and 26 nays, with four absentees. But in reality the bill had 27 votes, just one short of passing it. Senator Barr changed his vote for the mere purpose of moving for a reconsideration of the vote.

The house held three sessions and altogether was a busy day. The most important bill introduced was by Jacobson, to regulate the employment of convicts at Stillwater. Mr. Geissler's bill provides for the sale of state normal schools and add proceeds to the state university. The following senate bills were passed: To reimburse Prof. Lugger; relating to the drainage of lands; to amend the constitution so that the state school moneys may be invested in local bonds; memorial to the secretary of the interior asking the donation to the State Historical society of certain records; relating to ditch assessments; relating to the right of drainage.

ST. PAUL, March 13.—The Anderson bill for the taxation of railroad lands has passed the senate. It was given its final passage after 10 o'clock tonight. It required 28 votes to pass it, and it received just 28 votes. The bill was passed at the end of a session which lasted eight hours and which was unusual, from the fact that the senators were waiting all that time for one lone Populist senator to make his appearance. Although all the ingenuity which Sergeant-at-Arms Stiles M. West and his corps could bring to bear was exerted, the missing Populist could not be found, and the call of the senate, which was being indulged in, had to be abandoned simply because the senators were tired out and needed sleep. At the close Senator McHale raised the point that Lieut. Gov. Day had no right to vote on the bill, and that the same therefore had only received 27 votes, and had not legally passed.

In the house bills were introduced: To require persons engaged in private banking to submit reports to the bank examiner; releasing subscribers from liability for subscription after expiration; to amend laws relating to purchase of land for public purposes; to amend laws relating to homestead exemption. The following bills were passed: Relating to intoxicating liquors; relating to redemption from tax sales; relating to state horticultural society; to encourage manufacture of sugar.

ST. PAUL, March 14.—Only one session was held by either branch and both adjourned until Monday to visit the iron mines on the Messabi range. The senate passed the following bills: To prevent corrupt practices in elections, to limit the expenses of candidates, to prescribe the duties of candidates and political committees and provide penalties and remedies for violation thereof. To provide for the destruction of the Russian thistle and to appropriate money therefor. Providing for the giving of bonds by contractors for public works and improvements and for the better security of the state, the public corporations and parties performing labor and furnishing material therefor. To permit county funds to be expended on repairing town roads; not more than $200 to be expended annually on any road. To validate the acts of villages heretofore attempting to be incorporated in Minnesota; a curative act.

In the house the question of considering the offer of the city of Minneapolis of Loring park for a capitol site was taken up and after a sharp debate for an hour or more was lost, although a majority voted in favor. The question was upon referring it to a special committee, which action requires a two-thirds vote. The matter now goes to the regular committee.

ST. PAUL, March 18.—The senate reconvened after its vacation and trip to the iron mines. A considerable number of desks were vacant and a number of excuses were granted.

Senator Cronkhite was present and as soon as roll call was over, asked that the journal be corrected so as to show that he was absent on leave. He stated that the highest authorities had informed him that the leave granted him by the president held good until he reported at roll call. President Day said it was true leave had been granted the senator, and the journal was corrected as requested.

Work was rushed along as the charter bill was hanging fire as a special order, lying over from last week. Three new bills of local character were offered.

The house held three sessions. The forenoon session was devoted to the hearing of petitions, reports of committees, the introduction of bills and giving the first and second readings to senate and house bills. The senate returned H. F. 49 with an amendment cutting down a small portion of the appropriation for the national guard medical corps. Dr. Robillard, author of the bill, moved that the house concur in the amendment, which carried, and the bill passed.

The senate returned H. F. 48, relating to vacating territorial roads, with a few amendments. Mr. Gerlach, author of the bill, moved that the house concur in the amendments. Carried. The bill was then passed as amended.

The senate returned H. F. 277, relating to the sale of unclaimed baggage, with an amendment. The amendment was concurred in, and the bill passed as amended.

Such a stamp would enable correspondents to inclose return postage for their answers, which they now cannot do. The principle has already been adopted in the international return postal card.

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—Two hints in kitchen chemistry are to rub tough meat with cut lemon, which will exercise an excellent influence, and to serve fried apples, sweet ones if you can, with liver and kidneys.

—Aunt Jennie's Crullers: Beat three eggs, add one cupful of sugar, butter size of an egg rubbed in about a cupful of flour. Flavor, then mix quite stiff with about two cupfuls of flour, roll out, braid, or cut in any fanciful shape, and fry in hot lard.—Good Housekeeping.

—Minute Pudding: Allow one cup of milk for every person. Place over the fire and let it come to a boil. Stir in one egg and one spoonful of flour to each cup, wet in a little milk. Stir well; cook a few moments, and pour into buttered cups. Serve cold with cream.—City and Country.

—Japanese Salad: Cut two hot, boiled potatoes into dice, add six cooked or canned mushrooms chopped fine; mix, and add one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of onion-juice, quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. Sprinkle over this four tablespoonfuls of white wine and stand on ice. When ready to serve, add twelve sardines; turn into a salad on lettuce leaves; cover with a French dressing.—N. Y. Ledger.

—A method of serving eggs is the following: Take six hard-boiled eggs, cut them in even slices, not too thick; place them in a baking-dish with alternate layers of grated cheese sprinkled with pepper, red if preferred, a little salt and a dash of nutmeg; cover the top with a layer of breadcumbs dotted with butter, and bake for fifteen minutes. The top should be nicely browned. Serve very hot.—Ladies' Home Journal.

—Oysters dipped in a rich sauce, so as to be deeply coated with a white jelly, which may be flavored with celery, chopped pickle, mushroom, etc., then set on the ice upon oiled plate so as to chill the sauce before dipping in egg and crumb to fry, will be found both elegant and delicious. Take great care to have a thick coat of egg and crumb. The cracker meal should be used very freely for all frying; not a mere sifting on a plate, but a deep dish is required. Under this brown shell when the oyster is fried, lies the coating of a creamy, highly-seasoned, melting sauce.

—Beefsteak Stewed Without Water: Take three or four pounds of rump steak, cut about an inch thick. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan large enough to hold the steak, and let the butter melt without burning. Remove the fat from the steak, wash quickly in cold water and put it into the pan. As soon as it is thoroughly heated through season with a saltspoonful of pepper and a teaspoonful of salt. Cover the pan close and set back where it will simmer, not boil. When perfectly tender, which will be an hour and a half or two hours, remove the steak to a hot platter, and add half a teacupful of tomato or two tablespoonfuls of walnut catsup to the gravy in the pan. Let it boil up and pour over the steak.—Boston Budget.

DRAPERIES AND PORTIERES.

Effective and Inexpensive Hangings for the Winter Home.

Nowadays the possession of an artistic little home does not necessarily mean that one must have a large bank account. Many charming effects are easily attained at little cost.

Draperies possess wonderful transforming powers, and they are now selling at prices which even the owner of a small apartment can afford to pay. There are tapestries for portieres which in richness of color rival the rare tapestries of old. Yet on close inspection they are found to be merely a cotton fabric, and sell for one dollar and seventy-five cents a yard. These tapestries are effective as a portiere between the hall and parlor of a flat. The French fabrics which are a combination of cotton and silk are simply exquisite for draperies. They come in all the new colors and designs, and cost two dollars and a quarter a yard. In delicate aray, the new green and salmon pink they are exceedingly decorative.

The empire wreath is a popular design, and conventional flowers in a pale tint are the vogue. The double-faced French fabrics are also desirable for portieres. They are economical investments, as one portiere hung between the the dining-room and parlor answers as the drapery for each room. The fabric is finished alike on both sikes. Silk Shella, which comes in all the solid colors, makes a soft, delightful portiere, and its wearing capacity is unequaled. Artistic Bagdads may be bought for very little money. They make the best sort of a background for a cozy corner, and are useful to throw over a divan which is somewhat the worse for wear.

If one can afford it there is nothing more exquisite for a parlor drapery than satin damask. This material sells at eleven dollars a yard, and shows combinations of color worthy of a skilled artist. Vines of delicate pink roses climb over a soft, gray-green background in one design, and another shows a pattern of green and silver palm leaves, shimmering against a foundation of dim old rose. Notwithstanding the beauty of the satin damask, the French cotton and silk fabrics, which cost two dollars and twenty-five cents a yard, make a substitute so artistic and delightful that economy is robbed of more than half its sting.—N. Y. World.

Don't Experiment on Baby.

In the first place every mother should make the inflexible rule in her household that no risks may be run with her baby. Experiment upon yourself if you will, but you have to right to submit your innocent child to the danger of experiments. Do not "try" this and that which every neighbor recommends. Have a family physician in whom you have every confidence, and follow his instructions to the minutest details. You owe this to him and to your child. In the nineteenth century science has made wonderful advances, and in civilized America the "gart woman" has no place to-day. It may be true that some "aunty" in your neighborhood knows more about babies than do some physicians, but the moral is, not to listen with implicit faith to the "aunty," but to employ a doctor who does understand his profession.—Womankind.

—I am very sure that any man of common understanding may, by culture, care, attention and labor, make himself whatever he pleases, except a great poet.—Chesterfield.

David and Goliath.

My little lad, whom doubt assailed,
In our poor human fashion—
Because nine times he tried, and failed
To check his furious passion,

Would fain give up the unequal strife;
Leave courage to his betters;
And wear through all his hampered life
Hot temper's iron fetters.

Nay! never fear the stubborn thing!
Be brave and self-reliant;
The smallest stone in patience' sling,
Will slay the greatest giant.
—Mary Elizabeth Blake, in N. Y. Independent.

WAS GOULD INSANE?

Financial Worry and Physical Exertion Not the Greatest Destroyer of Human Life.

For Humanity's Sake, After Thirty-six Years of Nerve-Creeping Slavery, He Tells How He Was Set Free.

Caldwell, N. J., March 19, 1895.—(Special.) Since one of our prominent citizens suffered so terribly from tobacco tremens, has made known his frightful experience in behalf of humanity, the ladies here are making tobacco-using husbands' lives miserable with their entreaties to at once quit tobacco.

The written statement of S. J. Gould is attracting wide-spread attention. When interviewed to-night he said: "I commenced using tobacco at thirteen; I am now forty-nine; so, for thirty-six years I chewed, smoked, snuffed and rubbed snuff. In the morning I chewed before I put my pants on, and for a long time I used two ounces of chewing and eight ounces of smoking a day. Sometimes I had a chew in both cheeks and a pipe in my mouth at once. Ten years ago I quit drinking whisky. I tried to stop tobacco time and again, but could not. My nerves craved nicotine and I fed them, till my skin turned a tobacco-brown, cold, sticky perspiration oozed from my skin, and trickled down my back at the least exertion or excitement. My nerve vigor and my life was being slowly sapped. I made up my mind that I had to quit tobacco or die. On October 1 I stopped, and for three days I suffered the tortures of the damned. On the third day I got so bad that my partner accused me of being drunk. I said, 'No, I have quit tobacco.' 'For God's sake, man,' he said, offering me his tobacco box, 'take a chew; you will go wild,' and I was wild. Tobacco was forced into me and I was taken home dazed. I saw double and my memory was beyond control, but I still knew how to chew and smoke, which I did all day until towards night, when my system got tobacco-soaked again. The next morning I looked and felt as though I had been through a long spell of sickness. I gave up in despair, as I thought that I could not cure myself. Now, for suffering humanity, I'll tell what saved my life. Providence evidently answered my good wife's prayers and brought to her attention in our paper an article which read: 'Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away!'

"What a sermon and warning in these words! Just what I was doing. It told about a guaranteed cure for the tobacco habit, called No-To-Bac. I sent to Druggist Hasler for a box. Without a grain of faith I spit out my tobacco cud, and put into my mouth a little tablet upon which was stamped No-To-Bac. I know it sounds like a lie when I tell you that I took eight tablets the first day, seven the next, five the third day, and all the nerve-creeping feeling, restlessness and mental depression was gone. It was too good to be true. It seemed like a dream. That was a month ago. I used one box. It cost me $1, and it's worth a thousand. I gained ten pounds in weight and lost all desire for tobacco from the first day. I sleep and eat well and I have been benefited in more ways than I can tell. No, the cure was no exception in my case. I know of ten people right here in Caldwell who have bought No-To-Bac from Hasler, and they have been cured. Now that I realize what No-To-Bac has done for me and others, I know why it is that the makers of this wonderful remedy, the Sterling Remedy Company, of New York and Chicago, say: 'We don't claim to cure every case. That's fraud's talk, a lie; but we do guarantee three boxes to cure the tobacco habit, and in case of failure we are perfectly willing to refund money.' I would not give a public indorsement if I were not certain of its reliability. I know it is backed by men worth a million. No-To-Bac has been a God-send to me, and I firmly believe it will cure any case of tobacco-using if faithfully tried, and there are thousands of tobacco slaves who ought to know how easy it is to get free. There's happiness in No-To-Bac for the prematurely old men, who think as I did that they are old and worn out, when tobacco is the thing that destroys their vitality and manhood."

The public should be warned, however, against the purchase of any of the many imitations on the market, as the success of No-To-Bac has brought forth a host of counterfeiters and imitators. The genuine No-To-Bac is sold under a guarantee to cure, by all druggists, and every tablet has the word No-To-Bac plainly stamped thereon, and you run no physical or financial risk in purchasing the genuine article.

RAM'S HORN WARNINGS.

THE saloonkeeper ruins other men, but he damns himself.

WHOEVER, takes his first drink, does it standing on the edge of the pit.

God and the saloonkeeper are never on the same side of any question.

EVERY blow aimed at the saloon strikes the devil square in the face.

IF you have formed a tasts for rum, the devil has you by the throat.

PRAYING "Thy kingdom come," and taking no stand against the saloon in mockery.

THE devil don't care how much we pray against the saloon, if that is all we do.

THE devil has a strong grip on the soul of the moderate drinker.

THE devil is not being driven back an inch by the prayers of the man who never does or says anything against the liquor traffic.

The Largest in the World.

[From the Chicago Inter Ocean.]

How many people in Chicago know that with all her other great industries there is also found here the largest soap and washing powder business in the world. The N. K. Fairbank Company, with their factories in Chicago, St. Louis and Guttenberg, being without doubt, the largest producers of soap products in the United States. This great business is not of mushroom growth but the result of persistent effort, broad business methods and intelligent and discriminating advertising.

Many brands of soap are made in these factories, but Chicago is best acquainted with Santa Claus which long ago found favor with those who care for our homes. Gold Dust Washing Powder is known in every hamlet of the United States, it being everywhere recognized as the leading product of its kind.

Announcement is now made that The N. K. Fairbank Company are about to take another step forward to turn another page in their history of progress by introducing another new soap. This will shortly be advertised in a most striking and original manner.

For twenty-five years this company was likewise the leading lard producer of the world, and abandoned lard merely because a new world was to be conquered. With keen business perception they saw in cotton seed oil the basis for a still larger business in a more healthful, more economical and in every way more desirable food product than lard. When this new product was perfected and their plans carefully arranged they turn their attention from the lard business, and with a courage born of the confidence that they had produced what the world had so long demanded, viz., a substitute for lard, they launched "Cottolene." The quick acceptance by the public of this really meritorious article attracted the attention of the ever-ready imitator and the market was soon flooded with imitations, sailing under colors of all descriptions. But Cottolene was first in the heart of the people and those who use it are not at all likely to go back to lard or accept an imitation.

The N. K. Fairbank Company attribute their success to the merit of the articles they produce; to the fact that their products are staple necessities of life, not luxuries, and to careful, thoughtful, persistent newspaper advertising, which they continue through all seasons, in hard times and in good. Surely this is a far wiser plan than the occasional blast of trumpets and spasmodic efforts often characteristic of others.

In the advertising branch of the business they are represented by the well-known firm of N. W. Ayer & Son of Philadelphia, who purchase all their advertising space.

Another fact that may not be generally known is that The N. K. Fairbank Company is conducted as one of the departments of The American Cotton Oil Company. This fusion of business forces was consummated for the sake of the greater facilities that ensue from a direct connection with the cottonseed mills to supply the public with the purest article at so much less cost.

Surely no Chicago industry has achieved greater success than The N. K Fairbank Company.

IN the large repertoire of a lady very clever in this way are the following: "How was Cæsar killed? By too many Roman punches." "When did Cæsar propose to an Irish girl? When he reached the Tiber and proposed to Bridget."—Philadelphia Times.

Use it, too, for dyspepsia, biliousness and constipation.

"WHITHER are we drifting?" asked one snowflake to another.

WOMEN'S FACES

—like flowers, fade and wither with time; the bloom of the rose is only known to the healthy woman's cheeks. The nervous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to the sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the sallow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need; it aids nature in preparing the system for the change. It's a medicine prescribed for thirty years, in the diseases of women, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure the chronic inflammation of the lining membranes which cause such exhausting drains upon the system. It cures nervous prostration, sleeplessness, faintness, nervous debility and all disorders arising from derangement of the female organs and functions.

MRS. WILLIAMS.

Mrs. JENNIE WILLIAMS, of Mohawk, Lane Co., Oregon, writes: "I was sick for over three years with blind dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back and head, and at times would have such a weak tired feeling when I first got up in the morning, and at times nervous chills.

The physicians differed as to what my disease was, but none of them did me any good. As soon as I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I began to get better; could sleep well nights, and that bad, nervous feeling and the pain in my back soon left me. I can walk several miles without getting tired. I took in all three bottles of 'Prescription' and two of 'Discovery.'"

The enormous cost of preparing to do galvanizing, and of doing it well on a large scale, deters others. SOME BUT GALVANIZED SHEETS AND PUNCH AND SHEAR AND MAKE THEM UP AFTERWARD. WHEELS OR VANES MADE OF GALVANIZED SHEETS RUST OUT FIRST AROUND THE RIVETS, JOINTS, AND EDGES, AND ARE, THEREFORE, NOT SO GOOD AS PAINTED ONES. How any concern can get our prices for painted windmills and painted towers, or those made up of galvanized material, cut, sheared and punched after the galvanizing is done, can only be explained by the fact that people who buy them are ignorant of the value of galvanizing. We now galvanize everything after it is completed, even bolts and nuts. We galvanize with the most improved processes and in the most perfect known and attainable manner.

*The process: When a section of an Aermotor Wheel is all riveted up, completed and cleaned of rust and impurities, it is immersed in melted zinc and aluminum and left there until it becomes as hot as that metal, and until every crack, and opening of every cranny, crevice, pore closed up and automolten metal, and spot is filled, pieces composing the soldered and welded together as one piece, then you have something that is strong, enduring and reliable. It is expensive to do, and small doors cannot afford to do it. We keep 60 tons of zinc and aluminum melted from one year's end to another. The alloy, which cannot be destructible. ## DELANO DIARY

--Examine Schaffer's spring goods.

—Baseball teams are being organized for summer's work.

—Crows have returned to our land and spring is looked for right along.

—Sawlogs continue to come to mill notwithstanding they have to be hauled on wheels.

—It has been suggested to us that the new committee on alleys is appropriate, Gutzwillor and Kohler.

—Considerable wheat has been marketed the past week. But with lower prices not so much is coming in now.

—Dr. Nivens says after a ten year's absence from Delano he found much more dental work here on his recent visit than he had expected.

—Horsemen are speeding their animals this nice weather. Roads are dry and the weather sufficiently cool to make the exercises truly a pleasure.

—Fires are doing damage in many places this dry windy weather. Be careful about allowing them to get away from you, if it is necessary to burn marshes.

--Another meeting concerning the building of a creamery was to be held at the City Hall last Saturday evening but was postponed on account of the illness of C. G Roosen until tomorrow evening.

—Rev. I. W. Powell is making a desperate effort to clear off the church debt and deserves a great deal of credit for his untiring work. He is meeting with considerable success too, and hopes to get rid of the biggest share if not all of the indebtedness.

—The Epworth League is making preperations to run a stand on Fair days, to supply those who desire hot coffee and sandwiches, doughnuts, etc, etc, the proceeds to be turned on the M. E. church debt. Find them and give them your dimes in a good cause.

--The Eagle wants a paper mill in town; there ought to be one; we would be glad to see one here, but would oppose the village paying $150 toward the enterprise. Mr. G. is reputed wealthy why don't he build one himself "already"?

—The work on the railroad bridge has been completed. But the bridge across the Watertown road is still in the same unsafe condition as it has been. It should be fixed. If the new council has any sand they will soon have that and the 4th street crossing put in safe and convenient condition for use.

—Curtis Grafft thas a very ineresting article in this week's Eagle on "A Visit to the State Capitol". It is well written and would do credit to a much older head than his; we noticed that he got one historical fact twelve miles out of place though, the capital was to be removed to St. Peter and not Mankato, as he has it, once upon a time.

—As usual the Eagle is discouraging the mere mention of an enterprise that would furnish a few days work to some men that need it, the new electric street car line. A street car line is much more sensible than voting $150 out of the village treasury to help a banker, who don't need the money to build a creamery as a speculation.

—The Eagle says it is doubtful if John E Porsch would have accepted the office had he been elected at the recent election. Does the Eagle wish her readers to believe that Mr. Borsch would allow the use his name to elect a ticket with the expectation of stepping out and allowing the next man on the ticket i. Gutzwiller, to act as President? We guess hardly.

--Call on T. M. Shaw, the drayman, for all kinds of wood. 25-1t.

—Read the article on sorghum raising in another column. It was clipped from a Litchfield paper and it bears the marks of being the product of one who knows his business.

—The Eagle has repeatedly twitted us on some typographical errors. A gentleman near Rockford some time ago pointed out to us an error in the Eagle, in their own advertisement that run week after week, uncorrected, that was too obscene for publication in a respectable paper. Correct your own proofs before you find too much fault with your neighbors.

Personals.

C. W. Kerrick spent Sunday with Delano friends.

Mrs. J. E. Brothers has returned from her visit to Austin.

Dr. J. S. and Mrs. Shrader visited Monticello friends Tuesday.

Zene Bohrer and Sam Austin were among G. N. passengers west this A. M.

Peter Bocke, of Hutchinson, visited his relatives and friends here this week.

Mrs. Mary Cooper has been having the Grip, for a couple of weeks. She is now very sick.

Rev. Joseph R Davies family, of Brooklyn center, visited Delano relatives and friends the past week.

Albert Kurtz is visiting Delano friends this week. He denies the rumor that he had become a Benedict.

Charles S. Hawker, of Hamline University, is home enjoying his last vacation; he expects to graduate in June.

Editor Buckley started for Wisconsin Saturday to arrange about selling some of his new patent printing presses.

Eugene Cooper, of Britton, S. Dak., visited with his aunt Mrs. Henry C. Parslow, Tuesday, on his was home from Tennessee; when he left there, about two weeks ago, there had been no seeding done.

[Handed in.]

Joseph Janeuse, of Long Lake, visited Delano friends Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Annie Tichnor, came up from Minneapolis this week to visit her father and family; she returns Tuesday.

Ben Rahl, of Loretto visited Mr. and Mrs. William Zabel, Sunday.

Frank Cabula, of Watertown, visited his daughter Mrs. R. M. Bohn, Sunday.

John and Miss Mary Smarslek, of Woodland, visited Paul Datko Sunday.

Mrs. Agnes Pogrzeba, of Montana, came here Monday to visit her father John Choulek.

Ben Rahl, of Loretto, was agreeably surprised by a large company of friends from Minneapolis Sunday evening.

John Otto has rented John Passong's farm for the summer to raise a big crop of wheat.

School Jottings.

The attendance this week has been better than last week. Several of the scholars have left school, among them are Maud Drayn, Herman Bock, James Cleven and Albert Soshnik.

The club met last Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Leavens. As there was a very small attendance we did not have the usual program.

The encyclopedias have come and are now in constant use. A set of shelves were placed for them in Miss Steele's room.

Miss Grace O'Hair visited Waverly on Monday.

Miss Steele is reading, for the morning exercises, a story of old New England times entitled "Standish, of Standish."

We were visited by "Snowball" Leavens one day this week and he caused a slight diversion from the usual good demeanor with which the pupils always conduct themselves.

The Seniors have adopted their class badge in the form of cups.

Mr. Hawker, of Hamline University and Mr. Freeman, one of Delano's graduates, made us a pleasant call, Tuesday.

This is very pleasant weather for school as it renews the vigor of the scholar.

Several of the pupils have recovered from the "grip" and are with us once more.

Council Proceedings.

The regular council meeting was postponed from Monday to Wednesday evening, at which time it was held at the usual place, the old and new boards being present, besides a large numbef of visitors. The new council took their places around the table quite naturally. Several minutes and other matters were read and disposed of.

I. Gutzwiller wanted to know if the official plumber, J. W. Lindsley, had filed his bond. It was produced and found to contain the name of but one surety, that of F. H. Lindsley, and on motion the bond was returned for correction.

Streets and alleys, Gutzwiller, Kohler.

Sidewalks, Shrader, Wittman.

Finance, Wittman, Young.

Claims, Shrader, Wittman.

Grades and Bridges, Young, Shrader.

Ordinances, Wittman, Gutzwiller.

Lamps and lights, Kohler, Wittman.

Fire department and water, Gutzwiller, Shrader.

Poor, Kohler, Gutzwiller.

Hall, Kohler.

Public buildings and grounds, Kohler, Shrader.

Bonds with proper sureties were filed by Recorder Young, Treasurer Probst, Justice Walter and Constables Berneck and Goodrick.

On motion of Wittman the committee on poor was instructed to look into the case of Mr. Wicklund.

Nine applications for night watch were read and a vote taken resulting in C. Gast 4, Martin Nelson 1 votes. I. Gutzwiller moved, as he had voted for Mr. Nelson, that Mr. Gast's vote be made unanimous. Carried.

The salary of night watch was fixed at $39. per month.

It was voted to pay $1.50 for street work, Street Commissioner to receive $1.75 per day.

C. Gast was on motion elected Marshal.

On motion the Recorder was allowed to move his desk to his store.

Quite a lot of bills were allowed as presented, except 50 cents was deducted from that of D. Dugan for special police service. Adjourned.

Garrulous Gutzwiller Growls

The new council held their first meeting Wednesday night, having postponed it from Monday to accommodate the prince of growlers, I. Gutzwiller, Jr. On that evening Mr. G. began to kick as usual, the first thing. Everything is wrong; it does not suit him. Peoples bonds are wrong; their bills, sworn to, are wrong, and must be fixed up to suit the growler. The man that manipulates the electric lights and water works must remain all night at the power house to suit the growler. The night watch must have a beat requiring over an hour to walk; or must run out into the suburbs occasionally to suit the growler. The streets must be immediately fixed up and in the absence of money in the treasury, orders issued for the work; orders that can be shoved by the growler. Laborers must work for $1. per day to suit the growler. The village, although now in debt must give Banker Roosen $150. merely to show their appreciation of his efforts to build a creamery, which if he don't hurry up and get to work on the farmers will likely build themselves, all to suit the growler. The village recorder must keep his books and papers in the City Hall building and run down there whenever any business is to be done, to suit the growler (but the rest of the council couldn't see it that way.) The old growler and kicker was not satisfied with anything hardly, but growled and kicked at everything; like a spoiled child he wants everything his own way; wants it changed to show his authority; he is a born or cultivated tyrant. If he could wield a sceptre it would be in the same line as that of Gessler. But he has struck his match; there is some more gray matter on the board now than that contained within the cranium of Delano's king growler. There is a spirit of manliness and independence pervading the body which refuses to be trampled under the iron heel of despotism. This country is ruled by the people, and the people have independence. The growler said he once belonged to a town board where a fine of $15. was imposed upon anyone refusing to serve in an office to which the board appointed them and suggested that plan be adopted here! We think the growler will find plenty of business in his line for the next year if he remains with the present board.

County Cullings.

Dr. Davis, at Howard, has Diphtheria in the family and Joe Wendell, at Buffalo is quarantined with a case of Scarlatina.

Among the Senators voting for the Anderson bill to tax unused railroad lands appears the name of Mr. Culkin, of Wright.

School Compositions.

The following compositions written on the subject announced by the teacher, have been handed us for publication by Professor Ed. Freeman of District No. 40:

THE FARM AND FARMER

DORA MARSH.

Farms are tracts of land of various sizes. They are from one acre to 30000 acres. But in this part of the country there are but few that are over 200 acres. Some of the largest farms are in the Dakotas and the western states. There is most always a farm house on or near the farm, in some pretty place, with gardens, fences and barns surrounding it. The man who tends the farm is called the farmer. He raises wheat, corn, potatoes, rye, oats, and a great many other things and if he tends to his crops he most always has enough to keep himself and his family through the winter, (that is if he has one.) But is it should happen to be such a summer as the last one, he might have a bad time. The wheat and rye is sometimes planted in the fall and the oats, potatoes and vegetables in the spring. The corn is planted about the first of May. After a while it is hoed and plowed and in October it is cut and husked and haule dup and put away for winter use. The oats, wheat and rye are ready to be cut and stacked about the first of August. Next comes the threshing machine to thresh the grain. In the fall the farmers busy themselves with plowing and getting their farms ready for the next years crops. Next comes the long cold winter and the farmer gets a rest which he always needs. He has not much to do except the "chores" and hauling a little hay and wood and he gets it ready for the next summer. Although the farmer has the most rest in the winter he is most always glad when summer comes again.

THE FARM AND THE FARMER.

W. A. DICKINSON, AGED 12

For my part I think the farm is the healthiest place on earth except some city park that costs thousands of dollars, and then it is not any healthier than a farm.

Look at the difference between living on a farm, than in a dusty, noisy city; if you don't dress just as some big bugs you are looked down upon. And in the country if a man behaves himself he is all right, no matter what kind of clothes he wears.

These poor, pale and sickly folks that live in the city, have to buy every thing that they wear, use or eat. And the country folks raise about all they eat, and they furnish the raw material for most all they wear.

And the country folks are most always the healthiest because there is lots more vegetation.

Now as young chaps around here have just a dandy chance. Our fathers have gone before us and cleared up the land, so we wont have but a very little of that to do. We have got a railroad through here now that is going to help us.

When we get a little older our fathers can stay in the house and enjoy their old age, and we can do the work and they can be our bosses. We can raise cattle and make butter and live pretty well.

Among Our Exchanges.

We would like to see the state capitol removed to Kandiyohi county where it properly belongs.—Dassel Anchor.

There may not be much in some names, gut there is enough in Democracy to prevent its being abandoned.—St. Cloud Times.

The legislature has taken no action towards investigating Washburn's charge that he was defeated by boodle. It must be that the solons are afraid to investigate or else they think he lied.—The Representative.

A national fair in Minnesota in 1900 would bring twenty millions of dollars at least into the state besides increasing trade and advertising this region to the world. It would boom our cities, our lakes, our real estate. It would be of incalculable benefit to the state.—St Peter Herald.

Gee whillikens! Think of giving all the women the right to vote, and generally to do as they please! Down in Kansas the other day a little black eyed woman held up the whole legislature for a whole day, because the solons refused to allow her claim of $300. for overtime.—Weeping Water Republican.

We remember reading once, in an old school book, the story of a French convict who was released from prison after a term so protracted that its end found him in a new generation; the change in things on the outside and his own incompatibility with his altered surroundings so disgusted him that he voluntarily returned and ended his days in prison. That story to our untutored mind was always a little hard to assimilate, until an actual experience last Saturday completely put an end to all incredulity. An inmate who has sojourned just nineteen years within these walls was solicited by outside friends to permit them to procure his absolute pardon and release, with an assured certainty that it could be encompassed; instead of hailing with gratitude such overtures, the convict in question politely, quietly, but at the same time firmly declined. He asserted that he was as well circumstanced here as he could desire; much better than he thought he would be on the outside, and the friends went away disappointed. The convict has a life sentence, and has been "keeping the even tenor of his way" since 1876.—Prison Mirror.

Boycotting a Town.

Redwing, Minn., March 20.—About 150 residents of Roscoe signed an agreement to boycott Zumbrota in case that village did not vote out the saloons. License carried the day and boycotting is in order.—Minneapolis Journal.

A Good Example to Follow.

From the Pope County Journal we clip the following bit of encouragement to farmers and others. It will perhaps interest some of our enterprising citizens and lead to good results for our community:

"Princeton, a village not so large as Alexandria, has completed the organization of a company which will put in a pickling factory to handle cucumbers, onions, cabbages, cauliflowers, horseradish, pepper, tomatoes, etc. This creates a market which the farmer will be quick to take advantage of. In this same way Princeton has located there a potato starch factory, a creamery and flouring mill. The farmers of Mille Lacs county are well-to do, do not feel these hard times and have more than a kindly feeling toward Princeton, whose merchants are prospering.—Alexandria Post-News.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

THE St. Peter Herald wants a world's fair held in the Midway District in 1900 This would be a fine thing for the Twin Cities and might furnish Editor Johnson an opportunity for another "dedication" Let us have it anyway.

THE Prison Mirror touches up the dailies of the state for copying one of its poetical effusions and crediting it to "Truth, an illustrated comic paper of the effete east," which had unceremoniously appropriated the lines to its own columns. It is bad to steal; but to steal brains from the state's prison is terrible.

NEXT time the St. Paulites get a young lady to christen a steamer, they should furnish her with a bottle of Minnesota water, and not champagne, perhaps then the boat would condescend to slide into the ocean. It is given out that the the tallow used to grease the ways caked, and blocked the boat fast, so that four others failed to pull her off. It is rather a severe joke on people to journey so far to see the launching and not get to witness it.

ST. PETER people are arranging for a lecture on June 15, by the noted editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, Henry Watterson. If tickets enough can be sold he is to come. People who have not heard this eminent orator, even if living at a distance, can drive to St. Peter in the month of June with a great deal of pleasure. Tickets can be procured at the St. Peter Herald office. We would not be surprised if Henry Watterson would be the democratic nominee for President and be elected too. Secure a ticket and hear him lecture, and see what you think of him.

THE Minneapolis Times, especially the Sunday edition, has recently contained some of the finest editorials of any paper in the state. They are on timely subjects, ably written, to the point. We were pleased to see, by frequent quotations in other papers, that the articles referred to were appreciated, as they deserved to be; but sorry to read extracts from them in country papers, with credit given to the Midway News, which had published some extracts without credit. If you want to read good editorials read the Times. Go to the fountain head; and if you reproduce them give the Times credit. So much for fair play.

THE capital removal question is assuming serious aspects. Minneapolis offers a clear title to Loring Park and to build a building. St. Paul makes all kind of fun of the proposition. But Kandiyohi sits quietly by to see the Twins destroy each other's fond hopes when she may easily gather the plum home to her own country site; where there is plenty of land and fresh air in abundance. Would it not be much more convenient for the balance of the state to have the capital near the center of the state? And have a few railroads run north and south through the state? People, then, from the furthest western counties would not be obliged to go clear across the state to get to the seat of government. And people on the western border line would not have to go to St. Paul to get a few miles north or south at a great loss of time and money.

THE bill authorizing the lengthening of the Judicial Bench of the 4th Judicial District, so that there will be room for another Judge, which was tabled by the House some time ago, has been resuscitated. There was considerable opposition to this, Hon. Thomas Downs, of Hennepin, claiming that there was no need of another Judge, and that the bill was simply to provide a place for another man, who had already been promised the position. It looks to the people in this end of the district as if Mr. Downs was about right in his views on the question. Mr. Downs may bring upon himself the enmity in politics of a few office seekers and wily politicians; but the majority of voters will love him more for the enemies he has made. The office of Judge should not be peddled out for political favors but should be filled by the right kind of material.

GOV. MCKINLEY is reported to have in answer to an intimation that the republican platform of '96 might contain a free silver plank, made use of the following decisive language: "If the republican party should declare for free silver I would decline to become its candidate and I would quit the party forever."

As the republican party is about as badly split up on this question as are other parties; many being the rankest kind of free silverites, especially in the West, it looks as if the Little Napoleon was kind of easing himself down from the pedestal of Presidential possibilities. Possibly he has learned by this time that the McKinley bill was not entirely satisfactory even to the G. O. P. and has concluded to pull out of the race anyway. Besides these straws there is a terribly stiff Reed in the way.

Stop Smoking Fires.

When one reads of the frequent fires caused by lighted pipes, and cigars; and cigar and cigarette stubs and ashes emptied from pipes, and from matches used in lighting such things, carelessly thrown about, among combustible materials, he is simply astounded to think that there has not, long ago, been a law upon the subject. That a person so carelessly endangering the homes and the lives of people should be permitted to continue to do so, day after day, and at night, also, and go unpunished, is beyond comprehension.

Almost daily the press teems with accounts of the destruction of valuable property, mills, shops, hotels, stores, dwellings, barns, lumber yards; of prairie fires being started and doing untold damage from the careless use of fire by those indulging in this worse than useless habit, of smoking, and yet people permit it to go on.

We all see, daily, men and boys throwing lighted cigar and cigarette stubs away; or leaving them lying on woodwork, the shelf, or counter perhaps, in a large dry goods store; or on a bench, or the window casing in a shop or mill while they wait on a customer. We know of an old man who is in the habit of smoking while engaged in unloading hay into the barn; and a few days ago he deliberately sat in the Post Office and threw a lighted cigar stub into a wood box containing a lot of old papers and rubbish, besides wood. Such people should be looked after. The safety of the community demands it and will soon be heard on the subject

It is, also, astonishing that insurance companies, so particular about having in their policies that no gasoline, kerosene, gunpowder, etc., etc., shall be kept in the buildings on which they carry insurance, say nothing about smoking, a risk far greater in most cases.

People have looked on and allowed their property and in some cases the lives of friends, to be wiped off the face of the earth, for centuries, without adequately protecting themselves against future occurrences of a similar nature; their patience has come to be well nigh exhausted in this line, and a law to suppress the careless, equal to that which suppresses the intentional arson, will before long be enacted, if the lessons of enlightenment on the subject keep up to the present rate.

A few Minutes at the Capitol,

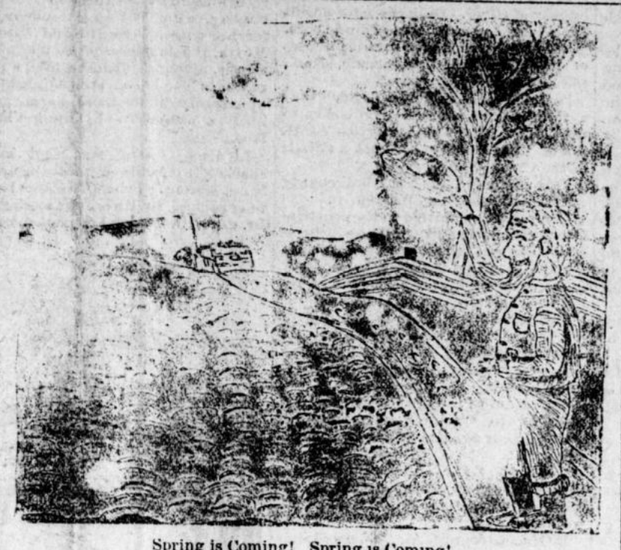
On Tuesday while in St. Paul we took occasion to call at the Capitol to see what our legislators were doing. We found the House in session in committee of the whole. Soon after our entrance to the gallery a bill was read providing for the regulating of prices on food products as reported by the Judiciary committee. A member from Cottonwood, who, it seems, was the originator of the bill made an earnest appeal to have the bill recommended to pass in its original form. A Mr. Robbins, of Minneapolis, took the floor and argued that the bill would then prohibit individuals from fixing the prices on their own labor. He wanted to change "to" to "and" or some such thing which appeared to cut little if any figure but to delay the bill. The Cottonwood gentleman got up and said he was not surprised at Mr. Robbins, who was one of the officers in an elevator company, being opposed to the bill as originally presented, for its main object was to keep elevator men from organizing and forcing their members to charge certain rates for handling wheat; from combining to swoop down upon the farmers like the knights of feudal times did upon the peasantry. The chairman called down the gentleman for indulging in personalities. Mr. Robbins got the floor again and wanted the republicans of the House to help pass this republican measure! and he expected the democrats to assist. Pat Kelly clapped his hands and the Hennepin contingent applauded. The gentleman said the measure was a populist measure and tried to belittle it all he could as well as its defenders; and was not called down for personalities. Another red headed fellow from Hennepin spouted awhile on the elevator side of the question, or as Robbins termed it, the republican side. Mr. Feig, of Kandiyohi, offered an amendment, and a gentleman from Clay another, and a Goodhue man, and Mr. Jacobson, of Lac Que Parle county waxed eloquent in favor of the farmers. Finally a vote on the bill was taken, and the farmers were clearly in the ascendency but the Hennepin county side wanted a division of the House. On a rising vote 32 farmers friends stood up; and 19 was announced as the vote on the elevator side; or, as Mr. Robbins had it, for the republican bill. The only representative from our 38th district we were able to recognize among those voting was Mr. Dare, of Elk River, who almost knocked his chair over in straightening himself up to be counted on the republican side, or as favoring the elevator men against the farmers' bill, or as Robbins termed it the populist bill. It looked to us like dreadful small business for men in the legislature making laws for the people of a great state like our to be obliged to, or to allow themselves to resort to such arguments, sophistries and other means to gain their ends. It seems as if the proper thing for legislators to do is to produce arguments for or against a bill and pass it on its merits; or reject it on its lack of merit, and of benefit, to the majority of the people, and not indulge in personalities in a war of words, arraying one trade against another, or antagonizing capitalists against laboring men or even one party against another. In the case in question the claim that republicans should vote for this republican measure was not sustained or there must have been a great many absent republicans drawing their pay just the same as if present and voting.



Spring is Coming! Spring is Coming!

Money! Money!

ARTICLE I.

Today we hear the cry in our land "Money, Money". From the lowliest beggar that holds out his hands for alms to the wealthiest citizens in this great republic all seem intent on securing more money. The poor want wealth; the weathy want greater riches. None are satisfied. The laboring man desires bigger wages; the moneyed man wants more interest; all seek money.

Politicians have come to realize the hold on voters that money has; and are seeking in various ways to attract to their respective parties all men. Some want a gold standard; others are bimetallists, want both gold and silver; others claim that money should be made of gold, silver and paper, one dollar as good as another. While some argue that paper money alone, is as good as any.

There is a wonderful diversity of opinion as to what constitutes money. Some claiming it is the intrinsic value of the metal from which it is made; others that the government stamp, alone, gives it value, regardless of the material on which it is placed.

Money is no new thing. In the first book of the Bible we read that Abraham bought the cave of Machpelah, of Ephron for four hundred shekels of silver; "and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver." Money was then in use for the same purpose as now, to buy what is wanted. Silver was used, by weight. Afterwards we learn that money was borrowed; was put out at usury; was paid for services. Also that silver was not the only medium of exchange; but, as in the case of Joseph, when he had gathered up all the money of Egypt, and Canaan in exchange for food, he continued to sell; taking for pay cattle, horses, flocks and herds; and later, lands. So it has been on down to the present time. People have found some means of making exchanges; some unit of value. Different nations have made use of different mediums. Shells, skins, grain, salt, metals and many other things have served, as we now use gold and silver; and were as eagerly sought after. People could, it seems, hardly get along without money, in some form; something for which they can exchange the product of their farms or shops; the services they may render, or whatever they may have to dispose of, and for which they may receive in exchange what they need or desire to have. And although we are told in Timothy that "The love of money is the root of all evil," it seems to be one of the necessities of man, the world over at the present time.

For ages one of the principal questions for man to solve seems to have been how to get more money. Recently it has occurred to some to bring other questions into prominence. Of what shall our money be made? and on what shall it be based? are just now taking the lead among people generally. So far as the moneyed men are concerned it looks as if these questions were "but a part of the stupendous whole," how shall we get more money?

If the people can be set to wrangling over these question, those controlling things financial can continue to cram their overflowing coffers with money, while the toiling masses are afraid to hoard their meagre earnings for fear that through some mysterious process, their little store will be made to depreciate in value; or become wholly worthless.

As has been shown, it matters not, so far as the buying qualities of money are concerned, of what material it consists. It may be shells of the sea, grain from the fields, bark from the woods, skins from animals, minerals from the ground, so long as people are satisfied to accept them one material will buy the necessities or luxuries of life as well as will another.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 22, 1895.

Instead of being criticised for having asked for the recall of the present Hawaiian minister to the United States, President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham are deserving of much credit for their forbearance in allowing him to remain here as long as they have. It is doubtful whether there is another country in the world that would have allowed this man to have remained under the circumstances. It was notorious during the last session of Congress that Minister Thurston not only furnished the opponents of the administration with ammunition to fight the Hawaiian policy of the administration, both in and out of Congress, but actually became a lobbyist against that policy himself. These facts are recognized by republicans as well as democrats. Senator Hale, of Maine, who has been from the first a rabid Hawaiian annexationist, said of the request for Thurston's recall: "I have no inside or exclusive information, but the published reports say that Mr. Thurston's recall has been asked because he made public diplomatic correspondence before submitting it to Secretary Gresham. If this is correct he was clearly in the wrong and could not expect that the Secretary would do otherwise than ask for his recall. It was clearly a breach of official etiquette, and is a practice which this country cannot afford to encourage. There might be times when such a course would lead to serious consequences, and if matters of international importance are to be so treated by the representatives of foreign governments we might as well have no State Department." There are reasons for the belief that Mr Thurston never would have been received as the minister of the Hawaiian republic had it been that opponents of the administration would have charged a refusal to receive him to prejudice against the government he represented. He made himself objectionable when he was one of the annexation commissioners, before he became minister.

Administration birthdays fall close together, at least four of them do. President Cleveland was fifty-eight last Monday, Secretary Gresham sixty-three last Sunday (St. Patrick's day) Secretary Herbert, sixty-one last Tuesday, a week ago and Secretary Morton will be sixty-three April 27th.

Postmaster General Bissell says he is working now just because he prefers work to idleness. Everything about the Postoffice department is in good shape, and the department could easily be run by the assistants until Postmaster General Wilson gets ready to take charge, but Mr. Bissell would have to remain in Washington for some time because the lease on his Washington house does not expire for more than a month yet and he cannot get possession of his Buffalo residence until about the same time owing to its having been leased to a friend so he prefers to remain in charge of the department.

Another row is developing among the republican members of the House of the Fifty-fourth Congress. Just before the adjournment of Congress the 98 republican members of the House who were re-elected held a secret caucus and decided that all of the important committee chairmanships should be given to them; also that they should control all the House patronage. The secret was not well kept; and when the new members heard about it they were naturally displeased. A count of noses shows that there are 135 new republican members-elect of the next House, and, according to statements made by some of them, they propose to band themselves together for the purpose of thwarting the scheme of old members to monopolize everything in sight, and it is said that some of them wish to push their power to the extent of electing one of their own number speaker, instead of Mr. Reed, because of his having endorsed the proposed grab game of the old members. The new members have the power to do what they please when it comes to organizing the next House, but it remains to be seen whether they have nerve enough to exercise their power.

None of the diplomatic complications have been entirely settled—things move slowly in the diplomatic world—but they are all in the course of settlement on a basis entirely satisfactory to the administration, except those arising from discriminations against American products by certain European countries; they are still in the unclassable stage.

E. S. Barnes is home temporarily from his logging operations in Morrison Co.

Operations in setting forest trees on Peavey farm are soon to be resumed, which circumstance called forth an appropriate remark from our venerable pioneer, John S. Harrington, that 41 years ago when he came to this country the effort then both muscular and financial, was to remove every vestige of the trees, and now the effort is to replace them regardless of expense, all showing the importance of preserving our forests.

INDEPENDENCE INCIDENTS.

The weather is fine and farmers have begun seeding in earnest.

It looks as if there would not be much sugar making this year.

E. L. Kingsley, of Taylor Falls, was calling on friends in Independence last week.

Some of our people have got the southern fever and some the spring fever.

W. W. Mills writes from Indiana that his son Robert is improving. The farmers are preparing to put in large crops this spring.

H. L. Bowen got his team in Lake Sarah the other day but fortune favored him and by the aid of a few men it was got out all right.

Quite a good many in our town are on the sick list again with bad colds, la grippe, etc.

Times are not on the improve as we can see. It will take a good crop and some first class legislating before we get better times.

Eli Perkins Wise Woman and Foolish Woman.

Two women were dying for new spring bonnets. One was wise and the other was foolish.

When the wise woman's husband came home, he found a kiss at the open door, his slippers on the hearth and the evening paper ready for him but so fixed that he would read a certain article. When he had finished it his wife tripped up behind him, kissed his forehead and asked innocently:

"What were you reading dearie?"

"O, about the richest woman in the world."

"Why, I know who is the richest woman in the world without having to read about it," exclaimed the wise wife, throwing her arms around his neck again.

"Who is it dearie?"

"Why I am. For I've got you, darling, and that makes me the richest woman in the world, even if I haven't got a bonnet fit to be seen on the street."

She will wear a new bonnet to church next Sunday—the wise woman will.

When the foolish woman's husband came home, he unlocked the door with a pass key, and sat down without slippers or newspapers. From the back room the foolish woman's voice sounded out saying:

"Do you hear me John Worrymore?

"I am sure there never was a wife so entirely ignored by her husband as I am. Don't sit there as complacently as an oyster when I am trying to make you understand my trouble. Do you hear me?"

"Oh, yes, my dear," said Mr. Worrymore with a sigh, "you make yourself heard with a distinctness——"

"Don't you dare to poke fun at me, Mr. W.," interrupted the foolish woman. "Oh, dear, I really believe I am a most miserable woman, I haven't a decent bonnet to wear, my gloves are full of holes and I can't have the attention of my husband for even five minutes, the mean thing!" and then she burst into tears.

Wiping them away she commenced, "Do you know what I am talking about Mr. W.? I don't believe you know what I was talking about."

"Oh yes, my dear."

"And what am I talking about?"

"If you will allow me to judge, my dear, I should say, so far as the case has been presented, you are talking about all the time."

And then the foolish wife put on her last year's hat and went off to church alone.—Ex.

MY BEST.

I may perform no deeds of great renown,
No glorious act to millions manifest,
Yet in my labors up and down
I'll do my best.

I may not paint a perfect masterpiece,
Nor carve a statue by the world confessed
A miracle of art—yet will not cease
To do my best.

My name is not upon the roll of fame,
'Tis on the name of common life impressed,
But I'll keep on marking just the same,
And do my best.

Sometimes I sing a very simple song,
And send it onward to the east or west:
Although in silentness it rolls along,
I do my best.

Sometimes I write a very little hymn—
The joy within me could not be repressed—
Though no one reads the letters are so dim,
I do my best.

My very best and if at close of day,
Worn out I sit me down to rest,
I still will mend my garments if I may,
And do my best.

It may not be beautiful or grand;
But I must try to be so careful, lest
I fail to do what's put into my hand—
My very best.

Better and better every stitch must be,
The last a little stronger than the rest;
Good Master, help my eyes that they may see
To do my best.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.
Square Type.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $350.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the other sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with its merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and we will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of a whole family.

NEW YORK has a society organized to see that the constitution of the United States is posted in public places where all citizens may read it.

THE Maine Sons of the Revolution have just admitted to membership in their order the descendant of a Passamaquoddy Indian chief who fought for America in the days of 1776.

A YOUNG woman has been arrested in New York for riding a bicycle in man's attire. The question will have to be settled whether the bicycle bloomers are an infringement on man's trousers.

IT is said that comparatively few Chinamen at home know that a war is in progress. They are concealed in villages thousands of miles from the coast and the news of the outside world never gets to them.

PROF. YOUNG finds by investigation that the sun's light is about 300,000 times as great as the moon's. If, therefore, the sky was covered with full moons they would give but one-eighth as much light as the sun.

THE Chinese empire is divided into eighteen grand provinces, representing an average area of 248,000 square miles. The German empire contains 211,000 square miles, the French republic, 240,000 and the British isles 121,000.

THE shipping of all nations is of the approximate value of $1,100,000,000, while the 110,000 locomotives at work represent a value of $1,000,000,000. The railways give employment to 2,394,090 people, while shipping employs only 705,000.

A NEW HAVEN (Conn.) heiress to $1,000,000 has agreed to wed a plain American named Carl Stoeckel, provided he changes his name to Carl Stoeckel Battell, the latter being part of her name. The young man promptly proceeded to make the desired change.

THERE is an editor in the far west who possesses in a large degree the virtue of caution. He remarked the other day: "It is said that a minister named Parkhurst, in Gotham, is beginning to be talked about as a reformer. We shall keep our eye on him and tell our readers what he amounts to in a month or so."

A KANSAS woman has applied to the governor for a bounty because she has raised thirteen children. She is certainly entitled to a bounty, but unfortunately the government has never offered any such inducement for rearing large families. Canada does better than the United States in encouraging native-born population.

THERE is much talk about the frequency of American divorces. There are a great many divorces in this country, but it is a big country and has a good many people. While the actual number is great, the percentage relatively to the population is small. It is estimated that the divorces amount to only 1 per cent. of the whole number of marriages.

HOTELS are becoming very exclusive. They have drawn the color line against the negro and the race line against the Jew, and now they are after the professionals. One New York hotel manager wants no drummers at his house, and another draws the line at actors. If this class discrimination continues we shall soon have separate hotels for lawyers, doctors, actors, etc., and perhaps one exclusively for millionaires.

A FIRE often destroys that which money can't replace. The most destructive fire in this way was that in New York which destroyed the shop of Nikola Tesla. Mr. Tesla is one of the most advanced of electrical inventors, and in his shop were many inventions and much delicate work that it will take years of patient labor and study to reproduce. The loss was not his alone. It was a loss to the whole scientific world.

A NOVEL funeral cortege surprised the people of Louisville recently. The deceased had been a prominent member of a bicycle club, and the wheelmen gave him a bicycle funeral. The pallbearers were mounted on wheels and rode on each side of the hearse, while another bicyclist followed, leading the wheel which had been ridden by the deceased during his lifetime. The bicycle has become so prominent a feature of everyday life that this event seems quite natural and proper.

THE thoughtlessness with which people rush after divorces without serious cause is illustrated by a case at Macon, Ga. A Mrs. Ward brought suit for divorce and it was granted March 4. Going home from court she met Mr. Ward, and was so sorry for him in his lonely condition that she sent for the preacher and they were remarried. When two people can be divorced and remarried on the same day, it is evident that they had little cause for the separation, and would never have seriously thought of it but for the ease with which divorces are secured in this country.

THE two German savants, Wagner and Supon, who have for many years been trying to secure a census of the world, estimate the whole population at 1,479,729,400 people. They give to Asia 835,945,000; to Europe, 357,379,000; to Africa, 163,953,000; to America, 121,713,000; to the Oceanic islands and the polar regions, 7,500,400, and to Australia, 3,230,000. The people who think that America is crowded and are looking to Africa will see that the Dark continent, with about the same territory as America, has 42,000,000 more people now, and very few of them are living in cities.

IN Berks county, Pa., there is a widow who might be made a leader in the suffrage movement. She owns a farm, which she manages, and she has refused to pay her road tax in cash, demanding the same right to work out the tax in helping to build roads that is conceded to men. It is the first case on record where woman has considered shoveling gravel and grading roads as a man's right which woman ought to have, but if it is a sign of the new woman she will get her rights without agitation. Men are not given to fighting against woman's doing the work which no one gets paid for.

A WOULD-BE ASSASSIN.

Fails in an Attempt Upon Li Hung Chang's Life.

A Hot-Blooded Young Jap, Prompted by a Misguided Patriotism, Shoots China's Viceroy and Peace Envoy in the Face.

SHIMONOSEKI, March 26.—As Li Hung Chang, the Chinese peace envoy, was returning to his lodgings in this place Sunday, after having attended a conference with Count Ito and Viscount Mutsu, the Japanese peace plenipotentiaries, a young Japanese fired a pistol at him. The bullet sped straight, but apparently did no more harm than to inflict a wound in Li Hung Chang's face.

Li Hung Chang was shot in the cheek. It is believed that the wound is not serious. Prime Minister Ito has telegraphed to Hiroshima asking that Dr. Sato, the imperial physician, be sent to Shimonoseki to attend the Chinese commissioner. The ministers of state and a number of other officials have visited Li Hung Chang and expressed their deep sorrow at the occurrence. Every precaution has been taken to prevent any trouble.

Count Ito, president of the Japanese council of ministers and one of the peace commissioners, has visited Li Hung Chang and expressed to him his sympathy and regret.

The attempt to assassinate the representative of the emperor of China caused the most intense excitement, and on every side there were expressions of deep regret. The would-be murderer was arrested. It is believed he was prompted to the crime by misguided patriotism. The name of the would-be assassin is Koyama. He is 21 years old.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The news of the assault on Li Hung Chang caused a sensation in diplomatic circles in this city.

The opinion here is that Japan will suffer greatly as a consequence of the assault and that the position of China will be so strengthened that it may be able to secure better terms of peace than it otherwise could have hoped for.

The incident may lead to the breaking off of peace negotiations, which were proceeding so satisfactorily, or at least may postpone further action in this direction until the Japanese have guaranteed the safety of China's envoy and made proper reparation.

YOKOHAMA, March 27.—Resolutions have been submitted to the Japanese diet regretting the attack made upon Viceroy Li Hung Chang, who was shot and wounded in the face Sunday at Shimonoseki by a young Japanese, supposed to have been carried away by excess of patriotic feeling.

BRADSTREET'S REPORT.

Improvement in General Trade Is More Marked.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Bradstreet says:

"Improvement in general trade is more marked, but not general. It is more conspicuous at larger New England points, at New York, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville and other centers along the Ohio river valley to St. Louis and as far west as Kansas City. Similar reports come from Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the first named announcing that smaller quantities of 4 per cent. money are being offered, the banks working steadily toward a 5 per cent. basis, demand for loans continuing to improve and reserves being lower than for a year past. From other cities a better feeling is reported, based on the recently developed strength in cotton, wheat and flour. The widespread prevalence of the inquiry whether this upward movement is the beginning of a permanent recovery from the two years of depression is of itself significant.

"Heavy coal shipments and improved demand for iron and steel are reported from Pittsburgh. Trade is only fair at Cleveland, and collections are unimproved. Jeans manufacturers at Louisville are pushed to keep up with orders, and while only few lines report improvement at Chicago, this is in addition to gains those a week ago. Buyers from some of the more prosperous sections have purchased stocks at Chicago this week, which with the improved feeling in hardware and barb iron, have imparted a more confident tone. Notwithstanding unfavorable weather St. Louis reports continued improvement in sales of drygoods and kindred lines and of pig and finished iron. Relatively the greatest activity at Kansas City is in dry goods. An unfavorable feature of the week is found in Nebraska and Iowa, where business is reported dull and collections unimproved. Far western points make on the whole quite satisfactory reports. At Nashville, Memphis and Savannah the week's volume of business is reported slightly in excess of a week ago."

CHANGED HANDS.

Provisional Government Already in Force in Peru.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Herald's correspondent at Lima, Peru, telegraphs that the provisional government formed through the intervention of the diplomats and the papal nuncio has been organized and is already in operation.

Senor Candamo is provisional president and also acts as minister of foreign affairs. The Caceres regime is represented in the new government by Louis Felipe-Villarana and Ricardo W. Espanoza. For the revolutionary party, Bustamente Salazar and Dr. Malpartida have been selected.

Under the terms of the agreement by which hostilities ceased, President Caceres surrendered the reins of government and will retire to Ancon.

Minister Thurston to Go.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Minister Thurston has accepted the ultimatum of Secretary Gresham and has decided to leave this country without waiting for a formal notice from his government to return. Mr. Thurston reached this conclusion suddenly and announced it to his friends Monday afternoon.

PLEAS FOR DEBS.

The Supreme Court Takes Up the Habeas Corpus Case.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The United States supreme court Monday began the hearing of argument in the case of Eugene V. Debs, president of the American Railway union, and others who participated with him in the Chicago strike of the summer of 1894. The early proceedings in the case Monday developed that while the argument would be extended, the question at issue was not complex. Representing the government were Attorney General Olney, Edwin Walker, of Chicago, and Assistant Attorney General Whitney. The venerable Lyman Trumbull, S. S. Gregory and Clarence S. Darrow appeared for the defendant Debs and his associates.

Debs and his associates ask for a writ of habeas corpus relieving from the sentence of imprisonment passed upon them by Judge Woods, of the United States circuit court for the northern district of Illinois, in December last, on the charge of contempt in failing to obey the injunction of the court requiring them to desist from interfering with the interstate transportation of the mails or passengers or freight, and also from preventing employes of the railroads concerned from transacting their business. The fact was soon developed that the main contention of the petitioners would be that the original bill stated no case cognizable in chancery, and that therefore the injunction was void, and that the persons at whom it was aimed were not bound to observe it. In support of this proposition they asserted that without statutory authority from congress the government could maintain no such bill, and that no such authority could be found, unless it be in the act of 1890, known as the Sherman anti-trust act. But they contended that this act was not applicable, or that if it was applicable that section 4 of it, authorizing such proceedings, was unconstitutional, because involving the proceedings in chancery in such a case it deprived defendants on trial under a penal statute of the right of trial by jury, contrary to the sixth amendment to the constitution.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

United States Jealous of the Rights of Small American Republics.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The prospect of serious complications which threatens the United States through probable European encroachment on Venezuela and Nicaragua has assumed a phase of such danger to the principle laid down in the Monroe doctrine, that a special cabinet conference was held at the white house Wednesday afternoon to consider the subject. Secretary Gresham demanded that Great Britain show her hand. In the event that Nicaragua declines to accede to the demand made by her the United States wants to know just what England purposes to do.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The latest developments in the Nicaraguan question are of a character that at least temporarily sets at rest any baleful impressions that may have been created by the strong ground England has taken in the demands made by her upon the South American republic. The government is not on the verge of trouble with England, inasmuch as dispatches from Ambassador Bayard at London, in response to telegrams from this government requiring him to ascertain the attitude of Great Britain in case Nicaragua should refuse to pay the indemnity demanded for the outrage upon Mr. Hatch indicate very clearly that whatever else might happen England will not seek to acquire American territory. The telegram to Mr. Bayard was the result of the cabinet council of Wednesday and the reply received is regarded as very satisfactory.

No less agreeable to the government here is the latest phase of the Venezuelan question which, inasmuch as there are instructions from the British government of a disposition to submit that case to arbitration, is held to be a diplomatic triumph for the administration.

WALLER COMES TO GRIEF.

Ex-Consul of United States Sentenced to Twenty Years' Imprisonment.

PORT LOUIS, Island of Mauritius, March 26.—Mr. John C. Waller, formerly United States consul at Tamatave, Madagascar, has been sentenced by the French to twenty years' imprisonment.

Waller was convicted at a court-martial trial of having been in correspondence with the Hovas.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—State department officials are of the opinion that the French government has exceeded its authority in trying John L. Waller, ex-consul of the United States to Madagascar, by military court and sentencing him to twenty years' imprisonment for complicity in the uprising of the native Hovas against French authority. This is, of course, upon the supposition that the dispatches from Mauritius to this effect are correct, of which the state department claims to have no information. In such case, this government, following precedent, will probably protest against the manner of Mr. Waller's conviction, for our treaties with all countries, including France, provide that a citizen of the United States, arrested for complicity in insurrection, shall be tried by a civil court, unless he is captured with arms in his hands, in which case he may be tried by court martial.

[John L. Waller is an educated colored man, who was born in Missouri in slavery and was one of several slaves confiscated by federal troops and sent to Iowa in 1862. He was then 11 years old. He acquired an education, became a lawyer and practiced at Topeka, Kan., up to the time of his appointment as consul to Tamatave. He was deputy county attorney and a Harrison elector in 1888. His indorsements for the consulship were excellent and his legal ability and habits were praised. Waller was appointed to the consulship February 12, 1891, and served until February 23, 1893, when his successor arrived at Tamatave.]

RUIN BY A GALE.

A Cyclone Causes Great Destruction in Georgia.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 22.—A cyclone passed over the southwestern portion of the city Wednesday morning doing considerable damage to property. The large flourmill of Miller & Co., in track of the cyclone, was partly blown down.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 22.—A terrible cyclone and a tremendous rainstorm visited this section at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning. The cyclonic disturbance was greater in Girard, Ala., across the river opposite Columbus. The roof of the fertilizer manufactory was carried off and outhouses completely demolished. Four houses were blown down

STRONG NERVES

Depend upon pure, rich, red, nourishing, strength-giving blood. The nerves derive their sustenance from the blood and when they are weak it is because they do not receive the nourishment needed. The true cure for nervousness will not be found in opiate or sedative compounds. These only allay the symptoms.

"My wife suffered many years with various troubles, severe headaches, debility, nervousness, indigestion and dyspepsia. She has been treated by different doctors, and tried different remedies, but Hood's Sarsaparilla has done more for her than anything else. We consider Hood's Sarsaparilla a most indispensable medicine for family use, and for all disorders caused by torpid liver and impure blood, in fact it is a wonderful health restorer to the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved itself in my wife's case, and we can faithfully recommend its use in every family." JACOB ROMMEL, Morrison, Mo.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Removes the cause by purifying and enriching the blood, giving to it just those qualities which are demanded for the proper support of the nervous system. Hundreds of women who once suffered from nervousness, write that they have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and nervousness has disappeared. This was because Hood's Sarsaparilla purified their blood.

The Ruling Passion.

It was an exceedingly quiet little game. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Brown were deeply interested; but the stakes were so light that Mr. S. and Mr. B. would have found quite as much excitement in dominos or tic-tac-toe.

Mr. Smith had three aces when Mrs. Brown, with a pair of threes, called him. It was this display of intrepidity that led to her husband's criticism:

"You shouldn't have called, Clara," said he. "You should have raised or dropped out."

"But, if I hadn't called," replied his wife, "we wouldn't have known what he had."

"Nobody called me," remarked Mrs. Smith, dolefully, "when I had four sixes."

"Well," said Mr. Smith, "we knew, that time, we could depend on getting the information without paying for it."—Puck.

Embarrassingly Ambiguous.

"There was quite a fight in front of the store to-day," said a Rockland man at the supper table. "Two men got into a row, one struck the other and then the crowd gathered. The man who was struck ran, grabbed a cart stake and rushed back, his eyes blazing. I thought sure he'd knock the other man's brains out, and I stepped right in between them." The young heir had given over eating his tart as the narrative proceeded, and his eyes leaned right out of his head. He was proud of his father's valor, and he cried: "He couldn't knock any brains out of you, could he, father?" The old man looked long and curiously at the heir, but the lad's countenance was frank and innocent and open. When it closed with the tart on the inside the father gasped slightly and resumed his supper.—Rockland Tribune.

Cause for Joy.

Oneman—You look happy over something?

Tother—I am happy. We have a new girl at our house.

"Ah, let me congratulate you. I suppose you'd be happier if it were a boy?"

"Not much. It's the only girl we have ever had that knew her place and kept it and knew her business and attended to it. And we have to pay her only two and a half a week."

"Oh—ah—er—let me congratulate you more than ever."—Detroit Free Press.

Overheard at the Ball.

"This ball opens rather tamely, but I guess it will end fashionably enough."

"I hope so, too. All's well that ends well, you know."—Texas Siftings.

$10 worth $40

Last week we told of the process of galvanizing and its indispensable preservative qualities. Next week we will give you the experience of two representative business firms of Illinois, one of whom has sold 400 and the other 500 Aermotors. The week following we will quote a price on the best pumps made (hand, wind mill and irrigating) lower than was ever before dreamed of; and the week following that we shall talk to you of steel galvanized tanks, with covers, at the unheard of price of 2½ cents per gallon. This is cheaper than wood. They do not shrink, leak, rot, rust or give taste to water.

The Aermotor Company treats the public generously. While state legislatures are passing laws for setters for farm machinery at reasonable prices, IT IS A FACT THAT THE AERMOTOR COMPANY HAS FOR THE YEAR 1895 BEEN COMPELLED TO RAISE ITS PRICES OR REFUSE BECAUSE SOME OF ITS CUSTOMERS HAVE BEEN ORDERING INDIVIDUAL PARTS TO MAKE UP COMPLETE MACHINES, SINCE IN THAT WAY THEY COULD GET A MACHINE CHEAPER THAN BY ORDERING IT ASSEMBLED. People are not compelled to buy machinery; they are compelled to buy repairs. The Aermotor Company was in this respect genuine. It was to a fault. It told so low that customers could buy the repairs and assemble a machine at less than the assembled machine would cost. But since it was not certain that they would get the machine assembled in good shape, the protection of its own reputation, the Aermotor Company has raised the price of certain repairs just enough to prevent this in future. Not only has the Aermotor Company always given the best goods at the lowest price, but it has now ESTABLISHED TWENTY BRANCH HOUSES IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE COUNTRY IN ORDER TO HAVE NOT ONLY ITS GOODS EASILY ACCESSIBLE, BUT TO HAVE ITS REPAIRS WITHIN EASY REACH. It expects soon to greatly increase the number of houses. This is a matter of the greatest importance to those who are purchasing machinery. Accidents will happen, and when he is buying an article that repairs can quickly be had at reasonable cost. Our very low prices and high standards in everything connected with water supply and power production by wind, together with the accessibility of a full line of our goods and repairs, will be appreciated.

THE OLD ACADEMY BELL.

In the belfry on the terrace, where the mountain breezes blow,
Bearing breath of sweetest flowers, or the blast of drifting snow,
With the valley far below it, where the rushing waters fell,
Where the hillsides caught the echoes, hung the old academy bell.

I can hear it through the valley of the swift-receding years,
And its echo is like music sweet to banish care and tears.
When the sun with light up-springing brought the glory of the day,
Then the old bell, slowly swinging, clear and strong began to say:

Hear!
Give ear!
Come one, come all,
Obey my cheerful call:
Send sighing sorrow swift away:
Let life and love laugh light and go
Come catch a chord of carol sweet
Where willing workers wisely meet;
Obey my cheerful call,
Come one, come all,
Give ear!
Hear!

Every heart with joy was beating, willing feet made no delay;
Every lip spoke kindly greeting as we met upon the way;
Every youthful eye was lightened with the purpose of a soul,
And the ancient schoolroom brightened as the master called the roll.

Thus again, as in a vision, come the days of long ago:
Side by side, in paths elysian, friends of old together go;
And when morning mists are rolling, and the mountain breezes swell,
Far away I hear the tolling of the old academy bell.

AN INTERVIEW.

How a Great Frenchman Was Beaten by a Girl Reporter.

I am a lady journalist, and engaged on the staff of the Weekly Ray.

I never was a pudding-and-pie sort of girl; and I think when I started going to town, and left the household duties to my sister, my people actually felt a sense of relief.

For some time I wrote at random, sending in contributions to all sorts of papers, some of which reached their mark. The majority, however, like carrier pigeons or the Australian boomerang, faithfully returned to me.

At last I attracted the attention of the editor of the Weekly Ray, or at least my work did; and after a few more successes he offered me a post on his paper.

"A lady interviewer, you know, Miss Neville," said he to me, "can frequently attain her object where a man would fail, and I shall be glad to see what success you may have at the business."

Time went on, and I had "fixed" hundreds of notables, when one day, entering the editor's room to submit some copy to him, I perceived by the way he greeted me that he had some special commission in store.

"Good morning, Miss Neville. The very person I wanted to see. Take a seat."

I sat down, while the editor pushed his papers aside, laid down his glasses and commenced.

"You have no doubt heard that the famous Frenchman, M. Jean Coussot, has arrived in London for a stay of a few days, and has taken up his quarters at the Hotel Bristol?"

"What, the 'unapproachable' in London!" said I. "No, I am ashamed to say that I had not heard of it."

"Well, it is nevertheless a fact," continued my chief, adding with a smile: "And very aptly you have christened him, for not only has he never been interviewed, but has declared his decision that he never will be. Now, although Coussot has never done anything so very remarkable, beyond writing some epigrammatic plays and jingling verses, and posing with great success as an art critic, a wit, cynic, and leader of fashion, yet he has 'a vogue,' and whatever opinions and impressions fall from his lips people will greedily devour."

"Therefore," said I, anticipating his coming remark, "what you suggest is that I should endeavor to obtain the same?"

"That's it," said the editor. "Thereby, if you succeed, rendering your paper a great service and covering yourself with glory."

Next morning—I had spent all the previous day and night thinking about my task—I presented myself at the Hotel Bristol.

"Is M. Jean Coussot within?"

"Yes, miss," said the hall porter, much to my delight. "What name?"

I handed him one of my cards, which he in turn passed to a boy in buttons, who disappeared upstairs with it.

A minute later he returned. "Kindly step this way, miss!" Was the great man really going to see me? It would be something even to receive a refusal direct from his own lips.

Up and up we went, till, on the third or fourth landing, a man servant, holding my card in his fingers, confronted me.

"Monsieur has so many callers," he explained, with a bow, eying me curiously all the time. "What might be madame's business?"

Perfectly well aware that I might as well beat a retreat at once as hope for success if I answered his question, "My business is with monsieur," I said, calmly. "Kindly hand him my card, and he will see me."

Still hesitating, but evidently impressed by the assurance with which I spoke, the man turned and tapped at an adjacent door.

"Enter!" responded a voice from within. The man left the door ajar behind him. Silently I stepped up to it and peeped through the crack, being rewarded for my temerity by the sight of a rather stout figure of medium height, clad in a long frock coat, with a bullet-shaped head, hair cropped tight, a well-formed nose, and a straight mustache of enormous proportions.

"Mees Margareet Neveel!" I heard him say. "No! I do not think I know the lady." Then he added, turning to the servant: "Is mademoiselle young or old?"

"Young, sir," said the man: and in my anxiety I had almost called through the opening of the door "and pretty."

"Did you ask her beezneez?"

"Yessir. She said it was direct with you."

"Vell, I vill see her in one moment," came the welcome words; but, as I stepped back from the door, they were followed by: "But shust make sure her beezneez has nosing to do with ze noospapairs."

A groan almost escaped me. It was no use prevaricating when, in a moment's time, I should be in the great man's presence. I told the servant candidly that I did indeed come from the editor of the Weekly Ray, a paper that had always expressed its greatest admiration of M. Coussot and all his works, to bid him welcome to our shores.

The man's face relaxed as I said this. He returned to the room, and a second after I heard M. Coussot's voice from within:

"Ha! ha! Ha! ha! Ver' goot! ver' goot indeed! Tell Mees Neveel I feel zo honor greatly, but"—and here he raised his tones—"M. Coussot is nevair interviewed."

"So much for the glory I was to be covered with," said I, as, hurrying from the scene of my defeat, I turned into Regent street.

Next morning, still feeling a bit ashamed of myself, I went into the city to keep an appointment that the editor had made for me.

That over, I was coming down Threadneedle street, intending to walk back to the office, when, passing the entrance to the Bank of England, I saw a sight that made my heart go thump!

Three genial-looking gentlemen, locked arm in arm, were emerging from under the famous portals, and in the central figure I recognized M. Jean Coussot himself.

Falling back a pace, I "shadowed" them. They got to the corner and stopped at the edge of the pavement, talking, laughing, gesticulating wildly.

Suddenly they shook hands violently, and, with much raising of hats and vociferous interchange of good wishes, left him. He crossed over to the Mansion house. I followed. Why I did so, I can hardly say, except that I still felt a lingering hope that fate would yet befriend me.

Arrived on the opposite pavement, M. Coussot stopped and took up his station on the curb, critically eying the various road cars and omnibuses as they came up.

A Hammersmith car drew up, and, with unsuspected agility, he jumped on to the steps and nimbly climbed upstairs.

I followed, and took a seat behind him.

As we neared the top of Cheapside, I thought it time to commence operations.

"Excuse me," said I, in my softest possible tones, "I am not sure if I am on the right car. Does this one go to Hyde Park corner, can you tell me?"

As he heard my voice M. Coussot jerked round on his seat, and, as he looked at me, politely raised his hat.

"Ah, mees! I am a strangair in London," he said. "I vill inquire of the drivair."

And bending over the rail, "Do you pass ze Hyde Park cornair?" he asked; and then turned to me again with: "Yes, zis car pass ze cornair."

"Thank you, so much," said I, sweetly, trembling inwardly lest this should prove to be the conclusion of our conversation.

But the gallant Frenchman showed no intention of again turning his back towards me. On the contrary, he wheeled still further round, and, keeping his eyes fixed upon my face, said:

"Zere are so many 'buses and things in your London that it ese ver' con—conplexing, confusing."

"Very confusing," I agreed. "Have you never been in London before?"

"Ne-vair," said he. "I vant mooch to come, but somehow never do till this."

"And are you disappointed or pleased with London now you have seen it?" I ventured, feeling that this question marked an epoch in my life.

"Vell," said he slowly, and I hang on his very words, "I am both disappoint and pleased. It is a grand city, but it makes one's head ache, there is so mooch beezneez. (How I remembered that word!) And I do not find it pretty. It is too mooch dull, too gray, too 'neutral tint,' as you say."

He seemed to enjoy chatting like this, and, just as the shops and side-turnings flitted by us, so we went lightly from one subject to the other, until I knew the cause was won, and that, if I could only remember all he had said, I had enough material to fill a whole page of the Ray.

At Hyde Park corner I prepared to alight, having, just in order to prevent wounding his feelings, assured him that I believed Apsley house, which had attracted his attention, to be the habitation of the Guard's club.

"Ah! You get down here! I regret! Will mademoiselle exchange cards in memory of our deelightful conversation?"

"Oh! Pray excuse me!" said I. "I have been too indiscreet already."

"No! No!" he protested. "I have enjoy ver' mooch. But mademoiselle may have curiosity as to who she has been talking." And then in much the same tones as the intelligence might be announced, "I am the German emperor!" the versatile Gaul, again raising his hat, said: "I am Jean Coussot!"

"Really!" I gasped, in affected surprise, and without another word descended the steps.

A second after I jumped on to another 'bus, which soon landed me at Piccadilly circus.

Into an aerated bread shop I rushed, pulled out my note book, and began to scribble for dear life.

"What can I get you?" murmured an attendant.

"Coffee," said I, laconically.

"Anything to eat?"

"Yes, please," I answered, writing on, oblivious of the girl's proximity.

"What?" she persisted.

"What what?" said I, looking up, angry at the continued interruption.

When I had jotted down all that I could remember, I took a hansom to the offices of the Ray, shut myself up in an empty room, and never stopped till my interview was written, revised, and re-read.

"Knock out those two columns of Parliamentary Gossip," directed my editor when he had just cast an eye over my copy, "and the contents bill must be altered to 'Jean Coussot's Views of London.' Well done, Miss Neville! I'll have a chat with you later."

As may be remembered, the publication of that interview caused a great sensation in the journalistic world.

But the most pleasing memento of this little episode that I possess is an exquisitely fashioned small gold brooch, embellished with the letters "M. N." in diamonds, that M. Coussot himself sent to the Ray offices for me, bearing on the back the words in English: "To the Victor from the Vanquished."—Pall Mall Budget.

BISMARCK'S BIRTHDAY.

Reichstag Refuses to Vote Congratulations—Many Members, However, Visit His Home.

BERLIN, March 26.—The reichstag Saturday by a vote of 163 to 146 rejected the proposal of the president of the reichstag, Herr Von Levetzow, that the house congratulate Prince Bismarck upon his birthday, whereupon Herr Von Levetzow, amid vociferous cheers from the members of the right, announced that he resigned the presidency.

The lower house of the landtag by a large majority decided Saturday to congratulate Prince Bismarck on the occasion of his 80th birthday. The centerist, volkspartei, freisinge and Polish members offered the resolution.

BERLIN, March 26.—When Emperor William was apprised of the rejection by the reichstag of President von Levetzow's proposal that the reichstag vest in him (Levetzow) the duty of congratulating Prince Bismarck on the occasion of his 80th birthday, he wired to the ex-chancellor at Friedrichsruhe the following dispatch:

"I have to convey to your serene highness the expression of my most profound indignation at the resolution which the Reichstag has just adopted. It is in most complete opposition to the feelings of all the German princes and peoples. (Signed) WILLIAM."

Prince Bismarck, in answer to the emperor's message, sent the following telegram:

"FRIEDRICHSRUHE, March 23.—I pray your majesty to accept my respectful expression of my gratitude for your most gracious message, whereby your majesty has transformed an unfriendly action of my political opponents, concerning which I am not yet fully informed, into a source of joyful satisfaction to me. (Signed) "BISMARCK."

Dr. Buerklin, vice president of the reichstag, was in Montreux, Switzerland, when apprised of the resignation of Herr von Levetzow as president of the reichstag and when he learned the cause, he at once telegraphed his resignation also.

BERLIN, March 27.—The celebration of the 80th anniversary of the birth of Prince Bismarck, which occurs April 1, may be said to have commenced Monday, as 392 members of the reichstag and the Prussian diet started during the day for Friedrichsruhe in order to congratulate the ex-chancellor.

They were received at the railroad station by Count Herbert Bismarck, Count William Bismarck, Count von Rantzau, husband of Prince Bismarck's daughter, and by Count von Waldersee.

The deputations proceeded to the castle front, where they were received in a body by Prince Bismarck. Herr von Koeller, president of the lower house of the Prussian diet, made a speech congratulating Prince Bismarck on the approaching anniversary of his birth. The prince made a speech thanking the deputies for their kind wishes, saying:

"Accept my warmest thanks for the honor you have rendered me. It is to me the highest distinction to see such a noble assembly united here. I should be ashamed if the honor was not for the work I have done, not for my person only. The credit for the present results achieved I share with those cooperating with me, who are now dead, and, above all, with my greatly worshiped good master under whom I worked so long. (Here the aged ex-chancellor stopped speaking and cried bitterly, the assembly in the meantime being greatly affected. Regaining his composure somewhat, the prince resumed his remarks in a voice choked with emotion.)

"What," he said, "could I have done without his aid, and that of his powerful army? I would have stuck in the same bog that frustrated all previous attempts at German unity. Our dynasties, thank God, are still powerful in their countries [cheers] and especially the king of Prussia is able to put a powerful army into the service of national interest. This was my aim at Frankfort-on-the-Main and I have always followed it since."

Prince Bismarck continued:

"National feeling in the empire is not of late manifesting itself so strongly as I could wish. There is no doubt that there are two separate and independent governments at Berlin. There is but one, for the foreign policy, which, as intended by the constitution, ought to be impartial, has been distorted by bureaucratic malpractices from the original intention. I am sorry I cannot directly take part in the management of affairs."

Here the ex-chancellor was interrupted by shouts of "So are we." With a wave of his hand, Prince Bismarck continued:

"No, I am not well enough to cooperate with you practically [Hurrahs and cries of 'Yes, you are!'] but my ideas are with you perhaps more than is proper for an old man like myself. But I cannot help myself: I cannot drive away what has become an habitual interest through life-long work. I cannot now express my feeling better than by impressing upon you, especially you members of the landtag that you must hold fast to the national idea and remember that in Prussia, also we do not follow alone the Brandenburg or Prussian policy, but the imperial German policy. In this sense, I call upon you for three cheers for the kaiser."

The cheers were given heartily. When quiet was restored Prince Bismarck retired for luncheon with the presidents of the bodies represented. Counts William and Herbert Bismarck and Count von Rantzan, the ex-chancellor's son-in-law, were also present. The deputies departed for their homes on three special trains.

DEATH OF MAJ. GEN. COOKE.

The Retired Veteran of Several Wars Dies at Detroit, Mich.

DETROIT, Mich., March 22.—Maj. Gen. Phillip St. George Cooke died Wednesday afternoon.

[He was born at Leesburg, Va., in 1809, of a good old southern family. At the age of 14 he entered West Point, and for fifty-seven years thereafter stood beneath the stars and stripes. When he was graduated from West Point he went west. The thirty years previous to the outbreak of the rebellion saw him a daring and intrepid fighter on the plains. In 1829 he dispersed the Comanches in Kansas. In the Blackhawk war he was a leading figure, and against the filibusters of the Lone Star republic, short-lived as it was, he bore himself with courage. He was high in command at the conquest of California and New Mexico, and led the band which dispersed the Lipans in 1853, and a little later headed the small army which drove the Apaches 200 miles through the winter snowstorms. When the rebellion broke out he stood by the flag, while his own son, Gen. John R. Cooke, and his famous son-in-law, Gen. J. E. B. Stuart, drew their blades for the confederacy. In this war he was supported by his son-in-law, Gen Jacob Sharpe, mortally wounded at Winchester. He was retired in 1874 and since then had lived in Detroit. A widow and Mrs. Sharpe survive.]

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, March 20.—In the senate Masterman's bill cutting down the fees of the surveyor general for scaling logs and lumber was passed under suspension. Masterman also introduced a bill placing with the state prison board authority to contract the labor of one-half of the convicts for six years. No convict can be leased for less than 45 cents per day. The bill relating to the support of fire departments in cities and towns was passed under suspension of the rules.

In the house 10 petitions from various parts of the state protesting against the adoption of the Zier compulsory education bill and the adoption of Mr. Dale's bill for the taxation of church property were presented to the house this morning. Dr. Zier's bill avoids the snag in the Bennett law and provides that any school, whether public or parochial, that teaches the common branches of education in the English language, is a school within the meaning of the act. Mr. Jacobson sent up a resolution providing that hereafter the house meet at 9:30 a. m., remain in session until 12:30, at which time the speaker shall declare a recess until 2 o'clock, from which time the house shall remain in session until adjournment. The resolution was adopted without discussion. Only three local bills were introduced. The bill declaring a forfeiture of state swamp lands granted to the Minneapolis & St. Cloud railway was recommended for passage.

ST. PAUL, March 21.—The senate passed the Sheehan home rule bill, an important forestry bill, and a primary election bill. The most important was the Shehan bill. It was amended generously, but the most important amendment was by Schaller. It provides that before any city shall incorporate under the provisions of the act the legislature must pass a law prescribing the general limits under which the charter must be framed. This modifies the bill materially and reserves to the legislature considerable control over the cities. The forestry bill was for the prevention and suppression of forest and prairie fires. The bill of Senator Roverud, making vagrancy and tramp life contrary to general law, was passed, but there was so much opposition that the author had the same reconsidered and committed to a special committee.

In the house 22 bills were introduced. Zier introduced a bill providing for an assistant bank examiner and an assistant public examiner. Most of the measures were of minor importance. The rest of the day was spent in committee of the whole. When the bill providing for a salvage corps came up it was immediately attacked by Jacobson, who claimed the measure proposed that one-fourth of the 2 per cent tax paid on premiums by the insurance companies to the state be devoted to the establishment of a salvage corps for cities of 5,000 inhabitants or over, but this was not a just proposition, inasmuch as its benefits would be experienced only by the insurance companies and the cities. The tax belonged to the state, and any attempt to divide meant nothing else than the appropriation of just so much money. The bill was killed.

ST. PAUL, March 22.—The senate has been having a clearing week and this morning found everything fixed up but general orders, and the entire day almost was spent in committee of the whole. The bills seemed numerous, but by hard work the list was gone half through and several big bills were tackled during that time. The most important bill considered was the last one, a bill introduced by Senator Cole, providing for the payment of money from the gross earnings fund to the counties where the unused railroad lands are situated. The bill was recommended for passage. Potter's tax bill was killed by indefinite postponement. Thedon's bill prohibiting Sunday theaters was also put to rest in the same way.

Bills were introduced to regulate express companies and declare them common carriers; to prohibit the sale of liquor in original packages to be drank on the premises.

By a decisive vote the house accepted the report of its committee on public lands indefinite-postponing the Gibbs pine land bill. The bill was drawn up by State Auditor Bob Dunn, and embodied his views on the subject, but the house preferred the judgment of its committee to any argument to be made in favor of giving the measure further lease of life, and so voted.

In the afternoon the census bill came up as a special order, and a sharp fight was the result. It was not until 5 o'clock that a vote was reached, and the bill was lost. Mr. Jacobson then moved that the committee on census be instructed to prepare a bill to take the census alone of the state, and the motion prevailed.

ST. PAUL, March 23.—The senate spent most of the day in committee. The bill of Senator Culkin, which applies the laws of usury and interest to building and loan associations was recommended for passage. The age of consent bill, after long discussion, placing the age at 18 years, was recommended for passage. Bills were introduced to purchase the site of Fort Ridgley, Nicollet county, and erect a monument thereon; to limit the time to institute actions against real estate; relating to foreclosure of mortgage, notice to be served by sheriff or deputy. The St. Paul druggists presented a petition against the passage of the Zier patent medicine bill.

In the house the bill to do away with screens and chairs in saloons was killed by indefinite postponement. The bill making John S. Pillsbury an honorary member of the board of regents of the state university was passed and taken at once to the senate, where it was passed under suspension of rules. The following bills were passed: To provide for a hard fiber twine plant at the state prison; authorizing cities to create the office of weighmaster; to exempt the scales of certain elevators, mills and railroad yards from jurisdiction of the city sealer of weights; to prevent railroads from charging excess for overloading cars; to amend the act to regulate elections; to amend the act providing for the organization of school districts. The Zier compulsory education bill was killed by the report of the committee on education, which recommended indefinite postponement.

ST. PAUL, March 25.—The senate took up the bill forfeiting lands granted to the H. & D. railway company, and after a full discussion passed the same by a vote of 33 to 6. Bills were introduced relating to offices of county auditor and county treasurer, making county auditors four years; to authorize townships to hold annual elections; placing express companies under the railway and warehouse commission and declaring such companies common carriers. This last bill is a duplicate of S. F. No. 445, which disappeared after it had been given to the judiciary committee. More petitions were presented against the Zier patent medicine bill.

In the house bills were introduced providing for a verdict of five-sixths of a jury in civil actions; for the inspection of dairies; to amend the laws to establish a probate code. The census committee of the house has reported a bill providing for an enumeration of inhabitants, as provided by the state constitution. The enumeration is to include a count of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. The sum of $45,000 is set aside for the cost of the same. The following bills were passed: Preventing the sale of liquors to minors; allowing the use of license money for public improvement; limiting the number of votes in one election district; to legalize and validate the defective execution of deeds, mortgages and other instruments. Jacobson's bill relating to highways was reported back from the senate with amendment, the amendment was concurred in and the bill passed.

The Grave.

O the grave is a quiet place, my dear!
So still and so quiet by night and day!
Reached by no sound, either joyous or drear,
But keeping its silence alway—alway.

O the grave is a restful place, my dear!
Unvexed by the weightiest loss or gain,
All the undone work of the speeding year
May beat at its portals in vain—in vain.

O the grave is a tender place, my dear!
For love immortal, and glorious trust,
And beauty, and faith, all do linger here
So sweet and so white in a robe of dust.

O the grave is a home-like place, my dear!
Where we all do gather when day is done;
Where the earth-mother folds us close and near,
And the latchstring waits for the laggard one.

What's the Use?

What's the use a-frettin'
'Cause the summer's gone?
All the time furgettin'
Winter's comin' on!
Sleighbells with their jingle
Sets the air a-buzzin'—
Ole folks wish they's single—
Young folks wish they wusn'.

Talk of birds a-singin'!
Ain't as fine by half
As the room a-ringin'
With the children's laugh.
Hickory nuts a-crackin';
Fire a-burnin' bright—
Ain't no pleasure lackin'
On a winter night.

What's the use a-whinin'
All the winter through,
'Cause the sun ain't shinin'
Like it use to do?
Ain't we got the fiddle,
Full of old delights,
Sashayin' down the middle
Of the winter nights?

MICHIGAN'S BENEFACTOR

An Oft Repeated Story of True Philanthropy.

What Chas. H. Hackley Has Done for Western Michigan.

(From Grand Rapids, Mich., Evening Press.)

The most beautiful spot in all this city is inseparably associated with the name of Hackley. Chas. H. Hackley has been in the lumber business here continuously since 1856 and in that time has amassed a fortune which gives him rating among the wealthy men of the nation. But with wealth there did not come that tightening of the purse strings which is generally a marked characteristic of wealthy men.

It is not a wonder then that the name of Charles H. Hackley is known at home and abroad. His munificence to Muskegon alone represents an outlay of nearly half a million. For the past twenty years he has been a constant sufferer from neuralgia and rheumatism, also numbness of the lower limbs, so much so that it has seriously interfered with his pleasure in life. For some time past his friends have noticed that he has seemed to grow young again and to have recovered the health which he had in youth.

To a reporter for the Press Mr. Hackley explained the secret of this transformation. "I have suffered for over 20 years," he said, 'with pains in my lower limbs so severely, that the only relief I could get at night was by putting cold water compresses on my limbs. I was bothered more at night than in the day time. The neuralgic and rheumatic pains in my limbs, which had been growing in intensity for years, finally became chronic. I made three trips to the Hot Springs with only partial relief and then fell back to my original state. I couldn't sit still and my sufferings began to make life look very blue. Two years ago last September I noticed an account of Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and what they had done for others, and some cases so nearly resembled mine that I was interested, so I wrote to one who had given a testimonial, an eminent professor of music in Canada. The reply I received was even stronger than the printed testimonial and it gave me faith in the medicine.

"I began taking the pills and found them to be all that the professor had told me they would be. It was two or three months before I experienced any perceptible betterment of my condition. My disease was of such long standing that I did not expect speedy recovery and was thankful even to be relieved. I progressed rapidly, however, towards recovery and for the last six months have felt myself a perfectly well man. I have recommended the pills to many people and am only too glad to assist others to health through the medium of this wonderful medicine. I cannot say too much for what it has done for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Misuse of Horse Power.

Nearly twenty years ago two brothers purchased each a team of Canadian ponies for work upon their farms; they were as nearly alike as two teams could be, and under the same management would have lived and done service an equal length of time. One brother always drove rapidly and would reach his home—four miles distant from the railroad—in fifteen or twenty minutes less than his brother, although he lived a quarter of a mile beyond his brother's house. The other brother never urged his horses off a walk if he had a load on. If the horses chose to trot down the lower slope of a hill he would allow them to do so. In guiding them he strove to avoid all stones, heavy ruts and bits of sand. It seemed to be his constant aim to husband the resources of his team. The result was that, after twelve years of constant use, the slow and careful driver still had the same team, and a good team, too. Meanwhile the other brother had had eight different horses and spent over nine hundred dollars in horseflesh.—Dumb Animals.

The Use of It.

Among the many useless inventions thrust upon the world by people who like to do useless things was a clock once exhibited in Brussels. The peculiar thing about this clock was that instead of striking the hours with a bell, it fired a pistol every hour.

"It's ingenious," said a visitor to the exposition; "but of what use is it? Why fire a pistol?"

"To kill time," said the witty inventor.—Harper's Young People.

The Hot Springs of South Dakota.

ERIE, PA., Feb. 28, 1895.

Col. FRED EVANS, Prop.,
"Evans Hotel," Hot Springs, S. D.

Dear Sir: Among the many who have been benefited by treatment at the Hot Springs, S. D., and have experienced courteous hospitality at your hands, I claim the right to say a word in behalf of the Springs as a health resort, and cannot do better than to state the facts in my own case.

I left Erie, Pa., about November 1, 1894, my friends at the time doubting whether I would ever recover my health. I arrived at Hot Springs so weak and disheartened that it required aid to leave the cars and reach the hotel. For the first two weeks I felt no improvement. Then I experienced a change, which continued until my departure, and returned to my home very much stronger, and almost free from pain.

I do not hesitate to say to anyone seeking relief from pain, and desiring rest, that I do not believe there is any place where an invalid can go and find so many advantages, such as healing waters, pure air, grand mountain scenery and comfortable hotel accommodations, as Hot Springs, S. D. The elegant Evans Hotel is equipped with every provision for comfort, and all that goes to make one feel at home. I am so thoroughly convinced of the many advantages to be found at your location, that it is a pleasure for me to recommend the Hot Springs to invalids, and to those seeking amusement as well as health.

Wishing you every success, and that Hot Springs may become better known and appreciated, I am Truly yours, (Signed) W. M. TYSON.

What a Blessing

It is to have strong nerves, and how many are denied it. They to whom nature has been niggard in this respect can enjoy nerve vigor and quietude if they use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one of the finest nervines and tonics in existence. Dyspepsia, a prolific source of nerve inquietude, is invariably overcome by this genial medicine, which is also potent as a remedy for malarial and kidney trouble and constipation.

AN ALARMING STATEMENT CONCERNING WOMEN.

HOW BAD HABITS ARE FORMED.

The New York Tribune says: "The habit of taking 'headache powders' is increasing to an alarming extent among a great number of women throughout the country. These powders as their name indicates, are claimed by the manufacturers to be a positive and speedy cure for any form of headache. In many cases their chief ingredient is morphine, opium, cocaine or some other equally injurious drug having a tendency to deaden pain. The habit of taking them is easily formed, but almost impossible to shake off. Women usually begin taking them to relieve a raging headache and soon resort to the powder to alleviate any little pain or ache they may be subjected to, and finally like the morphine or opium fiend, get into the habit of taking them regularly, imagining that they are in pain if they happen to miss their regular dose."

In nine cases out of ten, the trouble is in the stomach and liver. Take a simple laxative and liver tonic and remove the offending matter which deranges the stomach and causes the headache. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are composed entirely of the purest, concentrated, vegetable extracts. One Pellet is a dose; sugar-coated, easily swallowed; once used, always in favor. They positively cure sick headache and remove the disposition to it.

MR. E. VARGASON, of Otter Lake, Lapeer Co., Mich., writes: "I not infrequently have an attack of the headache. It usually comes on in the forenoon. At my dinner I eat my regular meal, and take one or two of Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets immediately after, and in the course of an hour my headache is cured and no bad effects. I feel better every way for having taken them—not worse, as is usual after taking other kinds of pills. 'Pleasant Pellets' are worth more than their weight in gold, if for nothing else than to cure headache."

DELANO DIARY

—New grocery, opp. round elevator.

—Work has been begun on Mealey's new jewelry store. Delano is improving by degrees.

—Returns from the state examinations taken by the school have been received and give good satisfaction.

—From the amount of freight arriving at the depot, daily, it looks as if our merchants still have faith in the promise of a seed time and a harvest.

—Ed. Bock's new house on the west side is being completed; ground for the new creamery has been staked out and, on the whole the west side bids fair to rival the east side in building this year.

—The Eagle complains that eggs and butter are down on account of the democrats. Don't she know that eggs were 25 cts. a dozen a month ago? Don't she know the democratic Congress was then in session? Don't she know that republicans now control both Houses of Congress?

—Proof Reader, to foreman of the pressroom "Wait till I get this proof read and I'll go out into the street with you."

Foreman of the Pressroom, "There will be more street than you want."

P. R. "You'll be all over the street in a minute."

F. P. R. "You bet I will; looking for you."

—A sociable entertainment, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church will be given at the home of Rev. Davies on Friday evening. Proceeds to go toward buying hymn books for the Society. Several of the leading artistes of our town have consented to take part. Ice cream, music, songs, recitations. All are invited.

--Joe Brenner's little girl ate some herring on Thursday and afterwards kept trying to vomit and appeared to have something the matter with her throat. On inspection a fish bone was found to be lodged in her throat, which the family could not remove. The little one was taken to a physician where she was firmly held by a couple of strong men while the bone was soon dislodged and removed.

—Flour, groceries, confectionery, fruits, tobaccos at Young's Grocery.

—The Oregon Indian Medicine Co. will begin a two week's stay at the City Hall Tuesday, April 2nd. The entertainments given by the company are very popular and invariably attract large and well pleased audiences. Admission is free for ladies and gentlemen the first two nights. Our exchanges speak very favorably of this company and their manner of conducting their business. 26-1t.

—The street commissioner, this morning chopped down the democratic pole raised before Cleveland's last election. It was the tallest in the county being about 110 above ground. The dry weather and strong winds caused it to lean and it became a menace to the electric light plant as it was liable to fall across the wires near it. Such tall poles are not always safe, and it is hardly probable that another so high will be raised in the county soon.

—Some difficulty has been experienced in the public schools in keeping order lately. It is a hard thing to expel a young man or woman from school, to take away from them the chance they have to get an education. It is very unpleasant to be called upon to whip or punish scholars for disobedience or other wrong doings; but it is better a few unruly ones be punished properly than let the school prove a failure to all.

—Bring your butter and eggs to me. Top prices. W. D. Young. 1t.

—Peck Young's pony came up to the town pump this morning for a drink and looked disgusted enough as he wended his way back to the barn, dry as he came. That pump should be fixed.

—Rev. J. W. Powell is gathering in the funds little by little to meet the M. E. church debt. He reports the receipt of $6., clear from Boston. May his efforts be crowned with success in wiping out the entire debt is the wish of all.

—On Friday night the first gentle shower of spring fell. On Saturday morning the ground was moist and small pools of water were seen here and there over the landscape. A pair of ducks, the first of the season, was seen wending its way through the air early in the morning; and the first real indications that seed time was near were observed on all sides.

—If you expect to have a good crop of tomatoes, or early cabbage and other "garden sass" this summer you should have the seed planted and be doing your best to hasten the plants along and transplant them several times and get them ready for placing in the garden as soon as the danger of frosts is past. Delay no longer. Good gardens are good things to have.

—The Epworth League has undertaken to raise $100. to apply on the M. E. church debt. They have made arrangements for Stella Stanton, Elocutionist and Dramatic Reader, to give an entertainment in the M. E. church on Thursday evening, April 4; the receipts to be divided between the two parties. They are also preparing to serve hot coffee and lunch in some building on lower River Street on Saturday, Fair Day. Patronize them and help along a good cause.

—Arbor Day is hastening on. Our school has a first class opportunity to show its ability to make trees grow by planting out a plenty of them on the gravelly knoll on which the school house is situated. By excavating a large enough place and filling in a few loads of good dirt, manure, etc., etc., and properly planting, the box elder, a few elm, and other easy growers, a beautiful grove would soon adorn the hill top and furnish shade for the school children for years to come. Enthuse a little, get to work and do this noble act for yourselves and your posterity.

—Our school house is a credit to the village and compares favorably with city buildings, though a little smaller. But it is a shame on any community to permit it to be occupied day after day with no mode of egress in case of fire, save the front door. Fire escapes, the same as are attached to the city school buildings could easily be arranged, at a trifling expense, compared with the risk of life and limb in case of a hurried exit having to be made. Some say there is no danger of fire, yet all know how suddenly and mysteriously the old school house was consumed. They say there is no danger even if there is a fire! Let people who have children in the upper rooms or even in the lower rooms, examine the premises for themselves and see how easy a matter it would be for their little ones to be burned to death or crushed by the older scholars in trying to get out. The controlling forces on the board have no children there and consequently, don't seem to realize the danger; but parents who have children at school should be heard. Fire escapes of a safe and reliable kind should be provided, same as city schools have. Smoke alone would prevent children getting down the stairs, create a panic, probably cause some one to jump out the windows and kill or cripple themselves. Let the board attend to this much needed matter at once. It may have been a penny wise but was a pound foolish to have a house the size of that with no back door.

--The Gazette had a bad fit again last week. The poor decrepit sheet is getting worse cranky all the time and for a church deacon the man at the head of the concern has a remarkable disregard for the truth. Misrepresentation and plain out-and-out lying seem to be his second nature.—Eagle

The above quotation from the Eagle is, we presume, intended as an answer to our last week's pen picture of its chief, as a growler. She has adopted her usual tactics, when run to cover, and like another member of the feathery tribe that sticks her head through the fence and thinks she has hid, the Eagle magnifies the faults of others, and does her best to have the public think some body is a terror and behind this bulwark she spits forth her denunciations of those who want sit quietly down and allow her to stick her ugly bill and claws into their unprotected carcasses to her heart's content, apparently thinking she is out of sight. It seems to be her ordinary way of defending her self. She is not what her name might imply, a first rate bird.

You have made an insinuation that you should be bird enough to substantiate. And not try to hide your faults behind some dung pile of your own construction.

As for the GAZETTE item of last week, "Garrulous Gutzwiller Growls", being a bad fit, the Eagle and some others disagree. Several have expressed themselves as thinking it about as good a fit as the old Jew's coat "It fits him shust like ze baper on ze vall." In regard to the GAZETTE "getting worse cranky all the time", how can the Eagle expect anything better of us with such cranky subjects to handle? She calls us a "church deacon". We do belong to the M. E. church; and we do not consider it any disgrace; but we have never, to our knowledge, been ordained deacon. Our readers can decide for themselves as to whether we are trying to tell the truth or not; so we need not argue that point, except to inquire of the Eagle what it is in our article, aforesaid, she considers untrue. Does she deny that the new council met Wednesday instead of Monday evening to accommodate Mr. Gutzwiller? Does she deny that he growled; or is she mad because we didn't cite more instances? Is she horrified to learn that any one dare suggest that there is other brain substance on the board than that contained by the skull of I. Gutzwiller, Jr.,? Is she mad because we discovered a spark of "manliness and independence pervading the body, (council) which refuses to be trampled under the iron heel of despotism? Is she put out at our prediction that the Growler will find plenty of business if he remains with the board? Or, is the Old Bird wormy?

Personals.

Dr. Catlin visited the Twin Cities Tuesday.

Mrs. Hitz and Carl came up this morning. rom St. Paul.

Ex-Sheriff Woolley, of Howard Lake, was in town today.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, of Watertown, was in town on Wednesday.

Ed. Brothers, mail carrier of Minneapolis, is in town visiting friends.

Frank Barth, Watertowns rustling merchant was in town yesterday.

Rev. Lawrence Zawodzki came home from the cities Tuesday evening.

Donald Crulkshank and Hamilton Cooper, two prominent Buffaloes were seen on our streets yesterday.

W. D. Young and wife visited "her folks" at Maple Lake on Sunday. Dell brought home with him that new driving mare.

Editor Buckley went through the University last Sunday. But there being no school that day he did not get his graduation papers.

C. G. Hanscome, the genial salesman of the St. Peter Furniture company called on our dealers on Saturday. He did not forget to look up the St. Peterites in town. Come again Clarence.

[Handed in.]

J. H. Walters visited Rockford friends this week.

August Konke has resigned from his position with Wm. Zabel.

Jack Roehl, of Maple Plain, visited Delano relatives last Sunday.

The Farmer's Band had a practice at Bohn's shop the first day of the week.

L. L. Stewart, the insurance man did business with Paul E. Datko, Thursday.

John H. McGary, Assessor and Treasurer of Independence, visited Delano this week.

Annie Meyer, of Delano, visited at Sam Kornek's, Independence, last Sunday.

Farmers claim that the rain that fell last Friday night helped the rye crop.

Allie Stoltz, of Woodland, begun seeding this week; he has concluded to remain at home this summer.

Ernest Otto, of Franklin, did business in St. Paul, Monday, returning home in the evening.

Mr. Chicora and wife, of Montana, visited her mother, Mrs. Niestroy, of Delano, this week.

Miss Minnie Willcutt begins her summer term of school in district No. 79 on Monday next.

Ben Willcutt expects to flood the market with maple syrup and sugar if the season proves favorable

Mrs. John Otto, of Delano, spent the last week with her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Kubon, of Minneapolis.

John Marslek and wife and Robert Weisner, of Maple Plain, came to Delano Sunday by special handcar. They had a pretty big load to pump home.

The Eagle advises farmers to sell their grain and fill the granaries with ice. If she will get them an appropriation from the town to pay for it they probably will, some of them.

School Jottings.

The school expects to give an entertainment soon. It promises to be a success.

When someone spoke of an homeopathic doctor as "Old Mr. Littlepills" a member of the class of '96 inquired into the meaning of the phrase.

It seems to be a very difficult matter for the high school scholars to walk out of step as they have always been trained differently.

It would be pleasant to have some of our noon visitors remain and listen to our recitations. Their only attraction seems to be "over the banisters" of the outside steps.

Judging from the discomfort with which some of the male sex kneel at rehearsal, we should say that they were not used to it.

The song with which '96 serenades '95 is, "Where did you get that cap?"

Hurrah for D. H. S.! Not one of the papers sent to the state board was returned. This is the best record our school has as yet made.

While having his facial appendage removed last week, one of our Juniors had the misfortune to lose his hat.

County Cullings.

Annandale had a narrow escape from fire last week. According to the Post a pile of straw between the barns of Chas. A. Matheu and M. C. O'Loughlin caught fire, it is thought, from a cigar stub, but was soon discovered and the fire extinguished. There is getting to be too many of these cigar stub fires. People who MUST smoke should be more careful.

Monticello has been trying to be the biggest town in the county; and, failing in securing the largest number of people she went to work to make them out the most wealthy, and now is kicking awfully on her big tax, bigger than Delano! Her tax is 37 mills; for school 15.8 mills; for other purposes 21.2 mills. Delano's tax is 27.1 mills; for school, 15.3 mills; other purposes, 11.8 mills. Monticello is assessed at $164,000; Delano at $156,000; $8000 more in Monticello than in Delano.

"We want a list of the vacant lands in the Northwest," is the way one of the British delegates writes to the Minneapolis Times and as a result that paper has undertaken the task of compiling such a list to be published in the Northwestern-European number which will be out in March. This newspaper enterprise, of which mention was made a short time ago in our columns, is progressing satisfactorily and will reflect great credit upon the journalists of Minnesota. Montana has been included in the states to be represented and a number of artists adaptable to the conditions prevailing in that state have already been promised.

BORN.

LOWELL.—In Greenwood, on Sunday, March 24, to Mr and Mrs Harry L. Lowell, a son.

DIED.

BRASIE.—At Monticello, Monday, March 25, Mrs. Minnie M., wife of Frank R. Brasie, aged 18 years.

The remains were brought to Delano and buried on Wednesday, Rev. Hilcha, of Minneapolis officiating.

Card of Thanks.

The family and relatives of the late Mrs. Frank R. Brasie wish to extend their heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so kindly assisted them in their bereavement.

THEN AND NOW.

What man forgets that boyhood woe,
That season of distress,
When life, it seemed, could never know
A taste but bitterness?
What angry thoughts came surging then,
What torrents of despair
Beat o'er his shattered spirit, when
His mother cut his hair!

And trouble never ends: for now
You notice with a sigh
That baldness slight, that heightening brow,
That comes as years steal by.
And, mentally, once more you writhe,
And 'gainst your fate declare,
When Father Time takes down his scythe
And starts to cut your hair.

—Truth.

Among Our Exchanges.

The income tax is pronounced oppressive by those who have to pay it. We should like very much to be among those oppressed by the present law.—St. Peter Herald.

Our opinion is that butter prices will rule pretty low the coming summer but this should not change the plans of creamery patrons. All branches of business have their ups and downs, and the time to let go is not when returns are below the average.—Litchfield Independent.

Moses Rivers, one of the men indicted for selling cigarettes to minors, came in himself and changed the plea to guilty. He asked for a light sentence, telling the court that he would not sell the weed to any boys in the future. Judge Smith fined him $15, which he at once paid and left the court room.—Evening Tribune.

People's Party League.

A People's Party League of Wright county was organized at Waverly, March 23d, having for its object, primarily, the educating of the people in the fundimental principles of reform.

The following officers were elected; President, F. W. Johnson, Cokato; vice president. Richard Bennett; secretary, W. Sidney Belt; treasurer, John McDonald.

After the consummation of the business of organizing, the meeting was addressed by Prof. W. R. Dobbyn, editor of the Progressive Age, in a clear, logical manner on the principles of reform and the necessity for organizing on the part of the people, to oppose effectually the encroachments of organized capital.

Local leagues will be organized in the several precincts of the county as soon as practicable and the work of reform will thus be carried on until Wright county becomes one of the leading centers of the reform movement in Minnesota.

W. SIDNEY BELT,
Sec. Co. League.

Do you Wish to Learn about Fruit Growing etc. in Minnesota.

The Minnesota State Horticulural Society was organized twenty-eight years ago for the sole purpose of gathering and disseminating reliable information in regard to fruit, vegetable, flower and tree culture in this state, and is now one of the strongest societies in America. It has nothing to sell and is in no sense a money making institution. Its reports are printed by the state and its expenses paid largely from the same source.

The members, now numbering several hundred, pay an annual fee of $1.00. This fee pays for all the advantages of the society, including report of last year, 538 pages, its monthly publication of forty pages and several valuable plant premiums, worth in all several times the fee paid. The state is already paying two-thirds the cost of all this, and by paying the remaining one-third, viz, $1.00, you will secure the full benefits of all this work. Is it good policy to buy or plant, especially fruits in this climate without learning from this absolutely reliable source what to plant and how to care for it.

For membership remit to, or for fuller particulars address A. W. Latham, Secretary, 207 Kasota Block, Minneapolis, Minn.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

TO THE "FUNNY FELLOWS."

This world has too much grief and pain,
Too many tears by half;
And so, my blessings do I give
To those who make me laugh.

Then let the croakers pass along:
Their talk is but as chaff,
While strength is in the playful words
That stir the lightsome laugh.

True, serious moods must have their place,
For work is life's great staff;
But they toil best who now and then
Send forth the merry laugh.

And so, since shadows form of life
By far the larger half,
Our fervent blessings let us give
To those who make us laugh.

CLARA J. DENTON, in Demorest's.

WILLIAM L. WILSON, of Virginia, is now Post Master General, Mr. Bissell, having resigned that position. He will doubtless make an able head to that department.

DEBS clubs are being organized in Indiana to boom Eugene V. Debs as a Presidential candidate on the Populist ticket. Mr. Debs would be as lively a candidate for that position as the populists could pick up.

THE Stebbins bill, offering bonuses to those intending to smelt ore in the state has met with defeat as it should. Even the Duluth News Tribune which favors a bounty says: "We, of Duluth are a little doubtful as to bonuses." Bonuses seem to be losing caste along the line.

TEN people were arraigned in Waterford, Ireland, a few days ago for burning a woman for a witch. People generally had come to think the days of such doings were over; but it seems they were mistaken. Right here at home some are not much better, talking about hypnotic influence, etc., etc.

MINNEAPOLIS seems determined to preserve her reputation as a city of murders. Since the Hayward trial one other has been disposed of; and now two men, Winters and King have been arrested, charged with the murder of Andrew Hanson. If Minneapolis could regulate affairs better it might prevent some of these crimes and save the county a big expense

FROM the Duluth News Tribune we learn that Duluth is making preparations to have a grand banquet for the doctors of this state and Wisconsin on June 21, after a joint session of the two state societies at Superior the same day. This will be a fine trip for the M. D's in the summer, to get a few hours rest from the weary life most of them live; never having a moment they can claim as their own. They deserve good treatment occasionally.

SOME talk is being indulged in concerning the next Presidential candidate on the democratic ticket. A few are grooming Grover for a third term. The United states is too well educated for that to count. Dave Hill is "hollerin'" for it as usual; but Grover's boom may amount to just enough to hoist Hill out of the race. People out this way are tired of New York politics and would prefer a man from farther west for President; one a little more in harmony with western notions than is the average eastern politician.

PROF. SIMS who a few months ago was around the country debating against Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, on the A. P. A. question is again before the public. This time he is on the same side as the Sage. He is said to be an able and fearless talker. We should judge so if he can talk on both sides of such a question and draw crowded houses, in so short a time It is strange how so able a man as he is said to be could turn so complete a summersault on such a question so suddenly; and, also strange, how he could ever have embraced the A. P. A. doctrine at all.

THE bill in the legislature providing for another judge, in this, the 4th Judicial District, seems to be meeting with considerable opposition among those most concerned. It is at present in the hands of the Hennepin delegation, which is said to be practically a unit against the bill. But H. J. Gjertsen and friends are said to be confident of getting the bill through all right. The Minneapolis papers talk as if Minneapolis was the entire 4th Judicial District. This is a mistake. Of course her residents occupy all the seats on the present bench; and if the bench is lengthened out hope to have a man in it. But there are other counties belonging to the district, and Wright, a much better county than Hennepin, taking the Flour City out, is one of them, and could justly have a representative on the bench, yet at the present time, so far as we know, the majority are satisfied to make no change now.

A PLAN of University Extension has been proposed whereby enterprising young men and women can secure a University education at home; without the trouble and expense of spending years away from home; oftentimes on account of lack of means, an impossibility. An appropriation of $2,500 is asked for to further the plan. It seems like the proper thing to do. Many deserving young people are obliged to work for a living, but could, by employing their spare moments, acquire a sufficent knowledge of several branches of learning, if directed properly, to pass the state examinations. Many would eventually be able to complete the course at the University. It is well worth trying. And once inaugurated it is hardly probable that the plan would be discontinued. Few villages or communities but contain bright intellects running to seed, as it were, far lack of encouragement in the proper direction; young men and women who, by this plan, will be encouraged to study something that will be of use to them and others, in after life, rather than waste their time over trashy literature, or in idleness. The Legislature should not fail to see that the plan is on the proper footing and then give it the proper aid; as it will surely be a paying institution to those able to embrace its opportunities, and through them, the state.

Money! Money!

ARTICLE II.

Gold has held its place as long, perhaps, as any other one article used for money. It has given as general satisfaction, on the whole, as anything ever serving as a means of exchange between the buyer and seller; and others doing business. It has to recommend it, a great many qualities, for the especial purpose of being made into money. It is one of the heaviest metals; it is the only metal of the color; it will not rust, burn up, or dissolve in water. It is well nigh imperishable. It has stood the test of time. It is acceptable in exchange for commodities of all kinds in nearly all, or quite all lands and among all nations, at some value. But each country seems to fix its own value, by stamping on pieces of certain fineness and weight the amount for which they will pass in that land, and among that people. It usually is, on account of its softness, mixed with silver copper or some other metal in some proportion, to make it hard enough to withstand the wear and tear of its busy career. This country alloys its gold 1-10 making it 9-10 pure gold for coinage, and stamps it; making 24 8 grs. one dollar, the unit of value.

Notwithstanding all the advantages gold has for serving as money, it is used for many other purposes. Jewelry, dentistry, and other things take up a large share of the gold in the country, it has been estimated that at least one fourth of the gold is used for other purposes than coining.

And although possessing rare qualities, for money purposes it does not always retain the same value relative to commodities, or to other moneys in use in the same country. As occasionally there is a slight premium on gold, when exchanged for other money in our own country. At one time, known as war times, the premium on gold, when bought with greenbacks, was very large, something like $2 80 being required to buy $1.00 gold; although both were stamped as good for one dollar, by the same government. Several times gold has been found in such large quantities as to lead some to think the market would be overstocked with it; and to cause the price to go down until gold money was at a discount. Thus it appears that gold does not serve better as a standard of value than would some other article from which money could be made. Gold stands 24th on a list of metals in regard to value; the first on the list being valued at $10,000 per pound, and on down to gold at $330 per pound. Higher priced metals, for various reasons, among them their scarcity, prevents their use as a medium of exchange. Cheaper metals are more plenty, but most of them are illy adapted to money coinage. Silver, nickel and copper, however, have their places in our money system and are now as eagerly sought after as are the gold dollars. Although gold is a model metal for money, it seems to be conceded all around that it is too scarce to serve as the only means of exchange among so many people and other money with it is demanded by the people generally.

Calls His Colleagues to Time.

From the St. Paul Dispatch we clip the following concerning the powwows going on in the State Senate. It don't look very well, but coming from the source it does it will likely interest some of our readers:

"When the Senate convened this afternoon, the members were treated to a lecture by Senator Yale. The senator from Winona called the attention of the senators to the fact that there had been too much freedom of debate lately and especially in committee of the whole. He said it was undignified and discourteous for senators to get up and brand as steals and frauds bills or measures introduced by other senators. It was going altogether too far to allow senators to impugn the motives of other senators, and any senator making derogatory remarks should be promptly called to order. He threw out this suggestion as within the last two weeks he had heard language used on the senate floor which would be a disgrace to a common street brawl. One trouble in this connection was that senators called on to preside were not warned that the dignity of the senate must be preserved.

President Day thanked Senator Yale for his remarks, which he said were timely and proper.

Senator Keller said that he was there as an American citizen, and would preserve his rights to expose any schemes that were foisted on the senate.

It seems kind 'o queer! But Garden time's here!

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 29, 1895.

President Cleveland and the other members of the administration are entirely satisfied with the present state of the various diplomatic complications. The new ministry of Spain has sent a communication explaining the delay in replying to Secretary Gresham's demand in the Allianca case and it is probable that the demanded apology will speedily follow; there has been a decided let down in the attitude of the British government as to its dealings with Nicaragua and Venezuela since President Cleveland instructed Ambassador Bayard to inform the British foreign office that if it violated the Monroe doctrine in its dealings with those countries the United States would forcibly interfere, and all of the other complications are being pushed to a satisfactory settlement.

According to the latest advices from Germany, President Cleveland's determination not to appoint delegates to the expected monetary conference, because of the difference between the avowed purposes for which it was proposed to hold the conference and those of a conference which the Wolcott amendment to the Sundry Civil appropriation bill authorized the United States to take part in, was unnecessary. It seems that the government of Germany has been engaged in a little game of buncombe, for the purpose of placating the bi-metallists over there who have been making themselves troublesome, and that it has no real intention of inviting the powers to a monetary conference.

If there were the same number of changes in the diplomatic corps every week that have been announced during the week just ended it would only take a few weeks to change the whole corps. One ambassador and four ministers represent the week's changes, not to mention the small fry.

At the last Cabinet meeting a local photographer succeeded in getting a splendid group picture of President Cleveland and his entire Cabinet, which will make a fitting companion picture for that of President Cleveland's first cabinet, taken just previous to the retirement of Secretary Manning from the cabinet, just as this one was taken just before the retirement of Postmaster General Bissell. Mr. Bissell will retire on Saturday and on Monday Hon. W. L. Wilson will assume the duties of Postmaster General.

Ex-Governor Campbell, of Ohio, who is the idol of the democrats of his own state and almost as popular in all the other states, is in Washington. He says he is devoting his time exclusively to the practice of law just now, but inasmuch as Senator Brice and other prominent democrats have been conferring with him it is safe to assume that a little of his time is being given to a discussion of plans likely to bring about future democratic success, which he is so anxious for.

Attorney General Olney's speech against the granting of a habeas corpus by the U. S. Supreme Court in the case of Debs, the leader of the Chicago railroad strike, has been very highly complimented. In the following quotation therefrom the whole case is stated in a nutshell; "By legislation, Congress has made steam railroads interstate commerce carriers for both governmental and private purposes. In July, 1894, interstate railroad transportation was being interfered with in the state of Illinois and the city of Chicago. The interference was on an immense scale and was accompanied with the burning of cars, with the derailment of trains with assaults upon passengers and employes by which many were killed and many more wounded, with howling and excited mobs in full occupation of entire districts and terrorizing entire communities. It was an interference for which, with all its consequences and incidents, the present petitioners (Debs and his associates) are to the fullest extent responsible, unless it be true that men can wantonly touch the match to powder and yet be blameless because not rightly realizing the ensuing devastation; unless it be true that men can make vehement appeals for something to be done and yet plead not guilty when their tools and dupes resort to the only means by which that something can be done; unless it be true that those who seek to execute a plot by the only means possible, in the open, and taking the legal consequences upon their heads are to be branded as criminals, while those who sit in an office and hatch the plot and urge on its consummation are to go unwhipped of justice because of loud-mouthed professions of virtue in general and respect for law and order in particular."

BUFFALO NEWS.

John Varner, Jr., has opened up a full supply of agricultural implements at his building near the depot.

F. Boerner commenced work on his three story brick block on Tuesday. A man from Minneapolis has the contract for the brick work, and Ham Cooper and John Hellier will do the carpenter work.

H. S. Lord was called to Paynesville Wednesday. His father-in-law, who resides there, is not expected to live.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Alley, Mrs. C. E. Oakley, John O'Leary and A. C. Waldron were city visitors this week.

W. W. Thompson has commenced work on the foundation of his new house.

C. A. Pidgeon has erected a neat little barn on his lots.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wright, of Montrose, were in town last Wednesday.

Senator Culkin came home, sick, last Sunday.

Mr. Frank Whan, who has been down at Belle Plain for a few weeks, returned home Monday.

LONG LAKE.

At the last town meeting of Orono a special committee was selected to review the financial affairs of the town extending back five years to its organization. J. E. Stanglund, E. L. Brown and H. L. Hoaglund constituted the committee. They have completed their report which does not exactly coincide with some of the annual reports of the town officers. The differences, however, it is supposed can readily be accounted for on further investigation.

"A bold hold-up is reported as having taken place at Markville, Lake Minnetonka, Thursday night. Two men entered the store in which is the postoffice, and at the point of revolvers compelled the clerk who was in charge to turn his face toward the wall while the two men and two more who came into the store later, took a quantity of stamps, cigars and $30 in money."

MARRIED: April 1, by A. C. Bailey, Esq., Mr. William Barnes to Miss Alice Wassen. It was an enjoyable occasion, followed by a chivarri and cigars.

Eldridge Cambell, who has been clerking for E. L. Brown during the last year has quit that employment and is succeeded by Oscar Martinson.

Special to the Dispatch.

Brainerd, Minn., April 1.—Robert Fitzsimmons has been sentenced by Judge Holland to twenty year's imprisonment for the crime of rape committed on a young working girl named Haglund. His case was an aggravated one, especially as it is generally understood that he is the man that was caught earlier on the same day taking improper liberties with a little girl only 8 or 9 years old. She was only saved from the villain by the timely appearance of some men who were luckily near enough to hear her cries for help, who came to her rescue.

McGary's Musings.

INDEPENDENCE, April 2.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—Yesterday was All Fool's Day but all fools didn't know it.

Last week the farmers put in good time seeding. Never saw the ground in finer condition for working than it is this spring and should the weather be fine this week the farmers will get all through this week. Not very often the farmers have their grain in in March in this country, but they will come very near doing it this spring.

A good span of horses sold at auction last Saturday afternoon at Maple Plain for $32. Horse flesh is getting cheap. If the democrats had not repealed the McKinley bill farmers might be getting $500. apiece for their horses. The republicans should have put a high protective duty on steam and electricity; the horse is too slow now for traveling purposes; cannot even compete with the bicycle.

It seems our state legislature has passed a bill taxing all railroad lands (called the Anderson bill). To a casual observer this would seem right, but should it interfere with the percentage paid by all railroad companies on their gross earnings then it would seem the legislature had made a mistake. But as we understand it, it comes under the referendum principle; it must be submitted to the people before it can become a law for it seems it is a constitutional consideration.

Last week's GAZETTE contained quite an able article on money, the writer referring to oriental times, and the days of Abraham when silver was used as money and was the leading currency of those days. Yes, Joseph bought up all the surplus grain in Egypt during the seven years of plenty and stored it away in storehouses awaiting the seven years of famine that was coming on. And when the famine was sore in the land of Canaan Joseph's bretheren came down with money (silver) and bought grain in the land of Egypt. After a time Joseph's father, his brothers and his kinsmen, consisting of seventy souls in all, moved down into Egypt. And the king of Egypt put them onto a reservation to farm and herd their flocks. During their stay there they had given all their money, their cattle, their herds and their lands for something to subsist on and finally sold themselves into bondage, and for four hundred years they were in bondage under task masters, but on the self same day they came out with a high hand. Now it has been said by some that we could not have a famine in this country. This is idle talk. God can do whatsoever he will. Three years ago we would not have believed that at this time a good horse could be bought for twenty dollars. Now if Congress and the people of this country are foolish enough to let the bankers and money mongers of Europe and the bankers of Wall street chime in as a syndicate to control our money market and bring on exclusively a single gold standard, then the poor of this country are doomed to a worse fate than were our forefathers in colonial times, when under the reign of King George and the roaring lion of Great Britain. I fear the reign of the money tyrant more than I do the sword, pestilence or famine. The former has a heart steeled against all flesh. Their greed has no bounds and their avarice would be a burning canker in the breasts of the toiling masses of this country. Perhaps I may have overdrawn the line in regard to money and our monetary system but at present I can't see as we have anything to warrant a better state of affairs. The mortgage and bonded debt of our country is increasing all the time and the fat is about fried out of the common people and where is the stuff coming from. Money is bringing 8 and 10 per cent; officials are getting the same salary, while the poor cannot even get work at reduced wages. Yet on every 4th of July we hear the blasts of oratory from thousands of platforms in this country, boasting that this country is the home of the free and the asylum of the oppressed and so it was intended by our forefathers, but designing and unprincipled men are trampling the God given rights under their feet and many are being made to suffer by their iniquitous deeds. The people should wake up. Is it possible we are blind to our own interests and will allow the moneyed class to weave a net around us, its warp and woof being of gold fiber. Yours in hope of plenty for the masses as well as the classes.

Women Must Make a Choice.

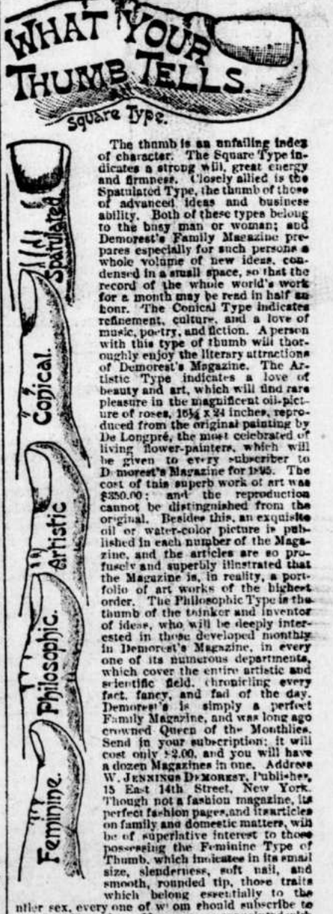
"Women should not attempt," says an eminent woman physician of London, "to carry on a profession after marriage. I mean the women of the upper and middle classes who go into the professions. It is not necessary that they should be the bread winners, that duty should devolve upon the husband; and I am confident that the rising generation would be healthier and stronger in every way if the mothers would exert themselves less. I look anxiously at every baby that comes under my notice in the hope that I shall find some improvement in the type, some increase in stamina, compared with the generation that has preceeded it; but instead of this there is only steady deterioration observable. This deterioration is particularly noticeable among the children of very active mothers. The cleverest and most highly educated women, the women who take the most active part in public affairs have the most weakly and puny children.

"Another thing, women are going into too active forms of exercise. When a young married woman tells me that she is captain of a cricket eleven or of a foot ball team, I can only say I am perfectly aghast. Women must place before themselves the alternative—to earn their living, to exercise their faculties, and to gratify their ambitions in a professional career, or to become good wives and mothers. And if they choose the domestic life they must recognize that they must sacrifice their personal happiness and ambition in the future happiness and success of their children."—Minneapolis Tribune.



The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman; and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons a whole volume of new ideas, condensed in a small space, so that the record of the whole world's work for a month may be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates refinement, culture, and a love of music, poetry, and fiction. A person with this type of thumb will thoroughly enjoy the literary attractions of Demorest's Magazine. The Artistic Type indicates a love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil-picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpré, the most celebrated of living flower-painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $250.00; and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this, an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and inventor of ideas, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments, which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription; it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the nler sex, every one of w om should subscribe to morest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with merits, send for a specimen copy (free), and u will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put u in the way of saving money by finding in one agazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of e whole family.

It is estimated that the agricultural earnings of the United States are $3,290,000,000; from manufactures, $3,330,000,000; from mines, $480,000,000; from transportation, $1,550,000,000; from commerce, $160,000,000; from shipping, $160,000,000, and from banking, $200,000,000. The farmers and manufacturers take the lead.

AS FAR as is known, swallows' migratory flights are always carried on by day. The fact that, though warblers and other migrants are constantly found dead around lighthouses, having dashed themselves against the windows of the lanterns, swallows have never been known to meet their fate in this way, furnishes strong presumptive evidence of this peculiarity of the swallow tribe.

THE statistician of the agricultural department gives a very substantial reason for the continued low price of wheat in his figures of the world's production, which was, for the year, 1891, 2,370,000,000 bushels; for 1892, 2,414,000,000 bushels; for 1893, 2,427,000,000 bushels, and for 1894, 2,590,000,000 bushels. This is quite sufficient to account for the low price of wheat during the last few years.

A FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD boy who was called as a witness in a New York city court admitted that he had never heard of God. There is only too good reasons to believe that hundreds of boys in the large cities are growing up in similar ignorance and without any religious instruction. That such a state of affairs can exist in progressive American cities is deplorable, but it emphasizes the need of better and more comprehensive missionary work at home.

A MAN in Buffalo, N. Y., accounts for the name of that city on the theory that the early French explorers called its principal water course "bean flot," meaning beautiful wave or flood, which as the years rolled on became corrupted to Buffalo creek, and thus gave the name to the town. This practically completes the work of exterminating one of America's noblest aboriginal tribes. The last buffalo is gone. It is not a buffalo. It is a beau flot.

BLONDIN, the famous funambulist, as they call him in England, where they are fond of polysyllabic verbiage, is in his old age a sturdy, thick-set man. His habits have always been abstemious, and he is well-preserved at 72. Blondin has walked thousands of miles on the rope, but has never made another trip so daring as that across Niagara falls, and he has never exceeded the fame he made by that perilous journey. The feat aroused much more apprehension in the spectators than in Blondin. "Thank God it is over!" said the prince of Wales when the feat was accomplished.

THE death of Ismail Pasha recalls that brilliant spendthrift's career, which burdened Egypt with a tremendous debt and led to his downfall and abdication in 1878 through the pressure of England and Germany, the sultan of Turkey demanding Ismail's resignation or abdication. Ismail was willing to surrender his personal estates to pay the debt, but he could not stand the limitations imposed on his expenditures by the commissioners set over Egyptian finances by England and France. This he refused to tolerate, and he was then forced to abdicate on an allowance.

DURING 1894 the American people used up nearly 18,000,000 bunches of bananas, the exact number being 17,864,714. Of these New Orleans received about one-third, New York nearly a quarter, Philadelphia a sixth, Boston one-ninth, Mobile a tenth and Baltimore one-eighteenth part, the small remainder being distributed among other receiving points. The consumption per year averages more than one bunch to every four persons in this country, and appears not to have reached its per capita limit, as men engaged in the business report indications of a steady growth

Germans in the Fatherland and America Honor Bismarck.

His 80th Birthday Celebrated — Great Crowds Gather in Various Cities in Both Countries—Gifts and Congratulations.

BERLIN, April 1.—Special prayers for Prince Bismarck were offered in all the Protestant churches in Germany Sunday. The school children were given a holiday Monday. The teachers on Saturday spoke to their pupils about Bismarck, extolling the ex-chancellor's services to the fatherland.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, April 1.—The Bismarck celebration is in full swing, and every day seems to add to the enthusiasm displayed by the German people over the eightieth anniversary of the birth of the old chancellor. Every train arriving at Friedrichsruhe is loaded with presents for the aged statesman, and every post brings hundreds of congratulatory letters not only from people in Germany but from Germans and others throughout the civilized world. Thousands upon thousands of special Bismarck post cards have been sold and a great number have been mailed to the United States. Those in Germany who have received them have put them carefully away, to be preserved as mementoes of the iron chancellor and the great outpouring of the public heart in his honor.

Sunday the prince received his first congratulatory telegram from a crowned head outside of Germany. It was from King Oscar of Sweden and contained a graceful expression of his majesty's interest in the occasion and hearty well wishes for the prince's welfare.

BERLIN, April 2.—Telegrams are pouring in from all parts of the empire announcing that Bismarckian fetes have been commenced with great spirit. Throughout Germany Sunday night joy fires were burning on the highest mountain peaks and hills from the Baltic to the North sea and to the Swiss and Austrian frontiers on the south, from the Russian frontier on the east to the frontiers of France, Belgium and the Netherlands on the west. Never before in the history of the empire has there been such a heartfelt exhibition of love by the German people.

FRIEDRICHSRUHE, April 3. — Prince Bismarck arose at 9:45 Monday morning feeling vigorous and refreshed. Dr. Schweninger was the first to congratulate him and presented him with a bouquet of roses. The prince proceeded to the morning room where the members of the family were assembled. Each member presented him with a birthday gift. Dr. Schweninger gave him a cask of Pschorr beer.

Over a thousand parcels, containing presents for Prince Bismarck, have arrived at the castle here. Twenty-three postal clerks were engaged all day Sunday and until late Sunday night sorting the messages of congratulation, the number of which is given officially at over 200,000.

Seven thousand students with six brass bands took part in the demonstration. After the reception Bismarck went to his room and rested for two hours. All the afternoon the scene outside the castle grounds reminded the onlooker of a crowded fair. Booths lined both sides of the road. Among them surged uncounted thousands, cheering, drinking and singing. Uniformed musicians wandered about, playing in groups and singly; organ grinders with instruments full of patriotic melodies performed incessantly, and tramp acrobats, bear trainers and singers had pitched their tents every few rods from the castle to the station.

About 6 o'clock, when the hullabaloo was just beginning to abate, the special trains of the Hamburg Electoral association and several other societies drew into the station and unloaded a throng of fresh shouters. Bismarck received the Hamburg deputies a half hour later.

The torchlight processions formed at 8 o'clock. Telegrams of congratulation have been received from Emperor Franz Joseph, Count Kalnoky, King Humbert and Premier Crispi.

BERLIN, April 3.—All of the public and most of the private buildings are bedecked with flags and bunting in honor of the 80th birthday of Prince Bismarck. At all the schools the pupils assembled Monday morning in order to hear special Bismarck addresses. The pupils were then given a holiday.

HAMBURG, April 3.—The Bismarck fetes have been repeated with redoubled zest. The banks, bridges, state buildings and most of the private houses were ablaze with candles and electric lights until midnight at Friedrichshuhe. After leading three cheers for Hamburg's prosperity, Prince Bismarck muffled his throat and descended from the terrace. Five bands struck up a march, and the torchbearers began to file past. The prince stood half an hour at the foot of the terrace watching the parade. All the torch-bearers cheered him and occasionally a group from some Hamburg singing society would slacken their pace and give him a stanza from the new birthday song.

BERLIN, April 3.—The emperor and empress were present at a grand banquet given Monday evening in the white hall of the castle in honor of Prince Bismarck's birthday. All the royal princes and princesses, court officials, generals, members of the bundesrath, chiefs of the different bureaus of the reichstag and of the diet and other distinguished officials were present. Emperor William, in toastihg Prince Bismark, said: "His serene highness, Duke von Lauenberg, Prince von Bismarck, hurrah! hurrah! hurrah!"

NEW YORK, April 3.—The Germans in New York celebrated the 80th anniversary of the birth of Bismarck Monday. Flags were flying throughout the distinctive German district on the east side. All the German societies and hosts of other Teutonic organizations celebrated in some form or other, most of the events occurring in the evening.

The two big German societies, the Arion and the Leiderkranz, held festivities in their headquarters. The two societies united in sending the following cable message to Bismarck:

"To the man who united Germany:
"Thanks and greetings on his birthday from the singers and the boards of trustees of the Arion and Leiderkranz societies."

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 3.—The legislature Monday morning passed a resolution congratulating Prince Bismarck on his 80th birthday. It is to be cabled to the prince.

ST. LOUIS, April 3.—As many of the 175,000 German population of this city as could be accommodated assembled at their many public halls Tuesday night to the commers in honor of Bismarck's birthday. The principal event was the gathering of the Liederkranz society. The decorations were mingled American and German colors, with a large picture of the iron chancellor for the centerpiece. Speaking by Congressman Bartholdt, Dr. Louis Bauer, Dr. H. Kinner, Dr. Ludwig Bremer and Hon. William C. Fox was interluded with orchestral airs and German songs. The society cabled a message of congratulation to Bismarck. The day was aptly recognized also by the Lillian Russell opera company at the Grand, where the full force of the company joined in singing "Die Wacht Am Rhine."

PHILADELPHIA, April 3.—The 80th anniversary of the birth of Prince Bismarck was celebrated at the Academy of Music Monday night by the citizens of Philadelphia of German descent. The celebration took the form of addresses and orchestral and vocal music.

THE WALLER CASE.

Cabinet Considers the Question of Asking France to Explain.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The telegram from Gov. Morrill urging the president to extend protection to ex-Consul Waller, a citizen of Kansas, reported imprisoned in Madagascar by order of a French court-martial, has not yet been received at the white house. The president, however, after a consultation with his cabinet, has decided to act in the matter and to call for a report of all the circumstances. If the facts are as originally reported in the cablegram from Mauritius—and in this point United States Consul Campbell at St. Louis will be looked to for a report—then it is expected that Mr. Eustis, American ambassador to France, will be instructed to lay the matter before the French foreign office and ask for an explanation of the course pursued by the officials in Madagascar.

BRITISH TROOPS THREATEN.

Department of State Apprehensive of Trouble in Venezuela.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The secretary of state is very much concerned by the Venezuelan problem. It appears that the American ambassador, Mr. Bayard, has not succeeded in inducing the British government to give heed to the request submitted by him, at the direction of congress, that the boundary dispute be submitted to arbitration. The British are profuse in their declaration of a willingness to arbitrate the title to the lands west of the Schoomberg line, but the state department thinks this an evasion of the real issue, for there never has been any reasonable assertion of a British right to this territory. It is the territory east of this line that forms the subject of the contention. The present situation is believed to be alarming, as armed bodies of British and Venezuelans are pressing each other closely in the disputed territory, and there may be a hostile clash at any moment.

The administration has been considering carefully the course to be pursued in such case, and it is entirely probable that if the British persist in bringing about such a collision through a failure to heed the repeated warnings and requests of the United States to submit the matter to a fair arbitration, then the United States will feel obliged to follow the moral aid it has given to Venezuelans in the matter by more substantial assistance.

TRADE LOOKS UP.

The Situation at Various Points According to Bradstreet.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Bradstreet's review says:

"Moderate gains in trade are reported from Louisville, with continued distribution of large volumes of staples from Chicago. St. Louis and Kansas City. Duluth reports sales from 20 to 40 per cent. larger than last year. At St. Paul general trade is fair; at Minneapolis it is unchanged. At Sioux Falls, S. D., business with jobbers is smaller than one year ago, but collections on new business are good. At Cleveland and Detrit few features are reported and collections are unsatisfactory. Milwaukee reports trade fair, with a tendency to improvement, but Des Moines and Omaha say business is dull, although some gain is reported in special lines. A moderate improvement is announced from Memphis, Nashville, Birmingham, Atlanta and Augusta. At Chattanooga and Savannah trade is quiet. The movement of dry goods at New Orleans has felt some increased demand, but shipping interests continue disturbed. The season is backward at Galveston, with trade only fair."

SIX MEN KILLED.

WOBURN, Mass., April .—Just before 7 o'clock Monday morning two of the boilers in the Conn tannery in this place exploded with terrific force, killing five men and injuring five others, one of whom subsequently died. The dead are: Austin Clemens, foreman; Patrick Lally, fireman; Frank McMahon, Patrick McGonagle, oiler; Samuel Tracy, Patrick Riley.

Oxford Wins Again.

PUTNEY, England, April 2.—Oxford won this fifty-seventh boat race Saturday between the crews representing the universities of Oxford and Cambridge, crossing the line two lengths ahead.

The official time of the winning boat is announced to be 20 minutes 50 seconds.

Minister Baker Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — Minister Lewis Baker, the diplomatic representative of the United States in Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Salvador, has secured leave of absence and is expected to be home in June.

President of Garrett Institute Dead.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Rev. Henry Bascom Ridgeway, president of the Garrett Biblical institute, died after a lingering illness at his residence in Evanston at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He was 65 years old.

WEAK NERVES

Indicate as surely as any physical symptom shows anything, that the organs and tissues of the body are not satisfied with their nourishment.

They draw their sustenance from the blood, and if the blood is thin, impure or insufficient, they are in a state of revolt. Their complaints are made to the brain, the king of the body, through the nervous system, and the result of the general dissatisfaction is what we call Nervousness.

The cure for Nervousness, then, is simple. Purify and enrich your blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the nerves, tissues and organs will have the healthful nourishment they crave. Nervousness and Weakness will then give way to strength and health.

That this is not theory but fact is proven by the voluntary statements of thousands cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read the next column.

"With pleasure I will state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has helped me wonderfully. For several months I could not lie down to sleep on account of heart trouble and also

Prostration of the Nerves.

For three years I had been doctoring, but could not get cured. I received relief for a while, but not permanent. Soon after beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla there was a change for the better. In a short time I was feeling splendidly. I now rest well and am able to do work of whatever kind. If I had not tried Hood's Sarsaparilla I do not know what would have become of me. I keep it in my house all the time, and other members of the family take it, and all say there is —Wife—Cousin Clara needs a new penknife, and I would like to give her one of mine; but people say that a gift of a knife will cut friendship. Husband—Have no fear; no knife that one woman gives another will cut anything.—Boston Globe.

—Peacemaker—I wouldn't fight, my good men. First Combatant—He called me a liar, sur. Second Combatant—An' he called me a lazy loafer. Peacemaker—Well; I wouldn't fight over a difference of opinion; you may both be right.—Tit-Bits.

—Churchman—Do you think it right for that Oakland minister to dance in the pulpit? Deacon—I'm a leetle doubtful, brother, leetle doubtful. But, remember, the more he dances the less he preaches, and we must consider all the mitigating circumstances.—San Francisco Examiner.

"Well," said the ex-congressman, "I'm back to my native home once more." "Yes," replied the constituent, "I see you are." "I hope the members of the community will be glad to see me." "I can assure you of that, sir. They were wishing you back some months ago."—Washington Star.

—Of Course They Do.—Mrs. Houser—I have been advertising for a cook, but I don't get any answers. What do you suppose is the reason? Mrs. Placid—I saw your advertisement. It is no wonder that you get no answers. You put in an advertisement for a plain cook. These cooks all think they are handsome.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Times Have Changed.

Mrs. Hagglemore—But we surely ought to give our daughter a wedding present, Hiram.

Mr. Hagglemore—Certainly, my dear, certainly. When we were married your father presented us with a receipted bill of six dollars and fifty-seven cents for gate hinges. I shall make Araminta a wedding present of twenty-seven dollars and thirty-one cents for extra gas.—Chicago Times.

"I SEE that Hoyt is going to have his new play vaccinated." "What for?" "To see whether it will take or not."—Truth.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

"GENTLEMEN:—Regarding prospects for the coming year, would say, we hope to double our last year's output of Aermotors, or, at least, as we have done to the past, sell twenty-four out of every twenty-five windmills that are sold. Since commencing the sale in 1889, WE HAVE SOLD ABOUT

500 AERMOTORS

We do not attribute this fairly good record entirely to our efforts, but to the superiority of the goods which you make. BUSSELL & DAVIS, Urbana, Ill., February 18, 1895."

GENTLEMEN:—We bought and put up Aermotor No. 2, and out of the first fifty which you made we had thirteen. Since that time we have sold about

400 AERMOTORS

In our small territory is represented the history of the Aermotor and the Aermotor Company from the beginning to the present hour. That history is one of unbroken triumph. Aside from the Aermotor there have been but few other windmills put up in our territory—just enough with which to compare and show the infinite superiority of the Aermotor in design, workmanship, finish (all galvanized after completion), and ability to run and do effective work when all others stand idle for want of wind. We should have sold more, but this region was well supplied with wind power when the Aermotor appeared, it being only 95 miles to Chicago, and had for years been the battle ground for ten or twelve of the largest, best known and strongest windmill companies, all being located within 50 miles of us. MUCH OF OUR BUSINESS HAS COME FROM REPLACING WOODEN AND OTHER UNSATISFACTORY WHEELS WITH AERMOTORS. You say you have during the past year surpassed any previous year's record by about one-half, and that you expect to double your last year's output in the coming year. Count on us for our portion of it, for the Aermotor never stood farther above all competitors in reputation and in fact than to-day. SMITH & BAZORE, Marengo, Ill., February 25, 1895."

The next Aermotor ad. will be of pumps. We shall offer for three way force pump. All dealers should have it or can get it to sell at that price. All Aermotor men will have it. The week following will appear our advertisement of galvanized steel tanks at 2½ cents per gallon. They neither shrink, leak, rust, nor make water taste bad. Aermotor Co., Chicago.

FOREBODING.

I should be so lonely without you, dear,
Why, even now, if you be not here
For the shortest day, there's a certain lack
Which does not vanish till you come back.
And if you were gone forever, dear,
The aching throat and the hot swift tear
Were a feeble vent, and a futile due
To the aching absence, dear, of you.

I should be so lonely without you, dear,
Kiss me again, so I know you're near.
If I should reach for the old embrace
And my arms should close on a formless space.
In the midst of the world and its hollow cheer,
In the gayest throng, I should thrill with fear—
The fear of the void which the world would be,
If you were gone from the earth and me.

I should be so lonely without you, dear,
Though I still might heed the passing year;
Though I still might toil from sun to sun,
What would it be when the work was done?
You would not see and you could not share
And who, of the rest, would really care?

And if I were gone and 'twere you were left,
I know your breast were as much bereft;
And though God were good and seraphs near,
If I were away, while you were here,
I should be so lonely without you, dear.
—J. Edmund V. Cooke, in A Bunch of Pansies.

A GLOVE BUTTON.

How It Furnished an English Traveler a Short Story.

Everything happened exactly as it does in those charming novels, which, of all literature, are my favorites. I was very late for the train; it was on the move; the porter bundled me in, flung my bag after me, slammed the door and whistled. And the lady who sat in the opposite corner of the carriage gathered her feet under the seat to avoid my hurtling bag. She was extremely pretty.

"Depend upon it," said I to myself at once, "she's going to stay with the Blairs. For it had to be so—it always is so." I was going to the Blairs, you see.

Unhappily, she did not seem inclined for conversation. She was accommodating, but not discursive as to the window; it was summer, and there was no foot warmer to bridge the gap between us. The annoying girl had a paper and buried herself behind it. This was, of course, all wrong. Something would happen soon, however.

Something did. The lady put down the paper and gazed in a puzzled manner at her left glove. I peered cautiously round the edge of the Huntsman. Her eyes expressed doubt and difficulty. I saw what was the matter; a button of the glove was undone. I am never intrusive or precipitate. I bided my time. Why, we were hardly at page ten of the novel yet.

She tried to button the glove. The glove was not too large; she could not button it. Her brow wrinkled into a perplexed little frown.

I love a dainty woman, and a woman whose life is spoilt by an obstinate glove button is just the woman for me. She was bound to ask me to button it in another moment.

But she did not. A sudden smile—a smile of illumination—spread over her face. She had got it! Of course she couldn't button the tiresome thing with her glove on! Who could? With another smile for her own folly, she quietly unbuttoned all the buttons of her right glove and drew it off. Then she turned with quiet confidence to the left-hand button.

Had it not been for the look of the thing I would have kissed her on the spot. As it was—and notwithstanding my interest in racing—I allowed the Huntsman to drop and fastened my eyes on her. Her hand was the most lovely hand I had ever seen—small, plump, tapering, white, pink-nailed. I dote on a good hand.

She buttoned the button of her left glove with immediate and complete success, and smiled rapturously; indeed, she held up her hand and surveyed the job with immense complacency. I was smiling broadly myself, now, because I saw what was going to happen. Thank heaven, however, I made no sound! I wouldn't have spoilt it for the world.

Her white teeth gleamed radiantly between her parted lips, as she gently drew on the right glove. She treated the glove lovingly, working and pulling and patting, stopping to look now and again, conducting the thumb with infinite adroitness into its compartment. Then she gave a final persuasive tug to the upper part, and prepared to button the glove.

She tried the first button. She stopped to think. A curious expression stole over her face. She shook her head. She looked at the right glove. She shook her head again. Her right hand moved toward her left. Was she going to unbutton her glove again? As I hope to be saved, she undid two buttons!

Then it struck her, and in an instant her face fell all a-laughing, and I burst into a loud peal.

She looked up in momentary indignation, in swiftly succeeding fun, in irresistible sympathy. Then she laughed a low, long, luxurious ripple.

"I ought to have told you," I gasped. "But, you see, I hoped you'd undo them all again."

"But what am I to do?" she asked.

"What am I for?" I returned.

"Well, if you don't mind," she said.

I crossed over and sat down next her.

"There is," I observed, starting on the top button of the left hand glove, "no man so good that he cannot find a woman too good for him—"

She lifted her eyes with an inquiring gaze.

"And no hand so small that it cannot find a glove too small for it."

"It's not true," she cried. "See, I can move all my fingers."

"I don't believe you can," said I.

"But look."

"I am looking. I can't see them move. Perhaps I might be able, you know, to feel them."

"Do you mind buttoning the other now?" she asked.

"It is better than nothing," said I, and began to button it.

"It was very curious," she remarked, "that I shouldn't have seen that as often as I unbuttoned one glove in order to button the other I should have—"

"It was just what I liked about you," I interrupted.

"I must have been thinking of something else."

"Of course you were," said I, proudly. "You were thinking of me. But it would have been the same, anyhow. You are a perfect woman."

"Have you known me long enough—"

"Yes, for anything," said I.

"Even to take five minutes to button a glove for me?"

"It is nearly done," said I, undoing the second button again. "But I can't manage this one. Now, if I had a hairpin, I should be the happiest—I mean I should be able to manage it."

"I am afraid my hair will come down."

"I am in favor of risking that," I observed.

She gave me a hairpin and I buttoned the glove with it and put it in my pocket.

"My hairpin, please," she said, holding out her hand.

"But am I to get nothing out of it?" I cried, indignantly.

"The reward of a good conscience," she suggested.

"It is not enough."

"Oh, but you must give it to me."

"Well," said I, "I'll give it to you when we get there."

"Get where?"

"Why, to the Blairs, of course. How amused they'll be to find that we've made acquaintance."

"But I'm not going to the—where is it?—the Blairs?"

My face fell a little, but I recovered in a moment.

"Oh, well," said I, nodding my head, "you live quite near and we shall often meet. I'm going to stay a month. I'm not sure now it wouldn't be two months."

"I'm sure I hope you'll enjoy yourself," she said, "and find plenty of gloves to button, but why—the train's stopping!"

"All right, all right," said I. "We've another hundred—a whole splendid hundred—miles to go. And it's a slow train at that."

"I'm afraid I don't know what you mean."

"I'm afraid," I returned, "that I am being a little hasty, but—"

"Unless I'm hasty," she interrupted, with a laugh and a blush, "I shall be carried past my station."

"You are not going to go out there!" I cried, aghast. "You're not going even to the same station?"

"I'm very sorry, but the next is my station." I thought for a moment. The plot was not exactly what I had expected, but it might do as well. And I rose from my seat and took my bag down from the rack.

"A wire will put it all right," said I with a cheerful nod. "It's impossible to leave you stranded alone at a wayside station like this."

"But I live here!" she cried, gleams of wonder and fun in her blue eyes.

"There could be no other reason for getting out at such a place," said I disdainfully.

"And I shan't be alone," she continued. "If I were—"

"Ah, if you were—"

"Oh, well, but I shan't be. I'm to be met."

"That's rather a mistake," I admitted.

"By my husband," said she.

For a moment I said nothing. The train was nearly at a standstill. The lady looked out of the window.

"It's not treating me quite fairly," I observed.

"Yes, there is George," said she. "Oh, you've not given me the hairpin!"

"I never will," said I, in sad determination.

"Oh, very well—"

But George was at the window. I will not describe him. I should probably do him an injustice. George, from outside, could have seen nothing but a slight graceful, distant bend of the head. I saw more, much more: gleaming eyes, white teeth, everything in the world. And a voice said, quite in a whisper:

"I wonder if those Blairs are nice?"

There was regret, longing wistfulness, in that whisper. George was outside.

I could but hold up my hairpin with a romantic air.

And the lady was gone!

"Hang it!" said I to myself as we rolled out of the station. "It's only a short story, after all!"

But it wasn't a bad one.—London News.

HARD TO PLEASE.

Jack Tars Who Were a Very Unappreciative Lot.

The meals on board a sailing ship are perhaps monotonous enough to justify the chronic grumbling of sailors. Monday's dinners are all alike; Tuesdays' and Wednesdays' can be foretold, and so on through the list. And the sailors, having little to think of in smooth weather, eat—and grumble. As to the latter habit, a good story is told.

Once upon a time there lived a skipper whose wife told him that if she went to sea, the poor sailors for whom she cooked would never find fault with their food; so her husband took her with him on his next voyage.

Now this good woman attended to the cooking herself, and the scouse was thick with fresh vegetables, the bread was white and destitute of weevils, the meat was good and the duff almost half plums; but still the men growled. Then the skipper's wife bethought her of the hens she had brought, to lay eggs for her husband, and she killed and roasted them, and sent them forward to the forecastle on the cabin china.

"At last," said she in triumph, "the men will know how seriously we consider their comfort."

At eight bell, she stole forward to the fore scuttle to listen to the praises of her skill and, as she listened, she looked down the hatch in time to see a big black fist plunge a fork into the hen, the while a hoarse voice growled:

"I say, Bill, what d'ye think this bloomin' fowl died of?"—Youth's Companion.

The Critic Confounded.

A practice to which a large number of men conform is not lightly to be found fault with, for it is generally based upon a good reason, of which the critic is ignorant. Coleridge, the poet and philosopher, was once floored by a Jew, a peddler of old clothes, whom he ventured to criticise for abbreviating a word. The Jew had annoyed Coleridge by passing him several times, crying for old clothes in the most nasal tone. At last, the philosopher was so provoked that he said to the peddler: "Pray, why can't you say 'old clothes,' as plain as I do now?" The Jew stopped, looked gravely at his critic, and in a clear, grave accent, answered: "Sir, I can say 'Old clothes' as well as you can, but if you had to say so ten times a minute for hours together, you would 'Och clo' as I do now." He walked away, but Coleridge was so moved by the justice of the man's retort that he followed him and gave him a shilling, the only one he had.—Youth's Companion.

THE VOTE ON MONDAY.

Municipal Elections Held in Ohio, Illinois, Iowa and Michigan.

CINCINNATI, April 2.—Ohio women were partially emancipated Monday. They voted for school board members in the cities. In Columbus it is estimated that 3,000 women voted. They turned out in great numbers in Gallipolis. At Toledo three-fourths of the women's votes were polled by 9 o'clock. At Dayton 2,000 women voted before noon, largely on the republican side. At Youngstown 1,200 voted during the day.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—Monday's election brought out a large vote in Columbus, Cleveland, Toledo and Hamilton, and in a few smaller cities. In the majority of places, however, the vote was light. McKisson (rep.) was elected mayor of Cleveland and P. P. Mast (rep.) mayor of Springfield. The democrats elected Tanzy mayor at Middletown. Hamilton was swept by the democrats, the republicans electing only the assessor. At Toledo the republicans elected the mayor and most of the city ticket. Republicans carried Cadiz, and the new council is pledged to abolish saloons. Republican mayors were elected in Niles, Zanesville, Alliance, Warren, Bellaire and Youngstown.

Cotton H. Allen, democratic candidate for mayor, was elected in Columbus by 2,000 plurality, receiving almost as many votes as his competitors combined. The entire democratic ticket was elected.

Pomeroy elected a democratic mayor. Lima elected republican municipal officers. At Bellefontaine Mrs. Margaret Chalfant was elected to the school board by 827 majority, the largest ever given in that city. The city went republican. The democrats made big gains at Marysville. The women fought each other savagely at Bowling Green. Mrs. Eliza Haskell and Mrs. Kate Reider, republicans, defeated the two democratic women candidates. Urbana went republican. Middletown democrats made a clean sweep. Findlay republicans elected their entire ticket. The democrats swept Millersburg.

GALESBURG, Ill., April 3.—Henry Crane, people's candidate for mayor, was elected in Oneida. In Yates City C. H. Witmeyer and H. J. Truitt were tied for mayor. They drew cuts and Witmeyer won.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., April 3.—The citizens' or A. P. A. ticket was elected by a majority of from 300 to 400. A large majority of women voted the A. P. A. ticket. The proposition to issue $40,000 of bonds for a new high school building carried. The result gives the A. P. A. control of the school board by one majority.

DUBUQUE, Ia., April 3.—Olinger, democratic and citizens' candidate, is elected mayor. The remainder of the ticket is about evenly divided between democrats and citizens.

KEOKUK, Ia., April 3.—In the city election the republicans elected mayor, judge of the superior court, assessor and four of six aldermen. Democrats elected city marshal and two aldermen.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 3.—After the bitterest struggle in the history of politics in Evansville, Mayor Hawkins, republican, was elected for a second term of two years Monday. His plurality is 430. The republicans also elect the four councilmen at large and four of the seven ward councilmen.

DETROIT, Mich., April 2.—With one precinct in the city missing, Whelan (rep.) is elected police justice by about 3,500 plurality. The republican candidates on the state ticket have run some 600 or 700 behind Whelan. McGrath has run ahead of his ticket in the state, but Moore, for justice of the supreme court, will have a plurality of about 25,000. The returns continue to show an extremely light vote.

The regents of the state university elected are Roger Butterfield, of Grand Rapids, and Charles H. Hackley, the millionaire lumberman from Muskegon.

Manistee went democratic and Ludington republican. J. M. Turner, republican and silver candidate for mayor of Lansing, is elected by 906 majority. Traverse City gave a republican majority of 500.

In Grand Rapids, Stebbins (dem.) for mayor defeated Watkins (rep.) by 2,000. A year ago Fisher (rep.) carried the city by 1,600. All the free silver republicans voted for Stebbins.

Lansing republicans made a clean sweep, electing every man on their ticket, gaining city clerk, city treasurer and four aldermen. James M. Turner, who was defeated for governor in 1890, was elected mayor on a free silver platform by 900 plurality.

Republicans were victorious in Holland, Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Niles and Jackson, while the democrats won in Bay City and Muskegon.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 3.—Lieut. Gov. Milnes (rep.) is elected to congress to succeed Senator J. C. Burrows from the Third district by about 1,600 majority over A. M. Todd, prohibition, democrat and free silver.

Used a Razor.

COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—Two small children were found dead in bed in a room in the Park hotel Thursday afternoon with their throats cut from ear to ear. An air of mystery hangs about the tragedy. On Saturday a neatly dressed woman came to the hotel, accompanied by three children, and registered as Mrs. H. H. H. Williams and children, Grove City, O. The children were Harry Williams, aged 7; Maud Williams, aged 12, and Annie, aged 13. It was the two younger children who were found dead. They were assigned to a room with two beds. Annie and her mother occupied one of the beds and the two younger children the other. Some time during the night it is supposed Mrs. Williams murdered the children and covered their bodies with the bedding.

More Troops Sent.

MADRID, March 30.—Premier Canovas del Castillo said in an interview Thursday: "It is undeniable that the situation in Cuba is very serious. The government must use all means to maintain the integrity of the kingdom and crush the rebellion speedily and thoroughly. Seven thousand troops will start for Cuba to-day and 2,000 will be ready to follow them. In six months 20,000 more will be ready. Indeed we are prepared to send 100,000 if need be, for we must end this struggle once for all."

The government has received the resignation of Capt. Gen. Callejas. The Spanish consul in Jamaica telegraphs that the expedition organized by the insurgent leader Maceo, is expected to arrive off the coast at any time.

FORESTS ABLAZE.

Destructive Fires Rage in Kentucky and Indiana.

CLOVERPORT, Ky., April 2.—The most destructive forest fire ever seen here has been raging a few miles back of Cloverport. One person is known to have perished, and the property loss will run into the hundreds of thousands. Nat Hend, a wealthy bachelor of Lewisport, was found dead in the smoking forest Saturday morning. His horse came dashing into Victoria riderless at midnight Friday night, and it is supposed Mr. Hend was thrown and so stunned that he was unable to escape and burned to death.

HAWESVILLE, Ky., April 2.—Prof. C. M. Bruner was burned to death in forest fires near Victoria. Prof. Bruner was a member of the county board of examiners.

CINCINNATI, April 2.—Specials from points in western Kentucky and southern Indiana report that the forest fires are still raging, but definite information from any localities is lacking. The loss is estimated at $200,000 in Kentucky and less in Indiana. The death of Henry Filer near Bowling Green, Ky., and two negroes and that of Mrs. Penny, in addition to those already reported, make three white men, two negroes and one woman lost. While the farmers have been plowing and doing everything to prevent the spreading of fires, and there is no doubt of their loss and danger, yet it is believed that greatly exaggerated reports of the fires have been circulated.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., April 2.—Fires which had been started in a clearing on the Knobs, a few miles northwest of here, were fanned by a gale and soon got beyond control, destroying thousands of dollars' worth of fencing. Haussdale, a hamlet located on the line of the Louisville division of the Pennsylvania system, was partially destroyed.

ENGLISH, Ind., April 2.—News has arrived from the south and southwest part of this county of excessive loss by forest fires, which originated from fires started to clear fields for the plow. All the dwellings, barns and haystacks belonging to A. Robinson, William Finch, George F. Elker, Harvey Denbo and James Land were reduced to ashes and thirty-four persons are houseless. The estimates of the loss is $40,000.

AN ARMISTICE.

Japan Grants a Truce—It Does Not Apply to Formosa.

WASHINGTON, March 30. — The following telegram was received by the Japanese foreign office:

"On the opening of the negotiations the Chinese plenipotentiary proposed an armistice, which the Japanese government was willing to accept on certain conditions. While this negotiation was going on, the untoward event happened on the person of the Chinese plenipotentiary. His majesty, having in view this unhappy occurrence, commanded the Japanese plenipotentiaries to consent to a temporary armistice, without conditions. This was communicated to the Chinese plenipotentiary."

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Secretary Gresham has received official confirmation of the declaration of an unconditional armistice by the emperor of Japan. It is not understood here that this is in any sense equivalent to a declaration of peace, but it is believed that there is not likely to be a resumption of hostilities.

The armistice established by the order of the mikado extends to April 20, but it will terminate if the peace pour parlers are broken in the meantime. According to the terms of the armistice the movement of troops and the transportation of contraband of war by sea is forbidden. The new distribution of troops not intended to augment the armies in the field is allowed.

Japan originally proposed as conditions of an armistice the occupation of Shan Kwan, Taku and Tien Tsin and Japanese control of the Shan Kwan and Tien Tsin railroad, China to defray the cost of such occupation. Li Hung Chang has vainly sought to modify these conditions, and it was proposed to continue the negotiations without an armistice being established, when the attempt on the life of the Chinese plenipotentiary occurred. This led to the declaration by the mikado of an unconditional armistice. As the terms of the armistice do not embrace the island of Formosa the Japanese operations there will continue.

LONDON, April 2.—A dispatch from Tokio to the Central News says that Koyama, the young Japanese who shot Li Hung Chang, the Chinese viceroy, has been sentenced to imprisonment for life at hard labor.

Hot, Dry and Dusty.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Reports come from various places in Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska of heat such as never before brought the mercury so high in the thermometer during the month of March. Friday 86 degrees was registered at Kansas City, Mo. The hottest place in the country was Wichita, Kan., with the thermometer at 90. Rain is badly needed to sprout the seed that has been planted. St. Paul men say that the lack of moisture in the soil at this time of year is without parallel in the history of that region.

CHICAGO, April 2. — The drought which prevailed for a number of weeks in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan was broken Sunday by a heavy rainfall, causing a decided improvement in crop prospects.

Unexpected Death of Hon. A. C. Hesing.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Anton Caspar Hesing, father of Washington Hesing, the postmaster at Chicago, died suddenly at his residence Sunday morning of apoplexy. He retired late Saturday night after finishing his work for Sunday morning's Staats Zeitung in apparently good health. Early Sunday morning his attendant noticed something wrong and sent for the postmaster, but the old gentleman died before he arrived.

Hayward's Motion for New Trial.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 2. — Judge Smith Saturday morning, in consultation with attorneys in the Hayward murder case, settled the bill of exceptions on which the appeal to the supreme court will be made and set the arguments on the motion for a new trial for April 13.

Sold Mortgaged Property.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 29.—Tretas Stowe, a prominent business man of this city, has been sentenced to two years in the penitentiary at hard labor for selling mortgaged property.

May Rule in Ireland.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 29.—It is stated here that Lord Aberdeen is to leave Canada and his gubernatorial position to become lord lieutenant of Ireland.

THE LEGISLATURE.

ST. PAUL, March 27.—The senate had the bill for the distribution of the gross earnings tax under consideration, and after discussion recommitted the same for amendment. The bill requiring the publishing of financial statements of incorporated villages and townships was defeated. The following bills were passed: To regulate the civil service of the state of Minnesota and cities thereof; authorizing building and loan associations to invest money in certain cases; giving liens for the better security of mechanics, material men, etc.; defining what shall constitute a legal newspaper; relating to regulation of hours of labor; to allow villages to separate themselves from townships, governments, etc. Senator Culkins' resolution directing the railroad commission to furnish information to the senate was passed.

The house had a warm time over the prison labor question. The matter came up at 10 a. m. on special order and wound up at 4:30 p. m. by the adoption of the Schurmeier prison labor bill, with a few amendments. The Schurmeier bill was for the adoption of the state account system to take the place of the present contract system, while the Jacobson bill was for the adoption of the piece price system. The state account system is the one by which the state manufactures the goods, using the prisoners on its own account, and places the goods in the general market. The contract system is where the prisoners are turned over to some person or concern to be employed within the prison walls, the contractor paying a certain price per head. The Schurmeier bill was passed by a vote of 95 to 1.

ST. PAUL, March 28.—In the senate the bill giving police officers authority to remove obstructions to levees was passed under suspension of rules. Young's bill relating to returns to the supreme court was defeated, also Culkin's bill placing building and loan associations under the provisions of the usury laws. The age of consent bill was amended to except boys under 21 years of age, and then passed by a vote of 43 to 6. Other bills passed were: To provide for the publication of official ballots; to provide for the incorporation of villages; to prevent the adulteration of candy; authorizing county commissioners to appoint a supervisor of assessments. The entire calendar was cleared up.

The house devoted another day to the consideration of bills on special order. Staples' pine land bill passed by a vote of 73 to 35. Howard's charter passed—98 to 2. Sheehan's home rule bill passed—65 to 29. Several resolutions were then introduced. One by Mr. Rees was adopted. It provides that no member shall speak more than twice upon any one subject, and no longer than five minutes. The Staples resolution, calling upon the judiciary committee to report a bill providing for a constitutional convention, was approved, with the amendment that Mr. Staples is to draft the bill and submit it to the judiciary committee for them to pass upon and introduce.

ST. PAUL, March 29.—Upwards of 30 bills were introduced in the senate, most of them being of minor importance. Barr introduced a measure conferring suffrage on women at municipal elections. One by Ringdahl was for a committee to investigate the cost of railroads. Spencer sent up a joint resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to confer upon the advisability of establishing an interstate park at Taylor's Falls. Senator Spencer offered a resolution having for its purpose the annexation of West Superior to Duluth. In committee of the whole Culkins' freight bill, fixing maximum freight rates, was discussed, amended and then tabled. Keller's, reducing salaries of state officials, was defeated. By request Senator Stevens introduced a bill requiring a license for steam threshers. The bill regulating the working hours of children was passed.

In the house bills were introduced to repeal the laws relating to partition fences; for the regulation of steam engines running threshers; designating property subject to taxation; to appropriate $25,000 for normal school at Duluth. The bill relating to local building and loan associations was defeated. The following bills were passed: Providing for two new experimental farms; declaring a forfeiture of the swamp lands granted the Minneapolis & St. Cloud railway; regulating the use of pound nets in international waters; to encourage the payment of taxes for the year 1893 and years previous; relating to liquor licenses; appropriating $30,000 for soldiers' home. The bill to separate village from township government was returned from the senate with minor amendments. The house concurred in the amendments and passed the bill.

ST. PAUL, March 30.—Today was the last for presentation of bills. In the senate 53 measures were sent up, making a total of 733. Two years ago the number was 578. Many of the bills were duplicates of those already before the house. The bill for the taxation of vessel property was passed under suspension. Among the bills sent up were the following: Appropriating $147,000 for the institute for defectives; prohibiting saloon keepers from taking personal property for drinks, and if the saloon keeper trusts he cannot collect pay for the same; providing that street car companies furnish seats for passengers if they collect fares; to establish a board of inspectors for steam vessels and steam boilers and licensing engineers. The other bills were of minor or local importance.

The house was not so prolific with bills as the senate, yet plenty of members had measures to offer. Mr. Douglass introduced a bill requiring non-residents to procure a license to hunt and fish in the state, placing the license for one year at $25. Other bills were: Granting cities the authority to control and regulate fire, gift auction or bankrupt sales; requiring policemen to give bonds; relating to fraud in the manufacture and sale of cheese. A number of bills were duplicates of measures before the senate. Henry Feig introduced a bill for the removal of the capitol to Kandiyohi county and moved its immediate passage. After considerable sport the bill was referred to a committee composed of Henry Feig and Pat Kelly, both to be chairman of the committee. The rest of the day was spent in committee of the whole.

ST. PAUL, April 1.—The senate held an evening session only and passed a number of bills, the majority of them being of a local character. The following were among those passed: Defining the duties of masters and employes in certain cases; providing for the sanitary inspection and regulation of bakeries and other establishments for the manufacture of human food; to provide manner of bonding counties, of submitting same to vote of elections; to require dealers in fresh meat of all kinds to have the same covered to protect from flies and dirt.

When the house assembled the chief clerk was directed, upon motion of Henry Feig, to cable the congratulations of the legislature to Bismarck. On motion of Foss the bill providing for an inheritance tax was made a special order for Thursday, the 4th. The afternoon was spent in committee of the whole considering general orders. S. F. 336, by Mallette, reconstructing the law providing for state boiler inspection, was again taken up and recommended to pass after two important amendments had been adopted. One of these amendments exempts from state inspection those boilers which are insured.

The house thus far this session has passed 150 house files and 69 senate files, and indefinitely postponed 223 house files and 26 senate files. There are 157 bills on the on general orders and 31 bills on the calendar. The balance of the bills are in committee, or in the hands of the printer.

A Scheme That Failed.

When the tall man slipped down on the ice in front of the drug store and lay there apparently in a faint, a crowd quickly gathered. Everybody with advice on hand took it out and proffered it. Then a man ran hastily into the drug store, as hastily reappeared with a glass in his hand, and kneeled down by the fallen stranger.

"What is it?" whispered the stranger, feebly lifting his head.

"Water," said the man with the glass.

The fallen stranger rose to his feet and stalked indignantly away. "This is a one-horse town anyway," he hissed between his set teeth. Between his two sets of teeth, in fact.—Rockland Tribune.

DELANO DIARY

—Young's grocery sports a new awning.

—La Grippe seems to have about expended its force on our community and several who had well nigh lost their grip, have lost their la grippe.

—Rye fields are beginning to assume a healthy green appearance. Those near enough to town to be seen look as if that crop would be a good one.

—Jake Bryant had some basswood joist 32 feet long sawed a few days ago in Delano. They are to be used in building a new barn on his farm south of town.

—The GAZETTE office has laid in a stock of paper and envelopes and is prepared to furnish Note Heads, Bill Heads, Letter Heads and Envelopes at reasonable prices, also business cards of latest style.

—The Danforth House has received its new hotel register. The advertisements of some of those who believe in the efficiency of printer's ink are found there. There appears to be but one printing office and that's the GAZETTE.

—J. S. Cooper, the oil man, has moved into the place formerly owned by Fred Brandes in the south part of town. Joseph VanEman now occupies the Sutton place, vacated by Mr. C. Mr. VanEman expects soon to move to Buffalo.

—The public schools are preparing to give an entertainment in the near future. From what has leaked out about it, so far, it bids fair to be one of the grandest affairs of the kind ever offered a Delano audience. We bespeak a full house.

—Paul E. Datko has been appointed agent for the Northwestern Life Association, of Minneapolis. Paul is something of a hustler, and will doubtless do well in the business. The company has paid several losses in this neighborhood.

—Some of the school scholars have complained that the Eagle has been calling the new creamery a "Seperator" for the past few weeks. She generally puts her foot into everything and no wonder she has it in the butter business. The naughty Old Bird.

—Creamery business tends to raise the price of cattle. No one who can sell fresh milk or have it made into butter at one of these institutions seems to care to bother raising calves; so they are disposed of at a very tender age; making veal cheap, but beef high —People who figured on receiving 20 or 22 cents per pound for butter fat from the new creamery, will, most likely, be doomed to disappointment; as present prices would not allow the paying of such figures; and it is hardly probable the price will raise much before fall.

—The Litchfield Independent warns bicycle riders to keep off the sidewalks. It says: "wheels have no more right on the sidewalks than buggies." Some of Delano's bicyclists should take note. There is danger of running into people on the sidewalk; especially women and children. Take warning, boys, in time.

—Machinery of various kinds is arriving at the depot almost daily, most of it for agricultural purposes. Machinery is a good thing; is very useful. If several farmers would buy together they could get enough to run several farms for a few hundred dollars; properly used; which would be much better than each one owning an entire outfit, each machine to do but a few days work and be left out in the field until the next year. Don't let some oily agent hypnotize you into buying more machinery than you have use for.

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—From present indications the maple syrup season will be short this year as spring is hastening on and none has yet made its appearance in our market.

—R. M. Bohn seems to be the earliest gardener in town and has a large share of his crop planted and waiting for a few warm days when he will be ready to hoe and weed it. Nothing like being in season with a garden.

—The GAZETTE office has now on hand and for sale a few boxes of stationery, paper and envelopes, lead pencils, pen holders, tablets, blank note and receipt books, etc., cheap for cash. Next door east of Post Office.

—The Christian Endeavor sociable at the home of Rev. Davies on Friday night was largely attended and the highly entertaining literary program was enjoyed by all. Receipts, which were over $5 00, are to apply on singing books for the society.

—D. J. Painter, of Maple Plain, yesterday applied to the police for aid in the search of his daughter, who left home Saturday. The girl is 14 years old, medium build, with dark complexion. She wore dark clothes and a felt hat. No reason can be assigned for her leaving home.—Minneapolis Journal.

—The convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society of the 6th district is to be held in Watertown about May 2 First Vice President F. A. Barth resides there and he is a very energetic worker in the cause. The society has an organization of 90 members, 40 men and 50 women at Watertown, so visitors will be sure of the best treatment the town affords.

—We understand that Mr. Roosen has purchased a span new outfit for his creamery; the latest improved separator which he will run with the engine now in use at the round elevator; horse power being depended on for the wheat business. Thus the great wheat industry of our vicinity is already succumbing to diversified farming; the power that used to aid in getting our wheat to market being used in making butter.

—The Recorder received a notice a few days since from the County Auditor, with a blank to fill out stating that the Assessor had been duly appointed by a majority vote of the Village council at a meeting of that body. It seems the law does not provide for the election of an assessor at the general election; but that must be done by the Village Council. Delano has no Assessor, as yet, and Mr. Vorse may learn some more politics.

—We are in receipt of several bulletins from the Agricultural Experimental station, giving some advice on raising potatoes, tomatoes and apple trees, strawberries, etc., etc. This advise is based on experiments made last year; the potato is gone into in good shape, 40 kinds having been tried. Of course one year, a dry one like last year, might not prove everything, but much useful information can be had from reading these bulletins. Write to the Experimental Station, Horticultural Division, St. Anthony Park, Minn., being careful to give your name and address plainly written, and get Bulletin No. 39, and read up on potatoes. They are in demand at present.

—Our village council could set men to work on the street now, very profitably. But, if instead of hiring a few men, for a long period, at $1 50 per day, as seems to be the arrangement, they would divide the work among as many as possible who need it, at regular rates, what men can get anywhere else in town for similar work, it seems to us it would be wiser. And if instead of paying for the work in village orders to be shaved by some one willing to make a few dimes in this way, the village, if out of funds, would make a temporary loan, for the purpose, and pay the men cash, it would be giving better satisfaction and transacting the village affairs on better business principles so far as the men are concerned; of course the order shavers would not consider it so business like, for them.

—That young man that removed one of Stella Stanton's photographs from the frame on exhibition, on the corner of R. R. Ave. and 2nd St. Thursday evening had better return it to the owner or quietly lay it away to adorn his cell at Stillwater when he arrives there. Such business is stealing and those engaged in it are far along on their road to the penitentiary. You wont care to show the picture to anyone when all know where you got it; better send it to Miss Stanton by mail if you can do no better. Turn now, while it is not too late, and take a different path in life, and be a man among men; an honest man, the noblest work of God.

—The Eagle apparently takes a great deal of pains to keep constantly before her readers the impression that the GAZETTE is fighting the creamery or any other improvement that may be suggested in town. Of course our readers know better; and as she often says that locals are scarce it is to be presumed that she has an eye to filling up her columns. But we did object as we always have to having the village even asked to appropriate money, even if it is only $150, toward building anything of the sort for individual gains. The village money belongs to the village and the village officers are merely its custodians any are in duty, and we think legally, bound to use it for village purposes, and not for setting Tom, Dick and Harry up in business. So far as the creamery goes we presume Mr. Roosen has sufficient means at his command to build, equip and run the creamery one year if he sees fit. If some poor fellow wanted the village to give him a cow to furnish his family with milk, would he get it?

—The Oregon Medicine Company shows exhibited to crowded houses Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. They were free.

—One of our building firms is said to have so much work on hand that capitalists bar them from bidding on more. Rather a strange state of affairs.

—On the inside of this paper will be found something about Bismark's birthday, the truce between China and Japan, legislative and other items of interest to the reading public.

—Several boys made quite a noise last evening around the church while Stella Stanton was reciting. She sent them an invitation to come in. Three came; we wont give their names, now.

—Large and well pleased audiences are attending the Oregon Indian Entertainments at the City Hall. Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights are free to adults. Saturday, Tuesday and Thursday nights, double programs are given in which many novel features are introduced. The Oregon Indian remedies are for sale at the Hall. Consultation and advice free. 27-1t.

—Buy your lunch or dinner at the stand of the Epworth League at the Frazee implement house on River Street on Fair Day and aid them in raising $100 to pay on the M. E. church debt. They are striving hard with others to raise the load and they deserve your dimes. Don't forget them and their cause and come and get a good dinner. Even if you live in town call and encourage them.

—Stella Stanton's entertainment, at the M. E. church last evening was enjoyed by rather a small audience, other attractions in town being more drawing to many. But those in attendance were highly pleased. She is an elocutionist away above the average. The music by home talent was good and those kindly assisting in furnishing it have the thanks of the members of the Epworth League under whose auspices the entertainment was given.

Personals.

Bert St. Johns, of Watertown, was in town Tuesday.

Roy Mulford came up from the cities on Tuesday morning.

Sylvester Cooper and Elmer Astrop and their families have moved to Dakota.

A. L. Mealey is now at home in his new residence lately purchased of Sylvester Cooper, on Lower River Street.

Miss Annie E. Parslow is home for a month's rest from teaching at Beebee's Lake; then the summer term begins.

Frank A. Barth, of Watertown, passed through town this morning on his way to Darwin in his temperance work.

Miss Henderson, who has been visiting at C. J. Buckley's for a couple of weeks, returned home yesterday evening to White Bear.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cunningham spent Sunday afternoon at Watertown visiting Mrs. C. G. Halgren, who has been on the sick list.

Dr. E. E. Shrader, Watertown's M. D., passed through town on Wednesday afternoon on a business trip to the cities. Dr. J. S. Shrader, of Delano, accompanied him.

[Handed in.]

Mrs. Emma Zabel visited Minneapolis, Tuesday, on business.

John Kornek, hauled sawdust from Delano, Monday. He's acting on the Eagle's advice and putting up ice in the old granary.

School Jottings.

A Physiology Lesson.

Tuesday morning Mr. Leavens procured the heart and lungs of a calf and brought them up to the laboratory where the physiology class proceeded to examine them.

The heart, which has been our study for the past week, was first noticed. The ventricles comprises the entire part of what is commonly called the heart, and are much larger than the auricles which join the ventricles at the top. The heart was surrounded by a thin, moist and transparent sac, called the pericardium, which means around the heart. The thin flap of muscular tissue lying under the heart and called the diaphram was next brought to view.

The lungs were examined and it was noticed that when inflated they would float upon water.

The treacha, or windpipe, was next in order. It is formed of horseshoe-like rings of cartilage and connective tissue and just before reaching the lungs divides into the two branches called bronchi, one going to each lung. These in turn branch into still smaller ones, called bronchial tubes which finally end in minute air cells.

The oesophagus, or gullet, was situated behind the trachea and was much smaller than the trachea.

Having finished the examination of the exterior of these organs, we dissected them and viewed their interior.

As we noticed the mitral valves, which keep the blood in the ventricle from flowing back into the auricle, the tendons which work these valves, the muscles to which the valves are attached, and the peculiar system of circulation by which the heart is nourished, we felt like exclaiming with the poet. "What a wonderful piece of work is man."

In the lungs the air cells were examined and were found under the microscope, to contain very small capillaries and nerves. The smallest air cells resemble the minute bubbles which are seen in the beaten white of an egg.

This concluded our lesson which was much needed in order to understand our text and was also very instructive

County Cullings.

Mrs. Crandall, wife of J. D. Crandall, one of Rockford's old settlers died this week. Old settlers are growing fewer fast.

One of the city papers recently said that Senator Culkin had apparently lost interest in the bill for the reduction of freights on railroads. How is that, Senator?

Political parties, except the populists, are very quiet in the country now. The new party is in the field laboring hard to get voters against the coming Presidential campaign.

The Minneapolis Tribune says out of 136 applicants for teacher's certificates examined in Hennepin county recently only 31 passed. The applicants were mostly young people and failed in spelling. Some of our scholars in Wright county can well take warning.

From the Cokato Commoner we learn that Dr. Cassel of that place has sued R. F. Case, of Dassel, for libel, on account of posting up an article recently published in the Dassel Anchor and retracted by Editor Peet, retaining Senator Culkin and E. P. Peterson, of Litchfield, as his attorneys.

If the state solons, at the capitol, succeed in thrusting upon us, the 4th Judicial, what we do not want, another judge, why not put up A. Y. Eaton, as a country candidate. The country should have a representative when the bench is so big. Hon. A. Y. is capable, and would make a good judge and is just now out of politics.

Brainard's Musical World.

Now ready for April; containing besides a large amount of interesting reading, eight pieces of music, viz: "Humoresque" by Grieg, with lesson by Emil Liebling; "Album Leaf" Schulhoff; "Sleep, Baby, Sleep," cradle song for piano; "Song Without Words" Spindler; "A Dream of the Ball", waltzes; "Hammock Song" (siesta); "Rock a-Bye Birdie" song and the famous old French song sung by "Trilby," "Ah Clair de la Lune" with English and French words. Each number of the Musical World contains a piano lesson by Emil Liebling, valuable articles by such writers as Wm H. Sherwood, Robt. Goldbeck, etc. A fine portrait of of some musical celebrity (suitable for framing) is given with each number. Fine portraits of the leading singers of the Abbey-Grau Opera Co, and other illustrations given in this issue. Terms $1 50 per year, 15 cents each. To introduce the World to those who have never taken it, it will be sent four months on trial on receipt of 25 cents in stamps. Address The S. Brainard's Sons Co., Chicago.

Oh! The Pity of It!

We are fully aware of the fact that it is impossible to exaggerate the horrors and the extent of the misery produced in the homes of a large proportion by this drink habit; we know that we cannot fully estimate the loss and injury that the community suffer on account of its awful tax on the resources of labor; nor can we fathom all the crime and degredation that is the direct outcome of this terrible appetite for strong drink. No amount of regret can atone for the wail of a mother's awful agony over her lost son, no amount of good intentions will compensate the wife of a drunken husband, no tears or anguish or even real repentence will repair the broken hearts or stifle the cries of homeless starving children who have been made worse than fatherless by the toleration and even protection that the liquor traffic has obtained through votes. Eternity alone will reveal the horrors that this traffic in alcoholic poisons has produced. But that the people should tamely and willingly tolerate these outrages is a fact that challenges credulity and shocks our moral sense. From "What Does Conscience Say?" in Demorest's Magazine for April.

TARIFF IS A TAX.

Minnesota Now Has Two U. S. Senators who are aware of that fact.

WORRY.

BY OUR OWN POET.

We had worried all the year—
Thought the crops would surely fail
Unless God should send us rain,
Unless God kept back the hail.
Worried ere 'twas planting time;
Thought the spring was cold and late;
Feared the very elements
Would combine against our fate.

Thought of locust, Chinch-bugs, flies,
Rust and mildew for the grain;
On our brows a worried scowl
Came, and would not leave again.
Thus we worried all the year,
Till our granaries overflowed,
And the corn peeped from the cribs
Bright and clean and many-rowed.

Then at glad Thanksgiving time,
How we smiled and praised ourselves
That, by patient toil and faith,
Good things heaped our pantry shelves.
One who heard us talk would think
We had never doubted God:
Were he not all merciful
He would make us feel his rod.

IN the inter-collegiate contest held at St. Paul Monday night to decide on who should represent Minnesota at the inter-state contest to be held at Galesburg, Ill., on May 2, Hamline, Macalester, Carlton and the State University each had two contestants. F. M. Phillips, of Hamline, won first place; A. L. Helliwell, of the State University, second, and F. H. Forsell, of Carlton, third. Hamline's friends feel proud of her oratorical achievements.

THE Duluth News-Tribune accuses her neighboring city, Superior, Wis., of flirting. A movement has been on foot for some time looking to the union of the scattering houses around the head of the lake into one city. At present there are several small cities which, if put under one head would make a good sized city able to compare itself favorably with other large cities. But neither likes to cut loose from home, from its native state. Committees have been appointed by the legislatures of the two states to arrange for a union of the two cities. Perhaps it may come to pass.

THE liquor traffic seems to be assuming a new form. St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago, each have a general store with a liquor department, according to the Methodist Herald, where ladies can sit and sip the beverages while they order groceries or where they can buy a bottle of liquor to be delivered at their homes along with their eatables. Church people are taking a strong stand against this arrangement and are hunting new places to buy the necessaries of life. They don't propose to contribute to the support of the liquor business in this way. Neither will they send the younger members of their families to a saloon, even if it is licensed, to trade.

NOT for many years has there been such a diversity of opinions as to what will be the issues on which a President of the United States will be elected in '96. During this generation the great question of slavery has been settled by a proclamation and wiped from the country, after a bloody war. Tariff and finances and reforms of various kinds have served to draw the party lines on for years. For the last few campaigns the question of protective tariff has been the bone of contention and the people have expressed themselves as not in favor of protection. Whatever might have been the excuse in days gone by for protecting any man or class of men in this country in trades or manufacturing interests, it seems now that such a thing is unnecessary and only an injustice to others who are obliged to pay the high tariff prices for clothing and other necessaries of life.

The money question is being dragged out and debated over again. This country has had gold and silver and paper, all at once, for money, for years and notwithstanding all the hubbub about 50 cent silver and worthless paper dollars, and gold that you can neither eat nor wear, everybody is striving to get hold of as many dollars as he can; and he don't stop to dictate what kind of money you shall pay, but takes one as quickly as the other.
